

Multiverse 521

Chapter 521: Lower Gods

John and other mages appeared in one of the Earth's moons. They haven't been named yet as the naming would be done by the voting system by the people of Earth. The place where they appeared had a huge lake and there was a huge forest surrounding it.

This looked like a good place for setting up a sanctum and since the sanctums would rotate on their own axis and were very different from Earth so they needed to make the sanctums more dynamic. And this needed proper knowledge of magic.

So John and others had to pull all the resources they had together to build a proper sanctum. Even Nabu came out and pitched his ideas. And after proper discussion and planning for an hour, they finally came up with an architecture that could serve as a powerful Sanctum.

A building which looked like it was the blend of a tall tower like the tower of Fate and the modern sanctums which they had.

"This is going to take up more space than I imagined it to be." Strange said.

"We are making a hybrid model and even opening a magic school here. So of course it will take up space." Mordo said. Strange had decided that in addition to opening the path for people who come to them after they had lost their ways, the mages would set up a school for young and talented people who are more in sync with magic than general studies. (yes, Strange has a school that teaches magic to kids. In fact there are quite talented ones among the kids. One of them being a half demon too. Recently in the comics Strange has officially died, so it would be fun to see who would be the next Sorcerer Supreme there. Temporarily its Clea, ex-wife of Strange who was also the Sorcerer Supreme of the Dark Dimension, the same place Dormammu rules)

"Aah it would be better if we bring Orchid here and just make her as the Sanctum." Constantine said (Orchid is the name of the spirit of the House of Mysteries)

"I am not giving her up just because you got lazy Constantine." John reiterated. Strange didn't pay any attention to their weird arguments and had already started moving his hands to conjure magic.

Soon the ground cracked and a new huge building just emerged from the ground. The building looked exactly like the one that was being decided upon. All stopped what they were talking about and looked at the new Sanctum that was being made. They were so engrossed in this that they didn't realize a few weird looking people had appeared behind them. Well, people would be a stretch to describe them.

Because one of them was a black panther, the other was a humanoid draped in white colored linen cloth. The humanoid looked like a mummified being but the head of the being was the skeleton of a long beaked bird.

And the last being was a person who looked like he was on white fire. He had a cape, a red one, on his back but he looked like he was made of elemental fire. The person looked human and not at the same time.

"Uhh.. Hmm....Do you need any help?"

The half mummified finally opened his mouth to get their attention. They thought that their presence was enough to get the attention of the mages, but it turned awkward as soon as they saw none of the mages paid any attention and were busy looking at the new Sanctum.

"Huh..!!!"

"Who the f.."

"Oh!!!"

John moved his head to see who just creeped up on them. Normally he was alert and Phoenix always had a connection with the world but this time she didn't alert him so he was surprised. But when he saw who had come, he realised why she didn't bother to alert the new people.

These new people could never do any harm to them. At least two of them won't, John was not sure about the crazy mummified guy.

The trio were Bast ( will appear in Black Panther Movie), Khonsu ( he is there in Moon Knight) and Agamotto. Actually John almost didn't recognize Agamotto there, because in comics he had appeared maybe one or two times. So he had a hard time. Only when he used his omniscience did he recognize the first Sorcerer Supreme of Earth.

The other people present there were dumbfounded seeing these new bunch of 'species' appearing out of nowhere. At first they thought these were enemies, but seeing that these people didn't sneak attack them and the first words were of helping them did they calm down.

Dr. Strange too stopped seeing that new people had emerged. But unlike others here, he knew who they were.

"To what do we owe the pleasure of the presence of such other worldly beings?" Dr. Strange said.

Chapter 522: Lower Gods (2)

"Uhh... We have noticed that you have remodelled our Earth so wanted to see what the fuss was all about." Bast said. Though it was a panther who was speaking the language of humans, the voice was of a girl.

"Sorry about that! But we had to make this decision as the previous Earth was running out of space for everybody. Did this change affect the other dimensions?" Strange said.

Both Best and Khnosu shook their heads, while there were no emotions from the face of Agamotto or rather his fiery face was not able to convey any kinds of emotions.

"Hold on!! Hold on!! Who are you people?" Constantine finally intervned as he had no idea who these people were. John had never told them of their presence. Or it would be better to say he never shared memories of the smaller Gods with them and since these small gods never interfered in anything magical it never mattered to them.

Until now.

"Let me introduce you all." John said as he saw that some people here had no idea who the other party was. Mordo and others were dumbfounded knowing that these new people were the Gods of other dimensions.

"Uh I have been disrespectful.. It's nice to meet you all." Constantine said.

"Why does your face have a sense of mockery for us instead of being all serious?" Khonsu said as everybody could easily tell that Constantine didn't really care about them or gave enough respect to them.

"You are not thinking straight, skull head. All I have is respect for you." Constantine said. Listening to this, they were pretty sure that this British guy had no respect for anybody.

"You want to help us in building the Sanctums?" John asked as he needed to change the awkward topic. He didn't have any kind of dissatisfaction for them, because at the end they were very old beings and have been serving for the protection of Earth for a long time. Though they betrayed the people of the universe by not helping them during the time of crisis. But in the end even if they wanted they couldn't. This decision came from high up and they just followed orders.

In their weird ways for sure, but they have been doing it for a long time. (Marc Spector is not the only Moon Knight, Since the dawn of men there has been Black Panther, Moon Knight, Ghost Rider and other heroes who served as the protector of humanity)

"If you allow us to. The first Sanctum was built by me. I don't want my name to be wiped away." Agamotto spoke for the first time in his raspy and chilly tone. His voice seemed like he had been smoking cigarettes all his life.

"Do you want to insert your hands in such dirty work for us?" Z asked as she felt sceptical of why a God would just come and offer help for such a trivial matter.

"Normally we wouldn't have come, but you have changed Earth on a massive scale and this needs intricate knowledge of all dimensions to put up a proper defense. I don't want my old enemies to resurface just because you didn't do the job well." Khonsu said with his judgmental tone.

"Fine fine.. You are welcome to come here and watch." Constantine said after raising his hands accepting their presence in such a project.

"You are welcome to join us but on the promise that you will not use any kinds of underhanded methods or backdoor to the Sanctums." Strange said as he didn't trust these Gods completely. If there was no John, Strange would not have allowed them to even come here.

Since John belonged to the lineage of Gods, he didn't stop them. It would be rude. Honestly, he wasn't exactly afraid of them. He too had been powered by the world tree and he was its champion.

"Thanks for accepting us in this project. I know you all don't trust us because of the history of Black Winter but you have to understand our hands were tied too. We had to do this." Agamoto said as he could sense the feelings of distrust from the current Sorcerer Supreme.

"Forget it. Let's go through the Sanctums again and make sure its perfect for Earth. You can give your inputs in them and we will incorporate it." Strange said. The trio nodded their heads and looked at the drawings of the Sanctums that were to be installed.

Soon everybody got involved and started discussing the proper way to build a Sanctum while providing the strongest defense to all of Earth and even to the moons. And after an hour of discussion they finally came to a conclusion about the Sanctums and their locations.

It took the mages and the gods one complete day to build all the Sanctums. All the new Sanctums got connected to the old ones and even to the one at the Ring at the Tower of Fate. With this connection the whole of Earth was now completely protected from any kind of magical dangers and entities that might be a threat to Earth.

Chapter 523: America Chavez

Earth now was completely safe from the magical dangers and beings. All that was remaining was inhabiting the new moons. The governments were already in negotiation about acquiring land on the moons with Umbrella.

Since the Avengers themselves were responsible for the new moons, the land rights went to the Avengers and Umbrella Corp. This was the idea of Tony as he didn't like the idea of loss as they had to go through while cleaning up the old satellites. So real estate on the new moons was what Tony was banking on.

But he also knew that the land on these moons were more what the people could buy so he asked LexCorp to release the news that the aliens from the Nova Empire could come and settle here. The Lex Corp themselves could come here and establish a branch of them. Earth now was ready to accept alien people and technology.

Lex almost jumped into the offer. He had been away from Earth for such a long time and at the end of the day he missed his fellow 'planet-men', fellow humans. Though he now was a Councilman to the Nova Empire, at the end of the day red blood flowed through his veins. So when Tony asked if he wanted to establish a branch here, he accepted the offer immediately.

Many rich people from Nova Empire too got excited at the option of

The governments who were negotiating for the land were dumbfounded to see new players on the real estate business of the moons. They didn't expect that Umbrella would take such a bold step and even got ready to lease and sell land to aliens. Though they had been dealing on many projects on Mars, Umbrella never got into this particular business.

But now the game has changed.

The governments thought that by trying to be tough they would be able to acquire more land on cheap money and use them as resource mining but this was now out of the window. Whatever price the governments were paying the aliens were able to pay more.

They got really angry and even threatened to close the Umbrella Corp working at Earth by saying that Umbrella had done a crime by giving more preference to aliens instead of allowing the humans to live on the moons.

Of course Tony never cared and took them to the court for defamation. This case went on for a few months when everybody was settling down on the new Earth. As expected the cities and towns now had started expanding more. Thanks to the new form of automated fast cars and other modes of super fast transport, the long distance that had creped up didn't feel too far any more.

Honestly if Umbrella now stopped working the whole world would go to a stand still. They had immense power now, more power than the governments could ever acquire. Most of the analysts predicted this to happen when the new world was being made but they could do nothing about it. The Avengers and Umbrella had too much power.

The power of God was not something that they could just gloss over like it was nothing. Nobody would want to lose their life even if none of the Avengers ever threatened. But the fear of super powerful people remained. It was fortunate that the only thing the Umbrella did was business and they would only retaliate when something went against the business ethics of theirs. This was a strict policy implemented by both Tony and John.

-----

Earth - 10005

As such huge changes were happening on Earth-199999, another Earth was facing a crisis. A crisis of their own making.

The crisis of the sentinels. Sentinels hunting down all the mutants. The mutants' numbers were reducing day after day as the sentinels were relentless in their hunt for mutants. The mutants from the school of Professor X or the X-men and the Brotherhood had come together to join hands and face this crisis.

Yes, this was the Earth where there were only X-men. The world which never had Avengers. The earth which was under the 21st Fox-Century until recently marvel acquired all the rights again.

The normal story that was supposed to happen was that Wolverine would go back in time, or rather the consciousness of Wolverine would go back in time and stop the emergence of Sentinels altogether. This whole time travel worked just like the Flashpoint. Only difference was that there was no running involved.

But due to John's messing with everything in the multiverse, the story here too didn't follow the actual line. Because their Earth had a visitor from another place. And as we know any small changes in a time stream could cause a butterfly effect. And this time too it happened the same.

When the visitor arrived at this world, she was all bloody and bruised. She landed right at the school of Xavier.

The person who arrived was America Chavez.

Chapter 524: Cerebro

"Scott have you contacted the mutants from Egypt?" Professor X asked while rolling his wheelchair in a long tunnel.

"Professor, they are not responding. I have a very bad feeling." Scott replied while walking alongside him. Beside him were Wolverine and Storm. They were on their way to Cerebro. The huge device that allowed Professor X to tap into the minds of all the people of Earth, both human and mutant kind alike.

This could be said as one of the most powerful weapons that could wipe away everyone from Earth if it fell on the hands of a strong telepath like Professor X, Jean or Emma.

The Sentinels had started hunting mutants from the brotherhood and Magneto was on the run. Though the mutants studying in the school were still safe, there was a general fear for the government's plan. The US President has started the Operation : Zero Tolerance.

It was a project to bring all 'harmful' mutants under justice. Though the US President has assured that this operation was only for the mutants who are harmful to the society, any normal lawmaker could easily point out that the lines between peaceful and harmful mutants has always been blurred.

For this reason, the atmosphere in the school wasn't so happy any more. There was a general sense of fear. They had seen how brutal and cruel the Sentinels were and most of the mutants had no faith that they or the X-men would be able to hold them if they came after the mutants in general.

"We should have contacted Erik long before and killed this project before it could be launched properly." Logan complained.

"How do you expect us to stop a project which we had no idea about. And how do you propose we should have done it? By killing the men responsible? I am sorry Logan, I can never cross the line." Charles said.

"Oh yeah!! How about you and the whole mutant kind dying? How will you compensate for the deaths of so many people all over the world? Your stance of inaction has divided the mutant kind for such a long time." Logan argued back.

"Then we would have been better off joining the Brotherhood of Erik?" Charles said in a more pitched voice.

"Stop it you two. People are dying and you both are questioning the morality of each other." Storm shouted out loud to stop both of them from arguing. They all have been frustrated with what was going on and nobody had any kinds of solutions.

There was one, but Charles wasn't going to take that step and that was using the Cerebro to launch an attack at White House and stop the operation altogether. No matter what Charles wasn't ready to take this step.

They were going back to Cerebro because they needed to contact Erik and find out what exactly was going on with the mutants under him.

But the moment he was going to step inside the Cerebro he stopped. Charles moved his head and looked in the direction which was outside the school. He was astonished by what he 'saw' or rather felt when he looked at the direction.

There was a woman all bloody and bruised lying half dead and unconscious. She was in such a bad condition that if she wasn't treated fast, she would die.

"Storm there is a teenage girl on the gates of the girl. She is almost dead. I want you to take her to the medical facility right now." Charles ordered Storm with a sense of urgency. He didn't peep into the head of the girl but he could tell that this person needed help.

Storm was surprised by this and ran outside to bring this injured girl to the medical wing. Logan and Scott were surprised by this sudden emergence of a girl out of nowhere.

"Another mutant? Now they are hunting underage girls? In the countryside?" Scott asked.

"I didn't look into her mind, Scott. Her mind is on the verge of collapse. If I poke it right now, she might just die. Let her heal then we can get proper answers."

Storm meanwhile flew to the gate of the school where many mutant kids were looking at the unconscious girl from far but nobody approached out of fear. Storm seeing this was quite angry.

"You guys need to learn compassion. A wounded girl was lying in the premises and nobody even bothered to help her. We teach you to be a person of the society, not treat a fellow mutant kind as an alien."

Storm said as she took the girl in her arms and flew away. She expected that the injured girl was a mutant as she had appeared here out of nowhere and with all the problems going on with the sentinels it was almost customary that the sentinels might have attacked her.

Little did she know that this girl would change the whole future of mutants forever.

Chapter 525: Weird powers

The girl was taken to the intensive medical unit which was under the school. Dr. Cecilia Reyes, one of the best medical doctors and a mutant, belonged to the X-men. She was a world renowned doctor but she worked exclusively for the mutants.

She was already informed that an injured girl was arriving in the facility and she had everything ready. The teenage girl was taken inside and Dr. Reyes needed to operate on her fast so that she stops bleeding and gets out of the trauma.

Professor X and other important mutants all stood outside the room with tense expressions on their faces. They wanted to know who this girl was and where they came from, but more importantly they wanted to know if it was sentinels who attacked her.

And after 2 hours of waiting and brooding around by the mutants, Dr. Reyes came out of the medical room while removing her bloodied white gloves.

"Dr. How is she? Is she alright?" Storm asked. She was more concerned than others as she was the first person to come in contact with her and she had first hand knowledge of the injuries she had gone through.

"She is alright. One tough nut I should say. It's fortunate that her body is immensely powerful. but she will take some time to recuperate and I could feel her mind is in chaos." Dr. Reyes replied with a smile but later her voice turned grave when she mentioned the last option.

"These sentinels deserve nothing but our fury. We need to retaliate now, before it's too late." Logan said as his adamantium claws started to come out slowly due to his anger. He started to go outside and smash some sentinels.

"Professor, we need to take action." Storm said as she too was disgusted by what she saw and she too joined Logan. Charles was going to say something to stop these two from doing anything risky but he stopped the words in his mouth after what Cecilia said.

"Uhh... I need to tell you first.. She isn't a mutant."

Hearing this, all the people who were present in the hall froze on their spot. They turned their heads and looked at the doctor.

"What are you saying doctor? You just said that her body is immensely powerful. How can she not be a mutant like us?" Scott asked.

"I did say that but I never mentioned that she was a mutant." Dr. replied.

"You mean to say that she had trained her body to be more powerful than the normal human being?" Jean asked as she too had arrived.

"No. I am saying she has powers but her powers are not genetic. She has somehow harnessed a kind of power which I had never seen or heard of before... Don't give me that look... I checked the data 5 times. She doesn't have the X-gene but there is something very powerful inside her." Dr. said with all seriousness.

"How is this possible? A person can have powers only when one has the X-gene. You mean to say a person can have powers without an X-gene. Is that what the government is doing? Doing illegal experiments to see if a normal person can have powers? This is disgusting. We need to show the results to people." Hank said. (the beast. I think everyone knows him here. He is super intelligent and even served as a Congressman in the X-men movies)

"And now that she has escaped they wanted to silence her." Logan said as they all came into the same conclusion. They had all become Sherlock Holmes here.

"Wrong again. She was never attacked by Sentinels." Dr. Cecilia said.

"What? How is this possible? She looked laden with injuries when I brought her back. I only saw such horror the last time when I saw mutants being killed by the Sentinels." Storm said.

"I don't know. Seeing her bone and body structure I can assure you that the Sentinels can't inflict that kind of damage to her body. If sentinels wanted to kill her it should be clean and a sneaky one. But here it was nothing like that. Whatever she fought, it was hand to hand combat and there was no blood of another person on her body. It was like she fought air." Dr. said.

"What the hell is going on? Hand to hand combat and no blood from another person? What did she fight? An android?" Logan asked.

"No, there would be metal particles on her nails or on other places of her body. There was none. As I said it seemed like she fought the air." Cecilia said.

"Did you find any other thing?" Charles asked as all were getting confused. They had no idea and all were thinking that some kind of new mutant had emerged and attacked her.

"I don't know if you will believe me or not but I did find something quite astonishing on her body." Dr. said hesitatingly.

"What is it Doctor?" Jean asked.

"I found antimatter." Dr. replied in a straight face.

Chapter 526: Search and answers

"What? Antimatter? This girl has powers related to antimatter?" Charles was shocked by this revelation and fearful too. Antimatter can be described as a substance which when comes in contact with matter it causes annihilation, or in simpler terms, it causes a huge explosion. It is said that a gram of antimatter can cause an explosion equivalent to a nuclear bomb.

"No. I found antimatter in her body. A power that is unique in her body has isolated small antimatter particles so that it doesn't cause any harm. I have got rid of some of them but some are still there deep inside her. I need time to extract all these particles and do more in depth study to understand what exactly is going on." Dr. said.

"Are you sure that it's antimatter? A mutant with antimatter capabilities? This person is dangerous to himself (or herself), to others and even to his or her own self. Professor, we need to find this mutant and bring him or her in." Scott said.

"Agreed."

"Doctor, we need you to heal her completely. We need to understand what is going on with her." Charles said as he was leaving in his wheelchair. He was followed by all the X-men as they went to Cerebro to find out who this 'antimatter' mutant was that had appeared recently.

Dr. Reyes went inside the medical room to keep an eye on her and see how her condition evolved from here on out.

Meanwhile, Charles used the Cerebro to find the specific mutant but he was surprised that he was not able to find any such mutant with such mind blowing powers. he thought he searched it wrong and felt that the Cerebro wasn't working perfectly so he used it to find other mutants like Erik and the mutants in his brotherhood.

It was all fine and dandy when it came to searching for all other mutants, but no matter what they couldn't find any such mutants who had antimatter powers or anything close to that in this regard.

For a week this had gone by and Charles still wasn't able to find any such mutant. Since he failed in this, he paid attention to another matter. Contacting Erik. Though he couldn't get inside the mind of Erik but he could get in the mind of one of his members of his brotherhood.

Charles invaded the mind of Pyro. A mutant who could control fire (X men movies, brother of Iceman, Bobby). Pyro was sitting next to Magneto as they were discussing ways to fight against the sentinels. The war against them looked hopeless as the enemies proved to be very powerful

"Erik, it's been a long time." Suddenly Pyro, who was listening attentively to what Magneto was saying, spoke out. All got stunned as Pyro had never used that tone to talk with their leader ever before.

Magneto's eyes shined when Pyro said that because he could already guess what had happened.

"Is that you Charles? You have some audacity to come and talk to me here. Where are you? You aren't safe being so far from home." Erik said as he had a hint of concern. No matter what they had been best friends once and even though they stood in opposite camps now, they still maintained their friendship and respect for each other.

"I would be a fool if I was there. I am at Cerebro. How is the situation there? Is it that bad?" Charles asked. Erik nodded his head as he understood that he did it through a long distance.

"You invaded the mind of one of my brothers. Why don't you look into his mind and tell me." Erik said as he didn't go into depths of how bad it was. They had been hiding in the underground bomb shelters of Kremlin. They had been on the run for sometime now and couldn't be in a single location for a long time.

And mutants were either dying under him or were being captured. Charles was silent as he took a peek at the recent events. He didn't know what he should say to console his friend.

"Why did you call me Charles?" Erik asked as he was sure that his friend had seen what they were going through.

"I want you to come home. We found a girl who isn't a mutant but has powers. We fear that it is because of illegal experiments of the military and government. I want your advice on that." Charles said.

"A girl who has powers without the X-gene. Interesting. How do you propose we should handle her? " Erik asked.

"We can discuss this once you come back here. There is Blink in your small squad. Use her powers and open a portal to my home. I am sure she would be able to handle the passage of a single man."

(Blink is the girl who could open portals to different locations. She was in X men days of the future past. She was in the start of the movie where she did after being stabbed by a Sentinel)

Chapter 527: Astonishment

"It's not an ambush. Is it? You are giving up our location so that your precious X-men is safe." Erik said.

"I would be disappointed if you think so lowly of me, my friend. I will wait for you. Be here in an hour." Charles said before signing off from the mind of Pyro. He came out of the Cerebro as the others were now waiting outside the medical room. Today was supposed to be the day when the girl would wake up from her coma.

At least that's what Dr. Reyes expected so everybody of the X-men who cared about her were waiting for the good news. After much investigation it was found that the particles inside her were really antimatter. Beast confirmed it and said the power which she has might be related to something in the line of time and space.

Because only those kinds of powers could wrap antimatter without harming the body. Everybody was astonished when Beast came out with this report. They thought the girl was just powerful but listening to what Beast said they realized the water was very deep here and they needed to swim in it very carefully.

Charles was riding his wheelchair towards the medical wing when a purple portal opened in front of him. The portal looked unstable and small as if it would close any moment. But the portal was big enough to fit a man as in the next moment magneto came out of the portal.

"You came faster than I expected." Charles said while looking at his old friend with his own eyes.

"What can I say? By saying words like antimatter you piqued my interest." Erik said while shrugging his shoulders.

"Then I should have gone with the statement that the girl might have powers related to space and time." Charles said. Erik's face became sombre when Charles said. It was all good if she was of their kind, but she wasn't and if she had powers related to space and time, he wasn't sure if the girl would be a threat to them.

"Erik, I know what you are thinking. But let me make this clear, you won't touch her until we make it apparent if she is a threat to the mutants or not." Charles said as he was afraid he might just kill her before figuring out what was going on.

"I am not the monster you think I am." Erik said while shaking his head.

As they were talking they had already reached outside the medical room. Logan clenched his fist when he saw Erik. For Logan, Erik was his arch nemesis. Someone who was born to be the greatest rival for a lifetime, but here he couldn't retaliate as he was invited by Professor himself.

He just glared at Magneto but didn't say a word.

"Relax macho man. I am not here to abuse you." Magneto joked. Logan was ready to argue when the door of the medical room opened and Dr. Reyes came out.

"She is awake. She has opened her eyes. But I will keep this straight. Don't push her too much. She is in trauma. The first words that came out of her mouth were mom and dad. Assuming she had lost her parents, I hope you will be sensitive to her situation before you go full Sherlock Holmes on her." Dr. said.

"Charles here can just go into her mind and bring out all the secrets." Erik said.

"I won't do such unethical things until absolutely necessary." Charles said as he went right in with the other X-men, followed by Erik.

They came near the bed where the girl was lying down. She had her eyes open but the bruises that she had suffered were still apparent on her face. And in many places of the body she was still bandaged. She was just looking at the ceiling with tears flowing down her eyes.

This scene made everybody sad. They could already guess that she had lost her parents. In a normal situation they would have let the girl heal well and then ask questions but here they were running out of time. Sentinels could be knocking on their door any moment. Charles finally took up the courage and said

"Hello Miss. I am Charles Xavier. And these are my friends and colleagues. Can I know your name?"

The girl moved her eyes and looked around. She looked at Charles and the other people standing. Her eyes seemed like it was in pain but in depth of this one could easily feel a sense of determination.

"Which Earth is this? How many fighters do you have?"

Those were the first words that came out of her mouth. She said in a slow and steady pace. All the other people present in the room were dumbfounded by this. They thought she would introduce herself first but all she asked was a very weird question which they couldn't find the head and tails of.

Chapter 528: Trust

"My dear child, what are you talking about?" Erik said to diffuse the awkwardness which prevailed after her weird question. None of them understood what she meant by that.

"I want to know how many of you are fighters. I will need strong fighters to face him." the girl said.

"Who are you talking about? The mutant who controls antimatter? Rest assured we are capable enough for facing him. But tell me first where and what kind of illegal experiments have been done on you that you have powers now." Charles asked.

"Illegal experiments? What are you talking about? I was born with powers. And we will need a huge army to face him. A small number won't suffice." the girl said.

"Who is this mutant?" Charles asked again.

"Annihilus. He is a conqueror and tyrant from the Negative Zone. We need to stop him and we will have a whole ass army for him." the girl said.

"Negative Zone? What is that? A place in the US?" Scott asked.

The girl looked around dumbfounded. She thought saying the name 'negative zone' would invoke a sense of fear into them, but looking at their faces it meant they were totally ignorant of it.

"Which Earth is this?" the girl asked again.

"What do you mean which Earth? This is our Earth." Logan replied as he still didn't understand what she meant by that during her first words. The girl now was sure that these people were ignorant. Ignorant of the fact that there was a multiverse out there.

She feared more now. When she opened a portal here before going into coma she sensed very vague powers residing in this place. It was because of this reason she opened the portal near the school. She didn't know what she was going to say next would be believable or not to these people, who seemed like they had no idea about the multiverse.

After heaving sigh she finally took the courage and said slowly

"My name is America Chavez. I come from a different Earth. A Utopian Parallel where everything is wonderful and perfect. But our world or rather our universe has been invaded by the army of Annihilus and I am the last one alive from that universe. I was able to escape. But after fighting that being for a long time has made me realise that his hunger for world conquering isn't over and soon he will try to take over all of the multiverse."

She said all these words in one breath and at the end she was breathing heavily. Her injuries have still not healed. The X-men and Erik all looked at her with wide eyes. After hearing such words they didn't know how they should react.

Her seriousness meant whatever she was saying was correct but the things she spoke would make anyone laugh. Multiverse? Utopian Parallel? Her words were enough to send her to Arkham Asylum if it ever existed in their world.

"Girl, do you feel sick? Do you feel sad again? You can take a rest and we will ask you again after you get healed. How about that?" Dr. Reyes said as she felt that the girl was still in trauma and was suffering from hallucinations of her past. Her mind might have put up a fake scenario in her head to make her feel safe and protected later.

"You don't believe me?" Chavez looked at everyone's faces and could the disbelief. She expected that. Out of nowhere if a person came and said about the multiverse, that person would definitely be labeled as a mad person.

She really didn't know how to convince these people who had no idea how powerful their enemies were and who else was coming.

"Girl you need to sleep. We can talk about your past later." Logan said as he started walking out. He was sure her mind was fried. He convinced himself that whatever she was facing and mental trauma was because of human's illegal experiment.

Everybody was disappointed as they started going out. They thought what she said was just hallucinations and she needed more rest to get her mind right.

Everybody!!

Except for Charles Xavier!!

He continued looking her for a second before finally saying

"Whatever she has said is the truth!!"

All stopped right on their tracks hearing this. They looked back at Charles who just continued looking at her without paying any attention to others.

"You believe me? Why? My words must have sounded really absurd to people like you." Chavez asked. She really felt that these people were really ignorant and her words would definitely sound weird to them.

"I believe you because I looked into your mind. Like you we too have powers. Though we might not be multiverse travellers like you, but we do have our own merits."

"Now tell me how do you want us to help?" Charles said as he folded his arms and looked at her with expectations. She might just be the answer to all the problems they had been facing.

Chapter 529: Decision

"Charles, what are you talking about? Have you gone nuts?" Logan said as he couldn't believe what his long time friend just said.

"Professor I think.." Storm was going to say something but she stopped when the Professor held out his hand to stop them from speaking.

"I know what she said sounds very weird but what she said is true. She doesn't belong to our Earth. Rather she doesn't belong to our universe. Her universe was invaded by a force which came from an antimatter dimension. And she is the last one alive. We need to help her stop this menace and maybe while helping her we can help ourselves." Charles said as he interrupted her.

"You mean to say all the hypothetical theories of the multiverse are real?" Beast asked as he got excited. Being a genius he had studied about this theory before but never delved into it. He thought it was just a fantasy story but now from the words of Charles and the girl it might just prove to be real.

"Charles. Are you serious?" Erik asked. He wasn't that knowledgeable about the multiverse theory but from the words of Charles he could infer that there might be multiple Earths out there. This alone gave him many ideas just like it did to Charles.

"Yes. Now Miss Chavez. Tell us how we can help you?" Charles asked.

"You have already looked into my mind. And you have seen him. Though I think it's rude, I won't hold it against you as I don't have much time to convince you all. Yes, we need fighters. Do you have sufficient powered people here? If not, after I heal I will go to other universes and convince people to help in this upcoming war." Chavez said.

All the X-men now got serious as they understood by now whatever bullshit that they were listening was for real and not just a theory. Beast proceeded to explain the theory of multiverse to them with the little knowledge he had on this topic. Chavez too corrected some of the notions related to the multiverse.

"So there are multiple Earth's out there? And there might be Earth where we can live in peace?" Logan asked as he was pretty much pumped up now. The mere thought of leaving this Earth was enough motivation for all the people present in the room.

"Yep." Chavez replied.

All got silent as everybody had their own thoughts now. They could finally see a silver lining and this girl could be the key to a brighter future.

"At first we need to face this being before we settle our problems. We will need all hands on deck." Charles said as he was the only one who looked into Annihilus and they needed huge firepower just to face this guy.

"Then we need to gather all the mutants for this job." Erik said as he had his own calculations.

"Annihilus had a treaty with our Earth of not invading our place ever and leaving us in peace. We had gone to war against him long ago and there was too much death and destruction. He is a paranoid being who thinks everything has evolved in the universe to end him. But since he couldn't win over us, we finally managed to come to an agreement of non-aggression pact. But this broke a year ago when he suddenly started invading and killing all the people and planets in our universe. His Cosmic Power over antimatter proved too powerful."

"His army of bugs and sheer numbers proved too much for us.... At the end... My mom and dad..." Chavez continued but she already had tears in her eyes while mentioning her parents. Her parents sacrificed themselves to give her a fighting chance and forced her to leave for another universe and seek help. She had seen all her friends, family and every person she knew die in front of her.

She fought for a long time but even with her powers she couldn't save anyone and at the end of the promise which her father made she was made to leave for another earth. This was how she ended up here. All bloody and wounded.

"So we need people? We mutants can help." Logan said.

"It won't be enough. We will need an army. Even with all the mutants we have we still fall short." Charles said.

"Miss Chavez, from your words it seems that you can travel to other Earths. Will you travel to other Earths to bring in more people?" Erik asked.

"If the numbers aren't enough I would have to travel." Chavez said as she nodded her head.

"Alright. You should fully heal before you make any decision. I know the time is tight but we can't do anything before you can fully function." Dr. Reyes said as she interrupted others' thoughts. She really needed to heal before she could use her powers completely.

Chapter 530: Leaving

"Alright."

"Agreed."

Those voices came out when the doctor said that. They needed time to understand what just happened and the new information that they received and she too needed time to recover. So all of the X-men left.

After coming out of the room, Erik said to Charles

"Charles. I need a favor from you. I want all of the mutants of the brotherhood to go into hiding and not engage in any form against the Sentinels. We need time, and this won't be possible if these people of mine go into battle without a proper leader."

Charles looked at Erik for a second and then said

"So you are banking on the fact that she would lead your team of mutants to another Earth where the mutant kind can live in peace?"

"Oh c'mon Charles I am sure you are thinking of the same thing." Erik said

Charles got silent when he said that. He really was also secretly hoping that she would lead all of the mutant kind away. To a better place where they could live well and away from constant fear and persecution from the general people.

He too hated it like Erik did. But there was nothing they could do. It was either accept it or fight it. Now all they could see was a chance and a hope that everything would be perfect later. Charles went to Cerebro to tell all the mutants of his brotherhood to hide and get away from any confrontation.

The brotherhood was surprised that Erik had decided to be at the mansion of Charles for sometime but they didn't question him back and trusted him. They were in Russia, so even though there was a hatred for mutants there, the use of US based tech in their countries wouldn't be easily greenlit. So they were safe for now.

In this way 1 week went by with Beast taking up classes and explaining how the multiverse worked to all the X-men while they all had a general talk with Chavez of her past life. They thought that she was joking when she said that she hailed from a Utopian Parallel.

But it seemed like their world was really perfect. Or at least as perfect a world could be. But at the end even the Gods got jealous and just annihilated their world. Now she was the only living person from her world. They felt sad and fearful too.

The Sentinels here just hunted the mutants but that crazy guy hunted everything. If Sentinels didn't get them, Annihilus would definitely win and their mutant kind wasn't large and powerful enough to hold their ground.

So they needed help!!

And after 1 week of recuperation, Chavez was finally ready to go and look for more powerful people. She already got the idea of how powerful the people were here. The notion of several powerful people here gave her hope that she could fight against Annihilus but she knew that this wasn't enough.

At the end Chavez was ready to go to another universe to look for more people such as them. And on this journey she had decided to take two people with her.

Erik and Charles.

No matter what, at the end of the day Chavez was just a teenager and both of them weren't very comfortable with just a teenage girl going to another universe and trying to convince them to let them join in a war.

It was fortunate that she landed near the school of Xavier. This might have turned real ugly if she had landed somewhere else. And since Charles was a telepath and Erik had control over magnetic fields, they would come quite handy in this journey.

"So are you both old men really going on such a dangerous journey? Isn't this more suitable for me?" Logan asked as he saw the two men getting ready and packing their bags.

"Says the guy who only knows how to piss people off." Scott commented from back.

"I only piss you off bud. Not others." Logan retorted.

"It will be fine. I can take care of myself and Charles. It's you who needs to pipe down and be calm." Erik replied.

"If you both are done with your daily rants and showing who is sexually dominant to Miss Grey here, can we leave?" Chavez said as she wore her iconic jeans jacket.

Hearing such words both Scott and Logan froze on their spot and all the other X-men burst out laughing. Chavez had the audacity to speak in such a manner in front of these people who everybody feared. Even Jean couldn't help but smile when Chavez said that though she felt a little shy too.

"Alright enough chit chat. We are leaving. Don't do anything outrageous until we get back." Charles said as the wheelchair rolled.

"Miss Chavez, we can leave as long as you are ready." Erik said.

Chavez nodded her head as she made a punching motion from her right hand. The hand emitted a hazy blue light in a stream.

The blue light stream got bigger as it travelled and enlarged into a hole. A hole that looked like a portal and from there they could already see a different place.