

My Rebirth 27

Chapter 27

"You shameless old man. My daughter has seen you together. Don't try to deny it!" Miranda believed in Yulissa unconditionally.

Subconsciously, she didn't think Yulissa would lie to her.

"Since your daughter is here, why do you ask me for her?" After Hugo finished questioning Miranda, he turned to Yulissa and asked in a resolute tone, "Ms. Yulissa Yates, did you tell your parents that I am keeping Ms. Cassandra Yates as my mistress? Why are you so malicious at such a young age?"

"Hugo, you know what? When Cassie and I went to the competition that day, Ms. Yates came up and asked me to let go of Cassie, saying that her sister was too young to do such a thing. I'm curious. What was Cassie asked to do?" Jeremiah said, then he looked at Yulissa meaningfully and continued, sarcasm evident in his eyes, "It seems this is the manner of the Yates family. I must say, I truly admire your way of raising a daughter!"

Yulissa's face changed, and then there were tears in her eyes.

"I... I didn't say that," she denied.

When Miranda and Benjamin saw that their daughters were being cornered, they immediately said, "Aren't you ashamed to bully a young girl? That shameless Cassandra has hooked up with so many men. No wonder she dares to sue us. You are all backing her up." Miranda's attitude made Jeremiah sick!

"Don't you think it's too much to bully my daughter?" Benjamin said.

"Mr. Lawson, Hugo, ask Cassandra to come out and meet us," Leonardo said in a deep voice.

"Sorry, I don't know anything about Cassandra or where she lives. Since you are her family, you should know where she lives. If she doesn't tell you, that means you're just strangers to them," Jeremiah remarked sarcastically.

The family was so biased.

"You, ask your boss to come out and see me! Wouldn't he discipline his subordinates?!" Benjamin completely forgot the nature of Whitecrane Hall.

He had been yelling all this while.

Jasper couldn't stand it anymore. If they offended Whitecrane Hall, who would provide the medicinal materials for his hospital in the future? The hospital was already discussing collaboration with Whitecrane Hall again at the moment.

He had inquired for a long time about a kind of traditional medicine, which was only available in Whitecrane Hall. He couldn't afford the consequences of offending them.

Jeremiah laughed.

It seemed that the Yates family had become overly proud in recent years and no longer took anyone seriously.

“Okay, I’ll get our boss here. Come in, Scarlett,” Jeremiah said through the internal. phone.

“Mr. Lawson, what’s up?” Scarlett was the receptionist who had just led the Yates family into the reception room.

Jeremiah glanced at the Yates family and said, “They want to see Boss. Go get Boss.”

Scarlett froze.

‘No one dares to call Boss! Are these people here to stir up trouble?’ she thought.

But Scarlett, who had been in Whitecrane Hall for so many years, did have some insight..

“Mr. Lawson, where can I find Boss? Isn’t the whole Whitecrane Hall managed by you and Hugo? Your boss is Dr. Quirke. I have never seen him,” Scarlett said..

Looking “troubled,” Scarlett said to the Yates family, “The decision makers of Whitecrane Hall are the two people before you. Mr. Jeremiah Lawson oversees Whitecrane Hall in general, and Hugo serves as our general manager. If they can’t address your concerns, your next recourse would be to wait for Dr. Quirke.”

Anyway, she had never seen Faye in so many years.

The Yates family was the first to come to Whitecrane Hall to stir up trouble.

Benjamin and Miranda were stunned. They didn’t expect the two people before them to hold such a significant status.

Benjamin snapped back to reality, recognizing that Whitecrane Hall wasn’t the kind of place for tantrums.

“Do you hear that? Your only chance to meet our boss is through luck. I suggest you turn back,” Jeremiah gestured politely, ushering them to leave.

Miranda fell silent at once.

She didn’t expect these two people to have so much power.

Scarlett hurriedly opened the door of the reception room and wanted the Yates family to leave.

Jeremiah ignored the Yates family, but unexpectedly, they bumped into Cassandra when they reached the door.

“Cassandra, I know you’re deeply connected with the folks at Whitecrane Hall. You shameless girl! You’re bringing embarrassment to the Yates family!” Miranda couldn’t contain her anger upon seeing Cassandra.

She had just been mocked by Jeremiah and offended Whitecrane Hall. Now she was attributing all her faults to Cassandra upon seeing her.

You shameless girl! Miranda cursed inwardly.

Cassandra didn't expect to encounter the Yates family at the entrance Hall. She came

St at ere to arrange the visit to Pinchart Mansion for tomorrow.

There were some things that she needed to clarify with Hugo. She didn't know how the family discovered this place.

"Mrs. Yates, since when have you been acting like a shrewd?" Cassandra looked unhappy.

"Cassandra, how could you speak to Mom like that? She scolded you because she's worried. We've been searching all day trying to find where you've settled down. Please come back with us. No matter how great it is here, it's not home! I just don't want to be separated from my parents and brothers. But if you decide to come back and can't stand the sight of me, I'll leave. I won't be an eyesore to you. I'll be content as long as you allow me to visit home often," Yulissa said softly, tears welling up in her eyes, as if she had suffered a lot of grievances.

Cassandra was speechless.

"What is wrong with her?" she thought.

"Lisa, what are you talking about?" Miranda asked, clearly distressed.

"Lisa, you are our family. Don't talk about leaving ever again. If someone really needs to leave, it would be her. Matthew defended Yulissa.

"What are you doing here, then? Did you come just to get yourselves pissed?" Cassandra frowned, her expression turning somewhat somber,

"Cassie, why are you here?" Jeremiah heard the commotion at the door. Neither he nor Hugo had gone far, so they came out to see what was going on.

"I got caught up with something here. What are they doing here?"

"They are here for you. I sent them away, but I didn't expect you to bump into them at the door." Jeremiah explained.

"Ms. Yates, I'll have them kicked out," Hugo said respectfully.

"If you've come to persuade me to withdraw the lawsuit, there's no need for further discussion. Kindly leave, Cassandra said.

As soon as she finished speaking, several security guards appeared at the door and escorted the Yates family away.

The group went back to the Yates residence.

“Outrageous! Cassandra is helping outsiders deal with us. Da mn her,” Miranda said. angrily.

“All right, stop.

Benjamin was thinking about the attitude of Jeremiah and Hugo toward Cassandra.

He recalled the receptionist mentioning that Hugo and Jeremiah were in charge of everything in Whitecrane Hall, and the only higher-up was Dr. Quirke.

In other words, Jeremiah and Hugo held significant positions.

It was just that the people in Whitecrane Hall were very low-key, so generally, only their partners had ever seen them.

Ordinary people didn’t get the chance to meet them.

However, Hugo was like an employee in front of Cassandra.

Benjamin was wondering if Cassandra was close to them.

If that was the case, he could allow Cassandra to be part of the Yates family. If they could secure a connection with Whitecrane Hall through Yulissa, the Yates family could get back what they lost days earlier.

However, Benjamin had completely forgotten who caused the previous losses of a few hundred million dollars.