

Chapter 1791 Fight

Trevor turned back to face the puzzled Cheetah and Bear.

"Getting you two to do anything is like pulling teeth. Learn to have some personal charisma, will you?" Trevor remarked lightly.

Cheetah and Bear remained baffled, unable to fathom how Trevor had managed to sway the two members of the Bat faction so easily.

"What on earth did Raven do to make them so obedient? I bet even their fathers wouldn't have such control over them," Cheetah muttered, bewildered.

Trevor had no intention of revealing his tactics to them. Instead, he kept his focus on the two members of the Bat faction.

However, the other party was concerned that Trevor might demand even more. So, they exchanged glances and proposed new conditions.

"We'll offer you the shares, but whether you can obtain them or not depends on your ability. We'll wager a small portion of the Sanderson Group's shares against you. If you win, the shares are yours. If you lose, don't expect to cling to them," they proposed.

Trevor nodded with a smile. "That's fair. I've always been one to follow the rules. Just tell me how the wager will go," he said, spreading his hands in acceptance.

His gesture indicated that he would keep the secret once he received the shares.

Hearing Trevor's assurance, the two members of the Bat faction felt relieved.

Green Bat, one of them, spoke in a low voice. "It's simple. Let's have a one-on-one fight, following Mobius' rules."

As an elite killer of Mobius, Green Bat didn't consider Trevor to be his match.

He intended to pressure Trevor into retreating and relinquishing his claim to the Sanderson family's shares.

However, if Trevor refused to back down, Green Bat would purposely let him win for the time being so the latter would keep the secret.

After some time had passed, they would find a way to eliminate Trevor and reclaim their shares, using any means necessary.

Upon hearing about the impending one-on-one fight between the members of the Bat faction and Trevor, Cheetah and Bear didn't know whether to laugh or cry.

Engaging in a fight with the deputy leader of their faction was a life-threatening endeavor.

With a snicker, Trevor agreed and asked Green Bat to choose the location.

They arrived at the yard of the old castle and prepared to begin their bout.

However, once the fight commenced, the scene took an unexpected turn.

Green Bat was more interested in putting on a show than engaging in a real fight.

However, he didn't expect that Trevor had the same idea as he did.

They skillfully avoided each other's vital parts and fought with a gentle approach.

Onlookers were shocked, doubting whether these two were truly killers.

Green Bat regarded Trevor skeptically, unable to determine if Trevor lacked strength or simply didn't want to win.

They pretended to fight for a while, and ultimately, Trevor managed to subdue Green Bat.

Only then did Trevor get a chance to whisper into Green Bat's ear, "Be cautious of Cheetah and Bear! They want to kill you."

Green Bat's pupils instantly shrank, caught off guard by the revelation.

"What do you mean?" he asked in surprise.

Trevor continued in a hushed voice, "I am Midnight's private doctor. Before he passed away, he entrusted me to take care of you. If you doubt my words, you can ask his nephew Prescott for confirmation."

The information from Trevor left Green Bat on the verge of exclaiming, but Trevor silenced him with a well-timed kick.

Momentarily distracted, Green Bat stumbled to the ground.

However, when he looked up, he remained in shock.

Raven was a friend!

It all made sense why Trevor didn't inform the two Wolf faction members about Midnight's death and the Bat faction's decline.

Green Bat firmly believed in Trevor's identity.