Chapter 1159

Lana could not help but scream in shock as well. "Oh, gosh! Are they all your photos?" She raised her head and glared at Paul in alarm and anger. "You're such a pervert! You actually tailed and stalked Ninian! No way, I have to call the police. You're mentally abnormal! This is violating human privacy and rights!" she said.

Ninian swiped through the photos. It seemed that she had been targeted since she joined the crew.

Her recent meetups with Harold and even short interactions with the staff or male passersby had also been clearly captured.

There was even a photo of her talking to Paul during the break when she accidentally staggered and he helped her.

This photo was taken in an extremely ambiguous manner, which would make it very easy for people to draw other conclusions.

Ninian looked down and stopped Lana's move before she raised her head and looked at Paul. Her gaze was filled with sharpness. "Who sent these photos to you?"

Paul mentioned "that man" just now, and he even existed in these photos.

Clearly, these had not been taken by Paul, but someone was playing tricks behind the scenes.

This person was against her.

"You don't have to bother with the source of the photos. You just need to know that it now depends on me whether these photos will be exposed." Paul looked at her and threatened her. His usual handsome and bright face was now covered by gloominess, and he looked somewhat ferocious.

"How dare you?! Do you think we'll be frightened because of these photos? Let me tell you, if you expose these photos, you'll be the dead one!" Lana scolded him angrily.

She did not know Ninian's real identity, but she had met her eldest and second eldest brothers. They were noble people, so Paul could definitely not afford to offend them!

On top of that, there was "the Everett" who treated Ninian like treasure!

Paul dared to hurt Everett's treasure and even held pieces of evidence that were not even considered "scandals." He was seeking death!

Unlike the confident Lana, Ninian narrowed her eyes slightly. As if he had something on her, she asked, "What do you want?"

Paul's expression became prideful. He smiled and said, "I want you to break up with Everett and be with me." "You wish!" Lana was furious.

But Ninian looked down and chuckled in a low voice. While Paul looked at her gloomily, she smiled brightly and said, "You should give me some time to think about it, right?"

Paul became absentminded for a moment. He was dazzled by her smiling face.

He could not help but gulp, and he hurriedly asked, "How long do you want to think about it?"

"One night?" Ninian tilted her head and looked innocent. She said, "You give me one night to think about giving up Everett. It's not going too far to ask for this, right?"

Paul chuckled. "Okay! I'll wait for your answer tomorrow morning. I believe you'll make up your mind."

After he said that, he just walked away.

At the back, Lana was so angry that she nearly rushed forward and fought him.

“Disgusting man! Pervert! How could he be like this?”

Lana angrily stomped before she turned back and said angrily at Ninian, “Ninian! Are you silly? How can you agree with him?”

“I’m just thinking about it, right?” When Ninian saw Lana looking so worked up, she could not help but smile and tease her.

“Are you really planning to think about it? Are you planning to give up on ‘the Everett’ for this disgusting man?”

“Is that possible?” Ninian chuckled. Her gaze became slightly dark, and she indifferently said, “I need one night to solve this problem, right?”

As she spoke, she took out her phone and dialed a number with a fierce gaze.
