adam Winters's Fight For Her Children Chapter 1128

After Everett saved Ninian, his symptoms started showing. George saw it with his own eyes.

Out of gratitude and courtesy, he helped Everett. He even sent him back to the Craig family's mansion.

Afterward , Everett entered the entertainment industry, and Winters Corporation established a good relationship with the Craig family as a way to show their gratitude.

George had always thought that Everett rescued Ninian out of coincidence, and that they had remained as strangers. Little did he know that ever since then, Everett had long coveted Ninian.

"If you two were to meet again at the upcoming piano concert, with George's acumen, it'll definitely give him a clue about your feelings for Ninian. At that time, it'll be difficult for you to get close to Ninian again."

Everett became silent when he heard what Zayn said.

Naturally, he had the same thought as Zayn. After a long pause, he said, "I'm only there to watch the concert. I don't plan to let them know I'm there."

'I've initially given up my wishful thinking of courting

Ninian, but how can I give her up when she's right in front of me now?

'I've been secretly holding myself back and trying to keep a distance from her. I just want to watch her from afar.

'I feel complete just by watching her from a distance.'

Zayn looked at him for a while and nodded. "Okay, I'll handle this matter.'

Everett did not say anything after that. He turned and went back to his room.

There were countless papers on his table. They were reports of his illness.

He dumped them all in the trash without taking a look at them.

'I'm not fine. I'm not doing well.

'And that's why I won't get close to her. I won't give in to my wishful thinking of having her.'

- The next morning, the warm sunshine shone onto the carpet of Ninian's room through the gap in the curtains.

She stretched out on her bed and washed up before heading toward the hotel's private dining lounge.

Harold, Alden, and Melody were already there.

"Good morning, everyone!" Ninian walked over and rubbed her eyes. "Where's George? Is he not up yet?"

"I knocked on his door when I came downstairs, but there was no response. He has probably gone out early in the morning." Melody said with a slight frown.

"He has gone out, but not in the morning." Alden took a sip of his milk and said calmly, "His assistant came to me this morning and told me that George didn't come back at all last night."

Melody, Harold, and Ninian were shocked.

"Did something happen to him?!" Ninian put down her hand. She looked adorable as her eyes widened, looking curious and shocked.

Harold could not help but stroke his chin. His gaze was sharp and looked as cunning as a fox. "That's quick. Could it be that George has already reconciled with her overnight?"

Melody looked at them. She narrowed her eyes and asked, "You two knew something was up, aren't you? Did you guys do something behind our back?"

"Or else, why would you two react this way?"

Harold and Ninian instantly hid their curious look when they heard Alden's question. They straightened up and said, "No, we know nothing!"

"Oh, really?" Alden said sullenly as he looked at the two of them sternly with his cold gaze. "I heard that George went to Raina's hotel last night. Before he went there, two people dropped by at that hotel earlier. Harold, Ninian, why don't we take a guess who they are?"

Harold and Ninian kept quiet.

"You two..." Melody was shocked. When she noticed how guilty the two of them looked, her gaze turned cold. "I see. So, the two of you went behind our backs and looked for Raina. How dare you!"

Melody was usually indifferent. It was rare to see her getting so worked up like this.

This time, Harold and Ninian's expressions darkened, and they looked miserable. They did not dare to look into her eyes.

"Mel..." Ninian pursed her lips and acted pitifully. "I'm sorry, I won't do it again next time..."

Harold put his hands over his head. "It's not Grapie's fault, it's mine. If you want to hit me, go ahead, as long as you don't hit my head or my face."

Right after he said it, he felt a couple of thumps on his head. He moaned in pain.

Ninian looked at him with sympathy, feeling sad for her brother.

“Come on, tell us everything.” Melody pulled back her hand and crossed her arms. She had an indifferent and imposing gaze.

Alden picked up the tablet next to him, tapped swiftly on the screen, and started taking notes. “If you say one wrong thing or miss one detail, get ready to be hit.”

Harold was speechless. ‘What in sovereignty is this?!’

He told them everything and did not miss out on any details.

- Ninian took the initiative and told what happened three years ago. Melody and Alden’s hearts ached more and more as they listened to her.

Melody grabbed Harold’s waist so hard that he grimaced in pain. Alden glanced at him coldly, forcing him to suppress his pain and scream.

Fortunately, Harold quickly explained everything that happened that night of the incident and the real reason why Raina broke up with George. Alden and Melody became interested and frowned when he mentioned George’s subsequent appearance, diverting their attention from him.

“So, George finally knew what was bothering Raina and went to chase her back of his own will? And that’s why he hasn’t been back all night?” Alden concluded.

Harold and Ninian nodded at the same time. The two of them looked excited and curious once again.

“Al, do you think George and Raina will get back together?” Ninian said in a soft, coquettish tone.

Alden looked at her and his expression softened subconsciously. "There's no guarantee. I don't think they'll reconcile so soon."

"Nevertheless, that's good news." Melody's expression also softened as she smiled. "They initially broke up because of a misunderstanding. They're still in love with each other. There's a huge possibility of them getting back together. It's just a matter of time."

"Honestly, I feel that George hasn't been a good boyfriend back then. That must be why Raina felt so insecure about his love," Ninian said softly.

"Well, well. Our little Grapie knows quite a lot about love, huh?" Harold smiled and said, "Whatever it is, don't worry. I'm sure George has things under control. Let's believe in him, alright?"

He then pointed at the French window in the dining hall.

The rest of them looked at where he pointed. Their faces gawked in shock.

Downstairs, George, who had always looked resolute and stern, stood in front of a florist. His head was bowed as he discussed something with the owner.

His figure was tall and straight as he stood under the sun. He looked noble and indifferent, but he was holding a bunch of red roses in his arms. The scene did not match his appearance at all.
