MY BLIND 561

Chapter	561	Still	The	Same
---------	-----	-------	-----	------

Shortly after settling down, a waiter served their dishes.

Damien reclined comfortably in his plush chair, a smile playing on his lips as he surveyed the spread before him.

It was evident that Syatt had gone to great lengths to cater to Cherise's preferences. Otherwise, the table's array of dishes wouldn't have perfectly aligned with her taste.

This realization prompted Damien to glance at Cherise with a subtle smile. He asked Syatt, "Did you prepare all of Cherise's favorite dishes?"

"Absolutely!"

Syatt looked very pleased with himself. "I've even bribed the hospital staff to slowly discover Dr. Shaw's favorite food."

Damien nodded. He shifted his gaze to Cherise and remarked, "I'm surprised your preferences are still the same after all these years, Dr. Shaw."

The underlying implication in his words wasn't lost on Cherise.

Her face paled.

She understood that Damien had intentionally said it to ridicule her previous assertion at the Mexican restaurant that he didn't know her.

She conceded that she hadn't changed much in the past five years and hadn't put on a facade in front of Damien in the past.

She had only made that statement to put some distance between them.
It unexpectedly became a tool for Damien to taunt her.
The woman coughed lightly. "I'm quite hungry. I'll start eating."
With her ex-husband and current suitor seated across from her, it would be a lie if Cherise said she didn't feel uncomfortable.
The most effective way to mask her discomfort was to focus on her meal.
She began eating, disregarding any pretense of decorum.
Syatt watched Cherise eat with an adoring gaze. He sighed softly, "You look so attractive even when you're eating, Dr. Shaw."
Damien was dumbstruck.
He frowned and glanced at the man beside him.
Syatt seemed to look at Cherise with rose-tinted glasses. Despite Damien being Cherise's ex-husband, Syatt seemed more infatuated with Cherise.
Damien cleared his throat and began eating. He casually asked, "How did you get to know Dr. Shaw?"
111
1/2

ther hospital, of course?"
Wart watched Cherise eat with a smile on his face. He said beamingly. Tve had a weak heart since I was young I underwent a heart transplant surgery six months ago, personally led by Dr Shaw, and she took care of me post-operation"
"I was hospitalized for over five months and was only discharged just two weeks ago."
Throughout those five months. Dr. Shaw was my primary physician."
With that, he looked at Damien smugly. "Dr. Shaw and I spent a lot of time together for more than five months. You wouldn't understand our bond?"
"Cough, cough?"
Across from them. Cherise nearly choked on her food.
Damien merely smiled faintly and slid a napkin towards Cherise. "So, are you aware of my history with Dr. Shaw?
Syatt shook his head. "No"
With that, he flattened his lips, "Didn't you join us for lunch to tell me about your past with her!
"I did
Damien responded with an indifferent smile. He looked up at Cherise, who was slightly pale but still ating earnestly. "But why don't we go somewhere else?"

Firstly, it's not nice for me to discuss my past with Dr Shaw in front of her. I'm afraid I might stir up painful memories for her "Secondly, Dr. Shaw hasn't finished her meal yet. We can't disturb her meal, can we Syatt thought about it and agreed. He stood and addressed Cherise. "Dr. Shaw, enjoy your meal and take your time. We'll step outside for a chat Before Cherise could respond, the two men had already risen and departed together in the clevator Cherise was flabbergasted Syart watched Cherise eat with a smile on his face. He said beamingly. Tve had a weak heart since I was young. Funderwent a heart transplant surgery six months ago, personally led by Dr. Shaw, and she took care of me post-operation" hospitalized for over five months and was only discharged just two weeks ago. "Throughout those five months, Dr. Shaw was my primary physician." With that, he looked at Damien smugly. "Dr. Shaw and I spent a lot of time together for more than five months. You wouldn't understand our bond!" "Cough, cough!" Across from them. Cherise nearly choked on her food. Damien merely smiled faintly and slid a napkin towards Cherise. "So, are you aware of my history with

Dr. Shaw?"

Syatt shook his head. "No."

With that, he flattened his lips, "Didn't you join us for lunch to tell me about your past with her?"
"I did."
Damien responded with an indifferent smile. He looked up at Cherise, who was slightly pale but still.
rating earnestly. "But why don't we go somewhere else?"
"Firstly, it's not nice for me to discuss my past with De Shaw in front of her. I'm afraid I might stir up painful memories for her"
"Secondly, Dr. Shaw hasn't finished her meal yet. We can't disturb her meal, can we Syatt thought about it and agreed. He stood and addressed Cherise, Dr. Shaw, enjoy your meal and take your time. We'll step outside for a chat."
Before Cherise could respond, the two men had already risen and departed together in the elevator
Cherise was flabbergasted
Chapter 562 You're Not Worth It
She stood up and was about to follow, but stopped after a few steps.
Never mind.
Let them do as they please.

She had considered getting rid of them, so their departure was rather convenient.
Therefore, she resumed eating with a clear conscience. Once she finished, she even settled the bill at the restaurant.
Ten minutes later, she gracefully descended from the elevator to the hotel lobby on the ground floor. She overheard the panicked voice of the hotel receptionist. "Hello, is this Adania Hospital?"
"Please dispatch an ambulance quickly. Mr. Posten has collapsed"
I'm not sure of the cause. It seems he got into a fight"
Cherise froze in her tracks.
She hurried towards the reception. "Did you say Syatt Posten collapsed?"
Upon recognizing Cherise, the receptionist nodded quickly. "Dr. Shaw, please check on him! Mr. Posten seems to have had a fight and collapsed"
You're aware of his heart condition, right?!"
Cherise narrowed her eyes. After confirming Syatt's room number, she dashed towards the elevator.
Syatt was on the twenty-third floor.
Just as Cherise stepped out of the elevator on the twenty-third floor, she bumped into Damien, who was about to go down.

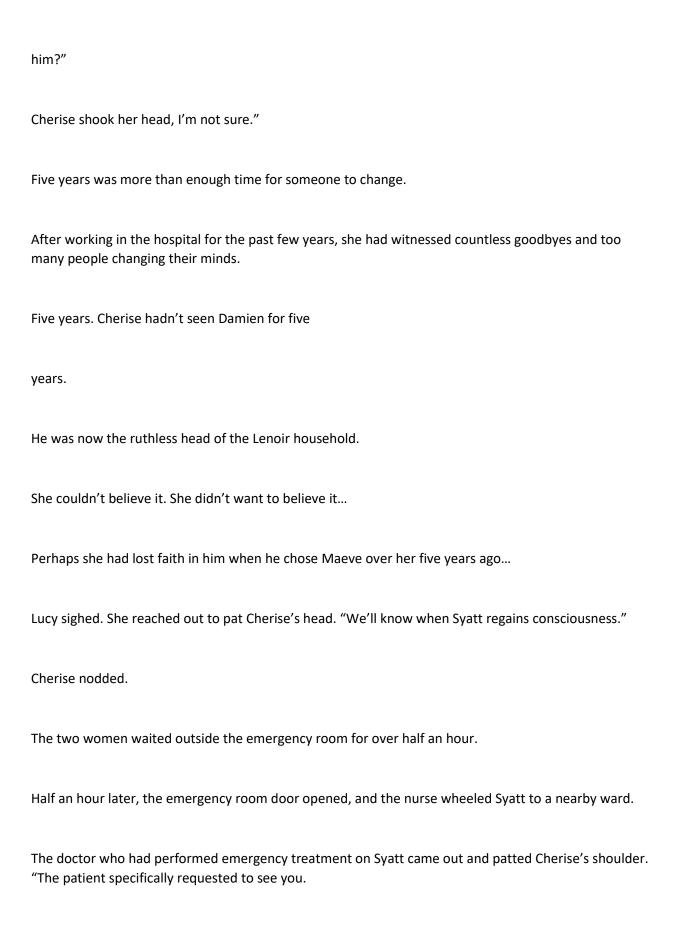

But he couldn't understand why she felt that way.
"I didn't do anything to him."
He had simply told Syatt about his past with Cherise.
"Heh. If you didn't do anything to Syatt, why did he collapse?"
Cherise took a deep breath, looked up, and glared icily at Damien. "Remember that I'm no longer the Cherise I used to be. I'm not your woman anymore."
"Syatt's pursuit and affection for me is between me and him. You have no right to interfere!"
Damien frowned. He looked at her with his deep eyes and spoke in a low voice. "You're my wife. Why can't I interfere?"
"I'm not your wife!"
"We've been divorced for a long time!"
Cherise shook off Damien's hand. "I actually considered giving you a second chance."
"But after some thought, I changed my mind. You're not worth it!"
With that, the woman shrugged off Damien's hand and sprinted towards Syatt's room.
Damien stood still. His eyes narrowed fiercely.

Shortly after, the hospital ambulance arrived.
Cherise and the hotel staff lifted Syatt onto the stretcher and left in the ambulance.
As she climbed into the ambulance outside the hotel, she saw Damien standing at the entrance. He watched her board the ambulance with a serious expression.
The woman gritted her teeth and slammed the ambulance door.
He's not worth it!
Their relationship clearly wasn't the same as it was five years ago. Damien would still need time to win Cherise over again.
Chapter 563 Damien Isn't Like That
They had a strained relationship, yet he dared to behave so boldly towards a man who was courting her.
Moreover, Syatt was her patient!
He had already informed Damien about his heart condition as well!
But Damien still got into a fight with Syatt, causing Syatt to faint!
She hadn't seen Damien for five years, and he had changed beyond recognition!
On the way from the hotel to the hospital, Cherise was worried about Syatt and disappointed in Damien.
Damien had completely let her down.

The woman took a deep breath. "I don't like Damien and have always had a dislike for him."
"But it might not be what it seems. Damien isn't that kind of person."
Cherise closed her eyes. "I don't want to believe that he's someone who would assault a sick person either."
"But if it wasn't him, how did the handprint appear on Syatt's face?"
"Besides him, who else in Syatt Hotel would dare to slap Syatt Posten?"
Lucy was surprised. She fell silent.
1/2
After a while, she still shook her head. "I still can't believe Damien would do such a thing.
"His flaw is wavering between you and his family, but he wouldn't do something so immoral."
Cherise looked up at Lucy, "Are you sure?"
Lucy nodded. "Absolutely."
"I don't believe a person's character changes so easily."
After that, she looked directly at Cherise. "In any case, you used to have feelings for him. Don't you trust.

Cherise quickly stood up and rushed into the ward.
Inside the room, Syatt was leaning against the headboard with a pale expression. He looked at Cherise tearfully. "Dr. Shaw"
Chapter 564 I Hit Myself
Upon seeing his tear-streaked face, Cherise felt overwhelming sympathy. She approached him, pursing her lips, and handed him a tissue while reassuring him. "I'm here."
Syatt took a deep breath and accepted the tissue with a pitiful expression, wiping away his tears. "Dr. Shaw, I'm distraught."
Cherise sat by his bedside, her lips still pursed, and gently comforted him. "It's alright. It's all in the now."
"I assure you that Damien will never appear before you again."
Syatt's hand froze as he wiped his tears.
He looked up at Cherise tearfully. "Why?"
Why?
It's obviously to protect you from harm!
Cherise took a deep breath. "It's for your safety. Moving forward…"

Faced with Cherise's barrage of angry questions, Syatt pursed his lips, looking like a child caught redhanded. "Well, after we entered that room, Mr. Lenoir told me about your past with him, Dr. Shaw,"
"He also told me how he searched for you in the past five years."
"I was so overwhelmed with emotion and felt a great deal of respect for Mr. Lenoir."
"After he left, I thought about how I had pursued you when Mr. Lenoir was away and felt very upset with myself, so I slapped myself twice out of anger. Then, I felt dizzy"
Cherise was stupefied.
"Didn't I tell you Damien isn't like that?"
As they sat in the office, Lucy poured Cherise a cup of tea before shaking her head lightly. "Syatt has always been unpredictable. A stray animal is more trustworthy than him."
Cherise slumped over the desk. "I really misunderstood Damien."
She closed her eyes. The image of the man standing alone at the hotel entrance, looking so lonely and desolate, still haunted her.
He hadn't done anything wrong to her patient.
Yet she had berated and accused him of doing so.
She sighed helplessly, covering her face with her hands. "What should I do?"
Damien must think I'm unreasonable, overly aggressive, and irrational.

Lucy yawned. "You're so stubborn."
"Haven't Mr. Carlos and the hospital director introduced you to numerous promising young men over the years?"
"Zachary even introduced you to a few men. Have any of them caught your eye?"
"You've shown no interest in any of these men. But when Damien shows up, you're all over the place."
"If you can't let go, why not give it another shot?"
Cherise's hands clenched tightly. "I"
Even though five years had passed, she couldn't easily forgive Damien for the pain he had caused her back then "Absolutely not."
Lucy rolled her eyes. "Cherise, stop being so stubborn. When I suggested giving him a chance, I meant allowing him to pursue you like Syatt and the others."
"Are you going to be won over so easily?"
"Don't be too grateful for every little thing he does for you. Make him work for it and pursue you for a year or two as compensation for the pain he caused you back then before you make any decisions!"
"Oh."
III

Cherise nodded. She gently sipped her drink. "I understand."
After a moment, she looked up at Lucy again. "Should I apologize for my behavior today?"
"Apologize?"
Lucy frowned. "If he's serious about pursuing you, would a minor misunderstanding discourage him?"
"If this small incident is enough to make him back off, don't bother giving him a chance. Let him go hist own way!"
"Ah."
Cherise pursed her lips and nodded lightly.
Upon seeing the naive girl before her, Lucy sighed in exasperation
Others saw Cherise as a mature, composed, experienced, and restrained female doctor.
But in Lucy's presence, Cherise was still an innocent girl who needed protection. Cherise liked to share and discuss everything with Lucy.

With this in mind, Lucy asked Cherise, "Can't you figure these things out on your own without me

Cherise looked up at Lucy and shook her head.

spelling. it out for you?"

She had her own plans for Damien and would have figured it out without Lucy's advice.
But her past with Damien still haunted her, and she couldn't fully move on.
Lucy's words encouraged her and provided her with a way forward.
As it turned out, she wasn't alone in her thinking. She had people around her who supported her as well.
"Cherise."
Lucy reached out and tousled Cherise's hair. "Your mom passed away a long time ago. It's time to let go."
Chapter 566 Damien's Search
"He didn't choose to have such a father or family either."
"It's just like how you couldn't believe that your uncle would commit arson and murder. Understandably, he didn't believe his father was a rapist."
"If you have feelings for him, don't overthink it."
Cherise sighed and rested her weight on the table, exhaling softly.
After lunch, Cherise made her rounds and checked on her patients in their rooms.
Syatt was the last patient she visited.
"Mrs. Lenoir."

Cherise frowned. "Please don't call me that."
"Alright, alright."
Syatt nodded and eagerly took Cherise's hand. "Mrs. Lenoir, when will you reconcile with Mr. Lenoir?"
Cherise was flabbergasted.
She found it somewhat amusing. "Did Damien drug you? Why have you suddenly started defending him?"
"He didn't drug me."
Syatt took a deep breath and pulled out his cell phone. "Mr. Lenoir showed me a video."
"Take a look."
Cherise furrowed her brows and leaned in.
His phone screen played scenes captured with a handheld video camcorder. The footage showcased Shaw's village.
"Cherise, this is Shaw's village. You probably don't recognize it anymore, do you?"
"It's because of the money I invested with Jack last time. He really did lead the village to prosperity."
"Uncle Shaw and Aunt Wanda moved back while Sky and Tay got into college,"

The scene shifted to a small bridge and river in the village. "You and Blake used to catch fish here, and I could only watch from the side."
"Cherise, many fish are in the river now, and I'd love to catch fish with you. Would you come back to me again?
Cherise's college campus was shown next. "I asked the dean and your classmates. They said you like to study at this spot in the square every morning."
"You previously said you wanted me to eat in the cafeteria and study with you."
"If you come back to me, I'll do these things with you."
[1]
1/2
Finally, the scene switched to Damien's stubbled face. "Cherise, this is the thirty-fifth day since I'm remorseful and want to find you, but you won't see me."
The scenes kept changing.
"Cherise, this is the sixtieth day I've been looking for you."
"It's been 120 days."
"365 days have passed."
"I've been looking for you for 1099 days."

Damien's cold face appeared each time. "I'm waiting for you to come back."
The video editing wasn't perfect, but each scene was enough to bring tears to Cherise's eyes.
you left.
Syatt sighed lightly. "Mr. Lenoir said he started broadcasting this video on advertising screens in major cities around the world two years ago, hoping you would know he's waiting for you."
"But it seems like you've never seen it."
Cherise stared blankly at the video on Syatt's phone as she wiped her eyes. The corners of her eyes were filled with tears.
The woman sniffled. "Can you send me a copy of this video?"
"Of course!"
Syatt nodded and quickly emailed the video to Cherise. "Speaking of which, Dr. Shaw, aren't you moved. by everything Mr. Lenoir has done for you?"
Cherise nodded as she saw the video file in her inbox. "Of course, I'm moved."
"So, will you two reconcile?"
Syatt still looked at Cherise with the same adoring gaze as before. "Does it mean you're close to forgiving him if you're moved?"
He looked at Cherise seriously. "Mr. Lenoir is sincere about you, Dr. Shaw."

"He told me a lot about what happened when he was looking for you all these years when he showed me this video earlier this afternoon."
Chapter 567 Is He Giving Up?
"I have come to understand the difference between him and me."
"I confessed my love for you, but unlike him, I cannot abandon almost everything in my pursuit to find you."
"I questioned myself. If you were to leave me one day, would I be determined to search relentlessly for you for five years?"
As he spoke, the man bowed his head in silence. "Therefore, I slapped myself."
"Perhaps, compared to Mr. Lenoir, I lack a true understanding of what love truly entails."
Cherise was left speechless with surprise as she gazed at Syatt before her.
Eventually, she let out a light sigh and gently moved Syatt onto the bed. "Alright. I understand."
"But Syatt, you must prioritize your health no matter what."
"Whatever happens between Damien and me is our own business. You have heart problems, so avoid getting overly agitated and refrain from self-harm without reason. Take responsibility for your own well-being, alright?"
After that, she didn't wait for Syatt to respond and promptly left the ward.

Cherise let out a long sigh as she left and glanced at her cell phone.

She pur her phone on silent mode and repeatedly watched the scenes that Damien had personally documented.

He went to Adania, Tanner Residence in Europe, Miles Manor in Ziphon, Shaw's village, and Adania University. He even visited the locations she had written about in her diary, like South America and Peru, where she had longed to visit and explore.

He would record himself searching for any traces of her at each location and annotate it with how many days he had been searching.

As she scrutinized these scenes, Cherise's emotions were in turmoil.

It would be a blatant lie to claim she wasn't moved.

But she didn't necessarily want to forgive him just because she was stirred...

She lay in her office and watched the video for the entire afternoon.

When it was time to clock out in the evening, Lucy asked curiously while changing, "Did Damien come to see you in the afternoon?"

Cherise, who was buttoning her clothes, paused momentarily. "No."

"How strange."

Lucy raised her eyebrows. "Don't tell me I hit the nail on the head? Is he giving up so easily?"

"I assumed he would pursue you relentlessly. Turns out, it seems he values his pride more. You rebuked him at noon, and he's nowhere to be seen by evening?"

1/2

Cherise pursed her lips and remained silent.

She deliberately strolled from the hospital to the parking lot.

Dr. Shaw, are you waiting for someone?"

Doctors and nurses walked past her continuously.

Cherise shook her head. "No..."

"Oh, you're walking so slowly. I thought you had plans and were waiting for someone."

"I don't."

"Do you want to come with us? We're going out for drinks later!"

"Yeah, Dr. Shaw, would you like to join us? We've never had drinks with you."

Cherise waved awkwardly. She turned to unlock the car door with her car keys. "Not today. I need to pick. my children up from kindergarten."

"Ah. I see. What a shame..."

The doctors and nurses walked away dejectedly. Cherise let out a long sigh and finally settled into the driver's seat.
Forget it.
I should be happy since Damien no longer wants to bother me. Why should I feel disappointed?
He loves me deeply? So what if he broadcasted the video of his search for me on screens in major cities globally and searched for me relentlessly for five long years
It's all a lie!
A charade!
I only rebuked him impulsively before getting to the bottom of things!
But he quickly backed away and was nowhere to be seen for the entire afternoon. He completely stopped pestering and disturbing me!
Chapter 568 Cherise's Solace
Why would he portray himself as someone who searched for me relentlessly over five years if he's unsure of his feelings for me?
What a jerk!
She silently berated him as she started the car before speeding off towards the kindergarten.
"Mommy!"

When the car stopped in front of the kindergarten, Serafina sprinted towards Cherise with her arms wide. open. "Mommy, I missed you so much!"

"Mommy, your eyes are so pretty. They're like stars in the sky!"

Behind her, Soren curled his lips in disdain. His backpack was slung over his shoulder, and he seemed. wise beyond his years. "She just picked up that line from a cartoon earlier today, and she's already. repeating it. You're like a parrot!"

Serafina looked aggrieved as she nestled in Cherise's arms. "Mommy, Mommy! Ren is being mean!"

Cherise smiled in exasperation and turned to look at Soren. "Don't bully your sister."

"I didn't!"

Soren opened the car door somewhat grumpily. Despite his squabble with Serafina, he still behaved in a dignified manner as he pouted at his sister. "Get in the car."

Serafina snorted, She let go of Cherise and clambered into the back seat awkwardly.

She didn't have to struggle so much in the past!

She was pretty spoiled. Cherise would always carry her into the car whenever she threw a tantrum. She never had to scramble in herself.

But Soren insisted they should be more considerate of Cherise as her children. He said she must have been exhausted after a day's work, so they shouldn't burden her by asking her to carry them. Otherwise, he would tattle to the kindergarten teachers about the comic books stashed in Serafina's desk.

Therefore, Serafina had to clumsily obey Soren's instructions daily.

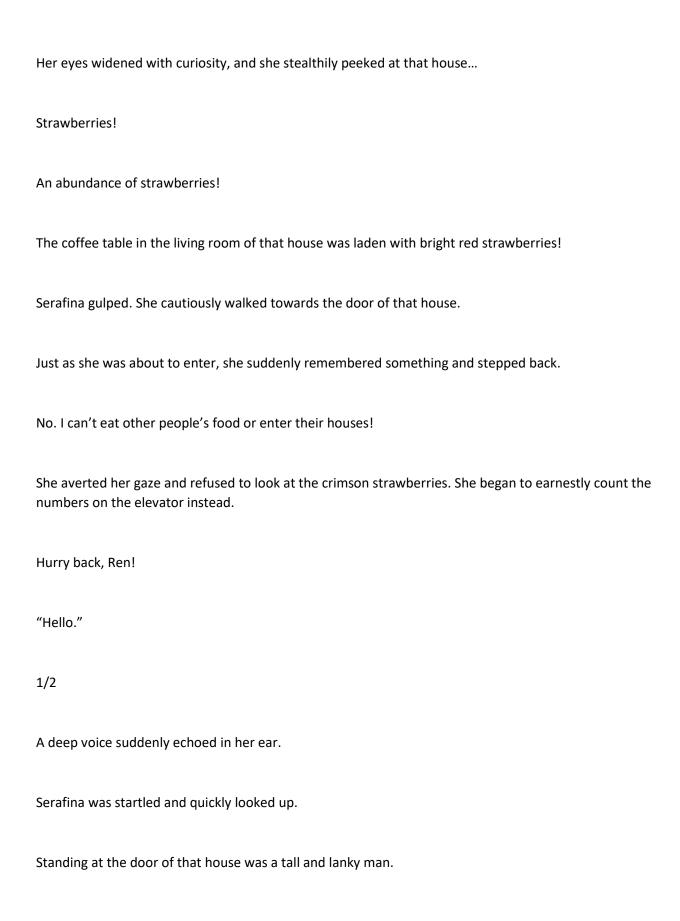

Chapter 569 What Brings You Here?
Serafina was surprised, her eyes widening. I'm not!"
It was because all the other dishes prepared by the lunch lady were salty. Only the tomato sandwiches. were sweet. That was why she had eaten so many tomato sandwiches!
She didn't have a craving for them!
Soren glared at her and whispered. "Mommy isn't in the best mood today. Just eat something simple."
"When she's feeling better, we'll ask her to treat us to a fancy meal."
Serafina nodded, reassured by Soren. She looked up at Cherise and smiled, "Mommy, can I have tomato sandwiches tonight?"
"Sure."
Cherise smiled and pressed the elevator button in front of the two children.
The elevator arrived at their floor quickly.
"Mrs"
The elevator door opened, and Mr. Hampson looked at Cherise, somewhat flustered. "Did did you just finish work?"
As he spoke, he involuntarily glanced at the two children beside Cherise.

The two toddlers, especially the older boy
He bore a striking resemblance to Mr. Lenoir as a child!
Mr. Hampson was very excited. He finally understood why Mr. Lenoir was certain that Cherise's children. were his.
It was evident from the boy's appearance and demeanor. There was no need for a DNA test to confirm that this was Mr. Lenoir's son!
But he remembered Mr. Lenoir's instructions and dared not express his excitement.
"Mm."
Cherise instinctively shielded the two children behind her. "What brings you here?"
"I came"
Mr. Hampson coughed lightly. "I came to visit my relatives!"
"Yes, that's right. I have relatives living here!"
Cherise nodded. "What a coincidence."
"Mm-hmm!"
Afraid of revealing too much, Mr. Hampson quickly smiled at Cherise. "Please go ahead. I have some business to attend to."
III

business to attend to.
"I'll be leaving!"
After responding and watching Mr. Hampson leave, she furrowed her brows and ushered the two children. into the elevator.
"Mommy, is that man one of your patients?"
Cherise was taken aback. She nodded, "Sort of."
"Oh."
The child looked meaningfully in Mr. Hampson's direction.
After the three returned home, Cherise changed the children's outfits. After changing her own clothes she put on an apron and headed to the kitchen.
Soren and Serafina had requested tomato sandwiches for dinner.
She opened the fridge and found tomatoes and eggs but realized she was out of salt.
"Ren and Sera, behave at home. Mommy is going out to buy salt."
"Mommy!"

Soren, who had just changed, quickly ran over. "Let me buy it!"
As he spoke, he stretched out his hand to Cherise. "Give me the money, please!"
Cherise took money out of her pocket. "Buy two jars."
Although Soren was only five years old, he was very clever. It wasn't his first time running errands. Cherise had been worried at first but now felt completely at ease.
"This isn't enough, Mommy.",
Soren blinked at Cherise. "I need an ice cream to make up for the calories burned from going downstairs."
"And I can't eat an ice cream alone with Sera watching, So, Mommy, you must give me enough money for two ice creams!"
Cherise looked at her intelligent, five-year-old son in exasperation. "Mr. Know-It-All."
With that, she took out more money from her pocket and gave it to him. "You can buy nicer ice creams today."
"Yay!"
Serafina, dressed in pink bunny pajamas, clapped happily. "You're the best, Mommy!"
Chapter 570 Strawberries
Cherise glanced at Soren with frustration. "Please hurry back."

The man bore a striking resemblance to Soren!
Upon seeing his daughter's shocked expression, Damien smiled faintly and crouched down to meet her gaze. "I'm having a problem. Can you help me?"
Serafina instinctively retreated. Her childlike voice timidly echoed. "How can I help you, mister?"
The man pointed at the pile of strawberries on his sofa in his house, looking somewhat distressed. "I can't possibly finish all these strawberries."
"They'll go bad if I keep them for another day. What should I do?"
Serafina looked where his finger was pointing and glanced at the strawberries. She unconsciously gulped. "Then you should quickly finish them."
"But I don't like strawberries."
"Can you help me?"
"Mommy said not to eat food from strangers."
"But we're not strangers. We're neighbors."
"Mommy said not to eat food from unfamiliar neighbors either."
"Mister, why don't you like strawberries?"
Sitting on the sofa in her pink bunny pajamas, Serafina munched on strawberries while looking up at Damien with her big eyes. "Strawberries are so tasty. Why don't you like them?"

"I just don't."
Damien sat beside her, smiling as he observed her. "Do you like strawberries?"
"I do!"
Serafina nodded vigorously. "But my brother said strawberries are expensive. Mommy can't buy them all the time."
"Mommy works very hard!"
Damien's gaze dimmed.
"Did your mommy or your brother tell you this?"
"My brother!"