

Chapter 1509 Birds Of A Feather

A cigarette was stuck in Ape's mouth as he squeezed through the rowdy crowd and asked angrily, "Damn it! What is going on? Don't bother me if there's nothing urgent."

Ape loathed being disturbed with trivial issues whenever he was busy playing games.

He puffed on the cigarette and noticed that Trevor was standing in front of the students. He suddenly became silent.

The man wearing an ear stud noticed Ape's presence and quickly stood up against the wall to welcome him.

"Boss, on our way here, we found a very beautiful woman and we wanted to present her to you. However, that guy is blind. He's fully aware that you're our boss, but he still dared to stop us. He doesn't know that he's playing with fire."

The other hooligans that had been beaten echoed.

"Ape, you have to teach that guy a lesson, or everyone will think that you're too weak!"

Emmeline and the students shrank back as Ape approached them with a menacing expression.

Tasha also swallowed hard and felt cowed by Ape's presence.

Trevor ignored the other hooligans and stared hard at Ape. Then he cleared his throat and asked, "Ape, did you really approve of them kidnapping the girl?"

The man wearing an ear stud regained his confidence and pointed at Trevor with a fierce expression.

"How dare you talk to Ape like that? Who the hell do you think you are? You obviously don't value your life!"

However, Ape's reaction came as a surprise to the hooligans.

He threw the remaining half of the cigarette that he had been smoking and crushed it with the tip of his shoe. Then he said casually, "Yes. I just got a little bored of playing games alone. I don't think it's a big deal to get a beautiful woman who can fulfill my desires occasionally."

Although it had not been Ape's idea to kidnap a woman, he didn't object to it.

These hooligans were eager to please Ape, so they targeted Emmeline.

This was something that Ape was also aware of.

A frown appeared on Trevor's face. He kept his gaze fixed on Ape and said, "These people are my friends. I want to take them away. In addition, I don't want this kind of thing to happen again, Ape. I mean it."

Ape frowned and continued using his feet to crush the burnt-out cigarette. By now, it was completely crushed and the white cotton in the silver wrapping was now exposed.

He looked at Trevor and said in a bitter voice, "Don't you think you're sticking your nose into my business? Do I even have to seek your approval before I eat and sleep too?"

Ape was mad that Trevor dared to respect him in front of his subordinates. It was obvious Trevor didn't take him serious.

Ape couldn't help but feel that Trevor was trying to humiliate him.

An expression of dismay appeared on Trevor's face.

How could Ape compare the crime of kidnapping to something as simple as eating and sleeping? It was totally outrageous.

Trevor approached Ape slowly and whispered in a low voice, "I don't want you to make any trouble for me. Don't forget your main mission in Dreles. You were sent by the superior to assist me. Are you really going to disobey that order?"

Ape gritted his teeth as he stared at Trevor. He slowly clenched his fists and glared at him.

Trevor only stared back at Ape with a calm expression.

Raven and Ape were members of Mobius. They came in Dreles to accomplish their missions.

Trevor believed that Ape was not stupid enough to disobey an order from the superior.

They both stared at each other like two gladiators ready to battle each other.

The others all remained silent as they watched the two men. They were all scared that something would trigger a fierce fight between the two men.

The situation appeared to be in a stalemate.

But Trevor knew that the confrontation was about to come to an end.

Sure enough, after the two of them had stared at each other for a while, Ape turned around to look at his men and waved angrily.

"Let them go now!"

The hooligans were shocked by Ape's decision. Never had they thought that their brave and invincible boss could retreat from a confrontation.

However, they didn't dare question his decision and quickly stepped back to allow them pass.

Trevor glanced at Ape again, then he waved his hand and left the remote alley with Emmeline, Tasha and the students.

Trevor thought about the look of dissatisfaction on Ape's face.

He used to think buy Ape game coins could make him behave himself. Clearly, he was wrong.

The members of Mobius were indeed birds of the same feather. They were beyond redemption.

Judging from the look on Ape's face, Trevor knew he already had a grudge against him. He decided to be cautious and keep an eye on Ape from now on.
