

Multiverse 591

Chapter 591: Light

There have always been two forces in the universe at war. Darkness and Light. (yeah I know it sounds like a chinese novel but that is what is in the comics. Or at least roughly to the same extent). Darkness prevailed for a long time and soon manifested itself on the body of Knull workings a symbiote.

Guiding him, giving him power. But all of this changed when the Celestials came and took over his kingdom. They waged war on him and everything he held dear to, was stripped away. Later he made the All-Black but that was still not enough to defeat the Celestials.

And when he thought he would conquer the world slowly, he was beaten down again, and this time, it was his arch enemy.

The Light.

When Darkness ruled when Light was in its infancy, the invasion of Celestials just made the growing process of Light faster. The symbiotes had always been under Knull's rule but once they were touched by Light, his plans went to shit. His dear symbiotes revolted against him and later imprisoned him, in his own place.

The influence of Darkness also went down and all he could do was bide his time and grow stronger. Darkness could never be eradicated totally. This was the law. The same law applied to Light too. But Knull wanted to change it, and bring the multiverse back to the Abyss. His kingdom!!

Now he was here. To take everything back. The place where it all started (Thor was the first to defeat Grendel, one of the first symbiote dragons. Grendel's defeat started the process of infusing Light into the symbiotes, it was on Earth 616 where it all started.)

"You seem to know a lot. Were you the one who was trying to sneak up on me all this time after I was awake?" Knull spoke in a very metallic tone. His figure looked exactly like the comics. At least 8 feet in height. Made of nothing but bones and skin attached to it. He didn't seem like there was blood in his veins. His eyes had pitch black color with occasional red hues on them.

His face, like his body, didn't have muscle and had sharp teeth, like the piranhas. All-in-all, atypical zombie villain. Behind him was a longsword.

"I did. At least I tried to. But it seems Darkness didn't allow me."

"I smell the same breath as those filthy beings. I will take immense pleasure in making you one of my symbiote hosts."

"Oh!! With what? Two of the symbiote Celestials that you have been hiding? You should have remained asleep at Klyntar. Sleep is the best thing ever. Why wake up?" John taunted him. He had no fear. Sure, Knull was powerful but it never meant that John was a weakling. Knull, for the first time, had a look of surprise.

Him having the Celestials was a trump card, a card he could pull if Light ever showed up. But now this person seemed like he knew everything. Out of anger, Knull without saying another word made a swiping motion at John.

Using the All-Black. A jet black ray traveled through the distance and approached John. The others seeing this were ready to take action to stop the attack from reaching them, but John made the motion with his hand to not interfere. He had a perfect way to stop this.

The black ray after approaching John and his team suddenly vanished. It was as if all the attacks never existed in the first place. The other members of 616-Avengers were skeptical about Knull's attack first.

They were ready to stop it, but seeing that none of their companions took action, they stopped. They wanted to see how the enigmatic 'John Jameson' would react. And they were not disappointed. The attack itself vanished.

Knull was surprised too by this. Not because the attack was stopped. He already knew what would happen. This attack was just a probing attack. He was surprised by the way the attack had vanished.

The power of Time!!

He looked at the person who did it. Yhwach. Knull looked at Yhwach, for the first time in his entire life, and felt a little cold. It was as if he was looking at the Abyss again. And this Abyss was inside a person.

"You can control time?" Knull spoke. Yhwach just looked at him and didn't reply. Instead he extended his hand. And the next moment, a huge shining bright sword was in his hand.

This sword looked like it was made of light itself. The light was too white, looked too pure, too bright. The sword looked like it was illuminating in this place and giving light everywhere.

"This isn't Light. What are you?" Knull spoke in a more serious tone now. Though the sword was not made of the same Light he had always known.

This light seemed cruel and menacing to him. It was as if this light could obliterate souls. Or in this case, their connections to the Codex.

Chapter 593: Light (2)

Yhwach swung his sword, just like Knull did, and this time it was a jet ray of white light travelling towards him, with more intensity than what Knull did. As the ray travelled, the symbiotes which were wriggling behind him came forward to stop the incoming ray. It didn't come as a surprise that these symbiotes weren't able to stop the attack of Yhwach. What really surprised him was that the symbiotes were not able to feed any information back to the Codex.

Normally be it with host or without any host, there would always be a feedback to the Hive, the main Codex. But here it was none. He became serious seeing this. This has never happened before, even when he fought against the Celestials, it never happened. Darkness had always helped him.

Until now. Darkness could play nor role here.

"You think you have won? With just one puny guy? I will show you what Darkness truly is." Knull became flustered seeing this as he was finally able to stop the attack with his hand. He looked menacing as he said that with gritted teeth.

All the symbiotes that were behind him, slowly made a spherical approach to them as they surrounded the Avengers from all sides.

"Great, now we have pissed him off." 616-Tony said.

"We will be fine. We expected this to happen. Didn't we?" Tony said.

John seeing this too got serious. He needed to use all his power. The vault had finally opened from behind. And it looked massive. John for the first time was going to use his vault for a fight. As weapons started coming out, the size of it looked so huge that it could easily cover an entire planet in diameter.

But in front of the huge galactic size symbiotes it still looked small. But it was fine for John. He wasn't going to use the vault to kill the symbiotes. He was going to use the vaults to kill the bugs. For symbiotes he was going to use another thing.

"Phoenix , you ready?"

"Thought you would never ask."

"Stop with your movie lines."

"It's your movies. Not my fault."

John transformed himself into a Phoenix. The Phoenix of Marco and after he did that, the color of his Phoenix body changed from aqua blue to orange. John didn't want to use Alien X.

Not yet.

There is a time limit for Alien X. He didn't want to exhaust his trump card yet. This would be after Light comes to the battlefield for which Norin was searching. Yes, John had sent Norin in search of Light. (in the comics it happened the same way)

Light force or the Enigma Force was the nemesis of Darkness. This was what powered Captain Universe. (yes, it's very confusing for me too. Enigma Force belonged to Eternity and suddenly they changed the name, but that was what comics said)

So until Norin was here, they needed to stop him as much as possible in fighting him without Alien X. The other 616- Avengers were taken aback seeing such numbers and seeing John transforming into a burning bird. Phoenix Force could never change a person in that way.

For sure when one becomes a host, there would be fire coming out of their skin. But never transforming into a bird. This was totally new.

"What is he actually? At first he was being made of stars. Now a bird?"

Forget about the surrounding 616-Avengers, even the people of Earth who were watching the live telecast were surprised by this change.

"He can use the Phoenix Force in the best way possible. How does he do that?" Jean mumbled.

After a momentary pause of exclamation from everyone, including Knull, they finally started taking action. John waved his wings at the symbiotes that were coming from all sides. A force of fire blast travelled in all directions as he did that. Batman and Superman used their heat vision on the incoming symbiotes.

They knew that they could never let any symbiote touch them, so they had to be very careful. At times like these they missed Darkseid. That bitch had omega vision which could easily change its directions while killing everything in its wake.

Both Tony were busy using their thrusters in every direction. The plus point of this heat vision and thrusters was that it could easily burn the symbiotes. Though it wasn't effective in front of bugs, the black symbiotes suffered.

Vision was actually the most safe here as both of them were androids and the symbiotes couldn't take over him, though the dragon symbiotes were powerful enough to face both of them in strength wise.

Hal and Natasha were using their rings while Ciri looked like she was in a sword class as he waved her sword. At whatever directions she used, the space would tear apart and the symbiotes would be sucked away in the space cracks.

Chapter 594: Aliens

Have you ever seen an ant fight an elephant? No. Because that is ridiculous, to say the least. A person will not even see the ant, much less the fight, as an elephant could easily crush it. But, all of these comparisons were actually happening right now.

And the people of Earth 616 were witnesses to it. Only in this case were the people of Earth able to watch the 'ants' as they fought valiantly.

John was using the [Bird] x [Aliens] form to fight against the main Knull while others were actively surrounding him, making sure the dragon symbiotes, the bugs, and other small symbiotes that were wriggling around did not get close to him.

This looked extremely enigmatic as the human beings fought with extreme speed and vigor to stop the symbiotes. But the one to actually steal the show was John.

His human form was giving off sparks of fire from his body. He had a sword in his hand.

The famous Ea.

The sword Gilgamesh was known for He rarely uses the sword, and only in special cases does he bring it out. Today was one of those days. He swiped the weird-looking sword at Knull. And Knull could sense the power of the sword and this weird being that had four arms coming out of his body. And on each of the hands were three different powerful swords.

The people looking at it were dumbfounded. First, this person changed into a bird. And then he turned into a four-armed, muscular guy, and now on each arm was a sword. And the main sword was more ridiculous than the rest.

Was that even a sword?

But nobody could deny the power of the sword as he took the first swipe at Knull, as Knull had to use his All-Black to stop the onslaught that his move against his enemy was going to bring. He was sure that if he didn't stop this power, then the symbiotes behind him would have to deal massive damage. And so he went to make the first move.

And with the help of All-Black, he was able to stop it. But he had made a grave miscalculation. He forgot that this being had four arms and that there were three other swords in his arms.

John used his Sul-Sagna (the one with huge fire magic) to make a stabbing motion toward Knull at his abdomen from one of his arms below. And this surprise attack was successful, as this move of his was enough to create a stab at the body of Knull.

And if that was not enough, John made sure to use fire magic on the inside of Knull's body. There was a loud explosion between John and Knull as this happened. John anticipated this attack as he flew back. While Knull, who didn't care for the first sword below, was thrown a few meters away.

The people of Earth who watched the whole broadcast cheered as this happened. Not many people had access to the visuals, but those who did knew how terrifying the enemy was. Just the sheer size of it blew their brains.

The people who were fighting alongside him also had a smile on their faces. Honestly, even they had huge apprehension when Knull appeared. It reminded them of Black Winter. The huge force that almost proved to be their doom. While others in the group were more serious, as until now they had never faced such a terrifying being. Sure, they had faced Galactus, but there was always a way to stop him.

The dealings of the gods and their problems always remained on different levels. Plus, they always had the option of using the Ultimate Nullifier. When Reed gave the weapon to Galactus, he always left measures so that he could get access to it again in case Galactus chose to come back to renege on his promise.

But this was different. Galactus was only responsible for eating planets, while this being was hell-bent on destruction. Now most of the members of the 616 Avengers were counting their stars that they had help from another universe. Or else, it would have been a totally different story.

Knull, who was pushed back, stopped in his tracks. The fire magic died out as his face was again visible. There was a visible burn mark on his skin. And a huge stab wound.

"You have surprised me, human. I never thought you would have a technology or a thing that could allow you to change your DNA. That watch of yours seems otherworldly."

"Yeah. It is called Omnitirix. A very knowledgeable alien made it." John said.

"Oh. So I think I will have to look for him after I kill you."

"Sure. You will have to leave this multiverse."

"Oh, leave this multiverse?" Knull mumbled the last sentence. John had no idea that those words of his would terrorize Knull a bit.

Chapter 595: The Wall

"Do you come from the other side of the Wall?" Knull asked solemnly after a period of silence. He had a sense of dread in his voice. The dread that only he knew.

"Huh!!!?"

John didn't expect such a reaction. When he first mentioned outside the multiverse, he just threw it out with no proper thought. Because for him, there was no 'other multiverse'. This was just random bullshit which he had woven for quite a long time. He had been lying about this all his life.

He felt bad, thinking all the systems of the protagonists he read before didn't have to lie so blatantly as he had to. It was like his system was forcing him to lie. Spread lies all over the globe about himself.

But there was nothing he could do.

But now John was questioning himself, after hearing the words of Knull. From his words he could distinctly feel that Knull believed there was a multiverse out there. Sure there are comics on such things as for example there was a comic where Batman fought with Ninja Turtles, a world where Spawn was fighting with Batman, (author note- DC and their obsession with Batman) and even a world where the heroes of DC and Marvel came together and fought.

But that was it! It was just bullshit stories to boost the sales of both comics. He wasn't sure of why he was in a marvel world that should have just existed in comics and movies.

But then again the stories of comics have come to life here. So what was stopping the stories or DC and other words being real? But here came the paradox.

If the stories of DC and all others were real, then how could John have such control over his summons? And if they really came from another universe, wouldn't their own world be ruined and in a more drastic way?

John had seen what ruin can come to a world where there were no heroes. Marvel was relatively an 'easy' world compared to DC. If Batman someday decided to sleep one night in Gotham, then Joker would just cause havoc around.

So if his summons were real, then weren't their multiverse in doom? Assuming that his summons were real of course.

This thought scared John a bit. If this was true then he was the sinner of various multiverses out there. All these thoughts were rapidly revolving his mind and his thought power enhanced by being Gilgamesh was turning in full speed.

All this thought came to John in a matter of seconds after Knull asked that question.

"This is terrible? If there really is a multiverse out there, then I will have to look into it. I will have to ask Oblivion. Only he can answer. For now, I will have to end this." John thought.

"Maybe... maybe not..." John replied cryptically to Knull not releasing any information. Now, John needed to understand what Knull meant by other multiverses and milk as much information before he approached Oblivion.

"How did you cross the Wall?" Knull asked now, in an excited tone. He had his eyes shining when he asked that, as if he could find salvation.

"Wall?" What Wall?" John involuntarily asked Knull, as he had no idea of what he was asking.

"WALL... The Wall.. The Wall that surrounds the multiverse of ours. Don't you even know what that is called?" Knull asked. The amount of talking that Knull was doing was something he had ever done before. Not even when he had his own kingdom!!

Yet here he was, talking to his enemy!!

Why? Because he wanted answers too. But John was confused. There was never a mention of Wall or whatever that was covering the multiverse. The universe itself was unquantifiable, and it was ever expanding. There was never a Wall in Marvel.

Never.

So what was this Knull speaking about?

"I have no idea what you are talking about?"

Knull squinted his eyes as John replied. His demeanour changed instantly like before. Cold and dark. Knull knew that he needed to beat this guy out to get answers. His conquest of Earth was just for old revenge, but now it had become something else.

His enemies wouldn't let him have answers so he would have to beat it out.

"So you won't say it willingly. Good.. So be it.. Now just be obliterated." Knull said as he again swung his sword. John could see the wrath in his eyes when he did that. It was as if he was fueled by more fire. And this time it was not only for revenge and conquest, it was for answers.

Or rather an obsession. And this guy would do everything for this. This fight just got more serious than it ever was. A demented and obsessed being was always been a problematic one. The tons of Chinese novels had taught him that and here there was another one.

Chapter 596: The grand fight (1)

And so the fight ensued, between someone who was obsessed with finding the answer and someone who had no idea what it was. John and Knull clashed again. And this time with more intensity. The last time, Knull was thrown back by a surprise attack, but not any more.

As John tried to use the same move again, thinking he had three more swords to stab him, he saw All-Black wriggling like a live sword and a black, sharp-pointed object coming out of its own volition to stop the sneak attack on its master.

After all, All-Black was a symbiote, the first symbiote.

Thus, the fight now had more twists and turns as John, in the form of Four Arms, fought with four swords in his hands while Knull had his live sword to stop the four swords of John. All Black was so powerful that it even broke two swords from Johns both. Not that it mattered, as it could easily be remade from his vault.

But it was still horrifying to think that the All-Black had that much power. The fight went on, as various parties were doing their jobs. But even then it could be easily seen that the symbiotes were proving to be very hard for them to stop as they were trying to approach John, who was fighting against Knull.

The galactic size of the horde of symbiotes proved too difficult for a small number of people in the end. And on top of it all, the symbiotes were now traveling to Earth at a good pace. As they reached Pluto, the symbiotes covered the whole planet with themselves.

Making the whole black in color. It was horrifying to see In the comics too, it happened the same, but seeing it in reality was a totally different matter. The planet looked like it was made of something black, and if one paid good attention to it, they could see that the black color was moving. It took only a few minutes to cover the cold planet, and its cold temperature didn't even faze the symbiotes.

This was the power of millions of symbiotes that could easily destroy a galaxy. The symbiotes marched forward as they tried their best to stop and kill as many as possible before they could reach Earth.

John and Knull fought at extreme speed, and for the first time it was known that Knull was even good at sword fighting. It was fortunate that John had learned sword fighting from Gil; otherwise, it would have been utterly painful for him.

He could heal for sure, but he liked pain.

"John, they will be reaching Earth soon."

That communication came over to John as he fought. It didn't even take an hour for the symbiotes to reach Earth after decimating the other planets in the solar system just because they were in the way. Of course the symbiotes left Jupiter and other very hot planets as they were not fans of heat, but the bugs who had anti-symbiote armor were a whole different story. They didn't fear anything and just destroyed everything, even things that were of no use to them.

All of this happened because Knull wanted answers, and he had gone a little over the top.

"I understand. Use the broken spaceships to light up these bastards." John said by using telepathy on the minds of the Avengers who were in New York.

"Oh, that is for sure."

As this was happening at the edges of the solar system, the Avengers were having a tough time even trying to imagine how these symbiotes and bugs were decimating everything. This was utter destruction.

"After the war, we will still lose. He has tilted the balance of the system, and our Earth would just descend into destruction soon no matter what." Beast said.

"Don't worry about that; John will change the reality to make it just like before. All we need to do is stop this Knull." Diana said this nonchalantly, as all of the Avengers knew he had reality-bending powers.

"He really can do everything he wishes. It is ridiculous." One of the 616 Avengers mumbled.

The others didn't pay much attention, and most of them were relieved to hear that.

"Not everything. This knife is too terrifying. Are the spaceships ready? How much more time do we have, Victor?" Steve asked

"The first impact will be in 5 minutes. I will advise each of you to take up battle locations and not be far from each other. If one is devoured by a symbiote, there will be a special signal. The other nearest person should do anything possible to blast the symbiote away by using the tools provided. One lost member would mean one extra enemy. The other person would not be dead, but he would be like a zombie, hunting us."

Chapter 597: The grand fight (2)

"Tell me, how did you cross the Wall?" Knull asked as they both clashed again and again with their sword in hand. Each impact was so strong that it would create a shockwave around. This would have been really great to watch if there was an audience around.

"I don't even know what the Wall is and who told you that I came from another multiverse." John had to reply that, though he was confused about the Wall and what Knull meant, he didn't need to care any more. All he needed to do was kill him.

As they fought against each other, the others continued in the background, fighting as many symbiotes as possible. Truth to be told, they would have already been on the losing side with many of them becoming the host of symbiotes, if it was not for Yhwach.

Yhwach miraculously was always able to come to location if a team member was in jeopardy (the power of Almighty) and would be able to save the person by burning the symbiote with his Reishi manipulation. It was as if he was able to see the future on who would fall.

This was a huge boon for the team. And this was why John had brought Yhwach. He could always see the future, though John could see that too, but since he would be occupied with his confrontation against Knull, he needed a safe option.

Yhwach was the only one.

His powers were leaning towards light and soul manipulation, so of course he would be a huge nemesis in this war and he was working exactly like it was supposed to.

"You will not be able to save them even with this guy who is good at soul attacks, I have billions of symbiotes under me. Tell me how did you get out of the Wall?" As John was indulging in his own thoughts of Yhwach helping the team, Knull had to pour a bucket of water on his thoughts.

"Dude, are you serious? I told you I have no idea and still you are continuing with this. I am from this multiverse. And I got the watch from a friend. That was a lie." John couldn't help but lie at this point once more. He needed answers too but he was sure this guy was too obsessed to answer him properly.

"Lie. I can see you lying through your teeth. Fine. Since you will not speak about it, I will force you. my children, decimate their planet."

The symbiotes that were very close to Earth doubled their speed. And now in seconds they would almost reach the stratosphere of Earth.

John could already feel it.

"Avengers, fall back."

And the next moment as Knull took a swipe on him, he vanished and along with him all the members of the Avengers in the universe who were fighting,

Knull roared seeing that they just pulled out a vanishing trick but there was nothing he could do to stop it but at the end he had a smile on his face.

"Fine. I will consume you and then read your memories from the Codex. I will strip Phoenix Force from you. I have been in prison for such a long time, do you think I have not thought about the weakness of All-Black?"

In the meantime, John and others were back at the headquarters with a solemn face.

"He has become more dangerous than I thought he would be." John said as he was very confused by the words of Knull, but it was not the time to think.

"He would be here in 30 seconds tops. Blast them when they cross the spaceships."

Tony nodded his head.

"Wanda, can you make huge fireballs and throw at the symbiotes from afar?"

"I can try."

"Good. We will do that. He has too huge of an army to kill in normal standards. Since he has a galactic size army, I will throw planets at him."

Both Wanda and John flew towards the stratosphere to get a good view of how huge the sizes should be while throwing. Of course, Wanda had a breathing vibranium suit, which Tony brought for all. All the suits were airtight and had the vibrational properties so it was best for facing Knull and his symbiotes.

In a second they reached the stratosphere with the help of teleportation. When they reached there, they could see the huge horde of wriggling symbiotes. It was massive and it had already stopped the sun rays from coming to Earth. It was terrifying to say the least.

"Wanda makes as many huge fire balls as possible. I will do that too." Wanda nodded.

And the next moment, Knull saw something that almost gave him a scare. 20 to 30 fireballs appeared suddenly out of nowhere over the symbiotes.

The number wasn't the problem, their size was.

Each of them was the size of planet Earth as they were falling on the symbiotes from all sides.

Chapter 598: The grand fight (3)

Sadly enough nobody was there to see it as there were no cameras and whatever telescopes and satellites they had were already destroyed, even the far ones which were orbiting other planets were destroyed.

But this didn't matter to John. As he was not here for show unlike most of his fights, he was here to kill Knull and put an end before he went for eternal rest. He was tired and this would be his last fight.

The huge fireballs fell on millions of symbiotes burning everything in its wake. As planetary sized fireballs reached the end of the symbiote horde, they would burst out, killing some more around.

This was a massacre. John wanted to kill as many as possible while keeping in mind that the main enemy was Knull. Killing more symbiotes wouldn't be helpful as he needed them for his future plans.

Knull had a grave face looking at all of this. Those huge attacks really did hurt him as it wiped away at least 20% of his army of symbiotes. Before they reached Earth, he had already lost 10%. This was a huge loss. In all of his conquest, this never happened and he at most lost 5% of his army.

Knull didn't utter a single word and let the symbiotes enter Earth. But then he was welcomed in one of the most grandest ways possible. A huge explosion that rang out all over the perimeter of the Earth stratosphere.

The explosion was so massive that all of the people who were residing on Earth saw the sky light up in orange color. The people were dumbfounded seeing all of this. All over the years they had seen many weird things happening to Earth but never in such a massive way. The sky seemed like it was lit on fire.

And Knull too didn't expect that these people had another kind of weapon apart from those huge fireballs. This too wiped away more than 10% of his symbiote army. He had lost little less than half of his army before he even stepped his foot on the planet.

This was an insult. Insult to his greatness.

"Release the Celestials." Knull commanded.

And out of nowhere after the explosion settled down, three massive Celestials started free falling on Earth. As they were falling in a straight manner, their feet caught fire due to gravitational pull, and these Celestials who were at least 200 meters seemed like a huge meteor falling on Earth.

"Wow so he has released his top dogs. That is cool. Now who will confront these dead Gods?" John said with a smirk and relief. Relief because Celestials were his strongest army and him using this means he had become a little desperate.

The more desperate he becomes, the more mistakes he will make. And that is all he needed.

"I will take the left one with Bruce. Both Hulk can take one as they have the middle one. John can take the remaining one with Zangetsu." Clark said as he was already planning on how to confront them.

"I am not Zangetsu but Yhwach."

"Whatever you say sword. But we need to leave. Others handle the symbiotes. Remember never to be under their control. If you are, the side person should always. never confront them alone. Godspeed people."

And so they flew and ran out of the headquarters. Sentry accompanied both of the Hulk as he felt the Hulk would require his help (Sentry is a superhero and probably one of the strongest one in marvel, he has the power of thousand burning suns inside his body. He was a drug addict who got shot with the serum. He has another personality which is evil and can be seen coming out at times. In the actual fight, Sentry was the first hero to confront Knull in the comics, only to die in a few seconds by his sword. So, if the people are thinking I am hyping Knull for no reason, this should be enough to establish the fact of how powerful Knull is)

John flew to the Celestial on the right side to stop his free fall. This free falling itself will create a crater and kill people underground who were in bunkers. They couldn't let this happen.

John, Yhwach and Hyperion (Marvel's Superman. I know almost nothing of him as I haven't researched him, all I know is that he has all powers of Superman) joined in this. Hyperion joined his team voluntarily as he thought they needed help.

And so the quest began to stop the Celestials from causing destruction.

"Robin, did you find the guy I asked you to search for." John suddenly said over communication.

"Of course. I am a Wayne and these kinds of things are very easy for me." Robin said over the comms.

"Good. Make the guy ready, we would need him in this war until we get outside help."

"On it."

Chapter 599: The grand fight (4)

John had a special backup mission for Robin which might prove to be helpful when the need arises. This fight with the symbiotes would be a hard one and he needed to keep two people alive at any cost.

Eddie Brock and his son Dylan. And Robin was given the task to secure one of them.

They were the key to winning this war. He wasn't sure who the Enigma Force would choose to be the next host in this war, but until it arrived he needed both of them to be alive. And John would do everything possible. He was thinking all of this as they flew to stop the Celestial.

"Who are you searching for?" Sentry couldn't help but ask John as he could easily hear John's words.

"Our backup piece." John said while keeping a mysterious face.

"Oh!!" Sentry didn't ask more. Though the 616-Avengers still held a small grudge against John, they trusted him. This guy crossed the universe just to help them. Sure it was because of the threat of Knull but at least he didn't back down when the fate of the universe was at stake and bought the big guns.

As they flew to stop the Celestial, they saw many white colored bugs flying towards them. John didn't even spare a second glance at them as he opened his vault and threw spears at them. Even Yhwach did the same thing; he used spears made of white reishi to kill whoever came on the way.

One had to admit that Yhwach's attacks were more efficient, because they attacked the souls. And nobody could evade it. Knull could evade his attacks just because he had the sword, or else Knull would have been dead by now.

Sentry who wanted to show his power shook his head as he saw how efficiently both of them were killing the bugs. Soon they reached the location where they could see the Celestial falling.

"How should we stop the descent?" Sentry asked.

"By using Time."

John said and the next moment he chose an alien which would be the best one to work on.

A chronosapien.

An alien which can control time the best. And in order to have the least damage from these beings, he needed to have the best control of time. They already had the big guns, and all they needed was ample time and the alien form would be good enough. Though he wasn't sure if his time stop would be applicable on Knull and he needed to test it later.

As John changed into a small 4 feet mechanical being with a huge torso and having a headkey on his head. The weird mechanical being looked nothing like someone who had almost nigh control of time.

The transformation made the jaws of Sentry almost drop and Yhwach too had a weird face seeing this look of John.

"Phoenix, help me fly."

And from behind a blue colored fire wings emerged from his back. This allowed him to fly.

"Yhwach and Sentry I will stop time for a few seconds and you both will have to use your strongest attacks to kill the celestial. This alien form has very little stamina so I won't be able to stop time for a long time. This is your chance." John said in a very mechanical voice.

"What the hell is this?" Sentry almost screamed out.

"A chronosapien, an alien form which has control over time."

"Control time? That is a broken power. Anyway So I and this guy will have to do the work? Fine."

"Yes. This alien form doesn't have much raw power, but has immense control of time."

Soon they reached the falling Celestial and from John's torso an transparent wave flew out. The Celestial was now just 1 km from the surface of the Earth so they had to move quick to stop it or else it would be too late. This wave covered the Celestial. The wave was green in color just like the one Ben 10 used when he used time to stop or slow down or reverse time.

But as time stopped, surprisingly Yhwach and Sentry were able to move freely.

"Go, finish it. I will not be able to stop time for a longer period and I am not sure if Knull will sense it. So do it."

Bith nodded their heads and flew straight to the head of the Celestial. The Celestial was black in color, thanks to the symbiote and had 6 glowing eyes. Normally the glow was supposedly orange in color, but this time it was red. The head was the most vulnerable part of a Celestial. If they could decapitate the head, a Celestial would be dead.

Yhawch held a huge bright sword, while Sentry had both of his hands glowing. Yhawch took a swing at the neck of the Celestial while Sentry roared as he used a major part of his energy and blasted at the head of the Celestial. The blast looked like the one Goku uses.

This was one of the most powerful attacks that Sentry had in its arsenal with at least 10 suns of power in it, concentrated in its raw form. Both of the attacks landed at the same time.

Chapter 600: The grand fight (5)

In a very rare case such a high powered being is faced by someone up close, they would probably be dead before the attack could even land. Just the fear alone would be enough. But here we were talking about a Celestial where they were supposedly the creators of the universe, so they couldn't bet on the effectiveness of the attack.

As the attack landed, there was a huge explosion right at the face with a mixture of orange and white color in it. It also had black particles mixed in it too signifying the symbiote particles. And if that was not enough, the three of them could hear the scream of the symbiote as it felt the heat of the attack of Sentry and Yhwach.

John had already changed himself to his original form after using the Chronosapien. He felt vulnerable using that alien. It was powerful for sure, but there were too many weaknesses and almost no stamina. After the explosion receded, they all had a smile on their faces. The attack was successful.

Both of their attacks hit right at their marks. Yhwach's attack was able to separate more than 80% of the neck from its body and more than half of the face of the Celestial was gone. There were huge burnt marks on the remaining part of the head. It looked gruesome as the part of the head was gone. There was no such thing as a brain inside the head and there was only a hollow part where the brain should have been.

And of course the soul and the source of energy. As opposed to the source of energy in the heart of Celestial, they have the source of energy on their head. And for this reason all of the members of the Avengers were directed to go for the head.

The Celestial didn't see what hit it, as John had stopped the team before it could see them. But this didn't stop the Celestial from hitting Earth, so they knew that they had to stop the fall and make a crater.

And Sentry was up for the job, though John could do it too he allowed Sentry to play that part as he flew to the foot of the Celestial as he used both of his hands to stop it. Sentry was powerful enough to stop the whole body of a Celestial with his hands alone. The power of a thousand suns played his part and he was easily able to stop the Celestial right in its tracks.

But it was a close call. When he stopped the Celestial, his feet had just touched the ground and a little more delay would have surely created a break on the land. It was fortunate that they were able to stop him right in time. But others were not so much.

Bruce and Clark took the most raw route possible. Wayne went under the Celestial to stop the speed of the falling Celestial while Superman went to blow the head off the neck of the Celestial with his hands alone. And this took time. Unlike John and his team, Wayne and Clark had to take a lot of time to bring the celestial down.

The Celestial landed on Earth with a normal speed enough not to make a crater like situation while Clark was throwing punches at the head of the Celestial. Of course the Celestial retaliated by using his own hands and even moving his legs on the free fall, but Superman being agile and fast, his hands could do nothing. Though the Celestial now had enhanced strength by using the symbiote, their main power which was related to heat got the big L.

A symbiote would never allow this to take place so, their greatest weapon was out of the picture in the start itself. No wonder, Venom was able to kill a Celestial with just a swing of his new 'axe'. Thus as the Celestial was trying to stop Clark and at the end Bruce after he landed with his hands, the symbiote bound Celestial was on the journey of disappointment, because no matter what he did he was getting hit in the face.

And with every passing hit, it was a huge dent at the face with cracks appearing at the face of the Celestial. And after a minute of recurring punches and kicks at the face, the face broke down. The symbiote tried to bond with either Bruce or Clark but it too was disappointed as the suit was a perfect anti-symbiote. As the head of the Celestial was broken into shambles, the standing huge 'God' once fell down slowly.

"Phew!! That was time consuming." Clark said.

"We have lost the sun. We should not be injured in this war, or else it would be problematic for both of us." Wayne said as he looked up. There was really no sun as the remaining symbiotes were enough now to cover the whole Earth as they had genuinely entered the Earth's atmosphere.

The real fight had just begun.

