

Chapter 1724 The Summon Of Midnight

Trevor followed Vulture and the two slowly left the prison. They came to a block where there were a lot of people having dinner.

By this time, Trevor had already got all the information he wanted to know from Vulture, so he didn't want to linger there much longer. After the meal, he said goodbye and left in a hurry.

After making sure he was in a quiet corner away from prying eyes and ears, Trevor immediately called Rupert.

As soon as the phone was connected, Trevor's eager voice rang out.

"I am right now very close to the secret prison. The Black Gold Union has already positioned its men at the prison gate, and they even recognized me just now. I guess they will take action soon. Ask your men to come here early so we can plan the attack together!"

Currently, most of the members of the Bradly Organization were watching the Black Gold Union villa. They didn't expect an assault on the secret prison to be imminent.

Rupert was stunned by Trevor's words. However, he didn't hesitate and readily agreed. "Okay! My men will be there right away! There is no more movement in the villa now. I think there should be a long underground passage in the house that leads outside."

Rupert had been right. There was indeed a hidden passage in the villa. Earlier, Crocodile had received a message from the leader who disguised himself as a hawker near the prison. In response, Crocodile ordered all his men to take the underground passage and go immediately to the secret prison!

After arranging everything with Rupert, Trevor dropped the call. He took a few deep breaths to calm down. But when he checked his phone, he saw three missed calls and a text message from Midnight.

Trevor was quite puzzled and wondered, "I just treated Midnight. Why is he suddenly asking me to go to his place again? Did he find out something?"

With so many questions crossing his mind, Trevor frowned and clicked on the message. The message was very simple, "Hurry up and come here."

The assault on the prison was imminent and Trevor was now in a dilemma. He hesitated for a moment and finally decided to go to Midnight's villa. He knew he absolutely had to avoid arousing Midnight's suspicions, especially now that he was getting close to his goal. Otherwise, the whole operation could be compromised.

Trevor hurried to Midnight's villa.

As soon as he entered, Prescott and several of his men surrounded him.

Overbearing as usual, Prescott looked arrogantly at Trevor and said dismissively, "I thought it was a big shot whom we were expecting. It turns out it's only our 'highly skilled' doctor! I wonder how long your happy days will last."

Trevor looked at Prescott with an impish smile and sneered. "Wow, you must really feel like crap seeing me here again, don't you?"

Prescott understood right away that Trevor was referring to the last time he had to kneel before Trevor and beg for mercy. Ashamed and indignant, Prescott sternly interrupted Trevor.

"Humph, let's see if you'll still be so arrogant for a long time. To tell you the truth, my uncle is mad at you and that's why he called you here."

Upon hearing this, Trevor fell in deep thought. Did Midnight find out about his plan?

However, Trevor's intuition told him that whatever Midnight was mad about had nothing to do with his plan. With this in mind, Trevor looked at Prescott with a cold face and said with disdain, "Don't think barking like that will change the difference between you and me. Losers are always losers! Understood? Now get the hell out of my way! I'm going in!"

Prescott was seething and his face turned pale. He gritted his teeth and growled, "You'd better go inside and wait for your death!"

Trevor cast a cold glance at the group and then walked past them. He went straight to Midnight's room.

As soon as Trevor opened the door, he saw a glass cup fly through the air and shatter into pieces under his feet.
