

My Mates 476

Chapter 476-Not Having Sex Tonight.

"Enya! Please chill out," Theo had said as he led me into the guestroom after Emelia's words had rendered me speechless. I couldn't even stay there for a minute and face everyone.

No! You don't understand. It is unfair to everyone. How could my mother do this to you all?" I was crying in anger and frustration.

Now that Emelia has told me the truth about my relationship with everyone, I feel disgusted with my mother even more.

"She didn't only ruin our lives with her curses; she decided to punish you some more by tying you all to me. That was her way of making sure you guys suffered even after she was gone." I was walking back and forth in the room, feeling guilty.

Lazio and Maynard were standing in the corner, watching me. I always thought it wasn't true, but now I can tell that my mother did cross all the boundaries when making others suffer.

"It is not suffering, though. It had always been a blessing to be your mate," Theo said, without carrying an ounce of hatred for anyone in his voice.

"You don't understand. She knew she had made terrible enemies. Those who would come after her daughter so in order to keep her daughter protected, she — she made you my guardian angels," I bit my tongue when talking about the mate bond.

How could she steal their chances of having a fated mate by creating a false mate bond?
