

Multiverse 761

Chapter 761: Family dinner

After the funeral everyone consoled the family one last time and after paying respects everyone went back to their home. The team that was built for invading the special universe in the Wall was already on its way and they would have to await any kind of back information they could get their hands on.

And even if they failed it wouldn't matter as they would start their campaign with or without. It all depended now when the war would start and it wasn't the question if there would be a war. John already knew that even if he wanted to avoid the war, it was too late now. The chess pieces were already in their positions and everyone was eager to see who was going to move first.

Are all the enemies clear? Or are they still hidden?

John was in his own world and even Emma was a little distracted as they reached home but was surprised to see the parents of Emma and John's father having a laugh at the front porch of the House of Mysteries with Audiono serving them beer bottles.

"Son, you are back and have a seat." Jameson said as he offered a seat. John and Emma were able to squeeze out a smile as they joined their parents. Their parents had no idea what was going on with the world. They have been under the safe protection of the Avengers and SHIELD and they wanted to leave it that way. For the first time in their lives Earth has seen such global peace and people were happy and those who were not happy and more ambitious had already left for the universe in search of their own adventure.

"Honey, you both look sad. Anything happened?" the mother of Emma said. They normally never come to the home of John as they have their own life but today Jameson asked for a family get together at the home of John and they couldn't say no and thus they were here. But the glaring black outfit and a little sad face on both of their faces were apparent.

"We had to attend a funeral as one of our people from the organization had an accident." John lied right through his teeth. He didn't want to speak about the war and other problems that the Avengers were facing. The mother-in-law didn't poke more on this topic as she could feel that John and Emma didn't want to speak about it. Emma had been a Green Lantern for quite a long time so they knew that she, like John, had their own secrets.

The family then changed the topic and spoke of other things to lighten up the mood and everyone was having a laugh and a smile. Their families stayed for dinner before leaving and at the end it was only John, Emma and Jameson. This family gathering even had the children of John and they were called to attend.

After there was total quiet at the home, Jameson asked.

"How deep is the problem?"

"What do you mean Dad?" John was confused.

"The death!! It wasn't a normal funeral was it? What happened? Tell me? Few months ago we saw a huge spaceship coming to Earth. Normally, people here don't care about it as the Earth now is too advanced. But I could recognize the Harvester easily. So tell me, is the huge spaceship and the funeral related?" Jameson asked. John was surprised that his father even noticed the Harvester and was thinking that this was foul.

Though the death and the Harvester were linked, it was not the way Jameson was thinking. John was just surprised that even after all these years, his father was as sharp as ever. BUT then again, he didn't want to speak about the problem too much.

"It's fine Dad. We have handled the problem. You don't have to worry so much."

"You might be a great and powerful person but a parent would always worry about his son no matter what."

"Well, everything is handled and we are on the right track." John said. Jameson didn't ask more as he could see that whatever was bothering John and his daughter in law was something too serious to be shared with others, so he just left it in that way and later that night went home with the help of Guilty.

"Reporters are really something." Emma mumbled as she saw Jameson vanishing.

"He has been an investigative reporter all his life and never trusts anyone so of course he would be able to tell that something is wrong." John replied.

"I hope Orochimaru's team will return with results." Emma prayed in her heart and said.

"If they return!!" John said as he tried to peek at the images of Orochimaru's team with the help of the system but only to see darkness.

Chapter 762: Loyalty

Orochimaru's team was special. They were given a timeline of 1 month maximum and if they weren't able to return, the Avengers would take matters into their own hands. And thus the long wait had started. Soon a month had gone by.

During this one month a special team of SHIELD was set up in Ta Lo to look after the broken door and make sure that nothing escaped the dark hole that had been created. SHIELD even hired some shinigamis for this. Since these creatures were soul type it was better to let the experts handle them. In fact there was now a security detail around the house of Xu Wenwu.

Xu protested against it as he could easily safeguard himself and his family but Coulson was not ready to hear anything about it and forcefully assigned some agents around. Goku was now a Super Saiyan and neither Nick nor Coulson was ready to let anything happen to him. Saiyans might be really powerful but if there was a deadly poison being administered into their body then it would be game over.

Even Goku suffered from a heart problem once and almost died if it was not for Trunks from future coming with the medicine, then Goku would have been in the abode of King Yama much earlier.

Avengers conducted many meetings during this one month and had already started making plans and for this mission that would lead them to the multiverse, the Pokemon were called for the first time. Arceus, Mew, the three spirits of the lake, Dialga, Palkiya and Giratina were called. They didn't call Groudon and Kyogre were not called because these two were unstable and the moment they would be woken up, these two would just fight.

Dialga and Palkiya were known to fight each other but at least at times these two would shimmer down and work together. The Pokemon were called because the Avengers would soon leave for the multiverse and they need a proper protection at home. Normally the Pokemon were left to themselves but this time everyone needed to participate as Earth would be defenseless.

"We will protect the Earth as all the wild pokemons would be sent on high alert but Pokemons could only do so much." Arceus said as he stood at the front of the meeting.

"Shinobis and Shinigamis would be sent to cooperate and they would sent to all the corners of the Earth." Naruto replied to this. Like the Avengers the Kages too would leave and soon their dimensions would be shut. Even Hell would be shut by Yamamoto as nobody was ready to see any more death in their front yards.

And after much discussion and talks everything was planned out. Dialga and Palkiya would remove their differences aside and would protect Earth from any kind of invasion which may happen due to teleportation.

All teleportation facilities would be prohibited on Earth until The Avengers were back safe and sound. SHIELD just put the whole of Earth under red alert and all the agents that had been on vacation were asked to report back. All hands were on deck. Even Coulson who always had a smiling face had a stern look as he went through the reports.

The death of a dimension had hit people hard and gave many people a sense of fear and Coulson hated the fact that there was nobody to help them and the response was too late so now he had decided to build special stations on Hell and the Naruto world so that this situation doesn't repeat itself.

Thus the wait started. The Avengers, X-men from 3 different worlds, Kages, Fairy Tail and the Soul Society were eagerly waiting for the return of the people who had gone in search of the amalgam universe with any information.

But there was none. None returned!!!

After waiting for a month and even a week more there was nobody who returned. Everyone had gloomy faces when they saw none returning. Though the people who went were mostly criminals and it didn't really matter, it still hurt them. Especially for John, his connection with his summons were cut off.

And according to the system it was because the Wall was preventing them from accessing information.

"Are you sure there is no problem with loyalty? The last time I lost loyalty due to the interference of Ultron."

[

Rest assured host. The last time it was because of Cube and they were not the summons. The summons of the host would always be loyal to the host, even if they were brainwashed.

]

"Fine, I will trust you on this."

As John made sure one last before entering the Hall of Justice. This was the meeting where it will be decided to launch a full fledged attack on the other side of the multiverse and the Wall.

The war is on!

Chapter 763: DC

Early morning all the Captains were called to the Hall of Justice along with the prominent members of the Avengers from the three universes. They had given enough time for the explosion that Owen might cause and there was none.

Even after the given time, there was no response from the body of Owen's variants. Even the main variant who was now holding immense power didn't show any change. Though none of the Owen were allowed to return. The abstract beings made sure that none of the Owen could reach their Earth in their universe.

Owens might be resentful but there was nothing that they could do about it. Only after the death of the enemies could the Owens be allowed to go back to Earth. Many of the Owen accepted it while some of them were very violent about it of course and the abstract beings had to take special measure against them.

In the Hall of Justice everybody took their seats and finally the last meeting before the war began.

"Captains. Are your teams ready?" Yamamoto opened the talks for the first time.

"Yes. Everyone is ready and we are ready to take the war to them."

"There will be two Harvester which would take us and a special spaceship would be sent as the first group which will have some of the Avengers from multiple worlds as the advance party. They would be the lighthouse for us and they would destroy any enemies that might arrive our way and the advance party would be responsible for cleaning the path until we reach their multiverse. We would not confront Perpetua until we reach their multiverse. If she comes in our way we would avoid them using our own power and will make sure that two harvesters carrying thousands of our soldiers would be safe until we reach their multiverse."

John spoke up his plans. He would be leading the advance party himself. He has a special spaceship for being the lighthouse of the group. Everyone trusted him on this and thus nobody rejected the words of John.

"Are the cracks huge enough to let the Harvesters pass?" Superman asked as the cracks had been expanding a lot recently but it needed to be sure it was big enough. This time Mewtwo, one of the Lantern Guardians spoke up via telepathy to the minds of everyone.

"The crack is wide enough to let the current Earth to pass. It has been expanding at a very fast pace now and even multiple cracks had appeared along the Wall. The time for it to break completely approaching very fast so I think we should make our current multiverse more secure and start the operation Noah that we have been decided upon."

Upon mention of operation Noah everyone got silent. Operation Noah was what the Avengers had decided upon after the break of the Wall. There would be people who would die and the number would be trillions and they would have enough power too to bring them back as they had many multiverse creators on the team.

So Operation Noah was taking away selected group of people for safety and preserving them until the death of multiverse occurs. So when the multiverse was created again the people wouldn't die and they would continue their life, unlike others who would have to go through reincarnation and change of memories.

This was decided by John, Reese and the Guardians. When the idea was first announced to the Avengers, they were dumbfounded but they understood as this would be done to preserve humanity.

The particular work had already started in 616 and a new spaceship was built on an Harvester that John had extracted. It was done to fit a good portion of humanity which would include the families of the superheroes and other people from the fields of science.

This was done in secrecy and only the Avengers were told about this top secret mission.

"Operation Noah has already started and the other two universes need to inform their families about the changes that would take place."

The other Avengers nodded their heads as they had decided to inform the families of the upcoming great 'move' that they would have to undertake and secure their future. It would be a tough job to convince others but this was necessary.

The meeting went on as they had to decide who would lead the first spaceship and who would lead the 2 harvesters apart from the captains. John was decided to lead the first spaceship. Superman was given the second and Batman was given the last Hsrvester. The DC heroes were given the command because it was their multiverse to begin with and these two who had led the team to the fight in the series deserved their own team unlike the ones who fought against the Darkest Night.

Chapter 764: Arcadia

"You have one week to prepare and then we are off. Take care of the logistics. The shinobis and shinigamis have a different food consumption and thus take special care. Even the Straw Hats and Goku will join us so we will need more food than a typical one. I don't want anyone to be hungry in this war as logistics are very important. The last war had problems with betrayal. I want Naruto to take care of that." Batman said as he wanted to keep all the holes plugged. They weren't sure who they were going to face so they needed precautions even in the journey.

After proper discussion John and others left. Emma went to her parents home and John went to meet his dd one last time before he goes for the invasion. John came to the home which his dad had on the Ring. John knocked on the door and a familiar face opened the door. Valentina opened the door.

"John, what a pleasant surprise."

"Hi!! It's been sometime."

"Yes. Come in." Valentina looked young and strong. Like others she too was given a dose from the dragon serum along with her family. Since she was the same as before, she continued looking after the life of Jameson as he continued his work though he had lessened his work hours now and does most of the work from. Thanks to John, Daily Bugle was a huge news agency now with control over channels, media and even OTT that broadcasts in the whole universe.

John needed a distributor of his works and Daily Bugle had evolved into one as time went by as a huge media company with the help of Disney.

John went in and then talked with Dad about the movie that Dad and Valentina and her family would have to go through. Jameson was surprised by the words of John. The last time he had expected that something was wrong but he didn't expect that the situation was bad to this degree.

"What about the people of Earth? From your words I can infer that nothing is safe. Your powers are almost godly so whatever is threatening might be able to kill a whole galaxy. So what about the people living here on Earth and Mars."

"I can't save everyone, dad. I can only promise you that if we win, everything will be back to normal and we will have a happy ending. I can only say that and promise that." Jameson was stupefied by the words of John as he didn't know what exactly John meant by that but he knew that he shouldn't ask more here as John wouldn't speak any more. Over the years John had changed a lot but there was something stubborn about him when it came to family.

He would always put his family and Avengers first and then the rest of the world came to the picture for him. John didn't even take the position of Sorcerer Supreme when he had the chance. After being convinced of moving out and doing the same thing with Valentina and her family. She didn't understand why this was to be done but she trusted John as he has been a boon to her family. Her husband was doing a respectable job just because Jameson and his family helped her out.

Even her children were well settled because of John, so she didn't think much and had decided to follow what John said. After this John returned home and said to Orchid.

"Orchid, I think we will have to move and go over to your old universe."

"So the war is going to happen anyways?" Orchid appeared out of thin air and said. She normally never showed her face as Audino used to take care of everything.

"Yes it has started." John said. A week went by fast as Emma took care of things in her sector with Hal one last time before they travel. The central battery was moved to the Harvester along with the blue battery. Two batteries in two separate Harvesters. The Green and the Blue Lanterns would also join in this fight and thus they needed their batteries.

John and others arrived at the Hall of Justice and were now ready to leave. The two harvesters were already parked beside the Ring and were now loading proper supplies for the expedition. Luffy and others had also arrived after roaming the universe with all their curiosity. Goku and Luffy instantly became friends when they met each other. Those two looked like they had come from the same mother.

John looked at it and smiled. He was really hoping to keep that smile on the face of Luffy until the end. He then proceeded to spend some fan values to bring out the spaceship that he wanted to bring for a long time.

Arcadia. The immortal spaceship

Chapter 765: The journey

The spaceship could heal itself and just needed a captain to pilot it. This spaceship was special and had a special history with changing the Earth for better and John couldn't ask for any better thing to travel than this. He knew that there would be war and Perpetua wouldn't allow them to enter peacefully, so they needed something that could suffer damage and still carry on. (Arcadia is taken from Captain Haddock, an anime movie where the spaceship is immortal and has a very complicated history which even I didn't completely understand. The only thing matters here is that the spaceship is immortal and would heal any damage and is powered by dark energy)

"The spaceship of the legends." Tony said as he saw the spaceship appearing. The spaceship was black and golden in color with the front end having the outline of a huge skull. The spaceship looked menacing and seemed like this was made to battle for the evil people. Only those who had watched the movies knew that it was completely different.

John just smirked at it when he heard the exclamations of his friends. He had spent quite a lot of fan value on this ship and thought it lacked any good place to rest like the Harvester had, but it made up with its power.

"Let's go in!!" John said as the spaceships slowly descended on the Ring. As John stood in the hangar with few other Avengers he said out loud.

"We don't know if we will win this war. We don't know if we will be able to cross the Wall safely. But we know for sure that we will give our best. Our expedition has just started and we need to make sure to give Perpetua a good gift and make sure that the Darkest Night remains as our nightmares that could only sneak up on us but never hurt if he ever comes into being. And if we can get our hands on the Batman who Laughs then it is a gift from heaven. So now let's win this."

"Yes!!!!"

John and other entered the Arcadia and soon they reached the command center, where they saw the Captain of the ship, Captain Hadok with his one eye patch sitting on the Captain's seat. He got up and welcomed John and his friends.

John had come with Goku, Luffy, Zoro, Nami for navigation purposes if ever required in Earth Prime as John wasn't sure if his omnipotence would change after getting into the DC multiverse. And along with them there was Thor and Captain America. These were the first party and they carried a fierce amount of fire power.

John had chosen this group after much thought and had to make sure that it was balanced and even if they lose they would be able to come back safe and sound. Zoro and Luffy were just his personal preference as they both had high endurance and had a good amount of firepower. Plus, it must not be forgotten that John himself was carrying 10 devil fruits so even without the power he had other buffs.

Plus very high levels of Haki in all 3 forms. With all the buffs John was sure to have the perfect team to lead the way and make the journey safe for others.

"Let's set sail." Luffy shouted out loud was grinning from ear to ear as he by now understood that he would be going to a new place which no people from his world has ever set before, though it was war he wasn't able to stop himself from being happy and excited.

Captain smiled and gave the instructions. Oblivion had already appeared in the ship. This would be the first time for Arcadia in the void and even first time in the crack. Though he wouldn't follow John and his company to the crack it was his responsibility to give a lift to the crack.

Arcadia was lying fast with Luffy and Goku running around and exploring the huge spaceship. Nami was busy understanding how the things in Void works. She already had a good idea of how the space worked and was already able to navigate their ship when they sailed in the universe and had their adventures.

Zoro and Thor were busy drinking while Captain just looked at the void with a solemn face. Last time he couldn't go to the Wall but this time he would go to the other side which was a huge leap for him and he was looking forward to dealing with things to the end.

Arcadia soon reached the crack. Well, the word crack didn't fit it anymore. It was just a huge space that appeared on the body of the Wall now and any massive planet would be easily able to pass by.

Some of the Green and Blue Lanterns were still guarding the crack like always.

Chapter 766: The journey (2)

After getting the green signal Arcadia stepped its foot inside the legendary Wall. And after half an hour of passing of Arcadia, the two Harvesters followed. Both of the Harvesters were huge and each of them even contained a remodelled version of Celestial made by Tony Star of 3 different universes working together so it can be imagined how big the Harvesters were.

One Harvester was led by Clark and 2 captains while the other was led by Bruce Wayne and also 2 captains. Of course there was almost an equal distribution of power on both the Harvesters with their own squad led by the 4 captains. And on top of that the two secretive squads were also on the Harvesters.

Only a single captain and his squad was left behind on Earth in order to save their rear. John and others had always a fear that this might be a trap so the SHIELD and a single captain was left behind along with Arceus.

It was done so that there was a defense mechanism of Earth. The Noah project was also in full swing led by Guilty Spark as this AI was a pioneer of escaping from any attack as it was designed for by the Forerunners. GAIA was taken by Tony Stark as an advanced AI would always be helpful in such a war and GAIA too wanted to travel with them and take inspiration from multiverse travel and gather huge amounts of information.

Arcadia passed through the huge frozen giants first and from the looks of it they were still in cryostasis which was good news for Arcadia and the 2 Harvesters. Luffy had shining eyes the moment he saw the Giants. He had seen giants in his own world but this was different. This was a whole new level.

Even Goku was surprised by the sheer size of them and had never seen them before. Joh explained their history and understood that once they break out, they might have to fight them. Arcadia proceeded in its usual cautious way silently breezing through the statues.

It made sure not to bump on them and navigated the best way possible.

"The Harvester would have to go through the top of their heads." Captain America said.

"I guess. The space between them isn't big."

Soon the statues were done with and now they were facing void. John had already started using his magical power to get a proper sense of direction and the only way they could do this was with the help of Nabu.

Nabu was the Lord of Order from the DC multiverse so it was only customary that finding the old home would be left in the hands of one of the oldest beings of their multiverse. IN fact John had used his amulet and even talked with the old Lords of Order to help Nabu in this regard.

And thus with Nabu's help they navigated their way to the DC multiverse. Few hours went by and there was nothing but black void. The more time passed, the more anxious Captain Haddock was getting. He had never passed through such darkness for such a long time in his previous travels in the universe. There were at least stars in the universe.

Here there was nothing and this didn't sit well with him. John could see the anxiety of the crew and even Captain America seemed a little fidgety in his spot but there was nothing he could do. Arcadia was flying at a fast speed and also making sure that the 2 Harvesters were behind them.

And after a few more hours of travel there were finally specks of light in this vast darkness. Everyone had a smile on their faces as they finally saw that there was light but John and Luffy had solemn faces.

"Guys this might not be good." John said after various light specks popped up on the screen. Both John and Luffy's Observation Haki was telling them that these lights weren't normal.

"Is it an enemy?" Thor came forward as he had already in his special Wall suit built by Reed and Tony before they came in.

"Probably. Everyone suit up." John suggested.

Hearing the words of John everyone wore the suits. This suit wasn't made of nanoparticles so they had to be worn physically as opposed to the ones Tony normally makes and that was fine as these suits were made for endurance and could be worn anywhere.

They approached the light specks very fast and soon they got to see what these specks represented. These specks were a bunch of huge spaceships. These spaceships looked weird as all of them had one theme in common and it was very apparent.

These spaceships were black in color with flood lights on all of them and each of them had a brand in the front. The brand that was famous in both of the worlds now.

The brand of Batman!

Chapter 767: Robin King

Thor and Captain America clenched their teeth in anger seeing the brand of Batman. Though the brand on the head of the spaceships. Though the brand had many differences from the original brand that Bruce normally carried, it was very clear that the brand was one version of Batman.

And on top of every spaceship that was hovering in darkness with huge flood lights that were illuminating the way forward and they looked menacing from the distance. John could easily feel the creepiness coming out from the spaceships. John couldn't help but use magic to look who was commanding such a massive fleet and from the look of things, these people seemed to know of their arrival from the start. They had been waiting for them.

John squinted his eyes as he got to see who was sitting on the Captain's ship.

It was Robin King. Among all the versions of Batman that John had known in his life, Robin King was probably the most hated Batman he had ever known. This person killed his own parents and even killed Alfred and hunted each and every member of the Justice League.

Many of the Batmans from the Dark multiverse changed due to circumstances. Most of them were accidents or in order to do good they were led astray. But Robin King was rotten from the beginning itself and now just like from the comics, he was controlling an army of Robins under him. These Robins were actually normal human beings but during the process of making Batman who laughs there was an explosion in the city.

An explosion that didn't kill people but turned innocent civilians into Robins. Dark Robin. And now these people were under Robin King, managing the ships. This wasn't good from any front and they needed to take care of him before Perpetua comes to cause trouble.

"Everyone, we will have to fight." John said as he spent no time turning himself into Alien X and flew away, John didn't speak nonsense to anyone and just phased away from inside the ship. Captain America and others were surprised that John had such a reaction.

Normally he would rally with others and then take action but this time it was different. He didn't even spend a single second and was already in war mode.

"He must have seen something with his magic. The opposite must be really hateful to trigger such a reaction from John." Thor commented as his iconic red cape conjured behind him like magic. He had also worn the suit and the cape was just a decoration now. Seeing him Captain America's eyes too shined like stars.

Before arriving at the Wall, Steve was visited by Infinity. Infinity of the multiverse and made him Captain Multiverse (a new name that I just coined, there has never been such a person, not that I know of). A being which was powered from the Enigma Force of the multiverse itself.

So now even outside the multiverse he was powered by the Enigma Force. After the death of Darkness there was an imbalance and Eternity needed to do something with it so he let Light, i.e., Enigma Force to be used by Steve.

He has proved himself worthy over all these years, saving any species that he could save in his universe and helping people along with Diana. This was why Eternity allowed Steve to have a power boost.

The hangar opened from the underbelly of the spaceship as everyone just floated away. Some could fly while Luffy and Zoro couldn't so they had to take the help of a suit. Zoro's mask was special as he normally used a sword from his mouth. This was the specialty unique to him.

John was already gone to the main spaceship to fight. There was no announcement nor even a try to negotiate with the other team. This was just war in pure and raw form in space. Only difference was that the fighters weren't spaceships in this vacuum of space.

Goku didn't waste a second and just activated his Super Saiyan mode and flew to the other spaceships to wreak havoc. He still hasn't forgotten about the death of his aunt and he wanted revenge. In fact Shang-Chi has also joined him in this crusade on the first Harvester.

Luffy went to Gear 3 mode and coated his arms and legs with Haki. Zoro was already flying to the remaining spaceships. The Batman branded spaceships weren't just for show. Except for John, each of the members were bombarded with missiles, lasers and all kinds of deep space weapons that these spaceships were equipped with.

And the firepower was really heavy!!! They even had plasma lasers that could auto track enemies, like Darksied's Omega beam. This was a new thing for all. Goku, Thor and Captain America were easily able to stop the lasers. It was Zoro and Luffy who found it little trouble while stopping them.

Chapter 768: Robin King (2)

John was dodging the constant barrage of bullets as he speedily flew over to the huge spaceship that was pointing its guns and lasers on him. He was happy that Phoenix was still working, though after entering the Wall and reaching almost at the edge of the other side the power of Phoenix had gone down by quite a lot but it didn't matter to John.

He had the power of several devil fruits, Nabu with Helmet of Fate, the treasure house of Babylon and even the omnitrix. He was a force to be reckoned with and this was a fact even if John was thrown into the world of Dragon Ball Z let alone other worlds which had lesser powers.

And this small and tiny spaceship was nothing to him. Until and unless Perpetua or the Darkest Night showed up, it was useless as they would never be able to stop John. And in this case too the same was happening.

In a minute John had already the spacecraft and he had gone through the invisible barrier of the spaceship like it was made of butter and someone just cut it with a hot knife. The guns had stopped blasting after John went through the barrier and then he soon phased through the hull of the spaceship. John needed to ask the Robin King before he kills him.

Killing him was definitely high up on the list and if possible some intelligence of the enemy.

As John reached the command center, he saw many demented Robins with their wide grin and sharp teeth. Their faces were a mixture of Joker and Robin with white makeup and black mascara on their eyes. It looked horrible in their small body structure and everyone had a small stature like the actual Robin in comics and series.

John had disgust and sadness in his faces as he saw them pointing guns at John. He was sad because these people once upon a time were just innocent. Innocent people born in a world which was doomed to fail. There was almost nothing more sad to know that no matter what the future was doomed and everything would just end in disaster even if you try your best.

It was only because of Batman who Laughs and his machinations that they were able to escape. After they left, their world collapsed on itself. The Forger really fucked lives of many people in the multiverse just because he couldn't make worlds perfectly. A God who didn't have control in himself.

John didn't kill them as it wouldn't matter on the grand scale. This spaceship would either be taken away by Tony and Reed for information retrieval as they were just behind Arcadia or it would be destroyed by Goku and others.

John reached the place where Robin King was sitting. He was sitting on a throne which looked like it had come right from the world of Game of Thrones. A throne made of guns, swords and other weapons. John didn't even hesitate one moment coming across Robin and had opened the Gate of Babylon.

The spears and sword were already sticking out from the Gate and was ready to kill Robin King. But instead of all this Robin was still smiling at John like a maniac and demented person. His makeup gave even John the creeps though he himself had made a series out of him in his world. This was enough to show how bad the situation was with Robin King.

"Oh my famous and powerful King of the Multiverse, Welcome to the world made by our favourite Batman. The humble servant is yours to command." Those words were sarcastic to say the least and just the voice alone which seemed like wheezing sounded gruelling to John.

"Where is he?" John opened his mouth to say.

"Serving the Queen." Robin King replied with no hesitation and seemed like he was eager to pass information to John. As if he wanted John and find Batman who Laughs.

"Who sent you?" John asked again.

"Oh Great King, why ask when you already know the answer." John clenched his fist in anger hearing the reply of Robin. John didn't speak for a moment before he said.

"The world where I come from, there is a school called the witcher school where the children were made to go through rigorous training and life. And then after proper training they are made to go through Trial of Grass. Out of 20 or 30 kids, only 2 or 3 pass the trial. And even when they pass they suffer very horribly. Their life changes at that point. Their bodies mutate and people hate them for their mutation."

"I wonder what will happen if I give you to those people from that school." John without saying more used the chains of heaven to capture this evil creature. Robin King who was still smiling was trying to defend. But it was impossible.

Chapter 769: The last stretch

Before coming to the DC multiverse John had made it a point that he would bring out his own ugly side to show to these demented people. Every enemy here was twisted in their own way. Even Perpetua herself. She wanted to create her own species, her own army which would be powerful and above everyone else so that she could overthrow the Hand and be free.

She even tried once and after living in the Wall for eternity she was still trying to do the same thing. Didn't the eternity in 'prison' teach her anything about the power of Hands. She was a nigh omnipotent God and she still was helpless.

And now she has made a twisted army. Things like these always tends to come back and bit in the ass. And since Robin King were one of the few that was not chemically or artificially made, John needed to vent his emotions on this guy.

He needed to make sure that Robin King suffered. He didn't care if it was ethical or not. Batman might not like it but at this point, he didn't care. This guy wasn't afraid of death, just like the joker. But living was what scares the shit out of some people.

John then proceeded to tie up Robin King with magical chains after taking out his utility belt which had all kinds of weapons and things that could easily defeat multiple members of the Justice League.

John proceeded to strip Robin King naked and make sure he didn't have any extra things on his body.

"Since you had so much fun torturing the others in your multiverse. Craved for power, money and even depraved yourself to killing your own parents, then I guess there is a reckoning. I and my friends will be the ones to take this multiverse away from more suffering and pain."

After saying this John used his magic to put on a Wall specified suit for Robin. He had multiple suits on him in his storage for rainy days and this was one of those times. Robin King was still smiling as he wore the suit but he looked a little confused at this point but didn't know if he should ask.

Then he took Robin King and used his magic to destroy the spaceship from inside. He would love to keep the spaceship as souvenir but Dr. Strange Fate was breathing on his neck. Any leak of information would be disastrous at this point.

John and Robin were the only one left in the debris after John destroyed everything with his Gate of Babylon. By the time he and Robin who was still bounded by chains came out, Goku was done dealing with the other spaceships and so were the others. Luffy actually went to Nika Mode to destroy more. His sheer size was what surprised everyone as the anime of Nika Mode was not out in their world. There were only hints of it.

And now they had seen the Nika mode of Luffy. They were thrilled while Zoro was as casual as he was but his new sword was really a menace. Destroyed three of the spaceships in one go. Everyone gathered near John as they him coming out of the debris.

"YO!! Who is this?" Goku asked.

"Our new prisoner. The Robin King."

"He is the Robin King? Let me take a close look at him. See if he is the devil as they say?" Zoro said as he gave his iconic evil smile and looked at Robin King up close. Others had a dignified expression. Goku even clenched his fists ready to blast him away at the signal of any misbehavior.

"Relax. I will hand him to the Wolf School and let them torture him. Since he killed everyone from the Justice League it is only customary that we give him the same treatment." John said as he threw him into the dark space of the Wall with multiple lights clinging on his body. And there was a huge signboard hanging from his neck saying

"Treat him good, Yennefer!!"

Others smiled when they saw it, only Luffy was confused about what just happened. Zoro proceeded to explain him while mocking his brain. Others just laughed as they flew back to the Arcadia. Thor had a grin in his face as he too had fun. It had been a long time since he had come out and had this much fun.

Arcadia was again back on track. This small intervention didn't even stop them for an hour. It was hardly for 15 minutes. Arcadia started flying in high speed again while leaving Robin King to be picked up by the arriving Harvester. John made sure that the Harvester would pick him up. He didn't want to let go of Robin King. Their general of the army of Robins.

Chapter 770: War

This was a small incident in the journey to the DC multiverse. He didn't understand why Robin King was sent away like a dog to be taken away. Robin King was in no way equipped to handle John and his team and if Batman who Laughs was so calculating he should have seen it from miles away.

No matter where Batman who Laughs got the information from, be it Perpetua or Dr. Strange Fate. In the end John's team were on the levels of Perpetua. So why the hell was he sent as a scapegoat. After this John had maintained his form of Alien X as he needed to know if there was any more ambush. An ambush of bigger size and power.

But as time went by and they crossed millions of miles, there was nothing. And after a few hours of waiting they could see a bright light very far. The bright light seemed very clear as Arcadia flew towards it. And the bright light turned out to be another Wall and like the Wall boundary they have come through had the same crack albeit it was way bigger.

"The situation is worse than I thought." John murmured. It was because he couldn't see any of the guardians or the frozen villains. This meant that they had escaped. This wasn't good news.

"Yosh!! We have almost arrived." Luffy was excited for the new adventure. Zoro and others were too. But only serious people like Thor and John didn't have a good face. John who had switched off the Alien X form used his power to look how far the damage was done.

While John and his team had almost reached the multiverse, something else was happening in the first Harvester as Superman's leading spaceship had come across Robin King's live body in space.

"What is this? A trap?" Hyperion asked as he was with Superman's team.

"We don't know. GAIA can you zoom up the image?" Clark asked. And soon the image was zoomed and they finally saw the signboard with the sign of John and Thor. It looked like this was a delivery from the magic boy.

Clark then ordered to bring the live body inside but cautiously as they weren't sure if Robin King was a trap by their enemies. They wanted to make sure. Even Superman himself came and made sure if anything went wrong he would be the first to respond. Seeing the body up close everyone already recognized who the unconscious person was.

Robin King.

Many of the people present were already on the verge of attacking and killing this evil guy. All of the people present on the Harvester had seen the horrors of this guy and they wanted to kill him at first glance. But Superman stopped them saying

"I know you want to kill this person. I want to do it too after what he has done to his world. But you have to understand that John had left him for us. There must be a reason."

"How are you sure that it was John? It might even be a trap." said one ninja who had a huge kunai in his hand. He just wanted to throw the kunai at the head of Robin King.

"This is the handiwork of John." Wanda who was proficient in magic came forward and attested. She could say that because she could feel the same magical power as Phoenix Force. This was unique to their multiverse and it could never be copied.

After making sure that it was Robin King, he was sent to the prison. The prison was a good one as it had all the facilities and proper protection against magic and other forms. This was the perfect place for Robin King to be held and for doing interrogation.

Orochimaru was the person in charge to bring out any information from the Robin King. Professionals should go for professional jobs. Robin King who had just woken seeing a person as scary as himself had a smile on his face.

"I am going to have so much fun dissecting you before giving you to the witchers." Orochimaru did a ninjutsu to start his operation of retrieving information. He needed to be fast about or else Mayuri would make fun of him.

John and Arcadia had finally reached the borders and by now John had a general overview of the multiverse of DC. Among the 52 universes of the DC multiverse, only 4 remained which included Earth Prime

When John broke the news there was an uproar. Luffy who had been smiling happily until then had a gloom in his eyes. Goku was infuriated that something like this really happened. This had happened in John's stories but now it was real.

This was a real war and this has just started!