

Chapter 1728 The Rescue Operation

Feigning indifference, Trevor said, "Apparently you don't really consider me a friend. All right, since you don't want to have a drink with me, you can leave now!"

Vulture was originally looking forward to going to the prison to see what was going on there. However, Trevor's words put him in a delicate situation. He shook his head and said anxiously, "No, no, that's absolutely not what I mean. How could I not consider you a friend? The thing is, if something happens at the prison, I'll be dead meat!"

Hearing that, Trevor put on a serious look and said, "Well, since there seems to be a problem near the prison, why don't you let me help you? If it turns out it's just a false alarm, we might as well have a drink in your office."

Vulture hesitated for a while and considered Trevor's words. After all, Raven was an official killer of Mobius. There should be no problem in taking him to the prison.

Having made up his mind, Vulture rubbed his hands and replied, "Well, in that case, let's go together. Get in the car!"

Trevor was overjoyed. He had achieved his goal. However, he didn't let it show and calmly got into Vulture's car and the two drove to the secret prison.

At the gate of the prison.

As Trevor had anticipated, Black Gold Union had launched an all-out attack on the prison. The bomb they had detonated had literally pulverized the entrance to the prison.

A terrible expression appeared on Vulture's face when he saw the chaos at the entrance. He would never have thought that the Black Gold Union would dare to attack Mobius' prison!

If he didn't resolve the situation quickly, whether he could keep his job as the prison warden would be the least of his worries. The heads of Mobius would most certainly kill him.

Vulture drove into the prison from the side, avoiding the chaotic battlefield. He hurriedly pulled out his phone and dialed Midnight's number.

"Mr. Midnight, a group of people from Black Gold Union are trying to break into the prison. They've already blown the prison gate to smithereens. Our men here are not enough to fight them off. Please send us reinforcements."

On the other side of the phone, Midnight's face grew grim when he heard the news. He cursed Vulture angrily and ordered him to guard the prison till death. Then, he hung up the phone.

Midnight then dialed another number and roared angrily as soon as the phone was connected, "Gather everyone. You will go to the secret prison and kill all the people of the Black Gold Union. They had the gall to attack my prison! Kill them all! Don't let any of them escape, understood?"

On the other side, while Vulture was asking for help just now, Trevor quickly changed his mask and sneaked into the prison.

The fight outside was fierce and most of the prison guards had come out to fight the Black Gold Union members. So the time was right for his rescue plan.

Trevor went straight to the innermost part of the prison and opened the last door with the fake key card he had prepared.

The metal door was opened smoothly.

Trevor's heart was racing at the moment. He worried, excited and nervous at the same time. So many emotions were welling up inside him then. But the strongest emotion of all was excitement and happiness at the thought that he was finally going to see his father and grandfather again!

When the door opened completely, Trevor finally saw his father and his grandfather who he missed so much.

Upon looking at the two haggard men, Trevor's eyes were filled with tears. He immediately tore off the mask on his face and said in a trembling voice, "Dad! Grandpa! I'm here to save you!"

The two looked at Trevor warily because they didn't recognize him right away. Elwood was the first to recognize Trevor and couldn't help exclaiming, "Grandson! Is that you?"

Ronald, on the other hand, stood still. He wondered if Elwood had gone crazy.

The thing was, underneath Trevor's mask was Raven's face.

However, Elwood knew for sure that this was his grandson. He turned to Ronald and said excitedly, "This is your son! This is your son!"

It then dawned on Ronald that Trevor must have disguised himself now.

Suddenly, Elwood's surprised expression gave way to one of concern and he asked, "How did you get in here? This place is under heavy surveillance and there are guards everywhere. You better quickly put your mask back on and get out of here. If these people catch you, then the Sanderson family will be done for."

Ronald also looked at his son worriedly and urged, "Trevor, listen to your grandfather. Hurry up and leave here!"

Elwood and Ronald didn't know Trevor had actually hatched a plan to rescue them. Holding back his tears, Trevor said reassuringly, "Don't worry. There's a melee outside, and I'll take advantage of the chaos to get you out."

Upon hearing that, Elwood and Ronald looked at each other nervously. They understood that if they stayed here a second longer, it could jeopardize Trevor's escape plan. So they made up their minds and nodded, ready to leave this place with Trevor.

The three of them rushed out of the cell and walked along the prison corridors to the outside. They almost reached the prison gate when they saw the guards retreating.

Gunshots and screams echoed non-stop and numerous guards fell. Some Black Gold Union members also died in the fight.

The fight was fierce, and although the prison guards were no match for the members of the Black Gold Union, they still used their numerical advantage to hold on.

At this time, Vulture's voice suddenly rang out. He shouted with all his strength, "Hold on! Don't step back! Mr. Midnight has sent over killers to help us! They have just arrived! We will kill all the members of the Black Gold Union today! Don't step back!"

Hearing that reinforcements had arrived, and that they were official killers, the prison guards had a confidence boost and fought more vigorously against the Black Gold Union. At this moment, retreating was out of the question.

When the Bat faction killers joined the battle, the situation was instantly reversed. Black Gold Union, who until then had the upper hand, was completely overwhelmed. They could not fight against the seasoned killers and retreated. Soon, the prison gate was once again controlled by the Bat faction!

Trevor observed the situation with a serious expression. The door was completely blocked now, and there was no chance for them to escape.

Elwood also noticed that the situation was not good, and he advised Trevor again in a low voice, "Trevor, you should go alone. You might find another opportunity to save us in the future."

Trevor gritted his teeth and said nothing. He had come so far, there was no way he would now give up on his plan to save his father and grandfather now. Trevor fell into deep thought. Would the rescue plan fail like this? No! He had to take his father and his grandfather out of here today.

Trevor suddenly turned around and saw a door with a plate that read "Key Storage Room".

Trevor was overjoyed and he quickly came up with a new idea.

His new plan was to return to the prison and free Demon and his companions. Once they joined the fight, the situation would become even more chaotic. While Mobius and Black Gold Union would be fighting outside the prison, Trevor would take his father and grandfather back to the depths of the prison to escape through the passage connected to the Mobius ' building.

This plan could actually work.