

Chapter 1221 The Wrath Of The Murray Family

---

Ken and Aldwin took the members of collateral descendants back to the manor of the Murray family.

Everyone had a long face. It was as if they were having a funeral.

In the manor, Ferrell sat on a wooden chair, basking leisurely under the sun. He was the current head of the Murray family.

His hair was short and stiff, mixed with some grey. He was a tall, bearded man. And with his black leather jacket, he looked more like a hunter in the forest than the head of a big clan.

Richard, his son, sat next to him.

The young man in his twenties crossed his legs and sat in a relaxed posture. But his muscles were strong, and his eyes were sharp. His appearance made people think he could rush up and attack someone anytime, giving people a sense of danger.

"Uncle Ken, you're back." Richard saw Ken, who looked dejected.

He called Ken his uncle, but his expression didn't show the slightest trace of respect. It was more like he was calling a servant.

Ken pursed his lips and greeted the two of them.

Richard sneered and said arrogantly, "You look very downhearted. Did you screw it up?"

Ken swallowed his saliva hard. He clearly felt Richard's arrogance and rudeness, but he didn't dare to show the slightest bit of dissatisfaction.

Instead, he said gingerly, "Asho hired a very strong man named Dragon to fight for him. Our plan was messed up. And my son is so stupid. He sent me fake information. He is really useless."

When Aldwin heard that Ken put the blame on him, he was frightened. His own father made him a scapegoat. He quickly said, "No, that's not true. It was not my fault. It was Edlin's. Our spy in the police station reported the information to me. He told me that Dragon's right arm was seriously injured, so I was not fully prepared. Edlin exaggerated it. Maybe Dragon only had a cut, but he said it was serious. So we underestimated our opponent..."

"Enough!" Ferrell, who had been silent all the time, suddenly shouted.

He opened his eyes, and his cold eyes swept over everyone standing in front of him.

For a moment, the entire place was quiet. No one dared to speak.

Ferrell looked at Ken and Aldwin with his aggressive eyes. He was like an experienced hunter, staring at his prey in a forest.

Ken and Aldwin were so nervous that they trembled all over.

Ferrell added slowly, "Useless trash! A failure is a failure. Just admit it. I don't want to hear many excuses."

His voice was deep and slow, but the people who heard it made people feel scared.

Aldwin never dared to say anything. He shrank his neck and clasped his hands together.

Ferrell looked at Richard and asked, "Richard, what do you think about this matter?"

Richard licked his lips, put down his legs, and sat up straight. "Quite interesting."

His smile was cold and aggressive as he continued, "It's been a long time since someone interesting came to Corden. Leave that Dragon to me. I'll deal with him. Call over our spy in the police station. How dare he deceive us! We must teach him a lesson!"

Ken was overjoyed and quickly agreed.

He knew that since Richard said so, Ferrell would not blame them for

As long as Richard vented his anger on Edlin, everything would be fine.

Ken didn't care about Edlin anymore.

Even if Richard killed Edlin, the Murray family would only need to spend some money to train a new spy.

Chapter 1222 An Idiot

---

Edlin had held a grudge against Trevor for a long time.

The moment he found out that Trevor would be fighting against the Murray family today, he desired to see how miserable Trevor would be.

Edlin believed that with his information, Aldwin would be prepared enough to destroy Trevor.

By then, he would be able to taunt Trevor and vent all the frustrations and hatred that he had been harboring against him all this time.

During Edlin's shift, he snuck away to go to the gym.

Unfortunately, Trevor's unstoppable momentum caused the encounter to conclude much earlier than expected.

By the time Edlin arrived at the gym, Aldwin and Ken were no longer there, so he didn't get to see them leaving the place in low spirits.

The only ones he saw were Trevor and his companions coming out of the gym.

Edlin pondered for a moment before approaching them and greeting them in a sarcastic manner. "Fancy seeing you here, Dragon."

Trevor looked back at him, stopped in his tracks, and crossed his arms together. "It's you again. How dare you show your ugly mug in front of me again? Aren't you scared that I'll report you to the director for your neglect of your duty?"

Edlin scoffed at him and replied, "Is that supposed to scare me? You should worry more about yourself. How did the fight go? Did it feel good to be beaten to a pulp by Aldwin? You look pathetic. Did he keep attacking your right arm?"

Trevor smirked at Edlin, not bothering to respond.

Edlin continued, "Bah! Aldwin must've gone easy on you. He didn't beat the crap out of you, and he didn't even break your arm. But I must admit that he's a good fighter. I can tell from here how many injuries you've got. Don't push yourself too hard, man. You must be in so much fun that you can barely stand firm."

His words made Trevor break into laughter.

In his opinion, Edlin was incredibly ridiculous for approaching him and making him laugh.

Because Trevor was laughing so hard, he eventually choked on his saliva. He then cleared his throat repeatedly.

However, Edlin didn't think he was being ridiculous. He staggered backward and exclaimed, "Whoa there! Are you about to cough up blood? If you're about to die, stay the hell away from me. I'd rather not get blood on my clothes. Maybe you don't look injured on the outside but are seriously ill on the inside. Dragon, you should just go home and await your death. That way, you wouldn't look so pathetic."

Trevor shot Edlin an indifferent glance, wondering what was on this idiot's head.

Edlin was about to make another sarcastic remark, but then his phone suddenly lit up.

Upon glancing at his phone, he saw a message from Aldwin.

"Come to the Murray family's manor this instant!" the message read.

Edlin was over the moon. He thought that the information he sent played a key role in the battle and Aldwin was about to reward him.

He began imagining a luxurious life where he lived in a villa, had numerous sports cars, and a myriad of women in his arms.

What a life it must be!

It was so easy to earn so much money!

Edlin was so excited that he almost yelped in glee. He didn't even have time to get in his patrol car and just ran to the Murray family's manor.

However, he didn't forget to give Trevor the middle finger.

"Here's one last fuck you to you, Dragon. Thanks for making me rich! Once I get the money, I'll think about sending you some money to pay for your medical fees!"

Trevor and Bess exchanged glances.

They kept on giggling together. Even someone as calm as Asho couldn't help but laugh.

They all wondered if that idiot policeman was going crazy.
