

Chapter 1814 Green Bat Is Dead

This time, Trevor decided to take the initiative to seek out Green Bat.

With feigned anger and guilt, he quickly said, "Green Bat, I've just found out that the director of the police station has been bribed. He's detaining White Monkey and won't release him unless you hand over all the shares of the Sanderson family."

Upon hearing the news, Green Bat slammed his fist on the table and glared at Trevor.

"No way! You promised me that White Monkey would be released if you asked. Are you trying to steal my shares? You already have half of the Sanderson family's shares. Are you trying to get mine too?"

Trevor assured him at once, "Calm down. You know I have a good relationship with the mayor, and he looks out for us. You've seen that yourself. This time, Cheetah must have promised to give your shares to the police director."

Green Bat remained unconvinced and merely stared at Trevor with distrust.

Seeing this, Trevor put on a helpless expression and continued his analysis. "I'm saddened that White Monkey can't get out. Our priority is to save him. Otherwise, how will you face Cheetah and Bear alone? Once White Monkey is free, you can join forces, eliminate Cheetah and Bear, and force the police director to return the shares. Give the shares now, and get them back later."

With hesitation written all over his face, Green Bat worriedly asked, "I'm not sure I can defeat Cheetah and Bear, especially with these injuries. If I hand over the shares, I'll have no choice but to fight to the bitter end!"

"We didn't foresee Cheetah bribing the police director, so don't blame me."

He paused before continuing, "What's more, Cheetah and Bear are becoming treacherous. They didn't even inform me of their plans, which proved they don't trust me anymore. What we must do now is rescue White Monkey as soon as possible. If Cheetah and Bear come for you, can you face both of them alone? If I don't have the confidence to kill them, I may be forced to turn on you. Then, you'll be up against three. You'll surely die. What good will your shares do you in the grave?"

As Trevor spoke, his voice grew fierce.

Flustered, Green Bat looked at Trevor with a sense of helplessness.

In this situation, he had no choice but to trust Trevor. He had to take the risk to save White Monkey, or he would be doomed.

With gritted teeth, Green Bat handed the share-transfer contract to Trevor.

"Raven, you must save White Monkey. We're relying on you now."

Trevor nodded in agreement.

His plan was finally on the brink of success.

Green Bat would die tonight, and Trevor would not even have to do anything.

After bidding Green Bat farewell, Trevor immediately contacted Cheetah and went straight to the point.

"I've sent you Green Bat's location. Kill him as soon as possible. Don't let me down!"

On the other side of the phone, Cheetah, with a ferocious smile, nodded in acknowledgment and relayed the information to Bear.

A cruel expression danced on the faces of the two as they rushed to their target.

Soon, the sounds of gunshots and fighting filled the air.

A battered body was found in the castle of the Sanderson family.

Green Bat was dead.

Cheetah had unleashed all his hatred on Green Bat, taking a gunshot to his arm in the process.

Now that he had finished his job, he promptly reported back to Trevor with a sense of pride. "Green Bat is dead!"

Pleased, Trevor praised him for his impeccable job. However, his next words were tinged with feigned embarrassment.

"Green Bat is dead, and only his companion, White Monkey, remains. Once you kill him, the task will be considered a success. But he's in prison now. It might be difficult for you to reach him."

Cheetah thought for a long while and asked, "What should I do then? Is there any other way?"

A smile played at the corners of Trevor's lips.

Cheetah was so easily deceived.

At this moment, Trevor put on a serious tone and replied, "I have a way to get into jail and kill him."
