

Chapter 1851 I Also Want A Loan

Seeing that Trevor and Luisa ignored him, Collen gritted his teeth and said to Trevor with a sly grin, "Have you heard what I said? Lenard is going to propose to Miss Burke very soon. When they finally get married, you will be alone!"

Hearing that, Luisa couldn't hold back her anger and roared angrily, "What nonsense are you talking about? Lenard can propose to whoever he wants, but that can never be me! Don't make me sick!"

Collen was a little unhappy to be scolded by Luisa. But, since he was convinced she would soon marry the young master of the Sanderson family, he didn't dare to retort. He swallowed and said, "Miss Burke, you are so lucky to have the chance to marry the young master of the Sanderson family. This is an opportunity that others would kill to have!"

Luisa's anger rose drastically upon hearing Collen's words and she glared at him.

Seeing that he had reached his goal which was to piss off Trevor and Luisa, Collen laughed and walked into the bank.

Luisa's anger didn't subside and she turned to look at Trevor.

"What should I do if I meet Lenard again. Just seeing him makes me sick!" she complained.

Staring at Collen who was walking confidently into the bank, Trevor comforted Luisa gently, "Don't worry about that. If Lenard is so shameless to propose to you despite you turning him down so many times, I don't mind teaching him an unforgettable lesson!"

There was a trace of cruelty in his words.

Trevor could never tolerate Lenard proposing to Luisa.

Trevor and Luisa eventually calmed down and walked into the bank together.

When they entered the bank, they saw Collen talking to the president of the bank.

Collen said to the bank president expectantly, "I am confident to revive the Singh Group. I just need you to lend me some money. Don't worry, I just need fifty million."

The president looked at Collen as if he was looking at a fool.

He couldn't help but wonder whether Collen was crazy. It was well known to all that the Singh family had gone bankrupt. How could this fool come and request a loan now? Besides, how did he intend to pay back the fifty million?

Although the president of the bank disdained Collen, he couldn't ignore the fact that the Singh family was a prominent family. Although they had filed for bankruptcy, they might still be somewhat rich.

Therefore, the president didn't say anything that would offend Collen. In fact, he didn't say anything at all.

Seeing the silent president, Collen felt embarrassed. He wanted to talk to the manager with whom he used to do business.

Alas, he didn't find the manager. So, he shamelessly asked the president, "Where is the manager who used to work here? Why isn't he here? Was he out for work?"

Before the president could say anything, Trevor's playful voice echoed from behind Collen, "Are you looking for the manager who colluded with you? He has been fired."

Collen's face darkened upon hearing Trevor's words. He turned around and cast a cold glare at Trevor.

"What are you doing here? Did I talk to you? You have no right to interrupt me when I am talking with the president of the bank. You'd better shut the hell up!"

Trevor simply ignored Collen and turned to the president.

"Sir, I'm here to ask for a loan. Newmere Cosmetics had just acquired Severich and they need some money to develop the company. We need about fifty million."

When Collen heard that the amount Trevor wanted to borrow was exactly the same as his, he became furious and roared, "You didn't come here to ask for a loan, did you? I think you are here to make trouble!"

The president found himself in a delicate situation, and he couldn't say anything at the moment.

One of the two men in front of him was a member of the Singh family, and the other was a friend of the shareholders.

More importantly, he didn't know whether Trevor really needed money or if he just wanted to piss off Collen.

Seeing that the president didn't say anything for a long time, Collen glared at Trevor and sneered.

"Look at this place! How dare you come to the bank of Sanderson family to make trouble? It seems that you don't even have any respect for the president of the bank!"

Collen then turned to the president of the bank and said coldly, "Why don't you ask the security to kick them out?"
