

Chapter 40

Feeling Dorothy's gaze that seemed capable of freezing air, everyone subconsciously held their breath.

For a moment, the scene fell into a strange silence.

Dorothy looked at the stunned crowd, and her aura became colder.

"Didn't you hear me?"

"Yes, we heard you..."

Some of the timid ones muttered almost subconsciously.

Although the others did not respond, no one dared to make a sound of objection.

Connie looked at Dorothy, who was intimidating the whole crowd at this time, and slowly clenched her fists.

What right did a good-for-nothing whom she bullied in junior high school have to put on airs in front of her?!

However, looking at Dorothy who was standing quietly not far away, Connie didn't dare to stand up and retort.

Just as Connie was about to combust from the frustration in her heart...

A cold and majestic voice came from afar.

"What's going on here?"

The crowd heard the voice and looked in the same direction.

A few of them saw a middle-aged man slowly walking over, and they quickly greeted him respectfully.

"Mr. Jenkins!"

It was none other than the lobby manager of the hotel, Ethan Jenkins.

A look of happiness flashed across Connie's face.

In the next moment, she looked at Ethan and said anxiously to him.

"Mr. Jenkins, my friend has been knocked out. Could you please help me ask if there are any doctors around to give my friend emergency treatment first?"

"She was knocked out?"

Ethan's expression turned cold. "Who did it?"

Hearing that, Connie subconsciously looked at Dorothy.

However, she quickly looked away from Dorothy like a frightened little white rabbit.

When Ethan saw that, how could he not know who it was?

He looked at Dorothy and questioned coldly with an ugly expression.

"Did you do it?"

Dorothy glanced at him indifferently and nodded without hesitation.

"Yes, it was me."

Seeing Dorothy's fearless look, Ethan narrowed his eyes.

"You must be blind. Is this a place where you can act wildly?"

After that, he directly turned to the guards not far away and ordered them.

"Throw this reckless person out!"

Dorothy glanced at the dozen or so guards who quickly approached her, and kindly reminded Ethan.

"I'm here to find someone today. I don't want to ruin this banquet before I find that person. You'd better ask the person in charge first if you want to hurt me."

Upon hearing that, Ethan immediately sneered with disdain.

"Haha! Why do you need our general manager's permission to deal with you? Who do you think you are? Aren't you thinking too highly of yourself?"

After that, he looked at the guards who had stopped moving, and scolded them.

"What are you waiting for? Take her away!"

When everyone around heard Ethan's words, they all looked at Dorothy with gloating eyes.

They sneered. Why wasn't she arrogant anymore?

Did she think that no one could deal with her there?

How dare she make trouble in Global Palace Hotel! She must really be courting death!

They remembered that the last person who made trouble in Global Palace Hotel had his legs broken.

However, that good-for-nothing not only hit people, but also dared to talk nonsense in front of Ethan.

If Ethan could let her off with this behaviour, he would most probably be fired from being the lobby manager.

At the same time, Connie looked at Dorothy, who was surrounded, and her mouth curved into a cold smile.

Ha, she was only someone whom she used to step on five years ago. How dare Dorothy behave so arrogantly in front of her?

No matter how arrogant Dorothy was just now, she would still end up in a miserable state the next moment!

Dorothy was just a good-for-nothing in Connie's eyes in junior high school.

Although she was better than a good-for-nothing now, she was still an idiot without brains!

At that moment, Connie's eyes were fixed on Dorothy as if she could already see the latter kneel and beg for mercy after being subdued by the guards.

Under her gaze, two guards were getting closer and closer to Dorothy.

Soon.

They were almost able to grab her.

They were so close to beating that good-for-nothing until her mother wouldn't be able to recognize her!

However, just as their hands were about to touch Dorothy, a shout of extreme panic suddenly came from the distance.

"Stop right there!"

Hearing the familiar order, the guards instinctively stopped.

At the same time, everyone around looked in the direction of the sound.

Then, they saw the general manager of the hotel, Graham Stephens. He had just finished an urgent matter and rushed back because of the news. He ran over as fast as possible.

No one knew if it was an illusion.

However, they all actually felt that Graham's expression showed very obvious panic at the moment.

"Mr. Stephens, why are you here?"

Seeing Graham, Ethan quickly greeted him with a flattering expression on his face.

However, Graham didn't even look at Ethan.

Staring at Dorothy, who was surrounded by the guards, he only felt that his heart almost stopped beating.

He tried his best to suppress the fear in his heart and looked at Ethan in front of him, trying not to make his voice tremble too obviously.

"What's going on?"

Ethan saw that Graham was not behaving normally. He thought that Graham was so angry that someone dared to challenge the authority of the hotel.

Ethan immediately smiled and explained what happened.

"Mr. Stephens, this silly little girl is making trouble in the hotel. Go and have a rest. I'll get someone to break her legs and explain the situation to the guests who were disturbed..."

Slap!

Before Ethan could finish his words, Graham raised his hand and slapped Ethan hard in the face.

In an instant, Ethan was dazed by Graham's slap.

At the same time, almost everyone around him was stunned.

Before anyone could recover from their shock, Graham had already nervously walked up to Dorothy.

Then...

Slap!

Another crisp slap sounded.

However, this time, he didn't hit anyone else.

He slapped... himself!

Under everyone's astonished gazes, Graham's attitude towards Dorothy changed, becoming extremely humble.

His trembling voice as he spoke was like muffled thunder that exploded in the minds of everyone present...
