

Chapter 1501 The Byrd Family Is Doomed

Trevor's identification skills were now acknowledged by many appraisers.

Those who were skeptical of him earlier were now smiling warmly at him and they even handed him their business cards.

Trevor was very polite and courteous with them.

Balfour was the happiest, and he had a big smile on his face. Thanks to Trevor, he was able to meet several collectors and appraisers.

Bobbi did not share their joy, though. When he put away the antique, his face became very gloomy and he looked depressed. His smile was clearly forced.

Tasha ignored Bobbi and looked at Trevor instead. With shining eyes, she exclaimed, "Dragon, I had no idea you were so good at identifying antiques! It wouldn't have noticed the crack if you hadn't pointed it out!"

Trevor laughed and chatted with Tasha for a while.

The truth was that Trevor learned much about how to identify antiques from the Byrd family. Ever since he had learned the martial arts of the Murray family, he had developed a keen sense of observation and could perceive some details that ordinary people would not notice.

The conversation between Trevor and Tasha grew more and more passionate as they chatted.

The conversation between Trevor and Tasha grew more and more passionate as they chatted.

The two of them even began to talk about the recent events that happened in the Byrd family.

Tasha's mood changed and she looked a little uneasy when Trevor mentioned the Byrd family. She said with an awkward smile, "My family... You know, things were indeed not going well lately, because our most important partner's dropped drastically. Besides, my friend disappeared. You know what, I'm sorry. I don't have to bother you with these annoying things."

Trevor didn't say anything and seemed thoughtful.

It didn't take a rocket scientist to understand that the Byrd family's important partner Tasha just mentioned was the Sanderson family.

Ever since the Sanderson family fell into turmoil, the Byrd family's business was greatly affected.

As for the friend Tasha mentioned, it was undoubtedly Trevor himself.

He felt a little embarrassed.

He was right in front of Tasha and she was clearly missing him. But he couldn't reveal his identity to her and had to keep the identity of Dragon.

Even so, the two people had a good chat.

Seeing that Dragon and Tasha got along well, Bobbi, who was sitting in the corner in silence, became more and more jealous. He stared at Dragon with gloomy eyes.

All of a sudden, a figure appeared at the gate of the manor. Bobbi was the first to notice it and he immediately put on a flattering smile.

The person came in.

He was a young man who looked haughty and dressed casually. The pair of green sneakers he wore were particularly eye-catching.

When Tasha saw the young man, her expression became a little stiff.

Looking at the woman in front of him, Trevor didn't fail to notice the change in her expression and he asked softly, "Your friend?"

Tasha shook her head and replied in a low voice, "No. His name is Conley Juarez. Since the Byrd family has been going through a rough patch lately, the Juarez family seized the opportunity to take over the market. The competition between us has become very fierce. My family has lost a lot of market share already."

Trevor was stunned from what he just heard. He didn't expect that the turmoil within the Sanderson family would affect the Byrd family so much and cause it to decline so quickly.

The young man in green sneakers, Conley, looked around and finally found Tasha.

With a playful smile, he strode over and greeted her with sarcasm.

"Oh, Tasha, do you still have time to attend the exchange meeting? I thought you were very busy." Conley could hold back a laugh after he said that. "Tasha, I have a good idea. How about you sell all your shares to me and in return, I help your company out of this financial crisis?"

Tasha glared at Conley. She was so angry that her breath became heavy. However, she didn't dare to say or do anything to piss off Conley.

At this moment, Bobbi came over with a flattering smile.

"Conley, you're here too. It's a great honor to have you here!"

The Byrd family still had a lot of influence in Dreles, but it had declined a lot recently.

On the contrary, the Juarez family had taken over the market shares of the Byrd family, and seemed very likely to soon become a major power in Dreles.

So, with Tasha and Conley here together, Bobbi didn't have a hard time choosing who he should please.

Conley was very satisfied with the way Bobbi treated him and he replied with a hint of pride, "Bobbi, right? Maybe we should hang out sometime."

He then looked at Trevor, who was standing beside Tasha, and asked contemptuously, "Hey, where do you come from? Did Tasha fool you in to coming here? I must let you know that the Byrd family is on the verge of going bankrupt."
