

Chapter 1784 Change Of His Attitude

Trevor looked at Jonah with an impish grin and said nothing. He silently waited with Jonah for the backers Jonah expected.

Lying on the ground, Jonah sneered and was immersed in his fantasies.

About ten minutes later, a cop in uniform rushed into the orphanage with a serious face.

The cop took his act seriously and even did the basic questioning.

"Who is it that called the police?" the cop asked.

Jonah's proud look just now instantly turned into a pained expression. He covered his abdomen and squirmed on the ground, pretending to be in serious pain.

"Sir, please help me! I came to the orphanage to donate money. But these people were not happy with my gift, saying it was too little of a rich man. They beat me up and tried to rob me of my money. Such wicked people deserve a severe punishment."

When he was finished, Jonah winked at the cop who was his accomplice.

Hearing what Jonah just said Cordell was furious. The little boy shouted angrily, "Shame on you! When did we hit you? You are the one who keep coming here to cause trouble again and again. You even want to tear down our orphanage. How dare you slander us now?"

As for the director of the orphanage, he was so angry that his old body trembled. He said angrily, "You are the one who came here to make trouble. How dare you lie so blatantly?"

The director then looked up at the cop and said earnestly, "Sir, you must investigate this matter thoroughly and find out the truth. Don't be fooled!"

However, the cop had already taken money from Jonah and agreed to collude with him. So, he naturally defended Jonah and said seriously, "Since in your own words, I need to carry out a thorough investigation to find out the truth about this matter, come with me to the police station, so that we can see clear into this."

After saying that, the cop gave Jonah a meaningful look.

Trevor, who had been watching the scene carefully, understood what Jonah's plan was. He smiled and decided to intervene now.

"Sir, please wait for a moment. Why do you want to take us to the police station when you have no evidence suggesting that we lied to you? Isn't that a violation of our rights?"

Jonah didn't wait for his accomplice to reply. He sneered and said, "It's not up to you to tell a law enforcement officer how to do his job! The police will decide who's right and who's wrong once we're at the police station."

The cop smiled proudly after hearing Jonah's words and he raised his chin as if to show his importance.

Just then, another car stopped outside the orphanage.

Soon, someone walked into the orphanage. The people inside the orphanage turned to look at the door and they immediately recognized Ernest, the mayor of Zayden.

Upon seeing the mayor, the cop's complacent face froze at once and his heart started to shake.

Damn it! Why was the mayor here?

Ernest walked over expressionlessly. He just glanced at the cop and said calmly, "Don't be nervous. I happened to pass by and saw a police car parked outside the door. So I came here to see what's going on."

The cop didn't dare to do anything reckless in the presence of the mayor.

He shot a quick glance at Jonah and said cautiously, "I received a call from someone complaining that they had been beaten up by the director of the orphanage and other men. I arrived here quickly and saw that the man who called had a swollen face. I questioned both sides and they gave me different explanations. So I figured I should take them to the police station for investigation."

Trevor squinted his eyes with a sneer. "Sir, you said we hit him. But you haven't asked us why we did that."

The mayor also nodded seriously.

"Tell me, how are you going to deal with this case?" Ernest asked the cop calmly.

The cop had been in Zayden for a long time, so he was not stupid. He understood that the mayor came to support Trevor.

The expression on his face changed at once and he put on a flattering look. He gazed at Trevor and then turned around and questioned Jonah seriously, "Did you hide the truth when you called the police? What caused the conflict?"

Jonah was stunned. Why did his accomplice suddenly turn against him? Confused, Jonah's mind went blank. He pointed at Trevor and stammered, "This man... He is crazy! He hits people for nothing. Look at my face!"

The director of the orphanage couldn't stand it anymore and said angrily, "How dare you say that?"
