

Madam Winters's Fight For Her Children

Madam Winters's Fight For Her Children Chapter 1198

Chapter 1198 “What?” Everett was slightly stunned.

Ninian chuckled and said, “If you weren't afraid that they would get angry at me, you wouldn't have to pave the way like this.

Besides...”

“Besides what?” Everett could not help but be led by her.

“Besides, you want more people to like me too, don't you?

You want me to attract more fans and achieve my dream.”

Ninian

smiled and said, “So, the approach you've taken is to leak information about me in the entertainment industry and let my brothers see how well I'm living here and how great my achievements are. That way, they can be proud and supportive of me.

“Baby, is that what you're thinking?”

Ninian's laughter and words were filled with teasing, and she instantly hit Everett's heart.

He subconsciously held his phone more tightly and narrowed his profound eyes. His eyes revealed a little trace of loss.

Did he really think that way? Was he really willing to let the world covet his “baby“?

No, he was not willing.

He could not wait to hide her and lock her up. He wanted to keep her in a place where only he was around so that she would just look at him.

But he could not do that.

He was afraid that she would lose her smile and not shine anymore.

Since she had a dream , he would support her, lead her, and let her fly. He wanted her to smile more brightly and feel happier.

The members of the Winters family did not like her getting involved in the entertainment industry, so he would let them see how brightly she shone on the stage.

Nobody could stop her path, and he would bring her whatever she wanted.

“Baby, why do you always think of yourself as a bad guy?”

Ninian sighed and said, “You always put yourself in the role of the bad guy and think everything you do is scheming , filthy, and despicable . But have you thought that you’re actually more tender and innocent than anyone else?”

Everett’s character always made her feel helpless and sorry for him. She did not know what experience had caused his current mindset. She felt so sorry that she wished she could go back and rescue him when he was little.

Everett was totally dumbfounded on the other end of the line. She could just hear some light and hurried sounds of breathing.

Ninian seriously said, “Believe in yourself more , okay? You should also be more confident of your position in my heart.

You

always think of me, so why would I blame you?”

“Baby...” Everett only spoke after a long while. His voice was husky, and the breathing through his nose was heavy. “I miss you,”

he said softly.

His voice was extremely soft, but Ninian still caught it.

She was a little stunned before her gaze became soft. Even the smile on her face looked loving. “Good boy. I’ll go and keep you company very soon.”

After Ninian hung up, her expression changed slightly , and there was a serious look in her eyes.

She picked up her phone and called Melody.

The other end of the call was noisy as if many people were talking loudly.

Ninian raised her eyebrows a little as she listened for a while.

People were speaking English in a Lusitanian accent.

She vaguely remembered that the venue of Melody's second musical concert was in Frica. Was Melody already preparing for the second show?

While Ninian felt puzzled, the noise slowly faded and disappeared