

My Fabulous Girl Boss by Evergreen

Chapter 871 Kayson took a glance at her and said, "Slightly more powerful than that."

Christine was stunned, as if she was in disbelief.

'He's more powerful than a peak-level grandmaster? Doesn't that make him the legendary smasher?'

"A-Are you a legendary smasher already?"

Kayson shook his head. "I'm not, of course. I'm still quite a distance away from being a smasher."

Christine said in shock, "How did you kill the Friths' man then?"

"Ah, I didn't kill him. He's dead because of the person I brought along with me."

Upon saying that, Kayson said, "Stop inquiring about everything. Check out the room and see if you like it and exchange it for another one if you don't, quickly." Christine pulled a long face instantly and expressed her displeasure. 'This man is really impatient!'

Eira took a glance at Kayson, her expression appearing rather gloomy. Her head hung low, and her shoulders were droopy as if she was not in a good mood.

Christine casually checked out the place with Eira while

Kayson sat on the sofa, drinking a bottle of water.

A moment later, Christine said, "It's pretty good. We'll just stick to this room for the time being. When will you be done preparing the villa, then?" "Uh..." Kayson considered for a moment before he said, "In the next week. I've instructed someone to register the company tomorrow." Christine asked, "Have you found a location for the company?"

“Hmm.”

Kayson told Christine about the location, and she was stunned. She muttered to herself, “Is that for real... That is the best area in Skyspring! “Whether it is on lease or sale, it’s going to cost a fortune. You’ll be spending a lot of money during the initial phase of establishing the company, so don’t be spending extravagantly.”

Kayson chuckled. “It’s free. You can use the location and set your mind at rest.”

“What!?”

Christine was shocked by Kayson once again. She had the courage to declare that she had been in shock more times tonight than she had been in the past five years combined.

Meanwhile, the doorbell rang.

Eira stepped forward quickly and opened the door.

Outside, a middle-aged man was looking at Kayson fearfully with an anxious gaze. He forced a smile.

“Mr. Yarde, I’m Damon Frith.”

Kayson nodded. “Please come in, Mr. Frith.”

Damon’s face turned ghastly pale when Kayson addressed him as ‘Mr. Frith’. He bowed down toward Kayson in fear.

He said in a panicked tone, “Mr. Yarde, I didn’t expect that the idiot Jensen would offend you! It wasn’t under my order, and it was an accident, Mr. Yarde!”

Kayson supported his head with his hand. “I’m not going to put the blame on you. You make it sound like I’m unreasonable.”

If he were unreasonable, he would have killed more than just Caleb.

Damon suppressed the fear in his heart. He had the courage to step forward only after Kayson's assurance.

He was one of the witnesses at the scene when Kayson visited the Friths with two highly-skilled fighters and killed the second heir of the Friths right away.

It could be said that any Frith with adequate status and identity had witnessed the scene.

Also, Master Severin, the mainstay of the Friths, had been cussing about the Friths' patriarch, Clifford, in his death.

How could Damon not be afraid of a man who did all that?

Even Master Vaise, an important backer of the Friths, would need to behave himself and address Kayson as 'Mr. Yarde' obediently now!

Standing behind Master Vaise was Jensen, whose head was no longer bleeding, but his wound had yet to be dressed.

At this very moment, Jensen feared Kayson more than when he was downstairs earlier. Damon had already beaten him up aggressively downstairs.

However, he did not have a profound fear of Kayson at the time.

It was only when he witnessed the influential figure of the Friths, Damon, bow down at Kayson without the slightest hesitation that he realized he had offended a terrifying, important person!