

Chapter 1513 Fighting In The Cage

---

Gunter shouted excitedly, "What are you waiting for? Get into the cage! You're scared, aren't you? You coward!"

Trevor was quiet amused by Gunter's words and he laughed scornfully. "You'd better shut up! Otherwise, I will definitely make you cry later."

Then, the two men entered the cage.

From the outside, the iron cage looked huge. But once inside, Trevor saw that it wasn't that big.

Trevor looked at Rock and Ape who were standing outside the cage.

Meanwhile, Gunter clenched his fists so hard that his knuckles crackled.

"It is not on them that you should focus your attention. They are just spectators today. The person you shouldn't take your eyes off is right here in front of you. We are here to fight," Gunter shouted.

Trevor finally pulled his gaze off the two people outside the cage and turned to look at Gunter. He stretched his arms leisurely and said, "You just don't get it. I'm actually wondering why you'd ask people to come watch you being beaten up."

Trevor's words pissed off an already irritated Gunter. The latter shouted fiercely, "Shut up!"

Gunter couldn't hold back his anger anymore and he immediately rushed to Trevor quickly. However, his eyes were fixed on Trevor's right hand, as if he was afraid of something.

Sure enough, Trevor noticed it and couldn't help smiling.

He guessed Gunter must be afraid of Raven's poker cards.

There were actually sharp blades hidden in Raven's poker cards. Gunter knew he had to be careful not to get cut by those blades.

With a mysterious grin, Trevor raised his right hand as if he was about to throw something at Gunter.

Gunter's face immediately changed with fear.

He had thought he would be quick enough to attack "Raven" and engage him in hand-to-hand combat before the latter could use his blades.

But when Gunter saw Trevor raise his right hand, his heart began to race. He rolled sideways unconsciously, trying to dodge the poker cards that he was sure to throw.

However, to his greatest surprise, he found that there was no poker card shot.

With his eyes wide opened, Gunter stared at Trevor in shock, only to find that the latter had nothing in his hand and was smiling.

Trevor asked jokingly, "What are you dodging from?"

Only at that moment did Gunter realize that he had been tricked. His anger knew no bounds at this point. "Fuck you!"

Gunter's face and neck turned red and he ferociously pounced on Trevor.

Gunter swore to teach this bastard a good lesson. No one could offend him and get away with it!

Although Gunter was furious, he didn't dare to act recklessly.

He knew he had to be on guard against the poker cards!

With the same scornful smile he had from the very beginning, Trevor also launched an attack. However, he made sure to keep a distance from Gunter.

Although the cage was small inside, Trevor was nimble enough not to get hit by Gunter.

After several minutes trying to hit Trevor unsuccessfully, Gunter lost his temper.

"Damn it! You loser! All you can do is just dodge?"

Gunter regretted not having made the cage smaller. If he had, there would be no room for Trevor to dodge.

After a long chase, Gunter finally forced Trevor into a corner of the iron cage.

Seeing that his prey was now at his mercy, or so he thought, Gunter shouted arrogantly, "Do you still think you can run? Well let me see you run now!"

However, Trevor wasn't scared in the very least. His smile grew even more mysterious and he suddenly raised his right hand.

Gunter's laugh died off at once and his expression changed dramatically.

He was so eager to force Trevor to a corner that he forgot to keep a safe distance. Now, he too was trapped and there was no space for him to dodge the poker cards.

He was screwed.

Gunter quickly put his arms in front of his head to protect his face and neck.

He could bear the pain when the blades cut his arms, but he would be dead if they touched a vein in his neck.

However, Trevor's laughter was all Gunter head.

This time, even Rock and Ape, who were looking from outside the cage, couldn't help laughing.

"Ha-ha..." Ape threw the cigarette butt on the floor, laughing and coughing.

The thing was, Trevor still had no poker cards in his hand.

He fooled Gunter twice with the same trick.

Gunter had been ridiculed.

Rock couldn't help chuckling, but he covered his mouth to suppress his laughter.

After all, Gunter was his companion. If he openly mocked Gunter, it would harm their relationship.

Realizing he had been fooled again, Gunter put down his arms and glared at the smiling bastard in front of him.

"You son of a bitch! I'll kill you!"

Gunter didn't care about anything else than hurting Trevor this time. His anger knew no bounds. He angrily pounced on Trevor.

He believed as long as he got close to Trevor and engage him in a hand-to-hand combat, he'd get the upper hand.

Chapter 1514 False Information

The fight hadn't really started yet and Gunter had been humiliated twice already. It was very embarrassing for him.

He felt like he had been slapped twice in the face.

In order to recover from this humiliation, he absolutely had to beat Trevor.

"Go to hell!" Gunter shouted with a wicked grin. He had finally caught Trevor.

As soon as Gunter caught him, Trevor turned around immediately.

Gunter didn't really catch him. Actually, Trevor let Gunter have his way as part of his plan to deal with Gunter.

Gunter threw a fierce punch at Trevor's face.

To his surprise, his fist was blocked unexpectedly.

The two men were so close now that their faces were almost touching. Seeing the mysterious smile on Trevor's face this time again, Gunter broke into a cold sweat and his face suddenly turned pale.

What was going on?

Gunter knew that Raven's weapon was poker cards. How come he was so strong in hand-to-hand combat?

Gunter's heart was racing at this point. He tried to comfort himself, "It must be a fluke! I will beat get him with my next strike!"

Sure enough, Trevor saw through Gunter. However, he just smiled without saying anything.

Trevor mastered the martial arts of the Murray family. With such knowledge, he would have no trouble beating ordinary members of Mobius in a one-to-one combat.

With a roar, Gunter launched another fierce attack against Trevor.

However, no matter how fierce his attacks were, Trevor easily blocked them. To make matters worse for Gunter, Trevor was even able to counterattack while he blocked Gunter's punches. Gunter's stomach, chest, and even his face were punched hard while he was unable to land a single punch on Trevor.

Every now and then, Trevor moved his right hand to his pocket, pretending to take out poker cards.

Every time Trevor did this, Gunter inevitably felt nervous, and he always had to be on his guard. Trevor would seize this opportunity to punch Gunter hard.

Gunter felt more and more upset and the rims of his eyes turned red with anger.

"Fuck! Damn it!" He couldn't take it anymore and decided to do something to reverse the situation.

He had to eliminate the threat of the poker card or the fight would always be one-sided and he would be beaten without being able to fight back.

With a fierce look, Gunter dove toward Trevor. He was punched twice in the back but endured the pain. He took the opportunity to reach into Trevor's pocket.

He decided to take away the poker cards!

However, when Gunter put his hand into Trevor's pocket, he was stunned.

There was nothing in his pocket.

Trevor's pocket was empty; there was not even a piece of paper inside, let alone poker cards with blades.

Gunter raised his head in shock. "What the..."

Trevor smiled. "Surprise!"

Alas, Gunter was totally screwed now.

Trevor quickly grabbed Gunter's hair while he smashed his knee into Gunter's chin.

The next second, Gunter felt his chin was numb and he felt so dizzy he almost fainted.

He raised his arms in front of him instinctively to protect himself from Trevor's punches and kicks raining down on him like a storm.

However, all Gunter's efforts were in vain as a brutal kick from Trevor sent him crashing back first against the iron cage.

It was at this point that he understood there was no way he could defeat Trevor in a hand-to-hand combat. Damn it! How was that possible?

Sneering, Trevor strode forward, grabbed Gunter's shoulder and gave him a violent suplex.

"Ah!"

Gunter was in extreme agony and gasped. He couldn't even scream and could only let out a weak groan. A trace of blood flowed from the corner of his mouth, making him look very miserable.

Trevor pressed Gunter's shoulder against the floor and asked coldly, "Do you admit defeat now?"

Gunter gritted his teeth and struggled for a moment. However, he was unable to break free from Trevor. He felt a sharp pain in his shoulder every time he tried to break free. The pain was so excruciating he thought Trevor would crush his shoulder bone.

In the end, Gunter couldn't bear the pain any longer and he hit the floor three times to surrender.

Trevor sneered and just let go of him. "If that's all you have, then you'd better not mess up with me again."

Gunter was so embarrassed that he didn't even dare to get up and lay on the floor, staring fiercely at Ape who also had a bewildered expression.

Gunter cursed in his heard. What the hell just happened? There was something wrong with the intelligence!

Feeling Gunter's burning gaze, Ape looked away stiffly. He pretended not to notice Gunter's resentful eyes.

Ape felt quite guilty since the information he gave Gunter was from hearsay within the Mobius. Ape didn't know Raven at all before coming to Dreles.
