

Chapter 924 Three Letters Of Recommendation

Now that the topic was about Trevor, the atmosphere in the banquet hall became lively and cheerful again.

All the important members of the Sanderson family had seen all kinds of occasions. So they were able to quickly calm down. They started talking and laughing again as if what had happened just now was only a farce.

"I don't want to talk too much today. I just hope that our family will always be united, and I wish everyone happiness and prosperity." After saying this, Elwood stood up with a smile and proposed a toast.

Everyone raised their glass too.

Then the banquet officially started.

Elwood took a sip of his wine, sat back in his chair, and beckoned to Trevor.

"Trevor, come sit next to me."

Trevor looked at Ronald, who was sitting at the other side of the table motionlessly. Then he took the seat beside Elwood.

Elwood looked at Trevor with complicated emotions.

"Trevor, you have grown into an independent man who can handle things on your own. This is really great. I have been paying attention to your trial in Dreles. You are doing a good job. No one can do better than you."

He paused for a moment before joking, "But I discovered that some time ago, you used your resources to help Luisa. Is it true?"

Trevor felt his heart skip a beat.

At that time, he convinced himself that the beauty product developed by Nasir had nothing to do with the Sanderson family. So he helped Luisa aboveboard with his own resources.

But now that he heard Elwood mention it, he still felt a little nervous.

Elwood must have noticed his nervousness. "Ha-ha! You don't have to be nervous. It's a business you've earned with your own effort. Besides, Luisa is a good girl, and I recognize her performance. You can be in a relationship with her. I won't stop you."

Elwood laughed as if to ease the sadness just now.

He couldn't help but secretly glance at the door of the banquet hall where Rudolph and Isaias were dragged away just now. At this moment, Rudolph and Isaias could no longer be seen.

Elwood sighed slightly. Then he pulled himself together and said, "I heard that Evie has already arrived in Dreles. I plan to go to Dreles in a few days to see her. I wonder if she will welcome me."

Trevor said quickly, "Of course, she will. My sister surely misses you too. She must want you to go there."

At this moment, a group of elites from various industries came to talk to Trevor with wine glasses in their hands.

Everyone seemed to be very enthusiastic, smiling with sincerity.

The banquet was finally over.

Elwood tapped the table and said, "Ronald, Trevor, come to the study with me. I have something important to talk to you about."

Trevor and Ronald looked at each other, wondering what Elwood would say to them.

But since both of them had no idea, they just followed Elwood to the study, and the lively atmosphere of the banquet subsided.

Elwood sat on the sofa with a solemn expression on his face.

"Trevor, don't be blinded by the illusion that the banquet hall is full of friends. They are only polite to you because I am still alive. For my sake, they maintain superficial respect for you and your father. However, in the end, you have to be strong to earn true respect," Elwood warned seriously.

He gave Trevor some time to think about it, then continued, "Trevor, I see excellent potential in you, and I believe that you can make the Sanderson family more prosperous. Do you know what is the most important thing our family has accumulated over the years?"

Trevor touched his head and asked tentatively, "Wealth and influence?"

"No. It's a network. Personal connection," Elwood corrected seriously. Then he opened the drawer, took out three sealed letters, and handed them to Trevor.

Trevor asked curiously, "What are these?"

"Recommendation letters. These letters can make you qualified to visit three mysterious masters. I hope you can have the chance to become their disciple. Don't be as disappointing as your father. He is not outstanding enough, and none of the masters is willing to accept him as a disciple."

As Elwood spoke, he turned to glare at Ronald.

"Trevor, you should have a good rest during this period. Then you can visit them in a few days. You must show respect to them and find ways to satisfy them."

When Trevor noticed Elwood's respectful attitude, he couldn't help clicking his tongue. A strong sense of curiosity arose in his heart.
