

Chapter 1834 Balfour's Confession

Led by Sheena, Trevor and Balfour visited Severich.

As they walked the halls of the company building, Sheena plaintively explained, "After the bankruptcy of Singh Group, Severich became less and less unstable. The employees had different feelings about the future of the company and ultimately decided to leave. Even if I want to revive the company, I don't have the ability or the resources to do so."

Trevor smiled and comforted her.

"There's still hope. Although the company isn't doing well, it still has a good brand reputation. You still have a place in the cosmetics industry. Besides, the imprint Severich has in the cosmetics market isn't something other companies could easily replace. As long as you keep your operations running under a stable capital, I believe you can build the company back up over time."

His words surprised Sheena.

He sounded like he knew so much about the production of Severich.

Seeing Sheena's reaction, Trevor flashed another smile and asked, "What's the matter? Did I say something wrong?"

Coming back to her senses, Sheena answered truthfully, "No, I'm just surprised that you seem to be familiar with the company's production."

As the two chatted, Balfour stood aside, quietly observing.

He wanted to butt in but couldn't find the timing, leaving him eyeing Trevor sharply.

After leaving the company, Balfour immediately confronted Trevor, "Tell me, who the hell are you? Why do you know so much about Severich?"

Trevor gave him a quizzical look and explained lazily, "I'm a shareholder of Newmere Cosmetics. It's only normal for me to know a thing or two about the cosmetics industry because I worked with some of them. You know what, why don't you just chill out? Stop being so paranoid and suspicious."

Balfour pressed his lips together, wanting to assert that something was really off, but he couldn't point out what exactly, so he fell silent.

After a moment, he changed the topic. "Do you want to court my sister?"

Trevor was momentarily taken aback.

Did it mean it was okay to Balfour for Trevor to pursue Luisa as Dragon?

Liking the idea, Trevor nodded as a response to Balfour's question.

Balfour flashed a cold smile and said, "You and Sheena had quite a fun talk earlier. Do you want me to tell Luisa about it?"

Trevor didn't know what was Balfour's problem, so he snapped, "You can tell her whatever you want to say, but we both know Sheena and I only talked about business."

Sensing that Balfour had something more in mind, Trevor added, "I know you have something else to tell me. Stop beating around the bush by making up things and just tell me what it is."

Balfour dropped his glare and became coy all of a sudden.

He rubbed his hands nervously and said, albeit hesitatingly, "I like Sheena, and you two seem to be good friends. I want you to help me to get close to her. In exchange, I will give a good word for you to my sister."

Trevor didn't expect to hear Balfour's confession.

So, the reason the latter acted like a jerk earlier was of jealousy.

Trevor shook his head lightly and smirked.

"Severich is the only thing in Sheena's mind right now. If you want to catch her attention, you have to help her stabilize the company. But I'm warning you, it won't be easy. Most of the assets under Severich has been pledged to the Sandersons' band. Ruben is the one handling them, and reclaiming them from him is no easy job."

Balfour couldn't help but feel anxious. Seemed like it would delay his pursuit of Sheena.

Making up his mind, he looked at Trevor and asked, "You got any ideas how to do that?"

Trevor simply said, "Severich is an excellent company. It has a lot of potential, and its acquisition will benefit Luisa. Sooner or later, it will be sold off. Let me help you."

Balfour couldn't help his smile, The more he looked at Trevor, the more he liked him.

Meanwhile, Lenard had just returned home from work.

Ruben immediately came over to share the good news.

"We've reached an agreement on the mercenary's fee!"
