

Chapter 1891 Passing The Buck

Most of Ewing's friends knew Connie. As soon as they heard Connie's accusations against Trevor, they all sided with her.

While comforting Connie, they also criticized Trevor and Luisa.

"How can someone have such a lack of consideration for human life? Anyone would hurry to rescue someone who had an accident! Why can't you do the same?" someone said, pointing an accusing finger at Trevor.

Seeing that everyone sided with her, Connie became more confident and continued to slander Trevor.

"Not only did they not help us, but I also have the feeling that they caused our car accident. This driving competition was just an excuse to hurt us! It's because of them that we had this car accident! I really can't believe they were going to let us die in that car! How wicked!"

Connie's words were so infuriating that Luisa burst into an angry laughter and argued, "You were the one who came up with the idea of the race, and it was always you who drove dangerously to show off your driving skills. You swerved and accelerated around blind corners. You are the one who caused the car accident. How dare you blame us? When Ewing was trapped in the car, did you go to save him? You were just running your mouth! We are the ones who saved him!"

Luisa's rant made all the people around turn to look at her.

At this moment, they noticed her delicate features as well as her incomparable beauty.

These so-called friends would do anything for a beautiful woman, and they quickly sided with Luisa. Only a few people were still criticizing Trevor and Luisa now.

But even at this stage, Connie still didn't give up. She pointed angrily at Trevor and Luisa and snapped, "You two have gone too far. How dare you? How dare you twist the facts and blame me?"

Trevor was not in a hurry to defend himself and he said leisurely, "Keep passing the buck while neglecting your dying boyfriend. Instead of calling an ambulance, you chose to frame us. I can see how much you two love each other."

Hearing that, Connie was speechless for a moment and her face became very gloomy. She was so embarrassed. She wanted to refute what Trevor implied, but there was nothing she could say.

It was only then that the other people realized what was going on. They all turned their heads and looked at the extremely miserable Ewing lying on the ground. They hurriedly called an ambulance.

After they had finally called the ambulance, Trevor looked at them and shook his head with a sigh.

"Judging from the severity of his injury, I'm afraid that he would have died before the ambulance arrives. Even if the pain doesn't kill him, the blood loss certainly would. What a good girlfriend! It took so long for her to do something to help the man she claims to love. Now, she is just standing aside and watching. I'm afraid you all called the ambulance too late. He won't be able to survive."

Ewing played along and made a few painful groans, as if he was going to pass away the next moment.

Seeing how miserable he looked, his friends panicked.

Ewing was the young master of the Craig family. If he died in here, all those who came to the party would be held responsible by the Craig family!

Thinking of that, a worried look appeared on these men's faces and some even couldn't help but blame Connie.

"You should have taken care of your boyfriend before trying to blame people!" someone said sternly.

"If because of you Ewing dies, how would you explain it to his family?" someone else remarked.
