

Chapter 10

With just two words from Dorothy, the people on the ground trembled in fear, and some were so terrified that they wet their pants upon hearing it.

They didn't doubt the validity of Dorothy's words at all!

After all, Ann was a good example of it.

Celestine advised hesitantly, "Dorothy, it wouldn't be an issue if we were to kill them outside the domain, but we are now in Country Z. It might cause some trouble if we kill this many people."

Dorothy swept her gaze across everyone who was on the ground when she heard that. She picked up her younger brother, who had already had all his blood transfused back to his body, and ordered, "Then, break their hands and feet and throw them out!"

Celestine did as she said.

"Ah..."

"Please don't..."

"Don't come over..."

Dorothy carried her younger brother out of the room, ignoring the wailing behind her.

She gently put him on the bed next room like she was treating a fragile item.

Someone knocked on the door.

It was the soldier who had previously helped Dorothy track the location of her targets.

The soldier hurried forwards when he got Dorothy's approval. Careful to not wake up the person on the bed, he whispered, "Dorothy, we've finally found the specific location of the item you were searching for."

Upon hearing those words, Dorothy, who had always remained calm and composed, finally showed a hint of emotion on her face.

"Where is it?"

The reason she urgently came back from the battlefield outside the domain was not just to attend the highest conference meeting of Country Z, nor to seek revenge for her beloved grandmother. Instead, she had returned because she had discovered something that would allow her to dominate everything on the battlefield outside the domain.

It was right there in Country Z!

As long as she could obtain it, she could lead Country Z's warriors to the headquarters of other countries! She could lead the soldiers of Country Z and threaten the strongholds of the other few countries if she could get her hands on it!

That would allow Country Z, which had been in a passive position all along, to reverse its situation completely.

By that time, she could teach those who looked down on Country Z a lesson!

"It's with the Clark family."

Dorothy, who had received the reply, laughed. "What a coincidence!"

She was already planning a visit to the Clark family.

The original owner of this body was from the Clark family, and she held a deep grudge against them!

Yes, she was not from her current world!

She had come from another world.

Five years ago, to fawn over the lieutenant colonel of the Crawford family, the old lady of the Clark family had forced the original owner to marry an old pervert of the Crawford family who was in his sixties.

The original owner had refused to obey and even accidentally killed the old pervert.

Dorothy resurrected her soul through the original owner's body and was reborn when the old lady of the Clark family was beating up the original owner to death for disobeying her.

After her rebirth, the old lady of the Clark family sent her to prison!

She took over the life of the original owner, fought her way out of prison, and eventually became a Senior General!

Thinking of that, Dorothy turned to look at Frederick Rogers, who was sleeping quietly in bed.

She couldn't help sneering.

Indeed, the old lady of the Clark family was quite something. Not only was she capable of killing her granddaughter heartlessly, but she had also sold her grandson to the Sherratt family for them to drain his blood. It was truly despicable!

"Master... I mean, General Dorothy, how is your brother?"

William Sherman, a legendary figure who was about to become a Senior Colonel at the young age of 28, hurried over and looked at Dorothy anxiously and respectfully.

He looked at the girl in front of him, who had joined the Ministry of Defense at the age of fourteen and participated in the war the next year. Later on, she had led some of her trusted generals and established The Guardian outside the region, one of the top forces in the world. His eyes were full of respect and worship.

Currently, Dorothy had become the No. 1 Senior General of the Ministry of Defense, infinitely close to that position!

William was one of the soldiers who had established The Guardian with Dorothy!

After a moment of silence, Dorothy said lightly, "Let's go visit the Clark family."

"Okay." William immediately asked his subordinates to speak to the Clark family. "Inform the Clark family that I'll be attending Mrs. Clark's birthday party tonight."

.....

The Clark family.

"Mother, great news! Great news!"

At that moment, Mrs. Clark, who was sitting in the main seat of the living room, frowned unhappily as she watched the middle-aged man running around in a frenzy, shouting loudly.

She sternly reprimanded, "Don't you know what day it is today? How dare you shout and make a scene like this?!"

"There's nothing surprising about the Sherratt Group giving me $1 million dollars. I exchanged my grandson for it, and you have no part in it!" She retorted sharply.

"No, no. It's not that..."

The man who was running breathlessly was Leslie Clark, the head of the Clark family.

He bent over, gasping for breath, and said, "Mother, a prominent figure from the Ministry of Defense is attending your birthday banquet today!"

Mrs. Clark stopped playing with the prayer beads in her hands and asked, "Someone prominent from the Ministry of Defense is coming?"

"Yes! The person who came to deliver the news is a subordinate of William Sherman, the Colonel of the Ministry of Defense."

Suddenly, a series of cracking sounds echoed through the air, and the beads on the old lady's hand snapped, scattering all over the floor.

However, she didn't care at all. She stood up with joy, unable to hide her excitement and exclaimed, "Are you serious?"

"That has to be William Sherman's subordinate. I can't be wrong!"

Mrs. Clark's breathing instantly became rapid. If William truly visited the Clark family, the status of the Clark family in Northon City would be elevated all in one night!

Just the thought of finally achieving the vision that she had been unable to achieve for so long filled her with excitement.

She was so excited that her whole body was trembling!

Send Gift

Comments