

Multiverse 731

Chapter 731: Assembling the Gods

After 6 hours of travel John and others were back at the Ring. John had a long sleep along the way and a satisfying one. He looked relieved a bit when he stepped his foot at the Ring. Since everyone had recuperated on their way here, everyone from the mission was called to the Hall.

As John entered the Hall he could see the gloomy atmosphere in the room. On the way Batman and others had spoken with his team so he had a vague idea of what was going to happen and how much time they had. 10 months was not fine. Even an infinite time was not fine because there were infinite universes out there and finding each and every Owen will just be a dream.

But none of the others spoke a thing as John took his seat with the others nor did they blame him for the decision he took to leave Dark Claw. The terrorists could never be trusted but John couldn't just take the gamble on the multiverse. None would be able to take it.

"There was a rumor that long ago, there was a war between our multiverse and Wayne's multiverse. The best heroes of both the worlds were chosen and were made to fight against each other for supremacy and to see who was better than the other. So in order to counter it the Spectre and the Living Tribunal came together to make an universe. An Universe unique to its own. An universe which has people that has characteristics of both the multiverse."

John finally spoke about the legends that he had read to others. On his way he didn't speak of the origin of that unique universe and thus he needed to make it clear to everyone as everyone was anxious.

"This is a lie. I have never made any such universe." A voice from the door came . Everyone moved their heads to see who was brave enough to enter such a high profile place without GAIA informing them. But when the people saw their faces none of them went to speak up against their new guests.

Some of the people here had met these existences before and those who had come across them, they were given prior notice about them. The people present were surprised that these abstract beings had shown up. Many of them guessed that it was John who might have asked for their presence in the meeting.

They were the Living Tribunal, Death, Oblivion, In-Betweener, Eternity and Infinity. They were in human heights as opposed to being the normal giants that they were. Even though they were the same heights as average humans, their facial features were the same, so everyone who was up to speed with the abstract beings of the multiverse had an idea of who they were.

"Welcome to the Ring, esteemed guests." Clark got up from his seat and greeted. Everyone in the room got up from their seats and greeted them too as no matter what, they were the Gods of their multiverse. Their multiverse was alive and fine because of their existence.

"Thanks for being so hospitable." Infinity said in her feminine voice and took an empty seat which was just made for them. Everyone got to sit except for Death as giving her anything would just make it crumble.

Death gave a deep glare to each of the abstract beings but there was nothing that she could do to change it. He would have to just stand at her place and not be awkward in front of everyone.

"I didn't make any such universe which has characteristics of both multiverses." the Living tribunal spoke again with his deep voice. Except for Infinity none of the abstract beings spoke another word and it was apparent that only the Living Tribunal had the lean to speak up here.

Last time they spoke because John was a special entity and there were not many people present, but here there were representatives from different multiverses and it would not fit well to speak much in the presence of the mortals.

"I know and as I said before that it was just a rumor. I have no clue about how this universe came into being and that too in the Wall. But one of them definitely has the characteristics of both the multiverse. Assuming that what I have dreamt about is true then their universe is really special and they have the powers joined together."

"So what are we being threatened with?" The Living tribunal asked.

"We have been given 10 months to live." John replied.

"What?"

"Yes. But it's not absolute. There is a way to escape this predicament. You must have known that Owen here has been travelling the multiverse and killing his counterparts. It's because Owen's power comes from Beyonders. But essentially Owen is a time bomb made by the Beyonders. If we kill each and every Owen that is powered by the beyonders in the infinite universe out there we should be safe for the time being." John said as that was his plan.

Chapter 732: Plans

"Who gave that timeline?" Death was seething in her place when she roared. The surrounding floor and things were decaying fast as she was seemingly very agitated. Many people present in the Hall gulped down seeing the anger of her. And even the other Gods were angry. The In-Betweeners were looking at John with glaring eyes. His eyes seemed to be saying that this debacle was because of John. But he didn't dare to say it out loud.

The presence of the Living Tribunal and OAA's promise of full rule over the Gods to John was threatening enough. Even Infinity spoke to him before and warned him not to make any rash decisions or else none of the Gods would be able to save him.

"The person who is the head of the said Universe can be said as a combined version of me and Dr. Strange. He might not have all the powers that we have but he definitely is a master of sorcery and magic." John said as he finally spoke of Dr. Strange. Then John explained everyone present of the Universe that is supposed to be and the dangers.

"In the end they threatened us with 10 months. I have called you here because we will need your help to kill or displace the Owen that are left in the multiverse into any other planet excluding Earth. Earth is the center of the universe of the multiverse and destruction of a single Earth will just lead to the collapse of the multiverse."

"First tell me, why the hell will you let an enemy slip through your fingers?" In-Betweeners asked in a glaring tone.

"If I haven't done that, they would have triggered Owen and it would have led to the fast collapse instead of the buffer time we have now." John wasn't angry because of the question of In-Betweeners. He had another headache to bear rather than entertain a self-glorified God.

"Why did they even bother to give us such a timeline? Giving us 10 months means we will be able to avert it." The Living Tribunal was confused. Those who had a general idea of how the psychology of the villains work would be easily able to discern that something was wrong here.

Giving them 10 months was too long. And that too just for saving one person from their Universe. It was understandable that Dark Claw was an important person in their universe. But any villain would easily choose to sacrifice one of his pawns easily to secure his ambition and dream.

So why the 10 months for Dark Claw?

"Maybe even if we save the multiverse we are doomed." 616-Reed finally put his thoughts and the thoughts of others on the table. They got a general idea of what was going to happen and they had already expected the worst.

There was a sombre environment in the room after Reed said that. Even John was expecting that. Their multiverse was doomed and no matter what after the break of the Wall, nothing would remain the same. All they could do was wait and see how it pans out.

"So even if we save the multiverse from claws of Beyonders we might all go straight to destruction?"

"It seems like it." John said.

"We can't think of this right now. We need to take one step at a time." Clark said to calm the nerves of everyone present. If the people present in the room weren't strong minded it might have led to panic or other forms of violence. Nobody in their right minds would like to hear that their world, their life, their existence in all forms would soon come to an end no matter the struggle.

It was good that only the strong and worthy people were sitting at the Hall now and none of the conversation would ever be public or else there would be public outrage and collapse of society.

"You need us to kill the Owens?" Death asked, finally thinking of the main point that they needed to tackle right now.

"We can't go to each universe and kill Owen. So I would ask for help from the Living Tribunal, Eternity and Death to be the judge, jury and executioner for this project." John said.

"I can't kill people. I am only the protector of life." Eternity said with a bland emotionless tone.

"I know and so for this reason I asked for Death's interference. Eternity can search for Owen and the Living Tribunal can be the judge. If you need any help or people from us, we would be ready to provide people." John pitched his idea of how to handle the various versions of Owen out there.

"Fine. We will take some of the guys here for help." Death said as she made a sound with her tongue inside the mask. Everyone got a chill in their spines with that sound alone.

Chapter 733: Plans (2)

"Those who are in favor of this plan please nod." The Living Tribunal said and all of the three heads that were attached to his head nodded along with the main head. The Living Tribunal has 3 heads and each head had a different name and function so in order to reach a consensus.

The other abstract beings too nodded their heads and everyone reached the same decision. Even In-Betweener too agreed to it.

"So we will deal with Owen. What about Dr. Strange fate?" Infinity asked as like others she was concerned for the multiverse.

"That is the second reason why I had called you here. What do you want us to do or rather what can we all do together? Do we launch an attack on the Wall to bring him down or wait for the Wall to break on its own and then attack with all our strength." John said.

Wayne and others too were silent on this. Owen was not a problem after John confronted Dark Claw. He knew that there are many universes out there but it would be very easy for Owens to die. He just needed a nod from Death and Eternity. With the multiversal omniscience of Eternity and the power to kill and destroy everything with the help of Death.

This would be a walk in the park for them, of course they would have to agree to do that at the beginning which John was sure that he would be able to convince. In fact John had a feeling that giving him 10 months would be a win for John and this statement was also known by Dr. Strange fate.

It's just that John was confused about why his counterpart would allow them to have the headstart when he knew that he would fail. or maybe he didn't know that OAA had given John full reigns and was still thinking that they would be helpless like Doctor Doom.

If he was thinking that they would be helpless like Doom then it meant that Dr. Strange had didn't have omniscience like John was expecting him to have. That would be great news for John and others. But if it wasn't then it meant that he had some other plans, probably more dangerous than John had any idea about. Or others for that matter.

Everyone now was contemplating what should be done and what they could do. Finally it was Orochimaru who stood up and spoke in his own snake-like hiss.

"We can send some ninjas and shinigamis to the Wall for scout operation. If they could return with more intelligence then it would be better."

Orochimaru was the captain of one of the stealth teams so he had enough hold to speak up on the meeting. And what Orochimaru said was sensible. John was also thinking the same. Sending a small throw away team for reconnaissance was possible and it could be done with no casualties of high level members.

Though it sounded harsh, for John it didn't really matter. These were his summons and if required he could always bring them to life. So John was up for it, but of course all the abstract beings and the Avengers would have to give a green signal to it. And for that he wouldn't manipulate their decision. Sending a scouting team in itself was a big thing and he didn't want to take any wrong step here.

Especially now, when he has no idea of what the future will be like.

"Then we will have to make a team with enough power to go into the Wall and come back with results." Byakuya said. Though the kages and shinigamis were ready to accept the death of the underlings, not all of the Avengers were ready for this. Especially Captain America and Clark. In the beginning itself they were not okay with armies being made and trained for war.

But they also knew that this was necessary. Though they had an ugly face while this discussion started they didn't oppose it. At the end the fate of the multiverse was at stake.

After everyone agreed with sending the team, they started making plans of how to approach that universe and what equipment they required. Especially Reed. During their last voyage inside the Wall, Reed and his team was able to get many data from their suit and was now actively trying to make a device which might allow them to communicate from inside the Wall. Though the research was just a few hours old, his intellect has helped him research it fast.

"When should we send the team? Before the massacre of Owen or after?" Wayne asked.

"The killings will take a month as there are many universes. Not all deserve death and many would be displaced from their home. Those who will be displaced, we will try to cure them or give them to our Owen. Others will be killed." Death said.

Chapter 734: Plans (3)

Clark gave out a sigh when Wayne and others came to this decision. He had been trying not to spill blood when they carried out their missions and work but there was nothing that could be done to avoid it.

After all the the existence of the multiverse took precedence.

Orochimaru then pitched the idea of how his small but effective team would proceed and take action. John and others gave pointers on what to avoid in their search and mask their presence. Reed would help them with a better suit.

The discussion went on for one more hour with the Living Tribunal's promise that before the team leaves he would personally give some powers to the team for their protection and hope of successful return.

After the discussion, everyone went for their own work while John just went home with Emma. Emma was given leave from the Green Lantern Corps and being the senior most officer and the Corps have finally expanded to a huge number she was give the sector which belonged to Earth. Hal Jordan and Emma W Jameson would be the new protectors of the sector.

Earth has been the hot bed for troubles in recent times so while on the Harvester, the Guardians had decided to ramp up the protection of Earth and it's sector. Though Oa always has an army at its disposal, the army was mostly made of robots and new Lantern recruits. Having a senior officer was much better.

John took a day off after his return. Even his dad felt that something was wrong with his son, so he came to the House to pay a visit. Though John didn't elaborate the problems, he too could feel that the Avengers have encountered a tough opponent.

But he didn't give any advice. The least John needed now was advice. He had enough of that in his life. What he needed now was just assurance that everything would be alright. Even Phoenix, who didn't like to speak much, had come out and told John to man up and just face the world instead of trying to save everything and relying on his dream-like powers.

Though John did understand that he still wanted to save everyone. He didn't want a battleworld like situation after the break of the multiverse. Though he would have enough power by then to restart the multiverse with the help of Franklin Richards (son of Reed Richards, one of the most powerful mutants if not the most powerful mutant, he essentially restarted the multiverse with the help of Owen after God Doom died. So he is responsible for the new continuity of Marvel multiverse that we are seeing and reading now).

But it would mean the death of the existing multiverse and restarting everything. 99.9% of the people would not even remember what had happened and they would be easily brought back. But those who do remember the previous death, they would be scarred for life. And John wanted to avoid that. The pain, the death of trillions of people.

And now if the the Wall breaks in the future, they wouldn't even know if restarting the multiverse was possible or not. So John wanted to avoid this by any chance possible.

And killing this new sorcerer would be the start. They had a few months for preparation and then they would be ready to launch the war that would define their existence. Jameson had no idea of how deep the waters were for the Avengers but he hoped that everything would be back to normal as soon as possible.

"Son, do we need to alert the people of the Earth and the galaxy?" Jameson asked. Now Earth was in contact with many sentient life forms in the universe and in fact the Milky Way galaxy was the playground of Earth right now. The World Council had been expanding their reach like crazy and due to the indulgence of the World Council on this, SHIELD had more freedom to work than before.

In fact SHIELD had even asked for help from the Soul Society in recruiting members and John had allowed that to happen. SHIELD was always under the control of John.

"No, saying anything would just trigger a panic. And no amount of help would remedy the situation we are facing right now." Emma gave no even before John could reject such an idea of informing people to be armed.

"Alright. If you do need any help, ask me. I maybe old and senile but I can manipulate people more than you kid." Jameson said with a laugh.

"I don't manipulate people." John denied and lied meanwhile.

"I am the father. Father of the famous John Jameson. Who are you lying to?" Jameson laughed and walked out without listening to John. John just smiled at it. Jameson had always known that his son has always manipulated things and people around in order to have a peaceful life. And he wasn't against it. As long as it didn't hurt anyone.

Chapter 735: The last series

After a week or so John had calmed down and was looking forward to new things in life. And John got this motivation because he had brought a new set of people into this world. The people who he had always idolized his whole previous life from his favorite anime.

When John was sent to the marvel world, one of his early regrets was that he might not be able to finish his favorite anime. But then the manga and animes from his system gave him relief. And now he needed help from the person who lived for adventures and would think of things but explore the unknown.

Monkey D. Luffy.

The man who would become the Pirate King. Or at least that was what Oda promised.

John thought it would be the perfect time to bring the whole crew. Especially now when Luffy himself got a huge boost with his gear 5 and awakening of his Hito Hito no mi : Model Nika fruit. Though his anime industry had released the One Piece anime but the anime hadn't reached the point of his devil fruit awakening.

Though it would just be a matter of time. There was no manga in this world so the people still had no idea of his devil fruit being known as the wrong devil fruit. But John, who had been following the manga, knew better.

And John was right in bringing Luffy to their new world. Though it did put a hole in his pocket as he brought the version where he defeated Kaido. Especially now where he had been feeding power to Superman and Goku. But for John it was worth it.

"Luffy welcome to your new place."

"Wow.. This place is so cool.. Did you bring us here? What is that? A huge ball?" Luffy said as he had stars in eyes when he was looking at the Ring and Earth. Luffy wasn't a bright kid to begin with so John and Nami had to explain to him what this was. He had already inserted the related memories and information of this world in their head. But Luffy would require special care and explanation.

John then proceeded to spend the entire day with Emma and crew of Straw hats Pirates to explain their world again. But they didn't mind doing that. It was fun for most of the part because the crew was funny. But of course, they had to take care of the food. The food of their world wasn't like the One Piece world so they had to eat more.

When it came to others, they were happy. Chopper got to know the new world of medical technology. Zoro got to know of the Shinigami and he was itching to go to the world of Hell. He had encountered the Grim reaper before in his world and now he would get to see the ones who belonged to this world.

Nami was fascinated by the powers. Franky didn't miss a beat and went straight to the lab of Tony and others to upgrade his armor. Sanji was happy to see new recipes. Jimbei, Ussop and Brook were also very happy to see the new world and were excited.

"So what do we have to do here? Since there is no adventure, where should we go?" Zoro asked as he was still sober and he needed a new purpose. Of course being the next swordsman was still on the table but they needed a general direction since John had brought them here.

"A war is approaching and though we have enough fire power we would still need your help and motivation. Luffy and your crew is a motivation for many in this world so I hope you will be key figures here."

"Do we inspire and motivate you? Of course Captain Ussop will lead you to victory and bravery..."

"Don't compliment us like that you bastard.. I am not at all happy..."

"Yohohoho.. I wonder if the girls in this world will show me their panties..."

John and Emma just laughed seeing them talk like that. Emma and the Avengers were already told very long ago that the Straw hats would be coming one day. It's just John didn't give them a timeline so nobody said anything when the Straw Hats showed up.

Many of the Avengers came to greet them. So it was all fun and happiness. Due to their arrival, they had to have a grand banquet as Luffy was almost in tears asking for it.

Meanwhile, John's last series was in its final stretch and it would be out soon. This series would be the last of his contributions to Disney before hell broke loose and they went to a war that was beyond his understanding.

Chapter 736: The last series (2)

Luffy was allowed to go to the universe since he was longing for it the moment he came to know that he could explore the stars. This was not possible for Luffy in One Piece (at least not yet. I am not sure what Oda is going to do)

"Luffy you can go but you must return in 3 months." John gave the order.

"Heeh... No... I will explore the whole universe." Luffy rejected.

"Are you an idiot? If you want to explore the whole universe you will die before you finish even a corner of the universe. The universe is too large for us." Nami gave a punch on his head to explain the details of the universe. She had already learnt of the universe and the vastness of it and the sea which they had sailed before seemed like dust in front of it.

"But I want to." Luffy insisted.

"I am not saying that after coming back you can't return for exploration. I am saying you need to come for the launch of the series. I want you to show up for the premiere. The series will be launched in a premiere, in a movie like fashion. And for this premiere I have called everyone. You have not met the ninjas and the shingamis."

"Ninja? The ones who can shadow clone jutsu? the one who can walk on water? the one who can do nin-nin?" Luffy, Chopper, Ussop and even Zoro were interested when they heard about the ninjas.

"Yes. So if you want to see the absolute top tiers of the ninjas come within 3 months." John promised them. Luffy and his crew were really very much interested in ninjas and Luffy even had stars in his eyes imagining how the ninjas would look like.

"Yosh!! Minna.. I have decided we will come back in 3 months. Friends have already transformed Sunny into a spaceship. So we will take the ship and come back." Luffy declared not paying any attention to the thoughts of others. Of course they might have objections but Luffy wouldn't care.

And thus after a week stay at the Ring and re-configuring Sunny, they set out to travel the universe and galaxies. Franky worked under Tony till then to understand the workings of the spaceship. Tony himself who had watched One Piece was a huge fan of Franky.

Franky transformed himself with the little knowledge of science that he had. Tony even accused John that Franky was based on his character and wanted royalties. Of course John laughed at this accusation. Jimbei went to the Ranch and met the Pokemon.

Being a Fish-man and not belonging to humans he was attracted to species that had intelligence and were living a life that his country's Queen once dreamed about.

After a week of clamor, the crew left for adventure and John went back to his normal work while keeping an eye on the multiverse. Though he couldn't always peek into the multiverse, having the Alien X would allow him to look into the multiverse sometimes.

John went to the normal work as usual and helped to finish the series. Though it might feel that this series wasn't required now, John wanted normalcy back for a bit in his life. And making a series was the only thing he could do right now.

Emma too sometimes visited him during work. Kevin could tell that something was off about John but he didn't point it out. Meanwhile after 2 months, Infinity paid him a visit at work. The other crew members were surprised to see an 'alien' showing up suddenly unannounced.

For this series, Kevin had hired actual aliens for roles from the universe and aliens too showed up for it. Disney was now famous in the universe so every actor who wanted attention from the universe wanted to get tied under the banner of Disney.

So when Infinity showed up with a sexy figure and golden stripes, it just raised some eyebrows of the crew members and wondered what alien she was but nobody approached her as her appointment was with the ultimate boss of Disney.

"Is the work done?" John asked.

"The evil ones are rooted out and the good ones are taken to different galaxies for safekeeping on a barren planet." Infinity said in a sweet tone.

"Thank you Infinity for your hard work." John thanked her. She was one of the few abstract beings who John liked. She was sweet, kind and compassionate. Eternity was too proud and followed rules to the T.

Death had a bad attitude. Oblivion was too otherworldly. And In-Betweeners was just an asshole. Infinity was the best that John could ask for.

"It's nothing. The Living Tribunal oversaw this mission. So it was not too much for our part. Thanks for lending the help of ninjas. Approaching the good ones was easier."

Chapter 737: The last series (3)

"No matter what. Thank you for putting away your arrogance and helping us."

Infinity just smiled at it and vanished away without speaking more. Kevin and others who were beside him had question marks over their heads as they didn't understand what this 'alien' was talking about but they didn't question John as they didn't want to be involved in secrets that might affect their lives.

"Sir are you really going to launch a premiere for this series?" Kevin asked to change the somber atmosphere in the room.

"Yes. There would be many dignitaries attending for this." John said.

"Oh you mean dignitaries from around the universe?"

"Not exactly. It's a little complicated. You will be to understand after you see the guest list."

"I understand."

In the way 2 months more went by and it was finally time for the premiere of the series. For this premiere John specifically built a very large place on the Ring to accommodate a large number of people.

The day of the premiere

John arrived at the long red carpet in a fancy Umbrella made hovering car with Emma. He stepped out and proceeded to open the door for her. Then he took her hand and started walking on the red carpet.

The journalists and the various other media persons had their eyes open when John appeared with Emma. John had been out of limelight and pictures for a very long time. It had always been difficult to find any pictures or gossip on John. Forget about other matters, they didn't even know where John lived.

Only thing they knew was that various other works were under him and he had been at the forefront of the change that the world had ushered in. From Umbrella to Disney. His influence was like a King over his kingdom even though he never ruled over anyone.

The paparazzi had tried everything possible to get close to him. Even bribing the crew members, but they always came out with zero results. And now here he was showing up to the premiere. He hadn't done that in such a long time.

Disney had been going after series and other formats mostly and the movies given out by Disney had just the name of John as producer in front. Nothing more. They got the wind last time that the previous series was directed by John himself.

So everyone was eager to see him if there was a huge premiere. But there was none. But this time it was different. John had shown himself up for this and that too with his famous wife. Seeing John walking down the carpet while signing autographs.

The media finally came forward with their questions and there were many who had approached. It was a rare chance for them.

"Mr. Jameson, are you free to answer some questions of ours?" the first person asked with a little shaky tone. It was apparent he was nervous for a bit but he finally took the courage.

"Sure. Aren't you all here for that? There will be many famous people who will arrive soon. Don't have cold feet like now." John said with a big laugh. The others were amazed by how easygoing John was as opposed to the rumor that he was arrogant and didn't want to show his face to the public.

The journalist gave a hollow laugh and breathed to come himself down. He

"The last series was pretty dark for the likes of others but there is a rumor that this series would be darker."

"This series is based on many different aspects. If you want to label its as dark fantasy than yes. But the series will also show about the good that the people has and how even a shred of hope is important." John replied.

"I heard that there will be many different high ranking dignitaries who will appear for the premiere. The ones from the universe. Is that true?" Another journalist asked.

"In a sense, yes. I have called some of my friends for this. These friends were the reason why I have such a high standing among the general public. It is only fitting that I acknowledge them in front of all." John replied. Kevin had seen the guest list before. At first he thought it would be different aliens but when he read the names, he almost fell on the floor.

The names that were written on the guest names were nothing short of legendary. The people who would arrive would just blow the minds of the people all around the universe for sure.

As the journalist were about to ask more about the series stopped in his tracks as he saw the first round of guests that had arrived in big cars.

There were 5 people who had appeared wearing a white gown from neck till the feet. They wore a square shaped hat on their head and had a Japanese kanji letter written on each of the hats.

Chapter 738: The last series (4)

Forget the journalists, even the guests who had been invited by Kevin stood dumbfounded after seeing the people who had just stepped on the carpet. And even if the 5 weird looking men and a woman didn't surprise the people around, then the people who had arrived with them.

Unlike the previous 5 people who had their head and face covered, the 'bodyguards' who had arrived with the 5 people weren't covering their faces. Their inclusion was what made the people who were wildly speculating in their minds, received their affirmation.

The 5 people were the famous 5 kages of the shinobi world. The world where the famous ninjas exist. During the war against Thanos many had seen them but there was always a debate among the people about their existence. As Earth now was connected to the universe many had tried searching for the existence, but they had failed.

But here they were, with all power and grandeur. Even the normal people could say these were the actual deal. The journalists and the people finally understood what Kevin meant when he said the guests who would arrive would blow their minds.

And John too just said that he had invited many of his friends. So this was what it meant that he said that he had invited 'friends'. John had gotten his share of fortune by making movies, series and anime. Of course, he had his hands on other businesses, but the main theme was always the entertainment industry.

And many of his stories were supposedly based on real people. Now one of the anime had come to life, they wondered who else would arrive. There were many anime that John had produced over the years.

The journalists who had their mouths wide open for a few seconds after seeing the entry of the Kages, left John in a jiffy and ran to interview the Kages. Emma laughed seeing the craze of the journalists.

And if that was not enough, the fans who had come to the premiere to support were going crazy seeing the Kages. Even the guests who had arrived were flocking around the Kages to get an autograph or a picture with them.

John who was seeing all of this just smiled. He had expected such a reaction from the people around. He had hidden their existence for a very long time. It was time to bring the big guns out. He would need a massive amount of fan values to boost the powers of his summons and this can only be done via anime.

The last series was his masterpiece for sure but in the end they didn't contribute anything to his fan values. The anime was his real power. And this premiere would be his main show.

"Sir Naruto Uzumaki, it is known that you have half of the Kurama inside you. But what happened to the other half, has it accumulated?" One journalist asked.

"Ahh.. Yess... With the help of my friend John, I was able to get the full chakra of Kurama. Now he is sleeping inside me. Do you want to talk with him?" Naruto said with a smile. His words made the journalist shiver.

Talking with Kurama. A being that was made to dominate everything. But again during the end of the anime, he had become quite cute and mellow. He, as a journalist can't miss such a huge chance,

"Yes Sir, I would love to have an interview with Kurama." Kurama replaced the consciousness of Naruto and for the first time Kurama was a little excited to give the interview. For the first time he had seen people that were not afraid of him and wanted to talk with him actively.

The other journalists were talking with the other Kages and like him each and everyone was excited. They were clicking pictures and even signed some kids who had come to cosplay in the premiere. Though none of them came with the cosplay of the anime, the shinobis signed these cosplayers happily.

And it was not the end, after a few minutes of the emergence of the shinobi. A number of cars arrived near the red carpet. Each of the cars were white in color and the car who was on lead was a big one. Slowly the doors of the car opened and from each car, one person stepped out.

The first to step out was an old man who had a cane in hand. He had a white long beard and even long white eyebrows. He seemed like he would fall down any second. This person was also known to many.

Yamamoto Genryusai.

And following him the other Captains too had stepped out. There was another uproar among the crowd when the famous Captains had arrived. First it was the kages and now the Captains.

Chapter 739: The last series (5)

The world of Naruto was already known by many people and their presence. The only thing that confused the people was where these people lived. But the existence of Shinigami signified many terrifying things for the world.

The world of the afterlife!!

The people were in huge uproar seeing the famous Captains stepping out with their respective Vice-Captains. The normal people at first didn't know how to react to this. The journalists were visibly sweating. They were conflicted.

As a sentient being, anyone would have the fear of death. And the Shinigami represented death so they had no idea how to overcome this fear and approach them. Meanwhile, the Captains had started walking on the red carpet. When the Kages had arrived, Kevin had gone to welcome them personally as he already knew from before who would come.

He was the most excited. This premiere was like a dream come true for him. This cinematic universe was his baby. John had been the director for sure, but a series or a movie was not just the director. It had many intricacies. And Kevin looked after it. And for the last premiere of the cinematic multiverse, it was getting a reception from the most powerful people known to mankind.

This was a badge of honor for him. And he wasn't scared of the Shinigami like the people here. Being with John for a long time he had seen more scary people. John would sometimes speak of the beings that would show up at the office so the existence of the Shinigami wasn't much of a problem for him.

"Welcome to the grand premiere, Yamamoto-san. I hope the journey here was comfortable." Kevin bowed down in full Japanese -style. Yamamoto just opened his eyes for a bit and gave a nod. Kevin didn't mind that as the old man had his own arrogance and experience. Kevin went on to greet all the other Captains.

The scene looked a little awkward as only Kevin approached and there was a visible silence in the surroundings. Seeing the arrival of Captains, the Kages went to have a chat with the Shinigami.

The shinobi world and the shinigami world had been in cooperation for sometime now and presently more so because of joint exercise together. Seeing the friendliness from Kevin and the kages. The journalists and the fans finally had the courage to approach the Captains.

And like the Kages, they too were interviewed and later more aggressively so. The people wanted to know if they would go to their world if they died. The answer they received was vague as there was a certain criteria to get to the world of Shinigami. This too went on for a few more minutes before more guests started pouring in.

Next was the people from Fairy Tail along with Atreus, King of Asgard, Thor and Kratos. The people now were numb to the emergence of so many people from fantasies. They finally got to understand what John meant when he said that the friends who had helped his career would arrive.

The people in the fantasies had always been real. It's just they didn't have any connection with them and only John had the friendship and thus allowing him to go forward in his life. Some were now jealous that John got the first hand in their stories and made it so that he profited from this friendship.

After Fairy Tail, there was another group that caused an uproar.

The famous Straw-Hats!!

Among the anime that John had been bringing out, it was only One Piece that was still on the go!! Which meant that the story hadn't finished, but here they were. The same Straw-hat group.

"Ohhh.. Sugeiiiiii... (yes I know its sugoi, but Luffy has this weird accent)." Luffy had stars in his eyes seeing so many powerful people around. He could already feel that many people present were super powerful. The other powered beings came forward for introduction. They have watched the respective anime of others too.

Zoro was visibly shaking when he saw the Captains. He wanted nothing but to battle the swordsmen of the shinigami. He had met the grim reaper before and now he was meeting them again in actual flesh.

"Kid, after the premiere we will have a battle." Kenpachi was the first to approach Zoro. Like him, Kenpachi too could feel the power of Zoro.

"Agreed, we need to find a safe place and have a good one."

Sanji had heart eyes as usual seeing the beautiful girls around. Especially from the Fairy Tail world. Chopper went to meet Unohana as he got the information that this division was the medical division. Like Sanji, Brook and others were having fun around.

The people around were surprised to see how well the famous characters got to be friends so fast and how cheerful they were around. Maybe this was what made these people great. The power to make allies and overcome any difficulties together.

Chapter 740: The last series (6)

The red carpet event had started 4 hour prior to the release of the series so everyone had got enough time to introduce each other. Luffy and others had the time of their lives as this was new to them unlike the Captains and the shinobis. So of course he was louder than normal, and not that it mattered to anyone.

After having a fun time, it was time to go and watch the series that they had been waiting for.

"Luffy are you caught up with the story?" John asked as he had given him the full DC series to begin with but Luffy had very few brain cells when it came to understanding stories and the gravity of it. He just hoped that he had enough brain for this.

"Don't worry, we have forced him to understand and even took exams on this." Sanji said as he was smoking his cigarette.

"Hope so!!

John had less hope for Luffy than any other person but then again, Luffy was just one of his favourites.

As the shenanigans ended, it was time for everyone to enter the huge theatre that Disney had made over the course of time. Soon everyone took their seats.

The series started with a grim tone. The first thing shown to the audience was that as the multiverse existed, there were different kinds of universes out there. Until now, we only have seen the good side of the multiverse.

It was a struggle for sure but at least there was a good end to the story. But this wasn't always the case.

"There are different universes out there. Some good. Some neutral. But there are some which are just bad apples. Those universes were called Dark Universes, or collectively the Dark Multiverse."

The exposition was done and now it was time for the main scene.

Earth -22

The story showed Batman and his childhood which by now had almost become a meme. Though people were still afraid of the actual Batman, the famous scene of the death of his parents was still famous for people around.

The story was normal but it soon turned as Joker went on a killing spree. Joker noticed that the chemical that made him Joker was slowly killing him and so in a feat of rage he went to kill everyone he had known.

Batman had to make the tough call at the end to kill Joker to save Gotham, but during his murder of Joker he himself got affected by the same chemical. And that was when hell broke loose.

Batman got transformed into a hybrid of Joker and Batman, becoming the famous Batman who Laughs. And this was just the beginning. He proceeded to kill the Justice League, made an army of Robins from the army that Joker had made using his chemicals and controlled this army.

And at the end ruling their Earth with an iron fist.

People expected a dark story but bloody hell this was dark. The people saw how cruel he was, how he murdered the entire Justice League in cold blood. Made Supergirl kill her own family before killing her himself using Black Kryptonite.

And this was just one Dark Universe.

The scene changed and then it showed another Earth. An Earth where Superman went rogue and then he started causing havoc all around. Batman saw no other choice but to inject himself with the Doomsday virus to make himself powerful enough to kill Superman.

He transformed into Devastator and he himself later became the menace.

Then in another universe it was Batman who was rogue from the get go. He wanted Barry to go back in time to save his parents. He wanted to see his parents very badly and he went so insane that he went to lengths to get the power of Speed Force. And at the end he got his wish, and thus became the Red Death.

This went on as different versions of Batman were shown. Some where he was rogue from the start or some which happened by accident. This sent a chill in the spines of the people. The person who played Batman had been the same from the start, so when he got the script he was so excited that he almost jumped in his spot.

When he signed up for Batman, he didn't think much, but the role of Batman only made him get movies which were of one dimension. But this series was his redemption, this series will show that he could play all the roles of Batman easily.

After this lengthy dark part of the universe was shown, it was finally time to show the real story. The story of the actual Batman. The Batman who was thrown into the past by the Omega Sanction and his way back to his home.

But on his journey he came across an enemy. An enemy who was his maker and his nemesis too.

Barbatos, the Bat-God.