

Chapter 1823 Collen Made Trouble

Thinking of this, Lenard quickly returned to the Sanderson family castle. As soon as he was home, he went to find his father.

"Dad, you asked me to marry Luisa, right? Well then, give me more money! I am so short of money that I can't even afford to pay for dinner in a fancy restaurant. How can any girl like me? And there's Raven! He keeps getting in my way! Damn it!"

After hearing what his son said, Ruben transferred him some money without hesitation. When that was done, he looked at Lenard seriously and reminded him.

"Be brave when chasing girls. Don't let Raven humiliate you all the time! Although he works for Mobius, we don't have to be afraid of him. After all, all the other members of Mobius have disappeared recently!"

He paused before continuing, "Mobius members have been suppressing us for too long. We should seize this opportunity to take back full control of the Sanderson family. Son, I have contacted a hit man to deal with Raven, and we are negotiating on the price. Once that is settled, we can take Raven down! Once that is done, we will really be the masters of the Sanderson family!"

After hearing Ruben's plan, Lenard was stunned.

He didn't expect his father to have such a big goal in mind. He nodded excitedly and said, "Okay! I'll make sure Raven knows what it's like to be a loser!"

Reuben was pleased with his fiery son, and continued to guide him.

"As long as you can marry Luisa, there's no reason other collateral relatives won't support us. At that time, even if Raven wants to attack us, we can fight him."

"By the way, I got news that Luisa's brother, Balfour, would come to Zayden soon. If you can't get Luisa yet, you can make use of her brother first."

Of course, Lenard understood what his father meant. With an evil expression on his face, he sneered.

"Once I have captured Luisa's brother, I would like to see if she would still be so cold with me. At that time, I will make her obey me!"

The two men were immersed in the fantasy of a bright future.

But even while they were discussing, Lenard had his own plan in mind.

Even though he couldn't openly challenge Raven for the time being, he could at least send someone to make trouble for Raven!

Besides, Collen said he wanted to please him, didn't he? Well, he would test Collen's loyalty.

Lenard believed that once Raven made a fool of himself in front of Luisa, she would definitely choose him over Raven!

With that in mind, Lenard immediately took out his phone and called Collen. When the phone was connected, he said directly, "Collen, I know how to deal with Raven! I'll need you to make trouble for him first."

Hearing what Lenard said, Collen was confused about what Lenard had in mind. However, since he wanted to please Lenard, he agreed without hesitation.

"No problem. Although I can't do anything to him, it would be pretty easy for me to cause him some trouble!"

Lenard was satisfied with the reply and smiled.

"Great! That's exactly what I want!"

Then, he hung up the phone.

After Lenard hung up the call, Collen's face suddenly darkened. The thing was, he couldn't really do anything to Raven.

He was helpless at this moment.

He was already no match for Raven when the Singh family was still rich and powerful.

Now that the Singh family had gone bankrupt, how could he deal with Raven?

Collen thought hard.

Then suddenly, an idea occurred to him and his eyes lit up.

Raven liked that damn orphanage very much, right? So, Collen intended to attack the orphanage first.

At this time, a construction team was busy rebuilding the orphanage.

The director of the orphanage and Cordell would go to the construction site from time to time to check the progress.

After all, that would be their new home!

They both looked forward to the day when the construction work was finished and they could finally return home. They were so excited.

During one of these visits to the construction site, the director saw a man coming to the site, the least person he wanted to see.

It was Collen!

Collen strutted over. He picked up a spade and smashed it on everything around him. He also knocked over several buckets of cement and shouted, "Hey! Listen carefully! Give me back the money I paid for this land. Since you guys robbed me of my money, I won't let you rebuild this place!"

Seeing that Collen was wreaking havoc on the site, Cordell was furious and he rushed forward angrily.

"Stop talking nonsense! This land belongs to us now! You have nothing to do here. Get out of here!"

Collen snorted coldly, but he didn't say anything.

Then all of a sudden, he pushed Cordell to the ground with a fierce look on his face.

Seeing what was going on, the construction team immediately rushed over and shouted at Collen.

"Get out of here now! If you continue to make trouble, we will beat you up and send you to the police!"

The men looked fierce and were really pissed off by Collen.

At this time, the look on Collen's face changed dramatically. He had thought it would be a piece of cake to cause trouble here. He never expected the construction workers to be so tough. The situation changed so fast.

Fortunately, he had come well prepared. He swallowed and said loudly, "I'm not here to make trouble. I just think your construction process isn't environmentally friendly, and I need to report it to the Environmental Protection Administration!"

Hearing that, the site manager walked forward and said with disdain, "Bullshit! Do you think we can make such a mistake? Our work process is fully compliant with standards."

The arrogant Collen guessed that it was impossible for him to reason with them. So, he started acting shameless. He sat on the ground, covered in dust, and threatened them.

"It's either you give me money or I will sit here every day and report you to the Environment Protection Administration! The choice is yours to make. Give me money or face the consequences."

For a moment, the construction team didn't know what to do.

If they forcefully drove him away, he would use that to cause trouble for them. At this time, no one dared to do anything.

The director was so angry that his face turned red. He glared at Collen and said coldly, "Shame on you! Do whatever you like, we won't give you a penny! What will you do?"

Hearing that, Collen smiled complacently and said arrogantly, "Call Raven and ask him to come here!"

The director didn't want to upset Trevor, but rebuilding the orphanage was the most important thing in his heart.

After hesitating for a while, he finally dialed Trevor's number.

"Raven, I'm sorry to disturb you. Collen is making trouble in the orphanage and no matter what we say, he refuses to leave. He even threatened to report the construction team to the Environment Protection Administration! He insisted that I call you and ask you to come here."

Hearing that, Trevor frowned deeply.

He wondered what trick Collen had in mind this time.

Although he was confused, he still agreed.

"I'll be right there."

As soon as Trevor hung up the phone, Luisa came up to him.

Seeing the look on Trevor's face, she guessed something was wrong and asked worriedly, "What's wrong? You look so unhappy! Who just called you?"

Trevor briefly explained the situation to her.

After hearing Trevor's explanation, Luisa was furious by what Collen had done. She said with righteous indignation, "I'll go with you!"
