

Multiverse 631

Chapter 631: Source Wall

John was a little surprised but was grateful for the words of Clark. He was his summoner but he had let them be in full control of themselves. He didn't expect such words from Clark after what he had said but he did understand that the team of Avengers would never let anyone die if they could help it. And truth to be told, he was a little scared.

If the system really hailed from the Wall, it might prove to be disastrous for him, so he needed to do everything possible to stop its destruction.

"From what I understand from all of this is that my power lets people from the multiverse come here and the Wall doesn't stop the whole process?" John asked.

"We have very little knowledge of this and all we are saying now are just speculations after much deliberation. We have studied you for quite a long time before arriving at the conclusion. But yes, this was all that we understood." Presence said.

John sighed in relief. Even if they weren't particularly correct about his system they were not far off from it. At least the secret of him having control of his summons remains intact for now. And John hoped to keep it that way till his death and beyond. In the end he did care a little bit about his legacy.

Of course if the Wall is repaired and everything went well, then he would be living for almost eternity and live happily ever after!!

"Is there anything more we ought to know before we prepare for war?"

"No. John Jameson here has more information about the Wall than us. His dreams let him know more about the Wall than us. There is only a small crack on the Wall so there is still time for the prisoners to emerge. Of course if you can plug the hole then there would be no war and we all would be safe." OAA said.

"Then we better work our ass off for this and repair the crack."

Reed and others, without wasting a second proceeded to walk to the lab. They needed to ready their equipment for the journey. They needed to travel to the so-called Wall and see how they could fix it. They would use instruments to check the structure and make necessary preparations.

Even Tony joined this team as he didn't want his company partner and a great friend to die just out of nowhere.

"How is the situation in the other multiverse?" Wayne asked Presence. Since Presence was from his multiverse he should know more about the crack in the Wall and its implications. Presence hearing that question was silent for a second and he looked like he hesitated a bit before opening his mouth. Wayne, seeing the hesitation of Presence, asked.

"Lay it on me. I can take it."

"You are dead!!"

Such words by Presence were like a thunderbolt to the people present in the room. Even Reed who was leaving for his lab stopped in his tracks including Tony and others. Tony turned back and walked to Wayne's side and said.

"Old man. Do you know what you are talking about?"

Clark came to Tony's side and instructed him to calm down. Tony had been particularly agitated in this whole meeting. Maybe it was because of Thanos or maybe he felt too insecure with all that was going on. All the power he had seemed nothing in front of actual powers and he felt he was useless.

And Tony hated that feeling. Presence and OAA could see those emotions of Tony and for that reason they had been tolerant. In fact, they could see those emotions on most of the people present here. Only difference was that Tony didn't hold back. Even 616-Tony was on the verge of eruption and speaking out his mind but seeing that his counterpart was doing the job for him, he didn't meddle.

But in all of this only Wayne was calm and asked.

"Where and how did I die?"

"You died by the hands of Darkseid while defending Earth and their people." Presence said. Such words made Wayne smile for a bit. He died at the hands of an old enemy and didn't die for any silly reason.

"Wait. Hold on. Darkseid killed Batman? Where? Earth Prime?"

"Yes. Darkseid used his Omega sanction on Mr. Wayne."

"Omega sanction? You mean he used his omega beam on him?" John who was sitting and going through all the comics in his mind about the Source Wall stopped and asked Presence.

"Yes. Earth Prime Batman is dead." Presence said.

"Then how is the Source Wall broken? The story hasn't progressed till the break of Source Wall. The break of the Source Wall shouldn't have happened now. Only the emergence of the 10th element (the one which powers the Mother Boxes) can lead to the cracks in the Source Wall."

Chapter 632: Source Wall (2)

Presence was a little stumped by the words of John. He didn't expect John to know of the story of Batman and the Omega beam being used by him and even the story of this.

"The Wall had been broken for sometime and this thing has no relation with the 10th metal or the death of Batman."

"Shit... Changes in the story of that multiverse too. Is there any anomaly in that multiverse?" John asked.

"Not that I know of. At least I haven't felt any anomalies."

"But he did die after Darkseid used the omega beam on him." Presence continued.

"Mr. Presence, I will ask this. Are you losing your control over your multiverse?" John now asked with a serious tone. He was confused by the word Presence because according to the story, after being hit by the Omega beam of Darkseid, Batman survived. It was a very weird way that he did it, but in the end he did survive. This was essentially the start of a chain of events which changed their multiverse forever. For better or worse!

Presence looked at John with squinted eyes for a few seconds. He didn't understand what John had meant by these words at first but looking at John's face he had an idea of something had gone wrong somewhere. He closed his eyes for a few seconds before finally opening it. He had a surprised look.

"How did this happen? Something like this happened and I don't know about it?" Presence's eyebrows creased for the first time. He seemed agitated.

"He travelled back in time. Didn't he?" John asked. Presence nodded his head. This meant that the wheels had already turned but he had no idea how it would proceed, but it was surprising that Presence had no idea that this had happened with Batman and he specifically had to go through many things to understand the situation with Batman.

Presence might be losing his powers in his multiverse. If that was true, then OAA might also lose his powers over their own multiverse. This notion alone scared John. This meant there wouldn't be multiversal God over their head and they would be left with their own tools to deal with problems.

"Am I losing my hold of the multiverse?" Presence murmured. He already knew that there was a lapse of knowledge. This had never happened before. This in itself was absurd and shouldn't have happened. Not in a billion years, but here they were. Presence losing his high omnipotence.

This was a first.

Presence didn't speak another word and just vanished while holding his glass. He didn't even say goodbye. But none of the people present thought it was rude. He was an embodiment, the Supreme Being of a multiverse. If one day out of nowhere that belief was taken away from him, that person would be rattled.

"That was that. It seems we can't hold any hopes on higher beings. We are on our own." Banner said as he started walking to the lab. He didn't want to waste any more time.

"I will go and see if I have lost control of my own multiverse. We will pay a visit to you once again to understand what the future might hold if the Wall is broken. It seems like you know a lot about this Wall." OAA said.

"I do know something about it but it seems like the break of the Source Wall might impact differently than I initially thought. I will have to see the Wall with my own eyes then we can discuss further."

"You can ask for anything you like. The Living Tribunal and Galactus would also help you in this regard. Galactus is unique so he will be help us in many ways in defense."

"I understand. I will contact Oblivion to take us to the Wall when we are ready." John said.

OAA nodded his head and after saying his 'bye' he too vanished just like his friend Presence. He was in a hurry as he needed to tour the multiverse and if there was an anomaly. John on the other hand called up GAIA.

"GAIA, go through every database and search for a person named Owen Reese. If anything is being weird, red flag it. Bruce and Matt will help you in this. I want you to be very serious in this investigation." John said to Wayne and Matt Murdock of Earth 616. The Daredevil of this world. Here too he was a criminal lawyer and he would be able to help them in any kind of investigation and search.

Owen Reese or otherwise known as the Molecule Man, was a weapon. And if the weapon was present on Earth then one of his speculations would be correct, though he prayed that was wrong.

Or else they would be in more deep shit than they were now.

Chapter 633: Owen Reese

"Is there a problem with this person? I can search for him with my Cerebro if you want?" 616-Professor X said as he approached John. The X-men too understood the gravity of the situation that they have been put to. Their whole world was in grave danger now and they needed all the resources available to them.

"No. Don't use your powers on him. Wayne and Murdock, don't use your powers on him if you find. Talk to him gently, show him the bright side of humanity. Show him what humanity is capable of. Show him how beautiful the world can be. Of course this is not required if he isn't present in this world, but if we do find him make sure that he is on our side. He will be our Hail Mary. The last weapon we can ever use.

"

"Why do you speak in such a jumbled manner? Can't you tell us the whole picture of what this person is and how he is a weapon. If he is a weapon we will just kidnap him and lock him, assuming the fact that he is super powerful. If he is too much of a threat, we will just kill him. I assume for the good of the multiverse we can sacrifice that." Ms. Marvel came forward and said.

"No. Never even think of restraining him or do anything with him. It will just trigger the destruction of all. I don't want any mishap in this. If it gets out of hand, nobody will be able to save us. And we will have to leave the universe and billions... nigh....trillions of death will be on you. I will explain the case when the time is right. Under no circumstances will a person approach Owen Reese if he is ever found out. I don't want to trigger an avalanche that will destroy the multiverse. Is that clear?" John said as his voice slowly rose so that all could hear his voice loud and clear. OAA had given him free reign in the multiverse and even the Living Tribunal will have to listen to him.

He never liked bossing over someone but in this he would have to take the lead. He couldn't be a bet-protagonist. Especially in 616. Here people had less trust in him so the only thing he could do was establish a chain of command and authority to keep things in check.

"I know you all have many questions and some of you are curious about what is happening on the other side too. In due time I will reveal everything. Only thing I ask of you is patience. Let Bruce and Matt investigate. Only after the results can we take action. I assure you that I am very serious in saving the multiverse and every universe is important to us. Collapse of a single one will just lead to the collapse of everything and this will just be a nightmare, so every single universe is important. So please trust me here on this and don't make any kind of hasty decision." John warned them again.

The Avengers looked at John and at least from his face they got to know that whatever was scaring John must be really a story to rattle John in this regard. Even during Knull he looked cool and calm and never showed any kind of fear. But the prospect of losing the multiverse was one hell of a fear it seemed.

"Shadow, send some symbiotes to Earth and hide among many hosts on Earth. Actively search for any trace of Owen Reese, you have seen my memory. Upload the information to the Codex and let Klyntar send symbiotes to the multiverse. I want as many worlds as possible."

"Got it."

Shadow, that was the name John had given to the symbiote that had attached to him as he became the King in Black. Matt and Wayne wouldn't be the only ones searching for Owen. And symbiotes would be a good way to send more trusted people on this manhunt. He had also shared what kind of person Owen was and what kind of precautions they would need to take if they found him.

"I will be back in a few minutes. I need to consult some people who have massive knowledge of the Source Wall. When I come back, I will take some of you to see the Wall." John said as he vanished from his spot. He needed to consult with the Maltusians for knowledge of the Wall.

They were the most ancient beings who had knowledge of the Wall and they would be able to guide him more effectively. There were very few Maltusians left now and they were called by a very different name and respected very highly.

They were the Guardians of Oa.

Chapter 634: Oblivion

John had teleported. He was back to his first ever planet summon. When it happened for the first time, he was ecstatic and for a moment he couldn't even believe it. The system was so powerful that it had brought a whole planet into existence, never mind the individuals.

But now that he had a general direction of the source of power for the system, he could understand why the system was so OP. Anything from the Wall was extraordinary. There was an instance when a White Lantern once managed to cross the Wall without breaking it. It was said he became a God after doing this.

This alone signified how powerful the Wall was. The only difference was that there was the Source Wall on their side too and they needed to do everything possible to save the multiverse, and this time it was two multiverses.

He was sure that the DC people on the other side would try to do the same but their plot had changed. He wasn't even sure if they would succeed. In the comics they were able to succeed because there were many coincidences.

Lex was betrayed by Perpetua so he turned on her. Then the change of allegiance of Super Boy Prime which saved Diana at the end and of course when the Hand came to see what the hell was wrong with the multiverse.

The Hand.

This was a mystery for John too. Very little was said of them. Only thing that could scare Perpetua. Perpetua, who was said to be the mother of the multiverse, feared the Hand so it could already be understood how scary they were. And their multiverse was saved just because the Hand had a change of heart and took pity on them at the end as they fought the army of the Batman who Laughs.

The Hand was probably more powerful than Presence and OAA. And John didn't want to leave this on chance. He needed to save them, long before there was intervention by the Hand. Perpetua and her minions needed to be killed.

The epic story was revolving his mind while he landed at the Citadel. Since he had appeared out of nowhere there was nobody at the Citadel. But he had already alerted the Guardians to appear. He even asked the Blue Lantern Guardians to appear in this meeting.

After a minute of wait, the Guardians from different directions came flying in and took their positions at the Council. Since Ganthet and Sayd were not near, they had appeared at holographic form.

"John Jameson, why the sudden summon?" Appa asked. This might sound rude but it was not. The guardians had been stripped off from the emotions after they had decided to make the rings, so this sounded pretty normal to John.

"The Source Wall is going to break. We need your expertise."

The Guardians who had a normal look on their faces while sitting gripped their armrests. This news was something none of them expected. Not even in their wildest dreams.

"How is this possible? There is no Source Wall in this multiverse. We have checked. There was not supposed to be one." Appa said while trembling. Even his voice was breaking when he said that.

"There is a Source Wal. And it's pretty alive and kicking." said a voice which didn't belong to any of them present in the Citadel. The voice had just appeared out of nowhere, because the person had just teleported himself here.

Normally, they would be on alert as a person had appeared at the Citadel without alarming the defense system of the Oa. But the person who appeared was an acquaintance.

Oblivion!

He was the God of the void outside the multiverse. John suspected that he was the Guardian of the Wall, since he had always stayed outside the multiverse. Even the Guardians weren't fazed by his sudden appearance. They had seen him in John's memories before so they weren't surprised

"You have been looking over the Wall, haven't you? But told the people that you are guarding the void."

"Yes. A necessary lie to fool people and stop them from being curious about a thing which we almost know nothing about. It's fortunate that you know a bit of them, but I can assure you that they would be more scary than you know."

"I understand. So, Guardians, you heard it. The Source Wall exists and it is in the Void." John said.

"We will send half of us to the crack with a team of Green and Blue Lanterns. Since you informed us, I assume that you too have made a team for inspection. Give us 24 hours to assemble a team which would be best for this kind of mission. Oa as of now will pull its resources to manage the Wall and we would be in a state of emergency till the problem is solved. All in favor." Appa said in one breath. He didn't even hesitate a bit in saying this.

Chapter 635: Beyonders

All the others raised their hands in favor of declaring emergency for the Green Lanterns and establishing a super-powered team for handling the Wall. The cracks in the Wall would require a team of Green Lanterns to monitor it all the time and make sure there were no unwanted leakages from the Wall.

They would have to establish temporary stations near the crack too. They needed a proper base to deal with the enemies which might emerge from the Wall. This would take a long time and proper management and for this reason the Guardians wanted some time to gather and manage the necessary resources for establishing a base.

John didn't utter any more words and looked at Oblivion.

"I will be at 616 in the time being. Where can I meet you?"

"After the Guardians are ready I will go to 616 to pick your team up."

"Cool. See you tomorrow."

John vanished and appeared again at the Ring. GAIA's mainframe was still here but it had lost connection after a small part of her was taken to 616 so he needed to talk with her and ask her to search for Owen Reese in their universe too. Though he wasn't sure if the Molecule Man would take the same identity of their world too, but at least they had one narrow path to look for.

Molecule Man or in this case Molecule men were the human weapons the Beyonders had made to blow up the multiverse in one single explosion. The Beyonders were beings which had come from beyond the multiverse. Their origins was always a mystery but now that he thought about it after the knowledge of Source Wall, he guessed that Beyonders had also come from the Wall.

It made perfect sense. The Beyonders were really powerful, so much so that they were able to defeat all the abstract beings, including the Living Tribunal. And the only way they would have a chance to defeat the Beyonders was by using the weapon the Beyonders themselves made.

Using Molecule Men. All John needed to do was find one and everything later will fall in place. Using him as a lightning rod he could go to various multiverses and catch the Molecule men and use the same way Dr. Doom did to defeat the Beyonders. Use their weapon against themselves.

Now John had only one fear. If the Beyonders got any whiff of what was happening, they would just trigger the weapon. Molecule Man was kind of a weapon which would explode on every Earth if they triggered it. And in the multiverse, Earth was the centre and the main reason that every universe existed, it was of paramount importance that every Earth existed in the multiverse.

If even a single Earth gets destroyed, it would trigger an Incursion and each Earth would just crush on another Earth from the multiverse and thus destroy the multiverse. In this multiverse, Earth was really important and a small change in its state would just prove doom to everything.

It was for this reason, there had always been superheroes on Earth. Humanity progressed slowly but their importance to the multiverse could never be looked down upon. Molecule Men was the key here and they needed to be very careful in handling this if he ever existed.

"GAIA, search for a person who might be named Owen Reece. He might have a power of manipulating molecules of every non-living thing around him. Check all the cameras over the course of time and inform me if there was a person who displayed any hint of such kind of power. Make it discreet and any progression report to me or any other Avenger. I might be away for a few days so start working on it."

"Hmm.. It seems like this person is really important." GAIA said as she appeared as a hologram.

"Yes. The multiverse is at stake if he exists." John replied.

"Alright, I will start going through all camera videos that existed until now. This might take time as there is an unimaginable amount of data."

"It's alright. Take your time. Just make sure you go through thoroughly. I will be away anyways. Only some of the Avengers will be home."

John then sat down and meditated. Since he was in the universe he was accustomed to he needed to see if there was a Molecule Man. At the end he had omniscience here so it shouldn't be hard for him to find. And thus he started to search on Earth.

He meditated at his own house for a good 30 minutes. There was no Molecule Man on Earth. He had gone through all Owen Reece but he found none threatening. He still asked GAIA to work on this because it was Beyonders they were talking about. Beings which defeated the Living Tribunal like it was nothing, and destroying the multiverse was their version of fun.

Such beings would definitely put up counter measures even if what they were doing was termed as 'fun' by them.

Chapter 636: Old friends

John had vanished again from his place. He had to ask for more help if possible and he knew a perfect place from where he can get one. A place where he had visited before and saved it. A place which owes a debt of life to him.

Earth TRN891.

The Earth which had gone through Flashpoint and once faced a huge disaster. Their Avengers saved them once and now it was time for them to lend them help. He didn't expect that he would have asked for help but it was required. Each Earth that John had visited and had connection would be under scrutiny by him.

Owen was too huge of a variable to pass by and they needed all the resources available for disposal. And their Earth could prove to be a major help for them.

John had appeared at the Avengers Tower of Tony Stark. Since most of the things on this Earth were equivalent to 616 so many things remained the same here. He appeared at the rooftop, and this time there were no machine guns to welcome him like last time.

The last time was embarrassing as Tony had defense mechanisms all over the Tower, for fear of intruders. But this time when he had arrived there was no sound, no alarms, nothing.

Peaceful silence.

John went down stairs from the roof and knocked on the door. The door opened automatically and a robotic voice said

"Welcome Mr. Jameson, Mr. Stark and others are at the conference hall with the others. He said you can go to the Hall where you can meet everyone."

"Everyone?"

"Yes Sir, after you had arrived I informed Mr. Stark and he called everyone through video conferencing."

John's eyebrows raised hearing this. He was pretty sure that his appearance on the roof must have alerted Tony, but seeing that it was him that had appeared he might have called everyone. It was thoughtful of Tony and a little unpredictable of his character.

John walked a few steps and took some turns to reach the hall. As he opened the door, he saw Tony sitting on a chair sipping his drink while others too was sitting on a chair at a big oval table. Everyone was sitting, the only difference was that the others were sitting but their presence was not in the room.

It was a hologram of everyone. It was Reed, T'Challa, Professor X, Namor and other people who sat high on the authority of the Avengers.

"It's been some time Mr. Jameson since we last saw you." Reed said.

"Yeah. I never wanted to come here as the appearance of other beings from a parallel world affects the timeline. But I had no other options but to pay a visit here. I am just surprised that Tony was sharp enough to all everyone." John replied.

"Well, Living with Barry made me understand that people don't casually travel into multiverse, and even if they do, it is because they had no other options. We are not having any problems with any villains as of late so I can only assume that something must have happened at the multiverse for you to show up. Your team is more powerful than us which means that the whole problem is bigger than we think. Am I right?" Tony said all these in one stretch. It was like he had become a detective as he deducted all of this with just his appearance alone. John looked at Tony with an astonishing face.

"When did you become Batman?" John asked.

"That friend of yours rubbed off on me.. hehehe... Now tell me. Am I right?" Tony asked with anticipation, wanting to know if his thoughts were right.

"Yes. We do have a problem and this problem is multiversal level. And we need your help if you want to help that is. We need the brightest minds with the problems and make sure we are working at full capacity with all the resources we have." John said without much explaining the problem. he would have to explain it anyway to the 616 people so he was waiting for all to come together.

The Guardians would be more fit for this role.

"What is the problem?" Black Panther asked.

"The problem is a little complicated. All I can say now is in the worst case scenario, there would be no multiverse out there and we would end up in a single universe, while others would be just killed. Trillions and trillions of life will die."

The faces of everyone changed while listening to the last sentence. They thought the problem would be like a new enemy who was hell bent on conquering the multiverse, but it seemed like they had a bigger problem than they thought. After a moment of silence, Reed said

"What can we do to help Mr. Jameson?" John smiled at it and said

"I want you...."

Chapter 637: Rest

John stayed at that Earth for a few more minutes before leaving while saying that he would open a portal later to 616 for them to cross over and come prepared. The Avengers, who had no idea what they were jumping into, readily accepted. They trusted the person who had once helped them so much and helped them to overcome an enemy who was unkillable.

Of course, Barry too had the same privilege here.

John was back at the Ring and went straight to the Tower. It had many books and some of them were so ancient that even he had no idea what was written on them. Most of the time he was too lazy and more so because he was too powerful to even care.

But this time he can't do that. He needed to have all the knowledge possible and see if it had any clues of how to handle the Wall. There was Order and Chaos at the DC side too so there might be some hints from it.

And after hours of research and reading, he was finally able to get some clues about the Wall and ways to mend it. Though it wasn't exactly a solution, at least there were some things which could point out and lessen the expansion of the said 'crack on the wall'.

It wasn't a permanent solution but at least this was something. He took some important books with him and went to his home. He needed a time off.

Since he had almost 24 hours before the next gathering, he wanted to use this time for the best of his ability to relax and steam off his constant running around. Tired was an understatement for John.

Knoll was a huge problem and that needed a proper burial.

And now that he was out of it, it seemed like he had welcomed a bigger problem. For now he just wanted to rest and have time with himself.

And home was his place to rest and go through everything he needed to do for the upcoming 'arc'. John went through so many things in the past few days that he needed a mental recharge and home the place for escaping from all of this.

John went straight to the bath and even asked Audino to give him a massage. His body didn't need any of that but he wanted to mentally relax and have some time off. After having a good time he went straight to bed to sleep.

After having a sound sleep he woke up the next day as usual and had his breakfast. Since the people would still need some more time to prepare he went to the patio of the house and sat on his favorite chair as he looked to the Earth.

The Earth looked beautiful. John whenever had time loved doing this as looking at the Earth gave him peace and serenity. All this would crumble down if he didn't fix the problem. But that was it. John had no idea how to fix the problem.

If one multiverse breaks their multiverse wouldn't be far away from destruction. It would be like a stack of dominoes. The difference was that there were only chips on it. There was a 50% chance that the chip would fall on their side. And from the looks of it, it might just fall on their side and take their multiverse down with them.

Beside John, Audino and the spirit of the House appeared. Audino just stood by John, while the spirit took out a chair and sat beside him.

"The others haven't returned with you. Do we have a problem?" the spirit asked.

"Yes. We do. We have encountered a serious obstacle as I am at a loss of what I need to do to save us all."

The spirit stiffened at the words of John. Until now he always had solutions to his problems but for the first time he felt a sense of loss from him. It seemed like John was tired and it almost felt like he was on the verge of giving up.

"You are giving up just because there is a problem you can't solve?" The spirit asked.

"It's not that I am giving up. Even if I do everything, I can't save everybody. If I save this multiverse, I will probably succeed but I can't say the same for the other things out there. The other multiverse. The multiverse from where you came." John finally spoke out the reason he looked listless. Even if John does everything and saves the multiverse, the people on the other side might not have the same privilege.

They might die without their own knowledge and their lives wouldn't even matter in the grand scale of events that were spiralling in their multiverse. That made him sad. At the beginning he thought that there wasn't any multiverse out there and Marvel was the only one.

Maybe his Earth was just another small dimension that John hadn't been able to find out. But all changed when OAA dropped the bomb.

Chapter 638: All gathered

/*I am saying this again. Some of the stories written here aren't comically accurate and something I had made up and made it sound that it was in the comics. Though I haven't veered off from the comics by a lot but there are some discrepancies here and there. Nothing major to be honest. So don't take the words here as gospels. Read the comics. They are much better.* /

"You can't save everyone. We can only do what we do best. The results, the consequences are the things we don't think about much. Sometimes our actions save people, sometimes it doesn't. But that doesn't mean we shouldn't try. If we don't try to solve it then who will. Right?" The spirit said in a very bland tone. It seemed like she wasn't saying such big words but she was having a cold conversation with John.

But John knew that her way of talking had always been a little cold. That was her nature. John, hearing those, didn't reply. He knew whatever she said was right. They could only do so much and hope for the best.

There was no perfect solution for everything. One thing or the other will slip away and lead to another kind of problem.

He just sat there and continued looking at Earth. After half an hour, from the corner of his eye he saw a large spaceship approaching Earth, or it was better to say that the large spaceship was approaching the Ring.

The spaceship was a totally new model that the universe had ever seen. The spaceship was special because it was developed by the Guardians!! Yes, the Maltusians took out their technological knowledge and advancement to carry out this crucial long term mission.

And a good spaceship was just one of the ways for it. They also brought a special team for this, a team of Green Lanterns and among the ranks was Emma too. She was one of the first Green Lanterns of the native universe so she had quite a weight around the Lanterns so her inclusion in this mission was a natural one. Of course, John asked the Guardians too to take her.

The alien looking spaceship soon landed near the Hall of Justice. John flew to Hall and waited for them to arrive. This was the first time for the Guardians to ever go out of Oa. They had never done so since they had arrived in the universe.

The new universe did arouse curiosity of the Guardians but not strong enough to go out for a roam but the crisis has finally brought them out of their shells and take this matter seriously.

A team of 5 Green Lanterns stepped out from the hangar and among the Lanterns there was one from the Kree race too. This was a little shock for John but he didn't point it out. It was a shock because the Kree was from the pure bloodline and it was surprising that someone of that bloodline was not so haughty enough to take over the mantle of Green Lantern.

Emma was leading the team. She stepped quickly as she arrived at the Hall. After seeing John she didn't even waste a second to arrive at his arms and kissed him. She had been out for quite a long time and she missed home. She had always wanted to work on a mission with John. To help him.

Finally she had the chance and she was going to do everything to prove that she was worthy to stand with John. The other lanterns too had arrived slowly after her and allowed PDA to finish between their captain and the person who had once saved their universe with his powers.

John was pretty famous at Oa after Black Winter and many were thankful to him as he saved the universe, so he had a pretty good reputation. Of course some feared him too because of his power but all in all they had a good impression of him.

The Guardians too had come out of the spaceship and slowly floated to the Hall. Since they were powerful telekinetic and thus they were basically a toned down version of Professor X.

"Mr. Jameson, we have gathered all the equipment required to handle the crack. Though we have never faced this situation before, we believe we have enough expertise to handle it." one of the Guardian said.

"I believe so. But this mission is something which is dangerous and time consuming so I have gathered a small team of my own." John said as he opened a portal beside. He didn't even let the Guardians speak another word as the portal had opened.

After a few seconds, a few people emerged from the portal. The Green Lanterns who were behind the Guardians were dumbfounded seeing the people that had arrived. It was not because of the people that had come but among the people who had come had freaking dinosaur.

And if that was not enough, there was a small girl sitting on the neck of the red colored Tyrannosaurus . This whole combination of a small girl and a dinosaur was totally a weird one. The Lanterns gulped seeing all of this.

The girl was the smartest one from Earth TRN981. On the same level as Reed Richards. She was brought with the team of Reed, Banner and Tony. The greatest minds of their universe.

Chapter 639: All gathered (2)

She was called the Moon girl, although she was young she was hailed the prime intelligent person in their world and thus she had come too. The other Guardians took a good look at the girl and at the dinosaur but didn't say a word or introduce themselves.

It was the lanterns who were interested in the people who had just arrived from the multiverse. They had read about them only in the books of Oa but never met them. This was the first time. And they were excited about it. Emma was the first to approach the new team that had just arrived

"Emma Watson, a Green Lantern of the Hala Sector."

"Tony Stark, an Avenger, philanthropist, billionaire...."

"...playboy. Yeah we know." Emma stopped him in his words from giving him any chance to finish his iconic line.

"You are the wife of that God guy. Aren't you?" Tony said as he didn't mind that she had taken his words away from his mouth.

"Yes." Emma replied with a little bit of pride. John, who listened to the conversation, just shook his head seeing how these two were at their necks like kids. The other Green Lanterns went to the other members and introduced themselves. They had fought with the other version of theirs in Black Winter so they had a general idea of who these people were.

Only the Avengers didn't know much about the Green Lanterns. Whatever they knew, it was from Barry Allen. So they were more curious about them.

The Guardians who were seeing how these people were busy gossiping, coughed for a bit to attract attention.

"So we have all gathered here and all of you know what problems we are going to face...."

"..Ah, excuse me. There is another team on their way here." John interrupted the Guardian who had started giving the speech.

"Another team? From another universe?" Another Guardian asked as he heard John.

"No, a separate dimension." John replied as he turned his head to look at the entrance of the Hall. He had already felt that another team had arrived. A team which was different from humans. This team was an additional one that John had summoned. They needed all hands on deck, and he had asked help from them.

All of them heard footsteps from the entrance after John said that. There were many of them and the people present were curious to see who was this new team that their coordinator John had asked for.

"My..My... It seems that we are late."

"Of course we are late. You have been sleeping all day instead of doing your work."

"Act like a Captain please."

Soon all got to see who had arrived. It was the Green Lanterns and the Guardians who had recognized who had arrived, and some of them even flinched for a bit seeing who had come.

The people who had arrived were Kurotsuchi Mayuri, Kisuke Urahara and their lieutenants, with 6 more people.

The people from Soul Society. John had called the brains of Seireitei for this mission. Since the mission would require sealing of cracks and scientific research, John had called upon the greatest of minds from Soul Society for this.

The Avengers were curious about these new people as they were pretty sure Barry had never mentioned them. But the whole surprising part was the way Mayuri looked. They were pretty sure that he was human, well at least the body structure seemed like he was human, the 'black mask' that he wore was what stood out.

It was totally out of place, and all the Avengers couldn't keep their eyes from it.

"What are you looking at? Never seen a Shinigami before?" Mayuri couldn't help but grumble seeing that he was getting weird looks. Even the Lanterns and Guardians who had read about them from the books of Oa and even seen the series that John had published, couldn't help but look at Mayuri and his weird sense of fashion.

"What is a Shinigami?" Banner asked as he was confused.

"Shinigami's English translation will be Death God. But it's more complicated than you think. We can all introduce ourselves after we reach our destination. Is that fine? Oblivion is waiting for us on the other side." John said as it was already time and he didn't want a God to wait for him and he liked being punctual.

All nodded their heads. There were too many people and there would ,more people that were going to meet, so it was better that the introduction was done after they had all gathered. John waved his hands as he opened a huge portal to 616.

"Please follow me." John said as he stepped inside the portal, and following him the others stepped inside too. And when all of them had stepped in, they all saw that they had arrived on a huge balcony of a tall building.

Above the balcony, there was a huge letter A. Signifying that they had arrived at the Avengers Tower.

Chapter 640: Introduction

All walked in from the balcony itself and didn't even bother to knock. This was rude but John had appeared here so many times that he was sure Friday had given him access.

The TRN-Avengers were looking around curiously, they noticed that almost all of the things of this universe were identical to theirs. This put a smile on their face. When they appeared in John's universe, everything looked so different. They noticed that the place that they had landed was in a space station. It was unprecedented that the headquarters was in space.

Barry had mentioned about a different world that was orbiting the Earth and their headquarters being located there. This put them to shame and in fact Tony had been trying to put a headquarters in space. But saying is one matter, and executing is different. TRN-Tony was still thinking of how to handle teleportation.

The Shinigami's were curious about the new place they had arrived. John had already informed them of the mission or at least gave an idea of it. It should also be mentioned that Yhwach was ordered by John to leave the premises. Since the war was known by many people here it was better he never showed his face to the Shinigami.

He could control their thoughts for sure but he didn't want any misunderstanding by the people who had a vague idea of the story.

"So you have brought new friends with you." 616-Steve who was sitting on a sofa nearby and looking at the television said. Friday had been informed that John had arrived with a team of his own and he was one of the few people who was in the Tower to look after everything.

The symbiote problem and the mass hysteria was not so easy to handle so all hands were on deck. All the Avengers of both the teams and X-men of both the worlds were working overtime and 616-Steve was managing everything.

"Yeah. Took me some time to gather everyone. Reed and others are still working?" John asked.

"Yes."

616-Steve was curious of the new people who had arrived. They looked like they were all different kinds of aliens. Some he had known, like the Kree and some of the races he had come across before from the universe of his won. While others he had no idea about.

For example the Guardians. He had never seen such dwarf aliens before who could levitate without any power. 616-Steve could feel that these aliens were not something to be trifled with. Since he had come across the Green Lantern before, he could already notice the Green Rings on some of their fingers. So he had already speculated them to be from the police force that Hal Jordan had spoken about before.

He and Hal had teamed up when they were fighting the symbiotes, that was where he got to know that Hal belonged to the defense forces before he became a Green lantern.

Though 616-Steve was not a detective of the highest order, he could notice and pick up some tricks over time, so he had already recognized that some of them were the Green Lanterns, and he also noticed that a female was holding the hand of John.

"So this is Mrs. Emma Watson. I am Steve, nice to meet you." 616-Steve approached and shook his hands with her. He had already known from the others about their love. Emma greeted him. As Steve was talking, Tony and others had arrived.

"What the hell. A dinosaur? What is left? A dragon?" shrieked Tony as he entered the room. He had just arrived from the laboratory but he was greeted with a living ancient creature and sat on top of it was a young girl.

He was dizzy after seeing such a scene. This world had gone crazy. He didn;t even care that another doppelganger of his had appeared. Reed and others too who had arrived at the main room and he too looked surprised seeing a dinosaur in the main Hall.

If the Hall was a little smaller, the T-rex wouldn't have it in the Hall.

"Steve, your long lost friend has arrived." 616-Tony said as he mocked 616-Steve as he was from the past.

"Ha..Ha... Ha.. Very funny. Now call all the others. We have a lot to discuss and many introductions to make." 616-Steve said as he answered back in sarcasm. Tony didn't answer and was just looking at the others people who had arrived with John.

They had already known that John had gone for help, but they didn't expect that the help would arrive in different forms of aliens and a freaking dinosaur. Friday had already sent a message, asking all of the people to return back to the headquarters.

It was time for some more revelations and proper introduction to the multiverse and the dangers that they might be facing.