

Multiverse 681

Chapter 681: All the colors (2)

The other superheroes were able to stop their rivals and previous friends for only one reason only.

The Indigo lantern corps. They were a special kind of Corps. And it was only wielded by a single tribe in the universe. The Indigo Tribe (Indigo-1 was the main wielder of the Indigo lanterns. Abin Sur forced the Indigo lantern into her after Indigo 1 killed his daughter).

Truth to be told, every Lantern had their own uniqueness. The Orange Lantern had only one Lantern Corp known as Larfleeze. His power was that he could construct the people he had killed in his lifetime thus he was a walking army of his own.

The Red lanterns used blood as a form of weapon and their own blood would be replaced by the light of red rage.

But the most unique were the Indigo lanterns as they could easily teleport over space and read any place in the universe. And another power was in front of other Lantern Corps; they could easily add their own power of indigo light with the other corps and provide more power. This helped Hal Jordan and other superheroes to defeat their enemies temporarily.

Only Super Man and his family was able to defeat the Superman of Earth 2 without any help but even then they were very much spent after defeating him. And that was only one zombie superhero.

Indigo 1 with Hal then went on to travel the universe to gather all the Lantern Corps of different corps to band together and stop the Black Lanterns. Whatever was happening on Earth, it was happening the same over the universe. The Black Lanterns were busy trying to make the other Corps as their own by taking their heart away.

Everything was a mess. And after much conviction and deliberation every other Corp decided to come together. Even Sinestro, who had been the lifelong enemy of Hal decided to keep his feelings at bay and agreed to help.

Thus the final fight started at this point. With all the Lanterns coming together for the first time since the introduction of these Lanterns. This was a huge deal in the series as this scene was one of the epic scenes that the series tried to pull off.

Even Ganthet, the Guardian of Blue Lantern, showed up for this fight.

Meanwhile, in the Coast City, the home city of Hand, a Black Lantern battery rose in place of his previous home. The Black Lantern looked huge. When every lantern corps arrived it was already too late. They used all of their powers together to destroy the Battery but it only ended up making the Battery more powerful and ended up bringing Nekron in flesh for the first time.

This was a nightmare!!

Nekron looked huge with a scythe in his hand. He would easily be denoted as Death Gods as his body looked like he was the Death Gods that many people imagined him to be. The lantern corps had a face of fear now. They had tried everything possible and even used the powers together but it was still not enough.

And if this wasn't enough, Hand used the body of dead Batman. (This isn't the actual Batman. It's a clone of his which Darksied made during the Final Crisis. At that point nobody knew that he was sent back in time)

Using his body and the connection he had to other Justice League heroes, Hand was even able to make the other superheroes who were once dead as the wielder of Black Lantern. Clark, Diana and other superheroes were soon changed to Black Lantern Corps. The rings were now coming out of the mouth of Hand which was travelling everywhere to choose their new hosts.

Only Barry was able to escape this change as the Lantern Rings couldn't travel through time. Barry travelled through time to 2 seconds into the future thus saving himself and the Lantern Rings couldn't.

This was a failed war by now. Even Clark Kent, one of their greatest weapons, was on the opposite side. There was almost no hope.

It was at this point that Ganthet did something that blew the minds of everyone. He said.

"Hal Jordan, give me your ring."

"Why? We need it to fight the war."

"Just give me!!"

Hal didn't think much and gave him the Ring. Ganthet took the Ring and made a copy of it, just out of thin air without any help from any machines. Whatever he said next shook the core of the Lantern Corps and even the audience who were watching.

"The Blackest Night is a prophecy in the Book of Oa. Since its a prophecy, the Book of Oa always had contingencies against it. Whatever Lantern Rings were made all this time, the Book of Oa made sure that each Battery and each Ring is under the control of the us...."

"The Guardians."

Chapter 682: All the colors (3)

"This is unfair...."

"I will kill you for this..."

Such harsh words came out from all the other Lantern Corps who were currently fighting in the war as they listened to Ganthet. He didn't pay any heed to them as he himself wore the Green Lantern Rings. After doing that he took the rings of some of the other Corps and made a copy of them. And these new Lantern Rings flew away, in search of new hosts.

The Blue Lantern Rings flew to Barry and the ring itself.

"Barry Allen, when all hope dies, your presence gives hope to the people surrounding you. You will be the new Blue Lantern."

"Alexander Luthor, you have too much avarice, too much greed for your own good. You will be the new Orange Lantern."

"Mera, Queen of Atlantis, your heart burns with rage. You will be the new Red Lantern."

"Roy Palmer. you have immense compassion for your friends. You will be the new Indigo Lantern."
(Arrow series, DC version of Ant-man)

"Scarecrow, you find joy in infusing fear into your fellow beings. You will be the new Yellow Lantern."
(Batman 1st movie, Christopher Nolan's, he was the guy who wore a rag as his mask and used chemicals to show fear)

"Diana Prince, your heart is filled with love, you will be the new Violet Lantern."

But Wonder Woman was already a Black Lantern, because she had died once long ago and was brought to life, but the power of love was proved to be too much for her own sake and the Violet Lantern took over the Black Lantern which was thrown away.

If every Lantern corps coming together wasn't epic enough, this point of the series was huge enough to throw the audience into an awe. They had never expected this to happen. Even the Avengers themselves didn't expect such scenes. This was unprecedented.

All turned their heads and looked at John.

"You always knew, didn't you?" Steve asked. John nodded his head. Thus turn of the story was too much for even them to handle. And if only this was the end. Ganthet continued. with his words as the new Lantern Corps which had just got boosted were fighting against the enemies

"We have been fighting on this planet for a reason. We speak of ourselves as the most ancient and the life giver of the universe. But it is not true. The real reason there is life in the multiverse and universe is because of Entity. The personification of Life. And Nekron is here because he wants to kill Entity and plunge the world into death again."

The warriors who were fighting were just speechless listening to the words of Ganthet. Sinestro, meanwhile was furious. He shouted at the top of his lungs.

"You imbeciles. You hypocrites. All your secrets. All your inaction had led to this. Every inaction of yours now has cost us so much. You don't deserve to be called as a Guardian."

He was furious as he flew away. Now to a specific direction. Nekron was finally able to unearth the point on Earth where Entity was hidden and was forcefully taken out. And Sinestro right to the Entity in order for him to become the new host.

Thus, Sinestro became the first White Lantern of the universe. It wasn't any hero who had first wielded the first White Lantern Ring. It was the Sinestro who ruled over Fear. But his power of White Lantern Ring didn't last long. Nekron was easily able to rip Entity out of his body in order to kill it.

But there was a small window for all the other superheroes and they acted on it. Hal Jordan, Wonder Woman and others instantly flew near Entity and soon they got their new White Lantern Rings. And from that point onwards the superheroes were the new White Lanterns.

All this time they were trying to use their powers to destroy the black Battery. But not this time. Indigo 1 mentioned that they would be able to destroy Nekron only if they could change the state of his main connection to the physical world.

And that can be done only if William Hand is alive.

Thus the superheroes banded together to infuse life onto Hand. Hand who had committed suicide came back to life. But that was not the end. Since his power connected to Nekron was strong, by reversing it the amount of power which his body contained was immense.

He vomited out many White Lantern Rings and they flew away to replace the Black Lantern rings of the zombies. With that, all the dead heroes that had been dead for quite a long time had come back to life.

Every single superhero who had died for various reasons over the course of time was now back to life. Everyone, except Batman!!

Chapter 683: Get together

This was a happy ending from all angles. There was a new lantern corps and that was the most powerful ever to be seen in the multiverse. But it did raise questions on many things. Especially the Guardians who had been guarding such a huge secret for a long time.

But a person from a higher point of view could easily understand why the Guardians did what they had done. The secret of Entity was too huge for anybody to have knowledge of and it was too powerful and could easily be misused if the Entity was used badly by others who might have nefarious intentions.

And even if the intention was pure, it should always be remembered that Death would eventually arrive for everyone. Batman was the prime example. People didn't understand it was still dead as the series had a post credits scene.

The post credits scene showed Darksied using his signature Omega Beam on Batman. He was supposed to be dead but in the next scene they saw Batman opening his eyes on a desert. On a far distance of the desert he could see many people pulling huge cuboid shape rocks. There were various guards using whips on people who were pulling these huge rocks. And on another side of the desert there was a half built structure that looked like a Pyramid.

The people instantly made the connection. Their Batman had travelled back in time due to the Omega Sanction. Tony and others had finally understood by what John meant when he said those words to the Presence about Batman travelling back in time. The story was finally coming to light for everyone.

"Is Nekron dead?" Clark asked.

"Let me ask you a question? Can Death ever die?"

Everybody gulped when hearing those words. Few months ago they killed Darkness. This wasn't a huge deal for many and others would rejoice on this but everybody knew that the balance had been broken.

But it was just balance. It was only about Darkness. It was nothing in front of Death. Death must always be there or else the multiverse or any universe would just collapse on itself. And by those words John meant that Nekron was still out there. Somewhere.

(I have not portrayed all of the stories of War of Light. There was the Anti-monitor inside the Black battery and other small tid-bits. If I did that I would have to explain the events of Sinestro Corps War which was like a prequel to it. I won't go the lore of Anti-Monitor as it would make everything too complicated and he isn't important to the story)

"This was one hell of a story. If it wasn't real I would have given a review of 10 out of 10. Sadly this story is real so I would now rate it 0 out of 10." Tony declared.

"0? Why?"

"It was one hell of a tragic story and many people had to suffer. Though it was all goody two shoes at the end, only the people who fought know the pain and the trauma."

John was impressed by Tony's words. The heroes were able to save everyone at the end but they had to go through so much just to save themselves. If there was even a small mistake in their judgement, everything would have been doomed.

This story showed how thin the line was between eternal damnation and life. If Nekron had won, their whole multiverse would have plunged into death and there was nothing that could be done to stop Nekron and his army.

These were the thoughts that were revolving in the head of the Avengers. This series brought everyone together. In this hectic schedule of the Avengers relating to the Wall and the preparations for war.

All needed a time off and this series was the best way to get their mind off. After the series ended, everyone discussed the series and its implications. Batman especially was able to deduce many things from the series.

Like the universe had been connected for a longer time and there was more chaos around. His absence was in itself a huge matter and it showed how Batman was so important in their lives. After much trial and error were they able to defeat Nekron. It was a long process and thus showing how important he was to the team.

The Avengers were dying to know of what would happen to Bruce after he was sent back in time but John didn't open his mouth on that. He refused to spoil for the team. Not because he didn't want to, but because if he did he would have to talk a lot of explaining to do. And that would itself take more than a day.

He just asked them to have patience and see how everything would turn out as the new series was already in the works and it would be out soon.

Chapter 684: Look who's back

"You are one hell of a pain in the ass. Why does it matter.... Wh?" Tony who was going to have a useless argument with John stopped in his tracks as a loud tone got blasted from his pocket.

The tone was more like an alarm. Tony instantly brought out a device which was making a noise. This was a special device made by the best scientist from multiple universes. This was made for emergency situations.

Situation that arose from the Void. Since the Wall was very far away, they had to use their best technology to make an emergency communicator from the Void to the Multiverse. And for the first time it had gone off.

John and others had already known of it. He vanished after hearing the alarm not even caring of what the others were thinking or the way they should have reacted. This was the first alarm that arose from the Harvester that was near the Wall. Since he couldn't take others to the Wall he vanished away. He would reach there the fastest, the others could take their time and reach.

"Wait John... No... Shit..." Batman screamed in a loud voice to stop John from vanishing but he was already gone.

"He should have asked us before making that move." Tony clenched his fists when he said that. The alarm came the moment they were away. All this time many were juggling from Void and the Multiverse for work purposes.

And the moment there was least guard at the Wall, there was an alarm. Talk about coincidences.

"Hope everything is alright." Hal mumbled. The other Harvester was actually in their solar system parked for their travel. It had been sometime that the spaceship was used for travelling to the void. At first the Council wanted to know of this huge spaceship as there had been no knowledge of it in the intergalactic net.

But Wayne said that it belonged to the Avengers and the Council backed off. Avengers had stayed out of politics for a long time and they wanted to keep it that way.

The other Avengers had already ordered for the Harvester to pick them up and go to the Wall.

John meanwhile was already at the Harvester. There were still some heroes on the Harvester watching over the Wall. TRN 891 Reed was one of them and it was him who had sounded the alarm on multiple universes about a situation. John appeared right beside Reed.

"Reed, status"

"You are here?? Good!!! I thought I would have to fight alone with this bastard, look who's back..." Reed said, pointing his finger at the screen. John looked at the screen which showed the crack. The Crack was now of huge size. There were multiple platforms being established by the Lantern Corps.

The crack has grown in almost 5 times the size they first saw. And as the days were passing by, the speed was getting faster. But that was not the only thing that was being shown on the screen.

On one small point one could see a pair of hands trying to emerge out from the crack and a leg. For those who have been in the multiverse for a long time and had been undergoing an intergalactic voyage for a long time, they could easily recognize those hands and the leg that had just emerged out. The figure seemed like it was trying his best to get out of the crack.

There were several Green Lanterns pointing their rings at the emerging figure. They could already guess who the emerging figure was.

It was Thanos!!!

"How is that bastard coming from the Wall? Did one of his variants come to Wall long ago? Is it because of him there is a crack in the Wall?" Reed said in a grim tone.

"No. This Thanos was sent by OAA to the Wall to gather information after he was defeated by us. We were almost close to killing him when the TVA came to take him away."

"Are you sure that he is the one?" Reed asked again. Thanos had been a menace no matter which version was being taken into account. It was surprising that OAA sent him to the Wall. Maybe because he was dispensable, OAA threw him to the Wall. Reed didn't take much time to understand why Thanos was sent to the Wall by himself.

Now, after a long time he was back!!!

"Last time we met, the Avengers made the promise that if we see him next time, we would kill him. Seems like we will be able to keep the promise." John smirked. He didn't care what he saw in the Wall. Since he was back he could easily read his memories and find out what he saw inside the Wall and later kill him.

Chapter 685: Crisis energy

"Zoom the image..." John ordered the alien who was operating the cameras that was nearby. He wanted to get a close picture of the person that was trying to get out. On closer inspection one could easily see that his hands and leg weren't exactly in its pristine state.

There were deep cuts and bruises all over his body parts. Blood was flowing from the fresh wounds and they haven't even clotted for a bit. AS the images were being received by John and others who were at the command center his torso was finally out of the crack. The crack now had grown wide enough from his body to be out.

It looked very difficult and almost gruesome for Thanos as he was trying to be out of the Crack. Normally he should have died the moment he had stepped at the Void but it seemed like there was a power that was protecting him from the ravages of the Void.

"Zoom on his hand.." John ordered again as it seemed like there was something in his hand to which he had clenched very hard. as the images were zoomed again at his hand, John finally got to see what he was holding.

It seemed like a Tesseract sized cube. And inside the transparent cube was a ball made of magical lines. It glowed very brightly in blue color. John was skeptical about this new thing that Thanos had in his hand.

"What is that?"

"No idea. We will soon find out what he is once it is out."

Reed nodded and he already asked the Lanterns to bring his body here once he was out. The Guardians too had ordered them the same. Thanos seemed like he was trying his best to get out of the crack.

And after a minute of desperate struggle he was finally out. But it wasn't all sunshine and flowers when he stepped out. He had lost his other leg and an eye of his was gone. He looked horrible with big gashes all over his body. He seemed like he lost a lot of blood.

Even John, who was cruel in a sense, felt pity for Thanos from the way he looked. It looked like he had gone through quite a massive struggle in the Wall. The Lanterns had already covered him with their constructs and he was brought to the Harvester.

Without any second thought he was sent to the medical wing. The place where he could be treated. John was already waiting for him in the medical wing to cure. The Guardians too were present. The Guardians brought him down to the bed while John waved his hand at Thanos.

He wanted to use the Phoenix Force to cure Thanos. They were all curious about the first living person who had stepped from the Wall. Though he was injured very badly, his heart was still beating. He was a modified Eternal so of course his life force was off the charts.

But soon John realized that even his Phoenix Force wasn't able to cure him. This made John raise his eyebrows. It was one of those few times that his life force wasn't able to cure someone. Then the Guardians came forward to cure Thanos.

The medical pod of the harvester was of very high level technology and they could heal Thanos fast, but they needed answers immediately so everyone was trying their hands. Mayuri came and injected a bunch of juices in his body and the Guardians tried using their own power on Thanos.

But it seemed like it was hurt by a very mysterious force and the healing factor was very slow. One of the Guardian finally opened his mouth and said

"The energy he has been hurt with isn't simple."

"Can you tell what kind of energy it is?"

Appa who was the leader of the Guardians nodded his head and said

"Crisis Energy!!!"

"Crisis Energy? What is that? I have never heard of this!!" Reed who was present in the room said. Mayuri too shook his head. Only John who was present knew what energy it was. The energy of the present time. The energy which was responsible for all the crisis and evils that happened in the DC multiverse.

This energy was fueled by the present. It feeds on the present without caring for the future or the past. Many human beings love to live in the present. They care less for the future consequences or the past. For example, an Oil company CEO of Earth would care shit about the environment. He would do anything possible to live his present life, not caring anything about the future or his children.

This factor of living in the present was termed as Crisis Energy. The energy which Perpetua and many other ancient beings fed upon. And it looked like Thanos was hurt by Crisis Energy

Chapter 686: Truth

"This matter is serious. We would need anti-crisis energy to dispel this. and heal this guy completely."

"None of us can wield that energy." another Guardian said.

"One of us can.." John who was looking at the wounded Thanos and his hand deeply.

"Who?"

"Diana Prince, Wonder Woman. Her Lasso of Truth which is based on past can be used as Anti-Crisis Energy." John said half mindedly. He wasn't caring about the Anti-Crisis energy on the wounded body of Thanos. He cared about what he was holding so tightly in his hand. Even when he was in a coma and under intense care, the aliens who were taking care of his body couldn't separate the cube that he was holding.

John could already feel a kind of energy that was emitting from the cube. It was very subtle but he could already feel it. He wasn't sure what the cube was but he had a very vague idea of what it could be.

John while talking with the Guardians and others separated the fingers and took out the cube forcefully from the hand of Thanos. He twitched a bit when the cube was taken away but his body was too wounded to react properly.

Everyone present in the room could see that Thanos had done everything possible to keep the Cube to himself. It meant the Cube was really important.

"Do you know what this is?" Reed asked.

"I have an idea of what could be. If what I think it is, then we are in deep trouble. Let Thanos wake up and we can talk to him about it. Diana is on her way here so she would be able to heal him faster. For now let's wait."

John said as he was looking at the transparent cube in his hand. And thus everyone waited for Diana and others to arrive. All the three universes were given their own spaceships to travel in the void in case of emergency. Since the alarm was raised for everyone, it was expected that everyone at higher level were on their way to this place.

All they needed to do was wait. John even brought out his Alien X form to heal the wound of Thanos. It was working but it was still very slow. And since the form of Alien X would only last for 1 hour, he didn't care about wasting this form on Thanos.

It was better to wait for Diana.

It took 6 more hours for everyone to reach the Harvester at the Wall. The universes were in equal distances away from the Wall, so obviously everyone would arrive at almost the same time.

Many had arrived for this from multiple universes. It was the first alarm so everyone was on their toes. Many were even expecting the worst as they believed that the Harvester near the Crack would already be destroyed.

But thankfully it was not.

"You could have waited for us. If we lost you it would have been too tough of a battle for us." Clark almost shouted when he berated John. He had left without even thinking of consulting the others. This was a stupid move in all sense.

He was powerful for sure but there were beings more powerful on the Wall. If he faced them alone, there would be very less probability of surviving the assault of multiple high powered beings. And the Avengers of all teams knew about this and for this reason they were angry.

"There were people and Guardians here to look over the Crack. They are important to us. If I am here then I would have a better chance to save them. For this reason I appeared here." John gave his own argument to this.

The Avengers who listened to his side of the argument also knew that what John said was correct. He was the only one who had a higher chance of saving himself and all the people present here.

"From today there will be at least 10 high powered superheroes holding down the fort here. It will be done on shifts but there should always be people here." Wayne suggested. To this everyone had to say 'aye'.

"Miss Prince, we need your help in curing Thanos." One Guardian finally came forward and spoke of the reason that the alarm had gone off. She was surprised by his words but didn't ask much and followed the Guardian.

Soon everyone came to know the whole story. They didn't expect an old 'friend' to come back. Especially the Avengers of John's universe. The last time they beat him for good and never expected to see him again.

When TVA and OAA had sent him to the Wall forcefully they thought that he would die there. But here he was. Back all beaten up. In a way many felt happy that he was beaten so badly.

Chapter 687: Totality

Diana went to the medical room and used her lasso of Truth and binded her by her lasso across his torso. Soon a special kind of energy was flowing out from her lasso and covering the body of Thanos. The new energy was white in color and his wounds were getting healed at a considerably faster pace.

But he was too injured to be cured and healed easily. Even with her lasso of truth it would take a few hours. Diana had looked over him until he was healed.

John meanwhile was holding on to the cube and was waiting for Thanos to wake up and talk with him. He talked with the other Avengers about what had happened. Since Thanos was able to get out of the crack it wouldn't take more time for the beings trapped there to be out of the Wall.

It was a matter of concern for everyone and they needed more fire power.

"I will send a fleet of automated new warships made by Lex Corp here. It would at least stop the enemy for a few minutes if they emerge and give us time to understand the enemy."

"That will do the groundwork. Bruce, how far are the war preparations? Do we have enough people?"
616-Reed asked.

"We already had a considerable number of people and they had proper coordination among the shinobis. Thanks to the 4th great Ninja war but we needed them to be up to date with the latest weapons and jargon. The last 5 months have been dedicated to that. Our SHIELD had provided all the resources. The Soul Society had also been given all the necessary preparations. Only thing left is the coordination between us. We will need to conduct drills regularly to be in sync."

"Then we will establish camps for this purpose."

As the discussion went on how to establish camps, Wayne allowed for the camp to be placed in their world. The Ring had enough space and land for them to work on. Till now, none of the people from the other two universes had stepped foot on their universe and they had been wanting to do that.

And Wayne had finally opened their doors for other people. It was not like they had been stopping the 'other worlders' to come. It was just that they didn't have any occasion or reason for them to go to John's universe.

As the discussion was happening, Thanos had finally woken from his coma. Thanks to his well built body and strong healing factor, he was out of coma much faster than everyone expected. John and others surrounded his bed as he was recuperating. Thanos's eyes looked blank as he was staring at the ceiling with emotionless eyes. He seemed devoid of life.

Even Tony who had considered Thanos as his life long enemy couldn't help but feel pity for Thanos. The universe's most feared being was now in a medical facility and even after being healed he seemed like he didn't have any ounce of zeal to live longer. He was forced into a place where only the cruel of the cruel enemies were imprisoned and he had survived there. Those emotionless eyes spoke of his times in the Wall and it looked like it was really a harsh one.

Before John and others could even ask their question, Thanos opened his mouth and said.

"The Wall is a nightmare. Nightmare that I couldn't even imagine in my most wild dreams. I have gone through many things in life but it was nothing in front of life on the Wall."

"Sometime ago, I came across a woman. A woman of terrifying power and ambition. She wants everything in the multiverse to be under her rule. And for doing that she was ready to kill everyone and make her new servants as powerful warriors so that she could fight against the people who had imprisoned her. There was power which had binding her. The power and her were both of the same nature but the people who had imprisoned her had made it in such a way that the opposing power could imprison her forever."

"When I reached her place after being sent to the Wall, I got to see her and I was sure that it wouldn't be long before she gets out of prison. So the only thing I could do was take away the power that was imprisoning her. If she gets hold of that extra power it would be devastating. The cube which you took away from me is the power. Secure it. Save it in the most safe location possible and never use it."

He said all of this while still looking at the ceiling with no emotions. It was as if he was reading out a will before he went to sleep forever.

Chapter 688: Totality (2)

"Was that woman named Perpetua?" John asked.

Thanos's face finally had a reaction. His face showed fear and then a hint of surprise. He never expected that person who he considered as his eternal rival and an enemy that he must take down was the one who healed him and now it seemed like he knew about the woman who he had nothing but fear.

Then he remembered the words of John when they last met at the battlefield he spoke about powers that was beyond his imagination and things weren't as simple as it seemed like. All these years that he had passed inside the Wall made him remember John's words more and more.

And finally today he understood why John was right at that point. He was naive and thought about destroying half the population of the universe would solve each and every problem. The truth couldn't be much further than the fact.

Now he was back and he got to see the same face that he once hated. But surprisingly he was grateful seeing his face once again. What he had seen in the Wall made him realize that there were powers he wasn't ready to handle.

It would be fine if he died, but he wanted to do something useful for his multiverse. For its safety, so he stole the cube from the woman. And he was successful, albeit it came with a lot of pain and a missing leg. He didn't care about it. He was a lost person anyways, and now the cube was in safe hands and from the looks of it, John had already known of the woman which made it more easy for him.

"Yes. It was Perpetua." Thanos finally admitted after moving his eyes to look at John. He moved his eyes away the next second. He didn't deserve to look at John or the others present here. He was a failure.

John who was looking at Thanos could vaguely understand what Thanos was thinking but he didn't mind.

"So if I am not wrong than this cube should be the Totality."

Thanos again nodded his head. John's speculation came true. This cube really was the Totality. The DC multiverse has 7 forces which govern the rules and laws of their multiverse. There was normal physics and everything normal of their multiverse but these 7 forces stood above them.

They were :

Anti-Crisis Energy,

Speed Force,

Emotional Spectrum (the Lantern Corps were powered by the Emotional Spectrum),

Life Force (the power which is wielded by the Atlanteans especially Aquaman and Mera),

Sphere of the Gods (The power which is wielded by all the gods, both new and old which means it includes Zeus and Darksied both and even Angels and Demons),

Dimensional Superstructure (Wielded by the World Forger, Monitor and Anti-Monitor, they basically monitor all of creation),

Collective Consciousness (wielded by the beings who have immense knowledge and wisdom. Lex Luthor, Batman have all been touched by this power) and lastly

Faithfulness (it is the power that is generated by the goodness of people's hearts and called upon their heroic nature)

And it was always a known fact that there must always be a balance. The Totality was the balance. This cube had all the negative forces of DC multiverse stored within. This was made by the Hand in order to not let the 7 dark forces of the multiverse to wreak havoc. This was a prison for the 7 dark forces.

And now these 7 dark forces were now in his hand itching to be let loose. Thanos was right when he said that the cube should be secured in the deepest pits so that it could never see the light of the day. This Totality should have been in the DC multiverse but it seemed like Thanos had changed its fate. Now he understood why there had been a change in the story of the DC multiverse because his handling of Thanos had changed a huge portion of the story.

John's presence was an anomaly which now affected two multiverse and this was just the start. The Totality should have never come to their multiverse but since it was here they needed to secure it.

Meantime Thanos had gone back to sleep. He was still very much injured. Crisis Energy was not a small thing and Diana wasn't efficient in using Anti-Crisis Energy as of yet. She still didn't understand the essence of it so Thanos would have to suffer more. And from the looks of it Thanos didn't have any zeal to live further. John didn't say anything and he just left the room with others.

John knew of all the secrets so the others too followed him as they were curious of what this Totality was and why it should be sealed away forever. Some of them could feel the terrifying energy emitted by it but they didn't know what it was.

Chapter 689: Totality (3)

All came to the command center. By this point, those who were supposed to arrive from the multiverse had already done so. Many people had responded to this and even some B lister superheroes of two universes had come.

John's universe didn't allow everyone to follow him to the multiverse. Bruce had left half of the team back on their Earth in case it was a grand plan of an evil being. John took the main seat beside Reeds, Straks, Wayne and Kent.

Others took the surrounding seats as the aliens had arranged.

"I presume all of you have watched my series which was released today. Is there anyone who hasn't?"

None of the people raised their hands in denial except for one.

Miles Morales. The other Spiderman of Earth 616. He raised his hand in utter shame. He couldn't finish it because he had homework to do at home and he had decided to watch it later at night. But before he could finish his homework, his other 'work' called for an emergency, and thus he had to leave his homework and come here.

Now that John called it out he felt embarrassed but he still admitted it in case there were terms later from the series he would be blank. He had watched all the movies and series released by them in the past few months and he had to figure out time just to watch a few series.

Binge watching the series and animes took a lot more time than many of them thought. They had to race against time to finish everything and it was more difficult for Miles. He had school and homework and on top of this he had to be a part-time superhero. He had to approach Peter later asking him to look over his neighbourhood before he finished the series.

He was amazed by the story that John had portrayed. The animes were what attracted him the most. He had already seen some of the people from the anime and he had already become a huge fan of the characters.

In this emergency call, he secretly wished that some of the animes characters would arrive but sadly there were none. So he could only hope to meet them in the proposed drill together.

"You all must be confused by the words of Thanos and the cube that we just acquired. Honestly I didn't need to explain much as whatever he was saying would have been properly explained in the next series that would have been out in a year or so but since the problem is already here let me give you a short run down on the things that Thanos just mentioned."

"There are 7 forces in their multiverse...." He went on a whole explanation of the different forces present in their multiverse and even mentioned about the emotional spectrum that the people had just finished watching.

"So now let me explain the forces that are trapped in the cube. One of them is Crisis energy. The energy that hurts Thanos and the energy that only gets power from the Present time. It overlooks the past and future. Diana's lasso was effective because her lasso works in the past. Her Lasso commands people to talk about the past and thus it is fueled by Anti-Crisis energy. Crisis energy is the opposite of that."

"Many of you have seen the Speed Force. Barry and Pietro can use that power. It's a special kind of force which makes people run fast and do tons of other amazing things. The opposite of it is in the Cube. It is called Still Force. It is exactly what its name implies. It has the power to make things slow. The vibration between the molecules slows down due to the Still Force. It's a terrifying force as it gets more powerful when Speed Force is used against it. In relation to this there is Sage Force, which basically makes people smarter and have psychic powers and Strength Force which makes people stronger for those who have access to them. These two forces could be said as the cousin of Still Force and are not the main 7 forces."

"You have seen the different forms of Lantern Corps but they all fall in the category of visible spectrum of light seen by human beings. But there is another Lantern Corps or rather the power of the corps in the Cube. We call it the invisible spectrum. And they are called Ultraviolet Lanterns. As opposed to the Corps having the power of the Lanterns, the entity Umbrax controls its corps and does things as he wishes."

"The Atlanteans of their multiverse are powered by the Life Force. Namor you can relax, there is no such power in our multiverse. So as I was saying, the Life Force is the power which Arthur and Mera use. Like others this too has an opposite. We call it the Tear of Extinction. Those who wield its power can kill Gods and send them to the Graveyard of the Gods. Think of it as Valhalla of Asgard."

Chapter 690: Totality (4)

"The next is Void Wind. It's the twin of Tear of Extinction. When both come together then it gives rise to the so-called 'Ragnarok' of the Gods in their multiverse. Like ours, their multiverse too has Zeus and other Olympians. "

"The last ones are Black Apple, which is gained when one gets a glimpse of the forbidden knowledge of the multiverse. Getting a glimpse of any of these forces will taint the other person with the power of Back Apple."

"Sixth Note is when the impossible is glimpsed. It doesn't sound bad but when something defies normal explanation it gives rise to many problems."

"And the last one is Faithlessness. As it is the opposite of Faithfulness you can already guess what its' power is. These are forces that are being trapped in the Cube. Once it is released, there will be nothing but destruction all around. It might not collapse the multiverse but causing wreckage everywhere will be just a flip of its hand. I will mention this though, the Crisis energy had always been present in their multiverse so 1 of the dark forces has already been present in their multiverse."

"Now let me come to Perpetua. She is called the mother of the multiverse of their world and there is a reason for that. Aeons ago the Judges of the Omniverse or as we call them 'The Hand' was sent to control the new multiverse that they created. But she was tired of the Judges and wanted to dethrone them so she tried making the multiverse in her own image. She made Apex Predators, a hybrid of humans and martians to battle against the Judges. The Hand got information on it and sent Cosmic Raptors to imprison her."

"As you all have guessed. She was imprisoned in the Wall with Cosmic Raptors around with the Totality that we have in our hand. She should have remained there forever but it seemed like that the Crack in Wall from both the sides is releasing her slowly from her banishment and as days go by she is getting her powers back."

"If the Hand is so powerful, then why don't we just call them and save ourselves." TRN-891 Tony asked.

"Sure. Do you have a phone number for them?" John asked in mockery. Tony got embarrassed by this counter question. They really didn't have any means to call them and pass them the information.

"Is there no way to contact these Judges?"

"Not that I know of. We can only pray and defend."

"This should have been the headache of their multiverse but now its the problem of both of the multiverse. I am not sure if the other multiverse knows of our existence. Presence should have alerted them of us by now. Its fine even its not, its not like we can pass the information easily."

"So there we have it. The whole history of the villain that we are going to face and if the Wall on our side breaks we might have help from the other multiverse."

There was total silence in the room. They expected the enemy to be powerful but they didn't expect that a person who could go against the creators of the multiverse would be their enemy. This was a whole new level and nobody was either trained or ready to face them.

Clark suddenly got an inspiration and asked

"John she is alone imprisoned in the Wall. Does she have an army or something? If not, there is no point in sending people who are not as powerful as us to the battlefield."

This suggestion made many of the people in the room a little uncomfortable. It was true many of the people present in the room aren't as powerful as their colleagues. Hawkeye and many others didn't even have any superpower.

"I know what you are asking Clark but she does have an enemy. And her soldiers are more demented than we can imagine." John said as he eyes Bruce Wayne when he answered. Only he knew what kind of army she was controlling and it couldn't be more fucked up.

John could have easily spilled about her army here but he left it for the series. The series would portray it better. John could already sense by looking at the Wall that they have 1 year more before hell breaks loose.

This year would be the last year of their preparations and they would have to make sure that everything was in place. His precognition had already started whispering that the upcoming journey would be filled with peril. But he was ready. He would wait a few more days for the update and if there was none, he would just spend all his fan values for bringing more people.