

My Mates 454

Chapter 454 She Cannot Steal Him From Me

I pulled back awkwardly while he rested his hands around me on the bed and tried looking into my eyes.

“Now!” I said, holding my breath in and forcing a calming smile onto my lips.

“Now what?” he asked, making me narrow my eyes in his face.

“You said you will give Thiago his body back if I kiss you,” I pouted, reminding him of his deal.

“What? When did I say I would do that?” He pouted, rubbing his finger over his lips, and then licked the taste of me.

“But you— we were talking about you releasing Thiago, and you asked me for a kiss. I thought you meant a trade,” I mumbled in amusement.

“First, you were talking about releasing him, and last, I saw you talk and look so cute, so I asked you for a kiss. There was no trade,” he shrugged, trying to look innocent when my glare turned his face to the other side.

“But I will say you taste good,” he whispered sneakily, getting up on his feet to step aside.

While he was trying to hide from my angry glare, I watched my phone’s screen turn bright as a message popped up on the screen.

“Who is it?” Theo asked, watching me read the message worriedly.

“It’s the border guard. I have asked him to look for my brother,” I sighed, putting my phone down and getting worried about Oswin.

“That boy who used to live in the woods?” Theo questioned.
