

Chapter 31

Dorothy's words were like a heavy bomb.

Her words caused a stir.

Everyone's attention followed Dorothy's gaze.

Had the Field Marshal come?

Was the person with the highest status in Country Z's Ministry of Defence standing behind the scenes and watching them?

Under everyone's gaze, an old but tall figure came out from behind the tree.

The moment Donald saw the old man, his eyes almost fell out.

He greeted respectfully, "Field Marshal."

However, Walter didn't spare him a look. Instead, he walked towards Dorothy, full of smiles.

Then, he said dotingly, "Girl, you're sharp as ever. I've hidden myself so well. How did you find out?"

When everyone heard that, their mouths were wide open.

That was not the tone of a high-level commander talking to his subordinate. That was obviously the tone of a grandfather spoiling his granddaughter.

Dorothy had already withdrawn the chilling aura on her body the moment Walter came out. She said faintly to him, "I didn't expect you to have a peeping habit."

As soon as Dorothy said that, not only was Donald stunned, but everyone present was taken aback as well!

How dare she say that the Field Marshal was peeping at them?

Just when everyone thought that Walter would lose his temper with Dorothy, he coughed awkwardly. He didn't seem to want to scold her at all, and the affection in his expression didn't diminish at all.

However, his smile disappeared when he looked back at Donald, who was kneeling on the ground.

Donald stood up immediately after seeing Walter's gaze. He solemnly saluted Walter and shouted respectfully, "Greetings, Field Marshal!"

Walter nodded slightly, but his eyes were like knives as he said, "Senior Colonel Sherratt, you let your family do evil things, and today, you publicly contradicted your superior. Is this what a high-level commander of a country should do?"

Anyone could hear the dissatisfaction and bias in Walter's words.

Donald looked at Walter. Seeing that the latter had a different attitude towards him and Dorothy, he was stunned. Then, he came to his senses and said respectfully, "Field Marshal, you're absolutely right. I failed to discipline them well."

Then, he changed the topic. "My family members were wrong, but they don't deserve to die. Even if they were to be sentenced to death, the state should be the judge of that. It shouldn't be determined by General Dorothy!"

Hearing Donald's words, Dorothy couldn't help laughing out loud.

Donald was confused by her laughter.

"Their crimes don't warrant their death?" Dorothy laughed coldly. "Senior Colonel Sherratt, don't you know the principle of an eye for an eye?"

"Senior Colonel Sherratt, your son drained my brother's blood. Do I have to show my gratitude with celebration? Should I be grateful to you?"

Dorothy's gaze grew colder and colder, and her words made people's hair stand on end.

Upon hearing Dorothy's words, Walter's gaze also turned icy.

Donald noticed the shift in his expression, and he hurried to make up for it. "Howard just wanted to extract some of your brother's blood to save his fiancée. He never thought of killing your brother. Moreover, your brother turned out to be fine in the end, right?"

Dorothy sneered. She didn't want to be entangled with Donald anymore. Instead, she looked at Walter and said, "Did Howard want to drain my brother's blood just to save his fiancée? I believe that the hospital's surveillance video can prove it."

Walter looked at Donald coldly.

Donald could not refute Dorothy's words. He frowned and seemed to have made up his mind. "I admit that Howard did something wrong for his fiancée's sake, but what about Thomas? What did he do wrong for you to kill him?"

Seeing that Donald was still trying to argue with her, Dorothy smiled, "Thomas told me that he wanted to apologize to me, so I came here. I originally wanted to reconcile with your family."

"However, you have eyes, Senior Colonel Sherratt. Thomas, the head of the Sherratt family, is in charge of the hidden forces of Northon City. He brought hundreds of people to kill me, and he has no intention of apologizing at all."

"If it wasn't for the fact that my people happened to be nearby, would I still be alive?"

Donald was almost exasperated to death when he heard Dorothy's words.

No matter how many people came from the Sherratt family, they were no match for her. How could she dare to say all that as if she was weak and delicate?

Donald gnashed his teeth in hatred. "Did you really come here all the way to reconcile with the Sherratt family?"

"This place was reserved by the head of the Sherratt family. He said that he would come here to apologize to me. How could I not come?"

Donald almost cursed, "Just because he said he would apologize, you came? Besides, you even said you would have died if it weren't for your people being nearby. Would anyone believe that?"

"You're a senior commander of the Ministry of Defence. Even if everyone from the Sherratt family fights you, they won't be able to defeat you."

"However, you said you almost lost your life. Were you going to stand still and let them kill you?"

"Additionally, you said that my brother brought people with him, but you emphasized that he controlled the hidden forces. You are trying to sow discord! You know the Field Marshal's attitude toward those hidden forces, but you still said such a thing. Are you trying to highlight that you are a good citizen?"

Those words made Donald's blood boil. He continued, "What qualifications do you have to kill Howard and Thomas? These answers of yours are irrelevant!"

Dorothy looked at Donald, whose face was as red as a tomato.

She merely looked at him as if she was looking at an idiot. She said coldly, "Senior Colonel Sherratt, you should know that the deliberate murder of a senior commander of the Ministry of Defense means they can be killed immediately, right?"

"They deserve to die!"