

Multiverse 711

Chapter 711: Going to the Wall (2)

"There is nothing we can do even if Owen can't be the guide. We will have to take this war to them or else any one universe will just crash and that will just snowball the rest of the multiverse. We can't save the infinite universes out there one by one in a year. The Wall is going to tear apart soon and it is better we take the war to them."

There was silence in the room. Nobody spoke of it but everyone knew that the War was coming. Some wanted to avoid it but they had forgotten or rather chose to forget that there was no escape from this.

"Who will accompany Owen in this mission."

"I will take the first step." John volunteered. He needed to see inside the Wall and make sure what he had known was actually real or was it just fictitious.

"I will go." Barry said as he got up. He had the speed force with him which would allow him to go at super fast speed and even change time if it is required.

"I will go too." Wanda said as she raised her hand. She had been studying, cultivating, and fighting all this time so that she could be helpful and be powerful as the counterpart of 616.

"I want to take Lucifer on this trip." John said as he asked for another person. Lucifer hasn't been in the meeting and he hardly shows up and tends to be at his home in LA and just bury his head under the thighs of Detective Decker.

But for this mission they needed someone who was in God level. So John specifically asked for him.

"Will he listen to you?" Wayne asked, still doubtful if Lucifer will agree.

"The threat to his family will be enough to get him from his bed."

"Good. Any more you want to take?" Wayne asked. They didn't refute the fact that John wanted to go. As OAA had said, his powers came from the Wall so his inclusion in the first attack was necessary.

But everybody couldn't go as there needed to be powerful people staying on the Earth and protecting them. And thus John made sure to bring one of the strongest teams for this. He didn't take any Shinigamis or Shinobis because he felt that it was not necessary and only reality bending powers would be enough.

In addition they would have Owen and Thanos. Going to the multiverse would be a toll on the body too so it was necessary to have a strong mind and will to handle the erosion. The Wall wasn't known as a prison just for fun.

"All in favor raise their hands." Clark asked as it was customary now. And surprisingly there was tie among all the members. The Shinigamis and the Kages didn't raise their hands as they felt a person from their team should leave. And some of their own Avengers members felt that there were less number of people in the team.

"So we are at an impasse." Wayne said.

"Who else wants to volunteer in this mission? I will not take any Shinigamis nor any Shinobis. We only need reality bending powers." John said. He didn't expect his decision of taking their own team would be challenged by some people. He wasn't angry about it. Rather he felt happy that many people genuinely felt that they needed more firepower.

"We have huge powers with us." Yamamoto refuted.

"You do. But this Wall is between us and Wayne's multiverse. Your presence here doesn't coincide with the two multiverses. We want to keep you as a hidden weapon."

Yamamoto was silenced by this. John was right the shinobis and the shinigamis were the hidden weapons of theirs and they needed to keep it that way until the main war.

"Take a mutant with you." Professor X said as he wore his helmet.

"Who is going to come for this mission?"

"Take Jean. She is still very powerful and has connections with the Phoenix Force ." Professor X suggested.

"Sure Jean will do." John said He would have liked the son of Professor X a.k.a. Legion but he was too unstable for their own good and he was still young. Another mutant he would have liked was Hope Summers but she wasn't born yet.

The mutants were still far away from their future dominance and there was still time for the Scarlet Witch of their world to make the 'immortal pond'. That was too OP and even in John's book such a thing shouldn't exist.

The existence of that 'pond' would just break realities and start another war.

"Good. Now all in favor?" Wayne asked. After this all had raised their hands signifying they had reached a decision.

"Get ready and tell Thanos to get his ass here soon. I will plant a bomb in his brain before he leaves. Any wrong move. He dies." Tony said.

Chapter 712: Going to the Wall (3)

The team was ready in 6 hours of which the last 4 hours was spent with John going to LA and convincing Lucifer to come out of his nest.

"I am not going to this bloody charade and the tea party that you have made."

"But Luci there are very few people who are as powerful as you out there. In addition your Father's interest is in this."

"Father? Father came to meet you?" Now Lucifer was interested when John mentioned that.

"Yes, a few months ago he came and visited us all and gave us a warning. He hopes we defend our realm and keep everyone safe."

"Since Father has come and gave you all his feet to kiss upon, why are you here? Go on. Off your God." Lucifer said while having no respect for his Father. His Father was the Presence of the DC universe and John was sure that if OAA had sons then he would beat the shit out of his son if he acted like this.

But it wasn't entirely Lucifer's fault. His Father really was responsible for many trauma that Lucifer suffered from.

"Luci. Listen to me. You and your wife won't even have a chance to fight if we give up and don't do things right." John finally couldn't take it anymore and had to use the system to make him a little obedient. He had been trying to convince him for a long time now and he was losing patience.

"Fine.. Fine.. I will go.. So much for Father who still hasn't shown his face." Lucifer complained.

"It will be fine. Who knows. After this you might have to sit in his position."

"What do you mean?"

"What do you think will happen if the Wall breaks apart? This will kill your Father." John reminded him.

"What? You never told me that. All you said was that the Wall was going to break."

"Now you know. We can only do so much and try to save what we can."

Lucifer now had a serious look on his face. He was fine and dandy all this time but the moment he came to know that his Father might die, it did affect him. No matter what, he did love his Father. Even after all the torture and trauma over these years.

In the depth of his soul he believed that he was responsible for what he was facing, after all he was naughty when he was young. And now he came to know that his Father might not be present after this war that John spoke of.

"You should have at least held a traffic sign above or something before you say such absurd things." Lucifer said.

"It is the truth, Luci. So now get your ass up and help me. Maybe there is something in the Wall that might save your Father."

"I will be ready in an hour. Just need to get my toothbrush and my towel." Lucifer said as he looked at Chloe who was sitting on the couch listening to them. She knew of nothing and was a little confused but she knew what Lucifer meant by Father.

The God Almighty.

So this thing was serious so she didn't interrupt. John after saying goodbye to Chloe vanished from his place and was back at Hall where he found everyone waiting. Waiting for Lucifer!!!

"Did that guy accept?" Wanda asked. She had known Lucifer from the Seireitei time and even asked him about the other forms of magic.

"Yeah, he will be here soon." John assured.

"Is he really the demon from Hell?" Barry couldn't help but ask.

"Yeah. Technically the son of God from your universe but he isn't as powerful as he is supposed to be." John said.

"Oww our God? That World War I guy? Hmm.. Even his son is here.. I guess he did send some help. Barry thought but he didn't speak his words out loud. After all, God was still the real God. He didn't want to offend anyone. As they were talking John saw Thanos sitting on the stairs on the doors of Hall.

He didn't enter the Hall. John could see the reason why he refused to enter the Hall. The Hall was the accumulation of all the heroes. Thanos knew he didn't deserve to walk inside. Few years before he might have not cared after all in his book he himself was the ultimate hero.

He was saving the universe from the demise of destruction and Celestials. But now he knew that the real heroes were the ones who defended their own freedom. Thanos was depriving the people of freedom.

He understood what freedom meant in that prison. Now he would have to go back to that same place. He had already done the mission and now even if he dies there he doesn't care.

The team was ready in 6 hours of which the last 4 hours was spent with John going to LA and convincing Lucifer to come out of his nest.

"I am not going to this bloody charade and the tea party that you have made."

"But Luci there are very few people who are as powerful as you out there. In addition your Father's interest is in this."

"Father? Father came to meet you?" Now Lucifer was interested when John mentioned that.

"Yes, a few months ago he came and visited us all and gave us a warning. He hopes we defend our realm and keep everyone safe."

"Since Father has come and gave you all his feet to kiss upon, why are you here? Go on. Off your God." Lucifer said while having no respect for his Father. His Father was the Presence of the DC universe and John was sure that if OAA had sons then he would beat the shit out of his son if he acted like this.

But it wasn't entirely Lucifer's fault. His Father really was responsible for many trauma that Lucifer suffered from.

"Luci. Listen to me. You and your wife won't even have a chance to fight if we give up and don't do things right." John finally couldn't take it anymore and had to use the system to make him a little obedient. He had been trying to convince him for a long time now and he was losing patience.

"Fine.. Fine.. I will go.. So much for Father who still hasn't shown his face." Lucifer complained.

"It will be fine. Who knows. After this you might have to sit in his position."

"What do you mean?"

"What do you think will happen if the Wall breaks apart? This will kill your Father." John reminded him.

"What? You never told me that. All you said was that the Wall was going to break."

"Now you know. We can only do so much and try to save what we can."

Lucifer now had a serious look on his face. He was fine and dandy all this time but the moment he came to know that his Father might die, it did affect him. No matter what, he did love his Father. Even after all the torture and trauma over these years.

In the depth of his soul he believed that he was responsible for what he was facing, after all he was naughty when he was young. And now he came to know that his Father might not be present after this war that John spoke of.

"You should have at least held a traffic sign above or something before you say such absurd things." Lucifer said.

"It is the truth, Luci. So now get your ass up and help me. Maybe there is something in the Wall that might save your Father."

"I will be ready in an hour. Just need to get my toothbrush and my towel." Lucifer said as he looked at Chloe who was sitting on the couch listening to them. She knew of nothing and was a little confused but she knew what Lucifer meant by Father.

The God Almighty.

So this thing was serious so she didn't interrupt. John after saying goodbye to Chloe vanished from his place and was back at Hall where he found everyone waiting. Waiting for Lucifer!!!

"Did that guy accept?" Wanda asked. She had known Lucifer from the Seireitei time and even asked him about the other forms of magic.

"Yeah, he will be here soon." John assured.

"Is he really the demon from Hell?" Barry couldn't help but ask.

"Yeah. Technically the son of God from your universe but he isn't as powerful as he is supposed to be." John said.

"Oww our God? That World War I guy? Hmm.. Even his son is here.. I guess he did send some help. Barry thought but he didn't speak his words out loud. After all, God was still the real God. He didn't want to offend anyone. As they were talking John saw Thanos sitting on the stairs on the doors of Hall.

He didn't enter the Hall. John could see the reason why he refused to enter the Hall. The Hall was the accumulation of all the heroes. Thanos knew he didn't deserve to walk inside. Few years before he might have not cared after all in his book he himself was the ultimate hero.

He was saving the universe from the demise of destruction and Celestials. But now he knew that the real heroes were the ones who defended their own freedom. Thanos was depriving the people of freedom.

He understood what freedom meant in that prison. Now he would have to go back to that same place. He had already done the mission and now even if he dies there he doesn't care.

Chapter 713: Going to the Wall (4)

After an hour of wait Lucifer was finally here but he came with Chloe. She had never been to the Ring and had never seen the famous Hall of Justice so she wanted to have a look. Lucifer teleported with her to the Ring.

She had sparkling eyes when she looked around, fascinated by what she saw. She got to see even the team that was going with her lover for the mission. She knew Barry, Wanda but she had never seen Jean before so she was new to her. Owen too was new. But the presence of Thanos was what surprised her.

She had seen him fighting the Avengers on Mars and that fight was apparently long before she came here so she was confused about why Thanos was here and he had weird extensions in his body with metallic parts attached to his arm and leg.

His body looked totally different and only his face which had scars now was apparent. Though she was confused she didn't ask. He trusted his lover and the Avengers.

"Welcome to the Ring, Luci." John said.

"The pleasure is mine. I brought my toothbrush, my towel and various bottles of whisky." Lucifer said, showing them his bag. Jean and Owen were surprised by his words. Owen had a little ugly face. He had read the Bible since his childhood and he was portrayed not in a very good way there.

So he was not sure if this guy could be trusted. History hasn't been good to him and neither was his behavior right now. John on the other hand didn't care. Lucifer always acted like that and he didn't care as long as he helped and he had spent 40 billions more to upgrade his power level. Last time in Hell he couldn't provide much power but this time it's different.

"The Harvester is on its way to pick us up." John said.

In a few minutes the huge spaceship was finally visible. It had been parked a little far away from Earth so that it didn't mess up with the rotation of the Earth and the other moons.

Everybody boarded the ship after it docked near the Ring and after waving their hands at the Hall, the exclusive team left. Many people had come to see them off from the Avengers. They didn't speak any word of encouragement and giving boost to the spirit. This war was just the start and the they have been working in shadows for a long time by killing Owen. This was just another mission.

But very few knew how terrible the Beyonders were. John had always spoken less of Beyonders. It was because he himself knew less of them. All he knew was that Doom was able to defeat the Beyonders with the help of Molecule Man. But he knew the horror of their strength. They defeated The Living Tribunal.

This was a huge feat and he needed to make sure he had all the cards at his hands. Now his own power had upgraded and this battle would be perfect to showcase what he had learnt. After the simple farewell the Harvester was on his way to regions outside the multiverse and it would take some time to reach there.

It was the first time for Lucifer and he looked like a kid who got a new toy. Since the Harvester was so big it had everything ranging from football fields to bars. And Lucifer went straight to bar.

"You cheeky bastard. You have been hiding this place from me for such a long time. If you had said that your spaceship had such places I would have come with you in a jiffy."

"No you wouldn't have. You still love your penthouse."

"Can't argue with that." Lucifer also nodded his head to that. His penthouse was really luxurious and he didn't want to part with it for a long time. Lucifer dove straight to the cellars to drink some whisky and surprisingly Thanos joined him in drinking some alcohol.

John could see that recently Thanos had been giving away his life to alcohol. And John wouldn't stop him. He had spent a majority of his life killing people. Now he was in his own prison. In a few hours they were finally at the place where many had been stationed all the time and under strict vigilance by the Green lanterns.

The Harvester docked with the old spaceship and they all came to the main ship to get their suits. John had ordered for manufacturing of suits suitable for the journey to the Wall a long back. Many had been built as they might need it if they ever go inside the Wall.

Now was one of those cases. Professor X of 616 was temporary leader of the group here with the Guardians. Since all were telepathic they had many things in common.

Chapter 714: The Promethean Giants

"Professor, are the suits ready?" John asked.

"Long ago my friend. You can take them.... My friend you have been a boon to us and this multiverse. Your powers have allowed us to have a fighting chance. Though we don't know what kind of beings we will be fighting against, at least we have the knowledge and the heart to come together and fight for a common cause."

John was little taken aback by those generous words of Professor. He did help the mutants of Earth 616 and their presence had now been accepted all over the planet. Surely there was racism but it had gone down a lot.

The disappearance of the Avengers proved too much for the civilians and the government and made them realize how lacking they were when it came to reality.

"It's sad to say but Peace never brings people together. Peace can only douse the fire for sometime but there is common hatred then humanity or any kind of species will look over their differences and come together. History has been observing it for a long time." John said.

"True. Only a common hatred can bring people together. It is unfortunate."

"Hatred is just any feeling, Professor. Nothing more. We as intelligent beings have both love and hatred. Both emotions are overwhelming and can be wielded to acquire more power. We just need to balance ourselves. And decide what is wrong or right. Even that notion of right and wrong is different for many people. Thanos here had a different notion from us. He is not wrong. Only thing was that he didn't have the power. We define right and wrong by our own definitions."

"You are right." Professor said and he too accepted the words of John. In the minds of the racist people they weren't wrong. They were afraid of mutants so trying to kill them was justified as right by them.

"Only strength has the right to speak and decide what is right and wrong. And here too we will have to do the same thing. Only strength can defeat our enemies and establish our own right." John said as he clenched his fist and finished wearing the suit.

The suit looked like it was Black Panther suit with no extra designs or any animal heads over their own head. It was a normal ninja-type suit with a sleek outline and a stretchy cloth. There was a mixture of vibranium and adamantium in the suit, thanks to the other two universes.

"Mike check.. 1..2..3.."

"All clear.."

"Professor we will be off. Pray for us that we come back." Barry said. He was still a little fearful of the world where no known human has stepped its foot in. Thanos was not a human so he didn't count him in his hand. It was good that Barry was just thinking of all this instead of saying out loud. There has been one human who was able to do this and come back alive too.

"Mr. Reese I hope you will be able to get the powers and help us in the war. A lot rides on your shoulders. I hope everyone will come back victorious." Professor said as the Guardians stood behind and bade their farewell. They had a serious face and they too, like others, hoped that the team would return victorious.

"I will try my best Professor Xavier." Reese said. Over the course of time he had got acquainted with all the members of the Avengers and now knew who was who.

With those last words all the members of the team flew away to the Wall. The crack was now as huge as the size of a solar system. From the crack the prisoners who were struck inside could be seen easily now. Their sizes were just as the same sizes of the Celestials.

"These are the Promethean Giants, the vanguards of Perpetua." John said as he could easily see the huge bodies being stuck in their places, unable to move. Though there was a crack in the Wall and Thanos had gone before, it didn't mean any one could just move.

The Promethean Giants weren't really that powerful and were the first to be imprisoned.

"Time to dive in." John said as he reached near the crack and took a deep breath. All this time he had been in his familiar territory. This step would be his first step to a place where he had no idea about.

A place where there were only legends.

"Be alert. safeguard your team and yourselves and especially Owen. Thanos you are responsible for him. We need to reach the Beyonders fast and without making much noise. You are already a fugitive in the eyes of Perpetua so if he finds you we will be dead. Did you mask your presence?"

"Doctor Strange has covered my body with Asgardian runes to make sure that nothing can flow away from my body."

Chapter 715: Omega Titans

"Good. Let's go!" John said as he went straight inside the crack. Following him, the others went inside the crack. Professor X and others were all watching this with a sigh. The video was also sent to the Avengers on the multiverse. Wayne had a dignified face when he saw that. There was nothing they could do and only pray for the best.

"We should have sent more people on this expedition." Clark came from behind and said to Wayne who was watching the video.

"They are the most powerful people this multiverse has to offer. One has immense life force, one has immense speed, one knows witchcraft and magic and the other who can use telekinesis. They are strong and capable enough to protect and bring the power that John has predicted."

"I hope so." Tony said as he too was looking at the video with a grave face. Nobody spoke of what would happen if they died or never came back. It wasn't that they hadn't thought about it, it was just that they didn't want to think of this extreme result.

Meanwhile John and others had finally entered the legendary Source Wall and truth to be told everyone was a little afraid. Especially Thanos. John was pretty sure he saw him sweat a bit and a small shake in his legs.

John could already feel the total difference from the multiverse. In the multiverse he could always use his godly powers provided by Phoenix but here he could already feel that his reality bending powers have been oppressed by various degrees.

"Wanda, can you still do Chaos Magic?" John couldn't help but ask her.

"I can but not with the same proficiency when I am at home." John sighed when he got the answer.

"Barry? Any problem?"

"No, I am still the same. Maybe because the Speed Force exists on both the sides of the Wall." Barry suggested.

"It doesn't matter now. We have to search for the Beyonders." Jean recalled as she could also feel that her power level had dropped but there was nothing they could do. They were in foreign land and they would die if they got out of their suits, so it was acceptable that their power levels had gone down.

Owen on the other hand was looking at the Promethean Giants standing with a T-Pose and stuck in their places. They couldn't move. The Giants were totally new to Owen. He had visited many different places on his journey to the multiverse but he had never seen Giants before.

He had only seen them on TV and of course they had seen 2 from the Earth when Galactus and Arishem came. It was later that Owen came to know of them when he was journeying with the Avengers. Just the sheer fact that there was a giant somewhere who eats planets and galaxies was spine chilling for him.

"These are the armies of Perpetua?" Owen asked.

"It is supposed to be. She had made a species which was a combination of humans and martian genes. But that came later as these Giants were her first army. Now they are just useless relics. I don't think she will even use them." John said as he knew Perpetua was too arrogant to use her old toys just because she was on the failing side.

Even during her fight against an ultimate nemesis she refused to ask for help though she knew that she was dying. Perpetua was surely a problem for everyone but she was defeatable. But she wasn't the only enemy in this regard.

Owen prayed that what John said was the truth. They were flying past these Giants and making as little noise as possible. They didn't need to be silent here as these statues wouldn't come to life but they still wanted to be as discreet as possible. They flew past dozens of these Giants one by one. After the fear of the first few ones, they later got accustomed to it.

They understood that these statues wouldn't come to life no matter what. But that notion soon was shattered when they reached the end where there were no more Giants. As they crossed rows of these Promethean Giants, they were stopped by 4 massive Giants.

The word massive was used here because their sizes were at least 2.5 times more than the regular Promethean Giants. These 4 Giants were huge and their armor looked totally different from the other 3. Each of the Gaints was unique in their own way and John could already feel that each one of them had massive power and strength.

John knew of them. The supposed jailers of the Source Wall.

The 4 Omega Titans. The 4 were named as Mystery, Wonder, Entropy and Wisdom.

Chapter 716: Omega Titans (2)

John now had a dignified face when he saw them. He was hoping that these 4 would be on the multiverse after the crack on the wall from the other side or be dead according to the comics. But it seemed he was hoping for too much.

The DC multiverse had already been in chaos and he had no knowledge of why it was like that. But now there was no point in thinking about this. They would have to fight these big guys before they could move further and that too without awakening Perpetua.

"How bold of you to come from the multiverse, outsiders." Wisdom said with a loud voice. The voice seemed very old and it was spoken with authority. John thought they could say that had belonged to the Source Wall and was moving around but Wisdom's words broke all of that dream.

"Speak outsiders!! or I will kill you like I killed the last one."

"Last one? There was another person who came before me? Thanos? But he was back. So there was another person who had come. From the DC multiverse? Who? Braniac? Only he knows of Omega Titans. Did he get killed? It is better if he is dead." John's mind was racing fast and was thinking of all the possibilities from the words of Wisdom and Entropy.

"Aah these abominable creations. With big heads come big brains with no intelligence." Lucifer spat out but not very loudly. It was good that he spoke in low volume and used his powers to not let these 4 Giants here.

"Dead Titans, we are not here to cause problems or wreak havoc. We are just here to bring Owen to the Beyonders. You see, his powers came from Beyonders and he asked to meet his makers. For this reason we came here." John said and he used all his power including his powers from Gilgamesh and Phoenix to make himself more approachable.

"The Beyonders?" The Giants became silent when John said that. They were sure that these outsiders had come for some purpose and it wasn't as simple as just meeting the Beyonders who were a race of arrogant species who thought that they were above anyone else and could play with anyone as they wished for.

The Titans themselves didn't like them and didn't want anything to do with them. The Titans then looked at Owen and they could really feel the same power as the Beyonders. But they weren't sure if what this person said was the truth.

"Even if it's true with what you said there is no proof. He might come for the Beyonders but you aren't. So we can only detain you." Mystery said with a menacing voice. They didn't want to violate the rules of the Source Wall even if the Wall now wasn't in a good shape.

"But we are not here to commit any sin." Lucifer said with a little annoyed tone. He wanted to finish the job and go back home but there was already an obstacle. He didn't like it one bit.

"No matter the reason. You will have to listen to us." Wonder said. John and others had an ugly face. If they fight against these Giants they would have to expose their powers. The more powers they showed the more Perpetua would be attracted.

"Luci, can you make a huge planet?" John asked Lucifer. John had read the comics so he knew how to counter attack these 4 beings. Though they were brothers and sisters, they competed against each other since the dawn of the multiverse. And this competition could be used as a leverage against them.

"Now come with us." Mystery said as he used his huge hands to swoop and catch the ants that had arrived from the multiverse. But surprisingly when he pulled back his hands he saw none of the outsiders were caught.

John and Lucifer used their teleporting powers to escape the hands of Mystery with Owen, Jean and Thanos. Barry could run easily so he didn't need their help.

"You ants. How dare you escape my hands." Mystery said with anger. the other Titans too now got serious. They didn't see how they escaped Mystery's hands. Mystery had only one eye on his head but it was a huge one and also had an arc reactor type hole on his chest. So he looked like one-eyed Iron Man.

Seeing that these outsiders escaped from their hands he charged his hollow chest and was ready to hit these outsiders with his 'chest cannon'

"Wait.. Wait, we are not here to fight. We just want to go and meet the Beyonders." Owen now shouted. He hadn't spoken a bit since he came here but he could feel that these Titans were hesitant to touch him. He could feel their disgust and fear.

Chapter 717: Omega Titans (3)

"We don't care." Mystery said as he blasted at the outsider team with his full force. At this point he didn't care and neither did the other Titans. They have been here since the dawn of time and nothing could faze them. They had seen too much to care about small things and especially not for someone who claimed to be from the Beyonders.

No matter what the Titans were kind of jailers here and they did have high authority granted to them by the Hand. John and others had to dodge the attack of Mystery.

"Fuck!!" Lucifer screamed as he dodged.

"John.. Ideas." Barry asked as he took Thanos in his arms and ran fast to dodge the canon. Everyone else was able to dodge but only Wanda got a little affected by the canon. Mystery was a powerful being and it was not easy. It was good that the suit worked like Black Panther's suit and she released the energy stored on her suit immediately. There is a limit of how much kinetic energy a suit can store.

John wanted the anti metal suit but even with the finest minds of the Multiverse but if they sued the anti-metal, then they would lose the protection that adamantium brought. At the end they scrapped the plan of using anti-metal and went for Vibranium and Adamantium.

Wanda had to punch her hand in the air in order to release the stored energy.

"Wanda, are you alright?" John asked as he flew to her side.

"I am fine. How to stop them?" Wanda asked.

"Luci, are you ready?"

"You goddamn right I am. They almost ruined my high priced suit." Luci said as he started chanting some ancient words from his mouth. The Titans, seeing that the attack of Mystery too didn't work, were a little surprised. Mystery had used his cannon which had its own homing sense and would obliterate a person when it touches the opponent.

But these people avoided the attack and the girl even took the force and was able to come out unscathed.

"Who are you?" Wonder asked now with curiosity. Wonder the embodiment of advancement and dreams so she was curious.

"We will be your doom." Luci said as he had finished chanting, and before the Titans could realize what was happening, there was a sudden emergence of a small ball right between the Titans and the team.

The ball, which looked like it was made of mud, started to grow larger with a terrifying pace. And in the blink of an eye, the small ball had grown the size of a planet. The planet looked like a green one and there were all kinds of flora and fauna on it.

Yes, John had asked Lucifer to make a lifelike planet. A planet which didn't have any sentient life and on it and only thing it had was ocean and vast lands of trees. John knew that they couldn't kill the Titans.

And even if they do manage to kill the Titans, it will just alert Perpetua. It was still not time to fight her. So they went for the next big thing. Make a planet and let them fight.

The Titans were supposed to plant cosmic seeds and when the cosmic seeds grew into a tree the 4 Omega Titans would then judge whose tree was bigger and then the Titan whose tree was the largest would proceed to feed over the planet.

This had been their way of competition since the beginning of time in the multiverse, and it was still the same. And thus John decided to ask Lucifer to make a huge planet. A planet that could easily sustain 4 Godly trees and trigger the competition between them.

John wasn't sure if their hunger for a planet was bigger or their conviction to destroy the outsiders were bigger. If this didn't work John had already decided to get access to Speed Force for sometime and just run away with Barry. Here teleportation wasn't working as easily as he could do in the multiverse.

The planet stopped growing after it had grown to the size of Saturn.

"Titans, don't you want to compete against each other and see who di... I mean whose tree is bigger and then consume the planet. I have read about this in one of the books that the Omega Titans have been fighting n this for a long time. So here we give you a planet which has all the resources to plant your cosmic seeds. And then compete on this. How about you take this planet and let us go to the Beyonders."

The Titans who were already in defensive mode since the ball of the planet had emerged was dumbfounded by the words of John. They couldn't make head and tail of it.

Chapter 718: The journey

"What?... What did you say?" Wonder was trembling when John spoke those words. Like him all the others were shaking by the words of John. Any unknown person would think these 4 were shaking in anger but John knew that these 4 were just excited.

When the Source Wall broke for the first time and they were released, the first thing that these Titans did was find 4 planets which was alive and planet cosmic seeds. Brainiac (I don't think I need to introduce him) made 4 different teams made up of the Justice League and the villains to stop these 4.

And they were successful in stopping them. One of the brothers was devoured by the three, the one who was able to win the competition. Though they were successful in stopping the destruction of the planets by the Titans, they lost one of the Titans.

And this loss leads to the imbalance among them. As the stories go. when the Justice League and the Lanterns convinced the Titans to return and repair the Wall, Brainiac and the Sinestro attacked the Titans.

This led them to their death and the ultimate destruction of the Source Wall. Brainiac had been manipulating the JL to create imbalance among the Titans so that the Source Wall could be broken and Perpetua could be released who had already been whispering in the ears of Lex.

Lex was supposed to be the champion of Perpetua, but that didn't last long. And she found a new champion which led to her doom at the end.

"You heard me right. This planet is a gift for you 4 and challenge each other. You can grow your cosmic seeds here and decide who is better. And in turn all we want is to leave us. We have an important mission." John pleaded. He didn't want to fight not because they couldn't win, but because their win would just trigger more problems and they didn't need one at the moment.

The 4 Titans were silent at the moment. They were highly tempted by the offer. Wonder even licked his lips and imagined them competing for the right to eat such a juicy planet.

"We will accept your offer." Mystery said without consulting his siblings.

"Hey we haven't talked..."

"I mean..."

"Yes yes we accept the deal."

John had a smile on his face and so did others. Even Thanos was a little dumbfounded by this. He had suffered a bit in journey to the Source Wall. If not for some instruments he had from TVA, he would have died under the hands of the 4. But now it seemed like a planet was able to close the deal.

"This is unbelievable." Thanos murmured under his breath. He had heard about John being the 'son' of the Source Wall. Now he finally understood why he was called that by TVA and why they were afraid of him.

Lucifer also sighed in relief when he heard that. He didn't want to spend his energy on making another planet. Changing reality here was not easy. He would rather fight the Titans than make another planet.

Without caring about the presence of outsiders they lowered and resized themselves on the planet. They stepped on the land and began making their own cosmic seeds in 4 different places on the planet.

"Phew!! I thought we would have to fight these people." Wand said as she sighed in relief.

"They forgot about their hatred the moment they got our gift. What a bunch of ungrateful people." Barry murmured.

"Let's go, before they change their minds." Owen said as he flew away followed by others. They didn't want to entangle more with these Giants.

And thus their journey continued.

"I can feel the power of the Beyonders. They are far away." Owen said.

"Good. Thanos, take the lead. We will follow." John ordered. Thanos didn't mind the fact that he was being used as bait for the enemies and figured out traps in this blank space while they were on their way to their destination.

Getting close to their enemies might not be easy, but then again, the Beyonders wouldn't think that someone would attack them. And thus the mindless journey started for hours and hours.

They came across statues and even live statues where the Giants could talk and move, but couldn't move away from their place. Barry, being a curious guy, went and talked with them. Some of them were friendly while others were very grumpy and bloodthirsty.

In their journey to the Beyonders, they found the famous cosmic raptors. John knew that there was only one Cosmic raptor. But here there were many.

"What the hell is going on?" John saw that the Cosmic raptors were laying half dead or were on the verge of death. He shuddered by the sights. Black blood was flowing out of their body and it looked like a bloody battle had ensued. Thanos who was leading the team had tears in his eyes when he saw this.

He had never been overwhelmed like this before when he saw this scene.

Chapter 719: Cosmic Raptor

Cosmic couldn't be identified as a Raptor actually. At most it could be called a huge black and shiny falcon. The size would be equivalent to that of a Giant. And its main function was to look over Perpetua to make sure that she never escapes.

But here it was, dead and couldn't die any more. John was surprised that the Raptor could actually bleed from its cosmic type body. He had already accepted their death the moment Thanos came back saying that Perpetua had escaped. What he didn't expect was the death of multiple Raptors.

That was where his confusion was. There should be only one Cosmic raptor. Why were there multiple and that too dead.

"Barry, you are a crime scene investigator. Find what you can. Our omnipotence doesn't work on minute levels." John said. He needed to know what happened. Each and every body of the raptors looked different now because the cuts and damages on their body was different.

Some raptors were burned to death. Some had their eyes and their skull blown. Some had been killed by what looked like three blades just like the claws of Wolverine. It was all a mess. Barry was checking each and everyone of the raptors and it was taking time. Since they had been travelling for quite a long time, they decided to rest a bit further from the crime while Barry checked on the bodies.

John felt sad looking at the Raptors. They have been stuck here since the first rebellion of Perpetua. Though it seemed like there were multiple Raptors there were still slaughtered so brutally.

"Who are these and why are you interested?" Jean couldn't help but ask. John proceeded to speak about their origins. They were surprised by the story of John and understood why John was so interested. After 3 hours of examination, Barry came back with a gloomy look.

"Lay it on me, Barry."

"The bodies are weird. Some of them are killed by cosmic powers. That is normal since it is apparent that some of them are killed by her. But some of them are killed by magic. Magic elements that are similar to you and Strange. I have been in the SHIELD crime scene division all this time so I have been researching on identifying and separating elements from the magic of two kinds. But some of the bodies have two elements together. Some of the bodies are definitely killed by adamantium claws like Logan. Some are using lasers and I can bet that a Kryptonian has done it. There are other bodies which show signs that they were killed by people of both the multiverse."

John and other's faces got dignified when he said that. If the killing was done just by the people from the DC multiverse, he would attribute the death to the people from the Dark Multiverse. But what the hell is up with powers that came from their multiverse. And that too fighting together.

"Thanos did you meet any weird thing or people that might have come from our multiverse when you came the first time."

Thanos shook his head in denial. He was on a search mission. A mission to acquire more information though it derailed to something else in the end, he was here for quite a long time and he didn't meet any one of such power.

"What the hell is going on?" John now was really confused and for the first time in this lifetime he felt like his knowledge had no use here.

How could people from his own multiverse could cross and make friendships with the other multiverse and that too kill the raptors. They killed thoroughly, meaning it was their intention from the start and they came to slaughter.

"I don't know but I double checked everything and I am pretty sure of my investigation."

"Do you want to take the bodies away?" Owen suggested as he too felt that it was very weird. Over the past few months he had come to know of many secrets and stories so he was up to date. As a former police officer he suggested that they should take away the bodies for further inspection.

"Good." Lucifer too accepted. He had always known of the raptors but seeing their death he too felt a chill up his spine. Killing so many raptors who were sent by the Hand and still failing to do their job meant the enemy was super powerful.

"We need to get out of here. We are not strong or powerful enough to stop Perpetua and her weird army here. If they come back, it will be very problematic to run away." Jean said.

"Yes. Take the bodies and leave. Barry..."

"On it..." Barry said as he ran around while gathering the dead bodies. John took out his amulet and stored the bodies inside.

Chapter 720: Beyonders

It took a few minutes to finish collecting the huge bodies of the raptors. Everyone had a gloomy face as they continued their journey and their speed had notched up a bit after this incident. Nobody talked after this and they couldn't wait to finish the Beyonders and be on their way. They needed to spread this information.

After another day of relentless journey and running, they finally reached the place where the Beyonders were located. A separate mini dimension on the Wall. A dimension which looked like an ancient Roman Hall. There were straight and smooth pillars being built as the support for the hall inside.

"Do these superpowers live in a Hall? Don't they have a home or something?" Jean was confused.

"What a boring life they have." Lucifer commented.

"It doesn't matter if they like living like this or not. Owen you will first enter and attack. I will give you the amulet and take it inside. The moment you start your attack, call us out." John said as he gave his amulet to Owen.

Owen could already do magic and calling them out would be fairly easy for him.

"So you are thinking of a sneak attack. That's dirty."

"We need to finish this as fast as possible without making too much noise."

After Owen took the helmet everyone vanished from their place and entered the amulet. Thanos too had come inside and everyone was welcomed by Hela. She was still chained here. Much later Hela was taken outside for sightseeing and showed her new sister and brothers who had changed.

Hela didn't believe at first when John first said that her brother was now more powerful than her, and so Thor had to come and beat her down multiple times to let her believe. Of course he couldn't kill her as her life force was attached with Asgard.

As long as Asgard was alive she wouldn't die until and unless someone separates the line that attaches her and Asgard together. John didn't think it was required and being alive would be more of a punishment for her.

So here she was, being chained and never to see the light of any sun in her lifetime. When Thanos came inside he was surprised to see Hela here. On his invasion of multiple planets he had heard a lot about her and her conquest a long time ago.

In a way, he admired her. But now, her presence just reminded him of his past and his foolishness. Without giving her any attention, all moved on a different floating island waiting for Owen to call them. They were ready to battle at any moment.

Thanos was checking his weapon and guns. Tony had provided him with lots of weapons, both cold and hot, in the hopes that he would be helpful for the team.

"Beyonders have all the powers I can have and all the powers any God can have but they have only one weakness but this is very hard to exploit." John spoke.

"What is it?" Wand asked in curiosity.

"They are liners. It means they can't move back or forward in time. Any time related powers would be extremely detrimental to them. Of course the use of Owen is on the top but time is their nemesis."

"But I don't have time related powers." Jean said

"Wanda, Lucifer and I can use time related powers like the power of ageing on them and they wouldn't be able to escape this cycle. Jean will be our support and Thanos, you need to make sure none escape. If any one escapes, you need to inform us." John said as their omnipotence had no use here. Thanos nodded his head. He was self aware of how powerful he was.

Meanwhile John had worn his helmet of Fate. It had been some time since he wore it. His reality bending powers were enough to do his work. But now he needed all the weapons in his arsenal.

He brought out Sul-Sagna from his vault and kept it in his hand. And then he looked at his omnitrix. The moment he would be called he would change to Alien X and fight. The Beyonders were able to kill all the abstract beings and Gods easily so he wasn't that arrogant to think that he was infinitely better than the Gods of their multiverse.

He had an edge for sure over them for sure due to various tricks but here there were multiple Beyonders. John and others were waiting patiently waiting for the call. This fight would determine if their multiverse would survive the first attack.

If they lose here, they would have to flee for a long time. John knew what might happen if the Beyonders succeeded but he didn't want to think about it.