

Chapter 1685 The Voice From Behind

All the doctors saw the renowned doctor Sumner being taken out by security in black. The piercing shouts and pleading for mercy persisted throughout the hall, making people shudder with horror.

No one dared to stand up for Sumner. Even Sumner's female assistant remained silent, scared to get involved.

Midnight grew more vicious, deadly, and hostile.

Looking around, he finally decided, "Raven, you'll be my private doctor for now."

Midnight then pushed open the bedroom door. His voice came from the bedroom.

"Steward, see the guests off!"

The emotionless steward in a tuxedo gestured for the guests to leave. The doctors didn't dare to stay long and hastily departed the villa with their heads down.

Only when Trevor passed the door did the steward smile and slightly bend to greet him.

Trevor couldn't stop smiling as he drove from the villa and around an intersection.

The strategy worked!

He didn't care about Sumner, whom he had never met before.

He just sought to approach Midnight in the name of treatment.

It was very likely that the leader of the Bat faction of Mobius had a unique channel to contact Trevor's grandfather.

Despite the unexpected incident, Trevor was pleased with the final result.

As long as there was a chance to keep contact with Midnight, Trevor would be closer to discovering the secret he wanted to know.

After thinking for a while, Trevor took out his second-hand iPhone to call Esteban.

"Esteban, I have a task for you."

As soon as Esteban heard Trevor's voice, he became excited. "I'm listening."

Trevor smiled faintly. "Don't be too excited. It's not a very dangerous task."

He paused before continuing, "As far as I know, you have plenty of time in the camp except for carrying out tasks. I need you to help me in monitoring a Mobius faction leader. You won't do anything but watch his movements. Don't go too near to him for the sake of your safety. I'll send you the exact address."

Esteban was so excited that he agreed immediately.

In the next few days, Trevor visited the villa to cure Midnight.

Midnight felt his health improving, so he began to trust Trevor more.

On the surface, Trevor was silent, but he scoffed in his heart.

His acupuncture technique was absolutely magical. It might ease headache symptoms, but only the agony would go away. It gave Midnight an illusion that he was healing.

Four days later, Trevor received a sudden phone call from Esteban.

"Hello, sir. The man you asked me to keep an eye on has gone out!"

While Trevor was listening to Esteban's report, his eyes narrowed.

"Where did he go?"

Esteban was a bit worried and whispered quietly, "He drove out. I lost sight of him! That car was heading downtown, and there was a really towering edifice in that direction!"

Downtown? A tall edifice?

Trevor stroked his chin and pondered for a while. Midnight was on his way to Mobius' headquarters!

He suddenly had an idea and said to Esteban on the phone, "Don't expose yourself. Go back to the training camp and pretend nothing has happened."

After finishing his words, he rushed to Mobius' headquarters.

He had a suspicion that there must be an important reason for Midnight to travel to the headquarters despite having a relapse and hadn't recovered yet. Perhaps it was the chance Trevor had been waiting for a long time.

Trevor drove at full speed.

The exhilaration he felt faded as he approached Mobius' headquarters. He placed his hands in his pockets and purposefully displayed the Ouroboros pattern on his wrist. He then took his time entering the edifice.

Sure enough, no one stopped him.

Just as Trevor was about to go upstairs to look for Midnight, he saw the latter's figure at the corner of the hallway on the first floor.

Trevor froze in his tracks as he saw the man.

He remembered it!

Trevor felt he had encountered Midnight somewhere when he saw him at the villa.

Now, standing at the corner of the hallway, Trevor recalled everything.

When he first entered the edifice, he saw a dangerous figure at the end of the hallway, and it was just Midnight!

Trevor gulped. He had a feeling that he was getting closer to uncovering a secret.

He glanced around the corner and saw Midnight talking with the guards at the end of the hallway. Behind them was a secret tunnel to the subterranean space.

Just as Trevor was observing in secret, a cold and stern question suddenly came from behind him.

"Raven! What are you doing?"