

Chapter 1568 A Familiar Scene

Trevor drove to the suburbs and found the rented house.

He looked around and saw that there was no one around. The building closest to here was an unfinished building, which looked very desolate.

This place seemed the perfect place to kill people.

Thinking of that, Trevor sneered. However, he restrained his emotions.

He got out of the car and walked up to the front door of the house.

"Ape, I'm Raven," he said, using a voice changer.

As soon as he spoke, Trevor heard some noise in the house. It seemed like the sound of clothes.

No one came to open the door, but the door automatically opened.

It was definitely remote controlled.

Trevor smiled faintly.

It seemed that Gunter and Rock had prepared well for this day. They even went so far as to install a remote control system on the door to lure Raven here.

Trevor walked into the room. There was a large sofa in the center of the room. A strong figure was wrapped in a blanket, and only a solid form could be seen.

The man lying there looked like Ape.

However, according to Klein's assessment, Ape was dead.

Gunter was thinner than Ape. So it was not difficult to guess the true identity of the person wrapped in the blanket. It had to be Rock.

When Trevor opened the door and saw this scene in the living room, he was a little stunned.

The thing was, this scene gave him a feeling of déjà vu.

Trevor thought for a while and finally remembered where he had seen a similar scene.

A while ago, when Luisa was sick and hospitalized, Gunter decided to go to the hospital to harass her.

Trevor asked Ape to hide in the quilt and pretend to be Luisa. He took the opportunity to slap Gunter.

It seemed that Gunter wanted to take revenge on him for that now.

Trevor coughed to cover his smile.

He didn't expect that Gunter was this vengeful and arranged this scene to get even with him.

Suddenly, the man posing as Ape coughed in the blanket and complained in a low voice, "Why are you so late?"

Trevor stopped smiling and snorted.

"You only gave me eighty million and yet you expect me to risk my life for you? I'm alone. What would happen if I'm caught by Gunter and Rock? Don't forget that they are still after you. They might even be near here by this time. While you only value your life to be worth eighty million, my life is priceless!"

The man hiding in the blanket was silent after hearing what Trevor said. It seemed that he was a little angry.

Trevor smiled and pushed the nail further, cursing deliberately.

"Damn it! Those two idiots had the nerve to blatantly ignore the rules of Mobius! Don't worry, Ape. When we return to Mobius, we will definitely make sure those two bastards die. What pieces of shit they are! They are just disgusting good-for-nothings!"

The burly body covered in the blanket trembled at Trevor's curses.

Obviously, this person was already pissed off by Trevor's swearing.

Trevor smiled slightly, his eyes shining with confidence. He then said casually, "It's strange, Ape. Your voice sounds a little different from before. Besides, you have been hiding in the blanket ever since I walked in. What's wrong?"

The man, who was on the verge of bursting out in anger, trembled all over. He was beginning to suspect that his plan had been discovered.

Soon the anger in him gave way to nervousness.

After a short moment of silence, a muffled cough came from the blanket.

"Well... Rock hit me hard in the chest and I think he's injured my lungs. Maybe that's why my voice has changed. By the way, can you get me a glass of water? I'm injured so badly I can't get up."