Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 151 HE DOESN'T LOVE ME

People should see that she liked Brian, but Brian, because all his attention was on Wendy. "Yes, I'm in love with him." Winnie did not hide, because Leo would give up on her only when she said that out. Although Leo had guessed, hearing that Winnie admitted it, he still felt depressed, feeling hopeless, feeling abandoned by the woman he loved the most. "Does he love you?" Leo continued to ask with an injured heart. This time Winnie still did not show the dilemma, but a bitter smile. "He doesn't love me." Winnie had unrequited love just as Leo, so Leo could feel how she felt. He did not ask any more questions. There was a silence in the room. "Winwin, he doesn't love you. You should know that nothing will ever come to you, it is not late to give up. Leave, lest Penny keep an eye on you." Leo did not want her to be framed by Penny. Winnie sighed, not knowing how to let Leo not worry, how to let him give up her completely to find his own happiness. After thinking for a while, she told him the truth. "Leo, there is something I want to tell you. That's why I have to stay with Brian." Winnie paused and continued. "Remember our last phone call? I was with a man at that time. If you hadn't said those hurtful words, I would never have met Brian, and everything afterwards would never have happened." "What do you mean?" Leo was puzzled. What was that man related to Brian? Didn't they just meet this year? "The man was Brian. I badly needed money. My mother and sister were in hospital..." With tears, Winnie told him the difficulties she encountered in those years, as well as the surrogacy and that Penny abused Luke. Every time she thought of it, Winnie felt like she had been skinned. Leo was shocked and could not believe it was true. Winnie did not find any rich man, but for the sake of her sister and mother's life, had surrogate pregnancy. Now Leo felt that he was a bastard. All this was caused by him. Winnie's fate was changed by him. At that time, if he helped Winnie, she would not have gone to surrogacy, she would not have met Brian, and she would not have encountered what was happening right now. "Winwin, sorry, I am sorry. You must be helpless, but I did not help you." Leo was guilty about that. He had destroyed a woman's happiness, his believed woman. How could he not blame himself? "Winwin, so two children are Brian's, and you stay with him for Luke?" Leo finally understood why Winnie was so concerned about Luke, also understood why Luke was so dependent on Winnie. They were blood related. "Yes. Luke is my child. He is too poor, I can't leave him alone." Winnie's mood calmed a little. "Does Brian not know about these things?" Leo continued to ask. "No, and I don't want him to know. I just want him to separate from Penny so that Luke can grow up in a good environment. As for me and him, it's impossible." After Winnie said these things out, she felt relieved. "Winwin I don't think this is fair to the child. Luke has the right to know who his mother is, and Megan has the right to know who her father is. Why don't you lay the matter straight and try to get custody of the two children?" Leo felt this matter was impossible to be concealed for a lifetime. If it was concealed, two children would become victims... Since it could not be concealed, it would be better to solve the problem earlier. Winnie and Brian would live their own lives and be well. And they would have lives as easy as normal people. "It seems that things are not so simple. At the beginning, Brian wanted a boy to consolidate his position. He could not easily give the child to me. I have learned the law, I have no condition as good as his, I can't have the custody of Luke. Maybe he will take away Megan, it will be worse." Winnie had been careful because she was afraid of losing the custody of two children. She did not expect Luke to call her Mommy, or give Megan a father. She just wanted to keep the two children silently for a lifetime. "It is reasonable, after all his strength is strong." Leo did not think of this problem, but also underestimated the position of Luke in the heart of Brian. But he felt that she should make it clear, Brian was not necessarily that bad. "I am so now, Luke stays with me for one day, I will take good care of him for a day. If he will come back to Brian's home, Brian will not be so cruel to let me cut off contact with the children. I will be satisfied to have a lot of opportunities to get along with him." "You don't have to worry about me. If Penny is separated from Brian, there won't be any storm and any threat to me. I'll be good in the future." Winnie knew Leo had been guilty for her, and wanted to make him relieved, but if he liked her, he would be guilty for a lifetime. "Leo, the past has long passed. Never say sorry to me again. You have done nothing wrong, everything is the fate. We can only accept the reality." "Find a girlfriend. I will stay in this city. If we get along as friends, we will be good friends for life. If you are always guilty for me, I must stay away from you, so that you will not blame yourself when you see me." Winnie put the words tactfully, not wanting Leo to be embarrassed. "Winwin, I know what you mean. Don't worry, I'll be with you as a friend." Leo's mood was low. In fact, Leo was pleased to hear that Luke was Winnie's child. Luke was an obstacle to Leo. Since he was the child of Winnie like Megan, he could accept it. He had his intention to ask Winnie to make everything clear and fight for custody, so that Winnie and Brian could be separated, so that he could have an opportunity. He did not care that Winnie had children, not to mention two, he could accept four. But before he said that, Winnie stopped that. At the moment he had no choice but to respect Winnie. Leo was worried about Winnie and stayed in the hospital for the night. When Winnie fell asleep, he went to the sofa and lay down for a while. When he was tired, he got up and went to the bed to look at Winnie. In doing so, Leo almost was sleepless. Penny had a bad sleep for several days. She was worried about what would happen to Daniel while thinking about what Brian said. She was not sure if he had known something, so he wanted to have a paternity test after she gave birth to the child? Once that happened, she would be screwed. Penny didn't know what to do. He had to call Richard. Penny, now suffering from morning sickness, went to the bathroom to vomit and came back to lie in bed before calling Richard. "Dad, how is going with Daniel?" Asked Penny. "Don't worry about that." Richard replied impatiently. "Dad, hurry up. I'm always afraid that if they find it out, my plans won't work and the child and I will be abandoned." Penny told the story of the child. "Child, are you pregnant?" Richard was visibly excited. "Yes, pregnant." "Does Brian know?" Richard's impatient face lit up at once. "Yes, I told him, and he said let me give birth to it." Penny said in a low voice. She was afraid that her father would scold her after learning the truth. But now she could not solve this situation on her own, so she had to turn to her father. "Good, you set your mind to raise the fetus. I will think of way these two days." Richard planed to advance the plan. Only Daniel disappeared, this matter could be completely put to rest. After this thing was over, everything would be fine. "But..." Penny looked awkward. "But what?" Richard asked. "Brian said a paternity test is needed after I give birth to this child. If it is his child, he will be responsible, but if it is not, I will be screwed." "What does this mean? Why does he suspect the child?" Richard had a bad feeling that things were not as simple as he thought. "The baby is really not Brian's, but Daniel's." Penny said this with her eyes closed. She bet if Richard were with her right now, she would be killed. "What did you say, Penny?" Richard was furious. He did not expect that Penny would do such a thing. How honorable Brian was, how could he allow such a thing to happen? If he had known, he would kill Penny. "I don't want to, but you always urge me to have a child. Brian didn't touch me at all. How can I have a child?" Penny said sadly, not because of her father's great anger, but because Brian did not love her after four years being together. "Did not touch you? Don't you sleep together? He did not touch you, and you said it was his child?" Richard was now in a complete mess and couldn't understand the whole story. "For the last two months I put sleeping pills in his water, but it look like he was sleeping like a rock and nothing happened to us." Penny told the truth, but she did not expect that her words would soon be known by Brian. "What's wrong with your head? What can he do after having sleeping pills?" Richard angrily scolded her. If Penny was not a girl, he would have made the words even worse. "I didn't have time to prepare for anything else. It was not easy to find such an opportunity."

CHAPTER 152 THE DAY HAS COME

Penny also knew that after having sleeping pills, he could only sleep, but under that situation she had no other choice. Brian was too vigilant, too smart, and too strong in restraint. In that case if he took an aphrodisiac, he would walk away, never touching her, and then things would get worse. She could only cheat him when he wasn't sober. "Excuse, what you said is an excuse, you should admit your intelligence quotient is limited fundamentally and you can't control Brian. You are incompetent." Richard had nothing to say but abuse. "Dad, don't belittle me like that. It's not that I'm incompetent, it is that Brian doesn't like me at all. You know, our marriage is just a transaction without love." "We've slept in separate rooms since we were married, and he won't let me in his room at all. To outsiders we are husband and wife, but at home we are strangers." Penny suppressed grievances for four years. It should be the best time of her life, but she lived without a bit of taste. She was wronged more than anyone else. "What? Transaction? What is going on?" Richard could not hear the grievance of Penny at all. He was confused by the words of Penny, and he could not distinguish which was true and which was false. Penny pondered for a moment. Since she had said it out, she would tell him more. For so many years, she paid not only for herself, but also her family "Brian did not agree on that marriage. He asked me out. If I agreed to a contract marriage, he would agree to marry me, otherwise he would find someone else." "You insisted on that marriage, so I had to say yes to him and we signed the marriage contract. If it weren't for the family, I wouldn't have pushed myself into it. Do you know how difficult I have been these years?" Penny was scheming to her father and said had paid a lot for the family. There would no such woman more scheming than her in this world. "You..... even if I forced you, you should at least discuss it with me. Why did you make your own decisions on such a big matter?" Richard admitted that he was eager to finish the marriage, but did not expect that Penny was brainless and ignorant, making herself into a bad ending. The mistake was caused because he was selfish. And Penny's intelligence quotient was limited, which destroyed her great prospects. Richard felt as if he had been hit by a bludgeon. His head and eyes were in a daze and he didn't know what to do. He had been optimistic about Penny and put hope on her, but who made him most disappointed was Penny. "How can I discuss with you? My brothers and sisters treat me like an eyesore. They don't treat me as a sister at all. If this gets to their ears, they'll make a mockery of me. I have dignity and I don't want to be looked down upon by them." Penny finally spoke out her helplessness, but everything she said had nothing to do with her selfishness. She was forced by her family. "You..." At this moment, Richard was speechless. What Penny said was a fact, other brothers and sisters could not accept the existence of Penny. "These are just objective reasons. If things go wrong, you're not doing a good job." Richard still thought Penny's ability was limited and denied Penny on everything out of anger. "Dad, how can you say that? I didn't do it for myself. Do you think I want it now?" Penny finally could not help crying. At this time she felt that she was an independent individual in the vast universe without parents. In this case, she did not need to ask for anyone's help, she just needed to walk on her way. "I know you treat me like a tool, not your daughter at all. In this case, my affairs are not your business. I will take care of myself." Penny angrily hung up the phone. She did not believe that Richard would watch her mess things up. As Penny thought, Richard called before long. "I will deal with this matter. You protect the child for the time being. Brian is not sure if it is his child, so this child will keep you safe. After Daniel is got rid of, you hurry to get abortion, in this way we still have a chance." Richard finally put things to his own hands. He was afraid that Penny would get things more and more difficult to be dealt with. Now he decided that Daniel must disappear immediately. The longer the delay, the greater danger Penny faced. Penny hung up her father's phone, leaving a sly smile. She pushed the difficult problem to Richard, finally she could be relieved. On Sunday, Megan and Luke spent a day with Winnie and didn't leave until the evening. Winnie had been able to walk. The doctor said it would help her recovery. After the children left, she was alone in the ward. She couldn't sleep, so she got down and kept walking, trying to get better and get out of the hospital as soon as possible. She had too much waiting for her and she could not stay in the hospital for a long time. She walked slowly to the bed and looked out at the clear sky, the bright stars. Everything was vividly, only her heart was dull. Brian had not shown up since the day he left and had not made a phone call to her, which made her extremely disappointed. But what could be done with disappointment? Nobody could give her hope, could they? Winnie was meditating, suddenly the voice of Brian came from behind. "Why are you out of bed again?" When he opened the door and saw Winnie standing by the window, his heart suddenly clenched, afraid that the last thing happened again. When Winnie heard Brian's voice, she curled up her lips and when she turned, she put the smile away. "Doctor Burns asked me to get out of bed and move to help the wound heal." Brian had not been there for two days. Of course, he didn't know how sick she was. She would have gone home if he didn't come in another two days. "You can't get out of bed so late. It's ten o'clock. It's time to sleep." Brian said. At the moment he only worried about Winnie and forgot that he had decided to alienate Winnie. "Ten o'clock?" Winnie deliberately asked. "Then I'll go to bed." Winnie walked towards the bed, Brian quickly came to help, while Winnie avoided him. "No, let me do it myself. Think of it as exercise." Winnie politely refused Brian's touch, just like when she knew that Brian and Penny slept together. Winnie went straight to bed, and then sat down. "Do you have something to tell me?" At that moment Winnie stood in front of the window and turned around, she found Brian seemed to have something to tell her. She had guessed what he had decided to announce. "Why don't you ask me about Penny's pregnancy?" Brian walked to the bed, with his hands in his pants pockets, standing erect. Every time Brian did this, Winnie felt that he was the most handsome man, but at the moment Winnie had an invisible sense of oppression. "That's your business. I might leave it alone." From that day on Winnie didn't care about anything. He had broken all his promises to her. What more could she expect of him? Tell her it was not his child? Tell her it was all a misunderstanding? Even if it were, she didn't want to hear it. She didn't want to believe it. "If I explain, will you believe me?" Asked Brian in a cold voice. The eyes were full of expectation to Winnie. What was he expecting? Winnie lowered her head, not wanting Brian to see the hurt look in her eyes. How would she answer him? She no longer trusted him, just as he had not trusted her. But would it hurt too much to say it like that? "No need to explain. I said it was your business. You can do it on your own." "Maybe Brian didn't care about Penny, but he cared about the child." "But I want to know one thing. Can't you punish Penny?" Winnie at the moment hoped that Brian would not punish Penny and that they could be together, so Luke would stay with her for a lifetime. "I will continue. I can't just forgive her for what she had done to Luke." Brian decisively answered. Even if the child was his, he felt he would not forgive Penny and would not give the child to Penny, because she was such a woman could not raise a good child."Well, no matter what you do, as long as you are good to Luke." "I have another question, how do you tell Wendy about this child?" Winnie knew she was being nosy by asking such a question, but she couldn't help asking. Luke's existence affected the relationship between Wendy and Brian, and so would this child. Winnie's words pulled Brian back to the reality, he also thought of his reason to come here. As for Winnie's question, he didn't have to answer, because the child was not his and would not have any impact on his life. "Winwin, I came here today to talk to you about Wendy. Wendy says she can accept Luke and will come back in two months. We will have a wedding then." Brian's words like the Arctic ice shot into Winnie's weak heart. When resisting the attack, she failed to stab herself in the heart, but now was stabbed by the Brian's words. She felt sore in nose. Bewildered, she did not know where to look. She just looked around. The day finally came, but it came suddenly, and she did not know what to do. "I hope we can put our relationship behind us in two months and do not affect..." "No, I won't affect your relationship. I'll draw a line under you until she gets back." Winnie interrupted Brian's merciless words. She wanted to end the relationship now, but if so, she could not see Luke again. In these two months, no matter how much her heart hurt, she would stick to it, because it might be the last time they spent together. "Will I still be able to see Luke when Wendy comes back?" Winnie controlled her trembling heart and tried to calm down not to expose her mood at the moment. "You can see him whenever you want." Fortunately, after hearing Brian's answer, Winnie felt much more relieved. She even wanted to shed tears. "Good, good to hear that. I would not have impact on your relationship." "Go home. It's getting late and I'm going to sleep." Winnie must put Brian away, because she was on the verge of breakdown. If Brian did not leave in time, she was afraid she would cry.

CHAPTER 153 DANIEL HAD ACCIDENT

Winnie reached for the remote control, put the bed down, closed her eyes and never opened them again. It was better to meet this day earlier than later. But that she came back at this time was cruel to Winnie. She had just seriously injured and almost died. In a few days after the operation, Penny showed off that she was pregnant. The wound which caused by Penny was still there, and now she had to face another fatal blow. Such a shock would not kill her, but it did hurt her. Brian quietly left. He felt distressed for Winnie and was reluctant to leave. At the moment standing outside the parking long, Brian could not breathe feeling heartache. At the moment he had to admit that he had fallen in love with Winnie. He loved her, no matter she was a surrogate or Winnie, no matter she was a cheater or excellent talent. He loved everything about her, deeply. Unfortunately, it was too late to know it. Winnie was discharged from the hospital on the fourth day because she would feel even more miserable in the hospital. Without the care of nurses at home, Winnie let Daenerys live in her home to help her send children in the morning and pick up the children at night. Daenerys also needed to go to work, so she was very busy. But Daenerys were on a business trip in a few days, and Winnie had to do it on her own. She was unable to manage the household chores and had to find an hourly worker and to order takeout. Though it was not easy, she never called Brian. After dropping off her children in the morning, she received a call from the police. To her shock, the police confirmed that Daniel had died, and the cause of his death was still under investigation. The police asked her to check to see if it was her attacker. Now Winnie was frightened by this news. She did not expect that Daniel had died and that things were getting more and more serious. She changed into a casual dress and went out. She was not nimble yet, but it was not for her to care. When she came to the police station, she met Brian and Albert. Albert found Winnie had difficulties to get off, so he quickly went up to help. "Why are you here, Winnie? You can call me, and I will pick you up." Albert said. Since he knew that Wendy would come back, he felt that Winnie was a poor man. "The police called me and said that something had happened to Daniel and asked me to come and confirm. Did you get a call from the police too?" Winnie talked with Albert and did not look to Brian, because seeing his cold face, she might be unable to hold on for two months. "Yes, the police informed us." Albert answered, holding Winnie's hand. Winnie was still very weak. From home to here, and till she got off the taxi, she had oozed faint sweat. But she was strong enough to wipe it off with her hands. "Albert, I will deal with it. I will tell the police to directly contact me. You are very busy, sorry to have dragged you in." From now on, she must try to do her own thing and never bothered Brian. "Winnie, I will help you unconditionally, don't feel it as burden." Even if Brian did not command, he would find time to help. After all, they were colleagues and they got along so well, he sure would offer help. "Thank you, I..." Winnie was still about to refuse, but the police officer in charge of the case came to her. "You must be the victim. Come with us." "All right." Winnie said and walked away with the police. During the whole time, she did not look at Brian or say a word to him. She walked into the police station even if she was still weak. But her back made him distressed, because she still hunched back and dared not straighten up to walk. "Albert, follow her." Brian said. He was cold to her, but she could not bear to see her lonely figure. Albert received the order and followed up. Thanks to Brian's fast order, if a bit later he would take initiative to take care of Winnie. Winnie followed the police to the place where the body was stored, before entering, the police asked Winnie a few questions. "At the moment we have no conclusive proof that the dead man was the man who hurt you. So you need to provide some details about what happened at the time." "I kicked him in the genitals twice, and he grabbed my phone, which must have had his fingerprints on it." Winnie recalled carefully. Although she still feared, she could only be strong, because she only had herself to rely on. "He tore up my clothes, which also had his fingerprints on them." "The fingerprints on your clothes were so damaged during the rescue that they could not be retrieved. When the genitalia was damaged, we also need to identify it after the confirmation. The phone you said so far has not been found, so we cannot be sure." "You can find it, the phone has a location." Winnie did not know these details at all. If she had known, she would have caught Daniel. "Really?" The policeman said excitedly. They did not know that the mobile phone had the tracking function, and Albert forgot that. "We will trace in a while, before this you first confirm if the dead is Daniel Wong." Continued the policeman. "Get ready, he died in a terrible way, it may frighten you." Hearing that, Winnie feared and then took a look at Albert hesitantly. "May I have him to walk me in?" Winnie asked, pointing to Albert. "Yes." "I'll walk her in." As soon as the voice of the police dropped, Brian's voice rang out behind. He knew that Winnie would be afraid and she would not be able to fall asleep at night if she went in alone. Winnie looked back and saw Brian. She felt at ease. Now her mood was very complicated and she was afraid. At this moment, she had no courage to refuse Brian. The police took them into the morgue. Daniel's body was covered with a white cloth, but the white cloth had large spots of bloodstains, which had made Winnie tremble with fear. At this time, Brian pulled her hand from behind and imperceptibly gave her courage. The police put on gloves, motioned to Winnie to get ready, and then lifted the white cloth over Daniel's head. Winnie could not help screaming at the moment she saw Daniel. At this moment, Brian quickly reached out to cover Winnie's eyes and put his arms around Winnie. He could clearly feel that Winnie was trembling all over, and tightened Winnie in his arms. "Don't be afraid." Winnie was sure afraid. It was because she saw Daniel's tragic death. Her heart was panicked, and as the moment she saw Daniel's face, she recalled what happened that day. Daniel got injured in head, but she could still recognize his face clearly. Therefore, Winnie's panic heart could not be calmed down for a long time because of this ferocious face. "Sir, we confirm it's Daniel. He worked in our company." Brian told the police the result before the police asked. He was afraid that the police would let Winnie confirm repeatedly. "Ok, you go back first." "Can you confirm that Daniel committed suicide?" Asked Brian. "I can't say for sure. We'll have to wait for the results of the autopsy. Because the force of being pushed is not the same as the force of jumping, and the landing point is not the same." "Go back and wait for the results. We will inform the victim after the autopsy." The police could not give a definite result without an autopsy. Brian held Winnie to leave, until out of the police station, Winnie was better. "Thank you for your help again." Winnie said politely, which made distance between her and Brian. It seemed that suddenly they became strangers. "I'll get in touch with the police later, and if there's any progress, or if there's anything I can do, they just need to call me. You are all very busy and I'm sorry to trouble you." "Give your phone to the police, they need to track it. I gotta go." Winnie said and walked toward the road. "Let Albert take you back." "No need, I can take a taxi, it is convenient." Winnie turned Brian down as quickly as she could. Winnie's politeness made Brian sad, but at the moment he had no other choice. Since she refused, she would never let Albert take her back. "I'll come to your place tonight." Brian was worried about Winnie. She was frightened just now and she would have nightmares at night. "No, you're busy. I'm going to the suburbs tonight with the children. I've already told your father." Winnie said apathetically. "To the suburbs, why?" Brian asked in a cold voice. "Daenerys is away on a business trip, and I can't do the housework now, I can't even cook for two children, so I can only go to the suburbs to ask him for help." What Winnie said was just one of the reasons, another reason was that Brian would not easily go to the suburbs, so that it would be much easier for them to separate. Winnie admitted she still loved Brian, but the last person she wanted to see at the moment was Brian. Seeing him, her heart would be sour and could not calm down. "Don't, I'll take care of you." Brian stopped Winnie from going to the suburbs. If Winnie went there, he would never see her again in two months. "You are so busy, I don't want to bother you. Besides, you can't always look after me, so I'll manage for myself." Winnie again rejected Brian. In the last two months, she also wanted to get along well with Brian, but now she could not treat him as an ordinary person, so she could only avoid him. If she could recover her peace of mind in two months, she would get along with Brian as a friend. But if she failed, she could only leave with regret.

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 154 THE ONE HE LOVES

After Winnie left, Brian cooperated with the police to find Winnie's mobile phone in a hidden place at the scene of the crime. The mobile phone was taken back to the police station to check before Brian left. Instead of going back to the company, he went downstairs to Winnie's house. Two children were picked up by Paul to suburb after school together with Winnie. Brian watched them leave, feeling bitter in heart. So the last two months that they could spend together ended ahead? He expected in the last two months to make it up to her as much as he could, and now that she went to a place he couldn't go, how could he make it up to her? He followed Paul's car and watched them enter the house before driving away. As soon as Winnie left, Brian felt particularly empty, as if he was a wandering person and unable to find the feeling of home. He was in a bad mood, and there was only one place he could go, and that was Kevin's home. In Kevin's living room. Brian sat in the sofa with a melancholy and dignified expression. "Here, have some. A little drink will make you feel better." Kevin got wine and dishes, put them on the coffee table, and sat down. "Is it that obvious?" Asked Brian. "Any fool can see that. I've a day off today, and if you weren't in a bad mood, I wouldn't have let you disturb my holiday." Kevin complained. During this period of time, he was worried about Brian and Winnie, but the result was not satisfactory. "Drink, it will make you feel better." Said Brian, starting to pour the wine. At this point, Kevin had to warn. "Yes, but if you drink too much, I can't cure your headache. Now Winnie won't care about you. You have to endure it." Speaking of Winnie, Brian stopped pouring wine, put down the decanter. "I won't drink too much." He was not afraid of a headache, but he had promised to Winnie that he would not drink too much. Having always not taken her words to heart, he wanted to follow the rules now. "Alas....." Kevin felt helpless about Brian. Why did he have to make a hard time for himself? "You have already made a decision, but you still felt upset. Are you confused?" Kevin asked. "Confused?" Brian pretended to be puzzled. This was the first time that he was not really showing himself. He did not know whether he was confused, only knew that he fell in love with Winnie. He did not want Winnie to leave, but he could do nothing. "You are confused because you don't know who you love, because you don't know who to choose. Shall I help you to determine who you love more?" Kevin wanted to help Brian before he regretted it. "....." Brian said nothing, because he knew who he loved more. Once he thought he only loved Wendy, and had been waiting for her for nearly five years. But since meeting Winnie, he knew what true love was - heartache, moodiness, yearning, and compromise only for her, all these were the performance of love, which he never had for Wendy. Winnie was special to Brian. She was the only and unique woman in the world. The woman who dared to talk back to him was Winnie, the woman who dared to yell at him was Winnie, the woman who dared to slap him on the face was Winnie. Only now did Brian understand that Winnie did all these things not because of her stubbornness or her audacity, but because he loved her. He had fallen in love with her from the first time he saw her and heard her voice, so he could tolerate all of her. It was also when he realized that the person he loved was Winnie that he suddenly realized that his waiting for Wendy was not love but guilt. "As far as I know, you didn't shed any tears for Wendy, and you shed lots of tear for Winnie. As far as I know, when Wendy left, you weren't as distracted as you are now." "So my conclusion is that you love Winnie, or you love Winnie more." When Kevin saw that Brian did not speak, he began to analyze. A few days ago when Winnie did not leave the hospital, when Wendy did not say she would come back, Kevin thought Brian loved was Wendy. However, when Wendy called, when he saw Brian was not excited, Kevin knew he was wrong. After Winnie left the hospital, Brian seldom came to her. But his mind was always filled with Winnie, so Kevin was sure that Brian liked Winnie. "So what? It is impossible for us to be together." That was why Brian felt helpless. There were a lot of people who loved each other but they could not be together. There was not only he felt the heartache. Since others could forget it, he could do it. "Don't say impossible until you've tried. Brian, you are bound by no one but yourself. Think about it, choose the right one, and don't let yourself regret it." "If it were me, I would abandon all for Winwin rather to force myself to be with Wendy for the rest of my life. For four years, you never saw Wendy and you do not know whether she has changed heart, whether there was other man. Are you sure you're going to live happily ever after?" Kevin advised. He hoped Brian could be with Winnie. "I don't think about anything now. I only know that I have waited for Wendy for more than four years, I only know that we should be together." Brian said. He loved Winnie, but they could not be together. This was a fact that could not be changed. No matter how much he would regret in the future, he had confidence in the path he chose. "You should be together? There are so many things you should do. You should stay with Winnie for the sake of two children too. It will be more perfect." Kevin was still trying hard, Brian was in love with Winnie but he did not admit it. "Megan could not be my child. Don't judge it so early." Brian voice suddenly became cold. He had been vexed about this matter. "Not your child? Whose child is she? Brian, if Megan is your child, what would you do?" Kevin became serious. "That's easy. Get back custody of her. I don't allow my child to be raised by others." That was cold and heartless. If Megan was his daughter, it was normal to bring Megan back, because Winnie broke the contract first, it was her concealed the fact. If he brought Megan back, he would have completely cut off contact with Winnie, and it would be easier for him to forget her. "You can't do that. Megan is all Winwin has. If you take Megan back, can Winwin still be alive? It's cruel of you to do that." Kevin did not expect Brian would be so ruthless. If Brian really thought so, he could not tell the results to Brian, he could not hurt Winnie. "I can't help it. This is the consequence of her concealment, and she must bear it herself. Come on, it's too early for that, we can talk till you find it out." Brian said coldly. It was certain that Winnie could not accept it and that he felt distressed for Winnie, but things should be solved thoroughly. And that was the only way. Brian continued after a pause. "You haven't figured it out for so long. It's too late. Do the DNA test. The sooner the result is out, the sooner I can solve it." "DNA?" Brian finally thought of this method, but the result had come out, but Kevin could not tell him for the time being. "Well, that'll make it faster. You'll get their samples and I'll do your DNA." Kevin took the initiative to get the DNA thing over, so he could delay it, or think about ways. Winnie came to the suburb of the city, Rufus was very good to her. He specially hired a professional nurse. "Sir, sorry to bother you." On the table, Winnie said with embarrassment. "It doesn't matter, it is lively with more people." Rufus kindly said with a smile. Brian was busy, so it was only right for him to help. And he liked Winnie very much, like a daughter. "There's nothing I can help..." "You don't need to help. You are a patient, the most important thing recovery. Help when you're healed." Rufus said, seeing that Winnie had pressure. "Winwin, live here at ease, do not have a burden. I have been alone for so many years. I am grateful that you can come. I have been so happy since you came." Rufus jokingly said. Winnie's mood was completely different from that of last time. He did not know if she was stimulated and depressed, or had other worries, she was not as positive as last time. "....." When Winnie was about to thank Rufus, her phone rang and she quickly took it. "Sir, I'm going to answer the phone. You eat first." Winnie got up, and Rufus spoke. "Don't move. You're still a patient. If you don't mind, answer it here." "Then I'll answer it right here." Winnie said that and put the phone through. "Auntie." "Why haven't you called for days?" Isobel asked with concern. "I've been busy these days, and I've been up late at night. Don't worry about me, Auntie. I'm fine." The last time she made a phone call to her aunt was still in the hospital. It had been several days, so her aunt was worried. During these days, Winnie's mood was bad. She did not want her aunt to notice, so she did not call her. "Don't be too busy. Your health is important. Now that we have no debt, don't work so hard." Isobel's tone was full of love. For so many years if there were no Winnie and Vanessa, she could not overcome. "I know. I'll take care of myself." "Auntie, hasn't the drugstore been transferred yet?" Winnie was worried about her aunt and Vanessa. Only when her family was reunited could she feel at ease. "No, not in a hurry. I can make money from it anyway."

CHAPTER 155 KEVIN MEETS HER IN THE AIRPORT

Isobel had been running the drugstore, so she was reluctant to give up, otherwise it would not have taken such a long time. "Auntie, I make enough money for our family, you don't need to make money. Transfer the drugstore. Vanessa will go to school." Winnie was worried. Her aunt was old and she did not want her to work. "Well, I know what to do and I will be there before Vanessa go to school." "Ok, it is good to you are fine. I gotta go." Isobel hung up the phone. Winnie put her phone aside and began to eat. "Family?" Rufus asked as he ate. "Yes, it was my aunt." Winnie replied in a gentle voice. "Is there any other family?" Rufus continued to ask, he just want to have a chat. "No, my parents passed away, and I lived with my sister and my aunt." Mentioning her parents, Winnie inevitably felt sad. This made Rufus embarrassed. "It makes you sad. Don't ask. Let's eat." In this way, a few brief words on the topic of family came to an end, but Rufus was more curious about Winnie, but also more pitiful. The child seemed to have a tough life. Daenerys went back from a business trip, got off the plane to call Winnie and wanted to continue to take care of Winnie. "I will pick you up after I go back to hospital. I have no business trip in the next week. Come back, I can take care of you." "No, I'm fine here. You are too busy to take care of us. I feel distressed for you." Now that she had lived in Rufus' house, Winnie intended to live here until she could work. "I'm fine, I'm not tired. It's not convenient for your children to go to school from where you live." Donnie said casually. When a friend needed her, she would not hold back. "It's easy for the kids to go to school from here. It's only a short drive to the city. When you finish your report, go home. I'll call on you." Winnie still loathed to let Daenerys tired and refused again. "All right, then I'll go home first. Call me anytime." Daenerys had to comply with Winnie. She put down the phone and walked out of the gate. Pulling the suitcase, when she was to call a taxi, she accidentally saw Kevin. He was standing right in front of her in a very close distance. He had a smile on his face, warm and handsome. Daenerys had a moment of bewilderment, also had a moment of fast heartbeat. But then she was overcome by her own sanity. She walked up to Kevin and pretended to be carefree. "What a coincidence, to pick someone up?" "Yes, to pick someone up." Kevin readily said with a brighter smile. "Ok, I'm going back first." Daenerys took the suitcase and walked around Kevin to move forward. But her suitcase was grabbed by Kevin. "I come to pick you up. Why should I wait if you leave?" "Pick me up?" Said Donnie in surprise. "Yes, pick you up. Come on. I have something to tell you." Kevin, carrying a suitcase, walked quickly. Daenerys was still in a daze behind. 'Don't be so nice to her, don't shake her heart, she will be melted by Kevin's damn smile.' Daenerys followed Kevin all the way to the car. "Thanks for picking me up." If Daenerys heard right, Kevin just told her that he has something to say. Maybe it was an emergency, so he came to pick her up. But for whatever reason, she should be polite and say thank you. "You're welcome. I can always pick you up if you like." Kevin said gently in a serious way. "Forget it, you are such a big figure. How dare I let you come to pick me up?" "Didn't you say you have something to tell me? What is it?" Daenerys did not want Kevin to pick her up, because she felt the pressure. Most importantly, getting along with him made her embarrassed and she would now what she should do. "Let's talk as we go." After Kevin smiled at Daenerys, he started the car. After the car drove smoothly on the highway, Kevin became serious. "There is a file case in the back. Bring it here and have a look." "File case?" Daenerys looked at Kevin in a puzzled way, then at the back of the car. Then she reached over and took the file case. After sitting down, she opened the file case. "A paternity test? Whose is it?" Daenerys didn't think much of it. She asked Kevin while reading out the enlarged title. "It's written down there." Kevin reminded. Donnie continued to read. "Winnie, Luke..." Daenerys covered her mouth in shock. "What is it going on?" She asked deliberately. This test report was not the one she helped Winnie do, that did not have the name but that the mother and son relationship was there. Where did Kevin get this? Did he ask someone to do it? "I asked someone to do it. You shouldn't be so surprised, because you knew it." Kevin was serious and he did not want to beat around the bush. It did not matter who knew it, how to know it, the important thing was whether it could be continued to conceal. "I..." Donnie was speechless for a moment. "I suspected it. I tried to feel you out several times but you kept evading it. It was the only way I could do it. A few days ago, Luke went to the hospital and I collected his sample, and then took Winwin's sample during the examination. So I got the test." Kevin felt it necessary to explain. In order to keep it a secret, he did not mention whose sample it was when he sent the sample and asked his friend to do the test. After the result came out, his friend sent it to him directly in the form of email. As for the names of Winnie and Luke, he filled them in before printing. "You're such a gossip. You meddle in everything. Yes, I knew, I knew it." Daenerys said in complain. She had concealed it for so long, but now it was revealed, which made her upset. "If you had said you knew, I wouldn't have believed so much in medicine. Now that you know everything, tell me about it. Don't try to hide something. Megan is Brian's daughter, Megan and Luke are twins, Winwin is the surrogate." Kevin said out what Daenerys might hide, so as not to waste more words, so as not to rely on medical technique. "You know quite a lot." Kevin knew it all. What could she hide from him? Daenerys disdainfully glanced at Kevin, and then remembered an important thing. "Does Brian know about this?" "No, if he knows, why should I come to you?" Kevin did not know what to do, so he came to Daenerys to discuss. "Fortunately, Winwin still has time." Donna breathed a sigh of relief. "But I can't hide it for long. Brian has also thought of this idea. He's trying to get a sample for DNA testing. He wants to make sure." Kevin's words made Daenerys tense up again. "Then I will tell Winwin to be careful and not let him collect samples." Daenerys took out her mobile phone, but was grabbed by Kevin. "It's no use. Don't you know Brian after all this time? He never fails at what he wants." Kevin's words made Daenerys have no hope completely. He was right. There was nothing that Brian could not get. Daenerys was in depression, for she did not know how to help Winnie. "There must be no hiding, Daenerys. I came to you because I want to talk to you about how to deal with this." Kevin said with a sigh of helplessness. "I don't know, but I will definitely tell Winwin about it. Even if nothing can be done, Winwin must be prepared." "If there had been a solution, she would have made the matter public." "Is there no other way? If Brian knows about it, it may not end so easily." Kevin asked not giving up. He reminded her but did not dare to say Brian's words directly. "Winwin knows it will not be that simple, so she keeps it a secret. Doctor Burns, please advise Mr. Brian not to make it hard time for Winwin. The children are all she has. If he takes both of them, Winwin may not survive." Daenerys knew that Winnie could survive for so many years in the support of her children. If Megan was snatched, she would despair of life. "I will try my best to persuade Brian, but Winnie must try her best." Kevin could not think of a good way for either of them, and now he just hoped that Brian would show mercy for Winnie's sake. "Thank you." Daenerys politely thanked. If Kevin did not tell her, they would be helpless if Brian knows. "You are welcome. I'm not doing it entirely for Winwin. Above all, I don't want Brian to regret it." Kevin said. For they did not regret, for two children could have a happy family, As Brian's best friend, he must do his best to help. "I think they will not regret. Winwin has no chance to regret, and Mr. Bennet only had a whim on Winwin, so there will be no regret. They don't have a relationship, so there is no regret." What Daenerys said was sad, and she felt depressed at the thought of these things. Nothing good had happened to Winnie since her family's accident. She fell in love with a man, but it was secret love. The only moral support had the chance to be taken away. Why was fate so unkind to her? "Doesn't Winwin like Brian?" Kevin asked as if he didn't know anything. Daenerys paused for a moment and sighed deeply. "Alas.....What's the use if she does? Mr. Bennet doesn't like her, and it wouldn't have ended well even if they like each other, because the gap between them was huge." Looking at Daenerys's frown, Kevin did not continue to ask. Since it was certain that Winnie liked Brian, there was hope between them. The gap between them was indeed a severe problem, but luckily they had two children. No matter who was against it, they had to think about the two children. That was the advantage of hope.

CHAPTER 156 ASK KEVIN FOR HELP

Kevin took Daenerys to a western restaurant instead of the hospital. "I haven't reported work yet, I..." Daenerys was now being pulled forcibly by Kevin into the restaurant. She had been refusing since she got off the car, but it was of no use. She was not used to get along with Kevin alone. On the way back from the airport they had been talking about Winnie, otherwise she would die of embarrassment. Now she was pulled over to have a meal into a room. When they were together, she felt huge pressure. "It's lunchtime, and even if you go back to the hospital, no one listens to your report." Kevin said and pressed Daenerys onto the chair. Then he sat down. "I..." Daenerys tried to refuse, but Kevin called the waiter over. He helped her order without asking what she liked to eat. But after he finished ordering, Daenerys unexpectedly found that they were all the food she liked to eat. Was that a coincidence, or did he know what she liked to eat? "Why are you stunned? Surprised?" Kevin found Daenerys's doubts and asked softly. "What?" Daenerys did not understand and looked at Kevin in a daze. Then Kevin gave the answer. "Don't feel surprised. I observed you and I had heard from Winwin what you liked. Fortunately I remember it." Kevin's words made Daenerys at a loss, but she was touched. No one except her parents and Winwin had noticed what she liked to eat. Kevin was an exception. "I... I'll call Winwin now. I'll tell her what you said." Daenerys was flurred by his look. She did not know what to say. She shifted the topic in order to avoid embarrassment, but she was flustered, which amused Kevin. Donna actually made the call. After the phone put through, Daenerys repeated what Kevin said. Winnie, on the other side of the phone, appeared to panic at first, but soon calmed down. That Brian knew it was unexpected but reasonable. He should feel the kinship between father and child. She more than once spilled the beans, if he did not doubt, he must have a problem with his brain. But Winnie was not ready and Brian began to suspect. Winnie sighed. "Never mind." "Winwin, you need to think about a strategy now. You need to keep at least one of the two children with you." Daenerys did not anticipate that Winnie was calm. Now she was more anxious than Winnie, it seemed that she did not see any hope. "I can do nothing. I'm inferior to him in all my qualifications. If he wants to take the children away, I can only force him with death." Winnie's tone was hopeless. If there was a way, she would have explained the identity of Megan and would not be so passive. "Winwin..." Although Daenerys had expected what Winnie would do, she was still scared to hear it. Daenerys looked up at Kevin with fear in her eyes and put her phone on hands-free mode. She wanted to let Kevin listen to Winnie, hoping that he could do his best to help. "What's the point of my being alive if he takes the child from me? The only option I have now is either to have the child or to die in front of him." Winnie's desperate tone made Kevin shocked. He thought Daenerys was not necessarily accurate, but he did not expect Winnie to be so negative. If Winnie really died in front of Brian, Brian would suffer another pain and break down. "Is Doctor Burns with you, Daenerys?" Winnie asked calmly. "Yes." "Put him on the phone. I need his help." As Winnie's voice fell, Daenerys handed the phone to Kevin. Kevin was on speakerphone with Winnie. "Winwin, I am here." "Now that you know my secret, Doctor Burns, please help me. There are less than two months left, please help me delay for a while. I want to complete the task given by the chairman in these two months." "Didn't he want a DNA sample? I'll keep it out of his reach, so he can come back to the suburbs a few more times, and he'll get over it." This was the only thing Winnie could not let go. She was not sure if he could have a better relationship with his father, but she would do her best. In such way, she showed her love to him. "Winwin, why do you still want to help the chairman, Forget it." Kevin understood that she was not to complete the task of the chairman, but for Brian to forgive his father. If Brian could think about Winnie, things would be settled more easily. "I should keep my promise. Help me again, and I'll do everything I can to keep him from getting the sample." Winnie insisted. "All right, I'll help you." Kevin promised, but also hoped that things could be changed in these two months. Brian gave himself a high-sounding reason to go to the suburbs. On this trip, his mood was quite different from the previous one, when he had resisted and wanted to withdraw. But this time he wanted to go, and even sped up the car. Brian knew why it was like this. He wanted to control his mood, but he failed. Arriving at the suburb, the first Brian saw was the two children. "Daddy." "Uncle." The two children were playing football with Rufus in the yard. When they saw Brian's car driving into the yard, they both ran over to greet Brian. "You get sweat, take a break." With a faint smile on his face, Brian said while wiping the sweat of the two children. "Daddy, are you coming to see auntie?" Luke asked. In these days Winnie's mood was obviously not good. He often found her in a daze, but she had to smile in face him and Megan. Luke saw distressed to see that. "Yes, I come to see Auntie." Brian felt his answer was far-fetched. At this time Rufus came over and said in a gentle voice. "You are here." "....." Brian did not look at him or answer. The resentment in the heart was about to make him suffocate. But as he looked down at the children, he felt a strange sensation in his heart. The children were looking at him with expectant eyes, waiting for him to answer his father. Should he disappoint them and set them an example. The next moment, Brian looked at Rufus. "Where is Winwin?" His voice was cold, seeming that he did not use to talk to his father. "In the bedroom on the second floor. She is sleeping" Rufus excitedly answered with a big smile on the face. It was the second time Brian had spoken to him, and this time it was in a much better manner. He was content with the change, and believed that their relationship would get better and better. Brian was not used to talking to his father like this. After finishing a sentence, he didn't know what to say next. Then attention was then paid to two children. "I'll go to the room to see Mommy. You can take a break and play." Then he walked into the house. He found Winnie's room on the second floor and walked in lightly without knocking at the door. Winnie was sleeping on her side, so Brian could see her face. She looked much better, but not the same as before. Recovery seemed to be a long process. Brian went to the bed and sat down gently, but Winnie woke up. Winnie opened her eyes and was surprised to see Brian. She did not expect him to come so soon. If it wasn't for a sample book, he might never have come here. "There you are." Winnie got up and forgot that she had not completely recovered. The sudden force hurt her wound. "What's wrong? Is the wound hurting again?" Seeing that Winnie suddenly frowned, Brian knew that she hurt the wound, so he asked with concern. "It's okay. I just use too much strength." Winnie did not want to be cared for, especially by Brian. It would make her greedy, make her not want to let go. "How are you these days? Are you feeling any better?" Brian was sad for Winnie's cold attitude, but he could do nothing about it. "Much better." Winnie still said lukewarmly. She didn't need Brian's help even if she had a problem. Now what she needed most was Brian to cooperate with her to complete the task of the chairman. "Winwin..." Brian's sadness became heartache for Winnie's attitude, He wanted to apologize, but Winnie didn't give her a chance. "Any news from the police, by the way?" "It has been confirmed that it was Daniel Wong. They are now investigating whether Daniel Wong committed suicide or homicide." Brian answered helplessly. "I don't think he would commit suicide. He is not the kind of person who would commit suicide. He could not die even if he was just hanging on. I'll call the police tomorrow and ask them to investigate carefully." In fact, she already knew the result of the police investigation and told the police that Daniel was not the kind of person who would commit suicide. She deliberately asked, because she did not want to talk about things between them. She just wanted to find a random topic of conversation. "Leave it alone, I'll tell the police." "This is my business. Let me deal with it myself." Winnie whispered, almost asking Brian, "Can you manage it for a lifetime?" Brian said nothing, but looked depressed. "Did you see your father on your way in?" Winnie broke the silence. There was not much time, and it was rare for him to come once, so she could not waste time on meaningless things. "Yes." "Not going to accept it?" Winnie asked tentatively. "....." Brian fell again into the silence. "Our contract is less than two months, and I would like to make it up between you and your father in two months. There seems no hope." Winnie deliberately said. But seeing Brian hateful expression, she was disappointed and distressed. "Winwin..." "Although I don't know the specific situation between you, but I feel he is poor. He gave birth to you and raised you, no matter what his fault was, you should understand. After all these years, you should forgive him." "This thing I experienced made me understand human life is too fragile. Don't regret when you lose him." Winnie interrupted Brian again, because she knew exactly what he wanted to say.

CHAPTER 157 ENDED EARLY?

In Winnie's view, that was life. She was the last one who wanted to see Brian torture himself with regret. "Can you not talk about this? My mother must be sad if I forgive him." Brian still hated to talk about it, but this time he didn't get angry or yell. "You know what, only you think your mother will be sad. Do you know the one-sided thing or the comprehensive thing? How can you be so sure it's all your father's fault? At any rate your mother is gone, and now you are torturing yourself. Doesn't your heart hurt when you look at your father getting old day by day?" Winnie raised a bunch of questions. She sensed a slight change in Brian, so she must continue to try harder, because time was limited. "Winnie, what do you know? I warned you..." Brian could not help but get anger in voice, but when he saw the innocent eyes of Winnie, he stopped. "Warn me again? Go ahead and scold, everything is almost over, and you won't even get a chance to scold me." Winnie did not shout back, but what she said was the truth. At the thought of leaving, Brian was distressed and speechless. Brian said nothing, so did Winnie. The bedroom fell silent again. After a long while, it was Brian who spoke. "Never mind my business. It's my business if I forgive him or not, it's none of your business. Take care of yourself." Brian said in a cold voice and he did not want to talk about the matter between his father and mother. Since Winnie did not need him, his affairs did not need Winnie to intervene. Winnie's blazing heart cooled down because Brian's words. "Ok, I will leave it alone. Since that, let us end our relationship early. It is less than two month, I don't know what we are doing for." Winnie said angrily. If it ended earlier, she would give up earlier. She was told not to intervene in everything of him. Brian did not expect Winnie would say so. He wanted to say he would end the contract now, but he finally held back, because he did not want to. "I need to use the bathroom." He was to let himself down and ease his mood, as well to find sample. But Brian was disappointed. Winnie didn't have a toothbrush or any hair there. Had she changed her toothbrush by chance, or had she been prepared to keep him from finding it? Disappointed, Brian came out from Winnie's room. Winnie was lying on the bed with her eyes closed and with her back to Brian. Since there was nothing to say, he would find a way out when her anger subsided. Brian quietly left and met two children and Rufus downstairs. "Did you see Auntie, Daddy?" Luke went to Brian and asked softly. "Yes. Luke, I am going back, you are brother, take care of sister and Auntie. I will come and see you when I have time." With that, Brian walked away, and then he heard Rufus's voice. "Stay for lunch. I've got it ready." Rufus wanted to keep his son longer, but he didn't expect him to leave so soon. "Cook Winwin something delicious. She needs nourishment." Brian gave Rufus answer, it was he did not want to say, but it was for Winnie. "Don't worry, I'll take good care of her." Rufus said with full confidence. No matter what Brian said, as long as he spoke, it was a kind of communication. He was happy and pleased. Brian left after he talked to the children. Winnie stood in front of the window, watching Brian's back. There was unspeakable pain in the heart. He had tall and straight back, meticulous dress and steady pace. This figure reminded her of Brian four years ago. At that time, although she was heartache and tormented by reality, she was still curious about who the man who bought her to give birth to her child would be. She peeped at the back of Brian like this. Now the mood was completely different. At that time, she didn't feel anything when she saw him leave, but now she felt sad because she loved him but she could not be with him. She loved him but she could only move on. "Go away, go away, one day you will come out of my world. You do me a favor if you leave a day earlier." Winnie could not help but shed tears. Penny could finally breathe a sigh of relief. After knowing that Daniel was dead, she did not have a little pity but felt relieved. She thought that when Daniel died all the things would go up in smoke, and her father was always cautious and it would not be found out. Now all she needed to do was abort the child and looked for a chance to start over. She, lying on the bed in her bedroom, made a call to her father. "Dad, it's all settled. Can I get rid of the child now?" "Wait." Richard's voice was serious. "Why not?" "It was not clear, and the police has not given a final verdict. If you get rid of the child, you have nothing to protect to you." Richard was always cautious, but he felt flustered this time. From the police, it was not easy to call it a suicide. "Not investigated yet? Wasn't it confirmed that Daniel was the one who hurt Winnie?" Richard's words made Penny's lax heart suddenly tense up. "It is confirmed that it is Daniel, but whether Daniel committed suicide or homicide had not been determined." "It is obvious that he committed suicide, and his family did not pursue it. Why not final the case?" Penny was impatient. "You are a law graduate, why would you say such ignorant things? Can it be decided that if it was a suicide or homicide by the family members? Even if they can decide, Brian and Winnie won't let it go easily. Now both of them have raised questions, which makes it harder for the police to jump to conclusions." Richard was again and again disappointed to Penny's performance. He did not understand why he with a high IQ would have such a dull child. "Damn Winnie. She took advantage last time and now she is doing mischief again. Next time, I will never show mercy to her." Penny angrily said. She hated Winnie and Brian, and was concerned about Richard despised her. But she attributed all this to Winnie. She would not have encountered these things if she had not met Winnie in her life. She would not spare Winnie and would fight with her to the end of her life. "Don't be ridiculous. Since this happened, Winnie has been secretly protected by bodyguards. Do you think Brian will give you a chance?" Richard was afraid that Penny would misbehave and warned her. "The most important thing now is to wait, wait until the case is settled, wait until everything is settled, you're going to abort the child." Richard thought the child was Penny's talisman, because temporarily Brian could not do anything to her because of the child. If the police find out something, the child would be able to protect her for a while. So he had to see how things go before he decides whether the child should be kept or not. "Until when? If it is half a year, I can't abort it." Penny thought that her father would help and Daniel had died, the police would not find her out, and it was a very dangerous thing to keep the child. "Then give it to birth." Richard was suddenly angry because Penny did not listen to him but always put forward her own ignorant opinions. "Give it birth? Dad, what do you think? Even if the police didn't come to me, Brian won't let me go if I do so." Penny questioned, if she died in the hands of Brian, she felt it more miserable. "You..... don't have a brain?" Richard was speechless. "I tell you, don't come to me if you don't do as I said." Richard said angrily and hung up the phone. Penny was angry. She was in a good mood before the call, but now it was in a mess. She would listen to Richard, but there were some things she had to decide on her own. Regarding Winnie, she did not want to end here. For her in this world she and Winnie could not coexist. Penny's anger has no place to vent, so Winnie had become her punching bag. She ignored Richard's advice and called Winnie. Winnie was sitting in pavilion of the courtyard watching the children play. Suddenly the phone rang. When she found it was Penny calling, she showed disdain. After a moment's hesitation she picked up the phone. Before Winnie said anything, it came Penny's eager voice. "Winnie, I heard that you have recovered, you are so lucky." "Well, maybe it is not time for me to die yet. Did I disappoint you that I'm alive?" Winnie was calm and had been used to Penny's attitude. If she were angry, Penny would have been screwed. "I am disappointed, but it is ok for you to be alive, so that I can share with you the good news that I am pregnant with Brian's child." Penny said insidiously, this was her only worthy of showing off. But she still hoped Winnie would die. In this way, no one would ever compete with her for Brian. Winnie's heart was indeed hurt by "Brian's child", but she could do nothing, couldn't she? "I just hope you treat your child well and don't treat it like you treat Luke." Winnie said gently, not annoyed. But her words were sharp enough to unsettle Penny. "Winnie, you have died once and not learned your lesson. Don't you know that misfortune comes out of your mouth? Do you want to die again?" Penny angrily threatened. "Just because I died once, I know that human life is very precious. Don't make fun of other people's lives, or you won't come to a good end." "You do not need to threaten me, Penny. I have my fate. Before I should die, even if you kill me a hundred times, it will be in vain. When I should die, I will die. Don't waste your energy and put yourself in it." Winnie said without fear, although the voice was not big and there was no anger, it was powerful. "Winnie, you look down on me. With my strength and background, with that I am the wife of Brian, do you think I will put myself into it?"

CHAPTER 158 CRY BITTERLY

Penny again showed off her status and family background. Although it was on the phone, Winnie could imagine how proud she was. "So these powers can protect you. I'm curious how you can prove that? Did you kill someone? Or are you behind my accident?" Winnie's tone was not calm but questioning, with a strange air. With respect to this, her tone angered the flustered Penny. "Winnie, this is a framed accusation. Daniel and I do not know each other, with what you said I have something to do with this matter. Winnie, I want to rip your mouth out now, you are the most insidious person." Penny clarified herself in a loud and furious voice, and she could not control her emotions when she reached such a furious stage. But it also showed something. "What did you say? Daniel? How do you know it was Daniel who did this? How can you say out Daniel's name if you don't know him?" Winnie was alerted by Penny's words. Everyone said Penny had something to do with it, and she suspected it too. But it was just suspicion. There was no evidence to link it to her. According to Winnie's understanding, Penny and Daniel had no connection, but now Penny actually called out his name, so it was obviously that she knew Daniel was the person who kidnapped her. This time Winnie had to focus her suspicions on Penny. "I..." Penny realized that she said the wrong thing. Flustered, she did not know how to explain. "I heard it from others." Penny could think of no better way. "Brian has blocked the news. Who told you?" Winnie continued. Penny was flustered and deliberately concealed it, which made her get serious. "I... I heard it from Brian. We have a child. There is nothing he could not tell." Penny got suddenly proud. Winnie reminded her, otherwise she really did not know how to answer. "Oh, ok, go ahead. Even if Daniel's death is not investigated by his family, I will ask for a thorough investigation. I want to see how long your father and Brian can protect you. I want to see if you can hear anything about yourself from Brian." Winnie suddenly said in a cold voice. No matter what Penny said was true or not, she must pay attention to this matter. Winnie directly hung up the phone, looked up and saw Luke standing in front of her with a sad expression. "Is that her call?" Luke asked, referring to Penny. The fear for Penny could still be seen in his eyes. "Yes, but it is not a big deal. Don't worry, Luke." Winnie pulled Luke to her side and comforted him softly. "Auntie, don't let her bully you. I'm sick of her bullying you." Luke said directly, with tone and eyes revealing hatred to Penny and guardian for Winnie. "I won't, no one will bully me. Don't worry, Luke." Winnie pacified Luke. Luke suddenly opened his arms to embrace Winnie. "Auntie, I never want to leave you in my life. You can't go. You have to stay with me. I only feel safe when you are by my side." Luke was excited, as if he had known something. "No, I will not leave you. I will be by your side all your life." Winnie heartache, she said. For the child's sudden excitement, she was worried. "Luke, why do you say so?" Winnie wanted to find the reason, in case he got ill because of what Luke repressed in his heart. Luke first left Winnie's arms and then whispered. "Auntie, when my father left that day, he said that I was a man and asked me to take good care of you and Megan. I felt that you are going to separate. I felt that I would leave you. Auntie, don't separate from Daddy. If he has done something wrong, I apologize to you for him." Luke said in panic. He was afraid that Winnie was to leave. Luke's words made Winnie sad and she could not control her tears. She once again held Luke in arms, burst into tears when Luke could not see her. At the moment she was uncertain. She did not dare to have any commitment to the child, since she was afraid of making the child disappointed or hate her. She was more afraid of making the child get sicker because of her leaving. Luke was sensitive. Brian's words and look made him overthink and affected his mood. She did not feel at ease if he grew up with others. "Luke, think in a good way. If Mommy is not good to you, you still have Daddy. From now on Daddy will double his love to you, he will protect you. Absolutely he will not allow anyone to bully you..." Hearing this, Luke cried out loud. "No, I want Daddy and you to protect me. I want you to be my Mommy. From now on I will not call Penny Mommy." Winnie's comfort made Luke uneasy. She had never said so. Every time she asked him to rest assured, but this time she encouraged him, which made him afraid. "Luke, do not cry, I will protect you, I will stay with you." Winnie was distressed and cried out loud. Now was the most difficult moment. What should she do? How should she do so that she would not hurt the child? But no matter what, it was not up to her. She held together crying, which was seen by Rufus. And he had heard some of their conversation. Rufus's plain heart was disturbed by two people. He frowned in confusion. He didn't understand what was going on between them, but he was sure they were in trouble. "Luke, don't cry, Auntie has not recovered. You will affect her recovery." Rufus went to Luke and pulled away Luke. "Grandpa, Grandpa, please help me, don't let Daddy and Auntie separate. I don't want to leave Auntie." Luke seemed to cry more fiercely, and Winnie's tears had been flowing. "I will help you, Luke. Do not cry, listen, Luke, don't make Auntie sad. Rufus did not know what Luke was afraid of, but he realized the child's helpless heart at the moment. "I won't cry, I won't make Auntie sad. Auntie, don't cry." With that, Luke went to help Winnie wipe her tears. "I am not sad, I will protect Luke." Winnie kept her emotions under control, but it did not seem to work. The child's tears remained on his own face, but they hurt her heart. This time she really could do nothing. This time she was going to break her word to the child. "Luke, Megan has been looking for you. Go find her, I will talk to Auntie. Grandpa must know what's going on before I can help you." Rufus said seriously. He had to understand what was going on and help the child come up with the best solution. Hearing that his grandpa would help, he dried his tears and came to grandpa. "Grandpa, help me, I will go to play with Megan now." Luke ran away, leaving grandpa and auntie there, hoping to get a good result. "Winwin, don't cry, it's bad for your health." Rufus comforted Winnie, only her mood calmed down, they could have a chat. "Sir, I'm all right." Winnie controlled her mood. Rufus waited for a while before he asked. "Winwin, talk to me. Tell me why Luke hates Penny so much. Tell me why you and Brian need to separate." "Sir, I didn't tell you before for fear that you would be worried. Now for the the sake of Luke, I hope someone can help me." "Here is the thing..." Winnie told him that Luke got abused and depression. Hearing this, Rufus could not control but broke down. He got up in anger and banged on the wooden table in the arbor. He could not help howling. "Penny is so inhuman How could she treat a child like that? She is inhuman, she's a beast. We are so precious about Luke, but he got mistreated by her. I will not give up on this matter. I will talk to Richard." Rufus's mood was hard to control. Thinking of the scene that Luke was abused, he got furious. "Don't be angry, Sir. Brian is trying to figure it out. He'll teach Penny in his way. Don't worry." Seeing that Rufus be like this, Winnie regretted to say these, and she was afraid of Rufus' interference would destroy Brian's plan to make their relationship be worse, so she hurried to appease him. "He, like his grandfather, only puts profits first, and only buys other people's companies as a way. What's the use of that, the child still got hurt." This thought made Rufus even angrier. If they had paid as much attention to their children as they did to their business, all this could have been avoided. Brian and his grandfather's dedication to business was also the reason why he did not want to stay in the old house. Rufus was reasonable, and Winnie was speechless. If it were not for the acquisition of the Burns Group, Brian would not have delayed the matter for so long, and could not have hurt Luke. He put too much emphasis on the interests of the company. "Don't worry, Winwin, I know what to do. I know what to do without making it hard for Brian." Rufus's tone was firm. He had to take care of this thing. "But why do you want to part with Brian?" Rufus continued to ask. He realized that things between Winnie and Brian were not simple.

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 159 RUFUS WAS SHOCK

Winnie suddenly gave a bitter smile, and then she answer Rufus's question after a moment of silence. "Uncle, do you know Wendy?" "Yes, she's coming back." Seeing Winnie's bitter smile and hearing the name of Wendy, Rufus had known why Brian wanted to separate with Winnie. "Don't worry about it, Sir. There's nothing going on between me and Mr. Bennet. I just hope Luke can stay away from Penny so that he can grow up healthily." Winnie had no hope for other things. She just wanted Luke to be safe. "Winwin, don't worry, I won't allow her to be with Luke. I will not spare her if Brian and Grandfather do not punish her." Rufus was still indignant. He would not forgive what Penny did to Luke. Penny would not have an easy life in the Bennet family. Rufus paused at that. There was something he could not understand. "Winwin, I don't understand why you are so kind to Luke. Brian is Luke's father. He can't do as much as you do." Rufus had wondered about it for a long time, since the date he knew Winnie. It was impossible that she treated him as her own child even if she wanted to be with Brian. Winnie did not answer, but continued to think. Brian would know it soon. If he knew it, his family would know it, so it had no sense to hide it. "Sir, how much do you know about it? You should know that Penny is not his mother..." "You heard it from Luke?" Rufus's anger subsided a little and his tone softened. He interrupted her, apparently she knew more than he thought. "Some are from Luke, some is my personal experience." Winnie lifted her eyes and looked at Rufus. There was sincerity in her eyes, as well as fact and truth. "From experience?" Rufus asked with some doubt. "Right, because I am Luke's biological mother." Winnie said seriously. No one could change this fact. "You are Luke's biological mother?" Rufus looked at Winnie in surprise. He knew that Luke was born of surrogacy and he knew the reason. But it did not come to him that Luke's mother was silently protecting him. "Right, I am Luke's biological mother, Megan is his younger sister. They are twins." Winnie answered Rufus with a firm tone. "Megan is a child of our family?" Rufus was shocked by that. It all came too suddenly. Even though he experienced a lot, he needed time. So, that was the reason why Winnie was attentive to Luke. Megan was his grandchild, no wonder he liked Megan at the first sight. "Yes. I was selfish. I didn't want to give her to Brian, so I kept Megan." Winnie was not calm as she thought of the past. "Did Brian know?" This seemed to be a more serious question. "No, but he's suspicious and is taking samples from us for DNA tests. It won't be long before he finds out." Rufus frowned. He did not ask more but think. If Brian knew it, he would get the custody of Megan, which was cruel to Winnie. A moment later. "Winwin, what do you plan to do?" Rufus asked. "I am selfish, I want to live with my two children. But it is not to me. My plan is only a thought." Winnie raised her lips in self-mockery, and then continued. "Once Mr. Berry knows that Megan is his child, he will definitely take both Megan and Luke back. I think getting custody of my children will be hard. So it depends on Mr. Berry." "What about Brian? Don't you want to be with him? Only when parents and children live together, it would be the perfect ending." Hearing that, Winnie showed an ironical radiance. "Sir, it's impossible. It's more difficult. Reality could not make the four of us live together, but love. Love is the pickiest." "Mr. Berry likes Wendy, so he will not be with me." Winnie had never dared to hope for a family of four, not to mention Brian would fall in love with her. The most important thing for her now was to keep the two children. To think of anything else was like a sin. "Give me time, I will find a way. Don't worry, I won't let things get as bad as you think." Rufus did not know what to do at the moment. He understood love and never interfered with Brian and Stella's marriage, because he wanted them to find their own love. He did not want his children's happiness to be ruined by their career and family marriage, which was difficult to make it to a happy ending. Now Brian liked Wendy, otherwise he would not ask Wendy to come back, or separate from Winnie. But if Brian were with Wendy, Luke and Megan would have unknown future. Two days later. Daniel's death was eventually ruled a homicide by the police, making Winnie a suspect. Paul sent two children to school in the morning, Winnie came to the police station. "Miss Chambers, I'll pick you up later." Before Winnie got off, Paul said politely. "Ok, but Paul, don't call me Miss Chambers, call me Winwin." With a warm smile, she reached for the door of the car. "No, you are a guest, how can I address you so casually." In the eyes of Brian, Winnie was an important person, so he must be polite to her. "I live in the suburb and you helped me a lot. That is a deal, just call me Winwin. If you don't agree, I won't need you to pick me up. I'll take a taxi." Winnie mischievously threatened Paul and got off the car without waiting for Paul's answer. Passing by the police station parking lot, Winnie saw Brian's car. She felt bitter in heart. The police took Winnie to the case area, where Brian sat. Winnie came and sat beside Brian. "You are here." Winnie said indifferently. It was they met for the first time on the plane. "Yes, how are you, are you all right?" Brian asked in a low voice, but the moment he saw Winnie, he was exulted. "Yes, I am all right." Winnie replied with a faint smile, but did not dare to raise her eyes to look at Brian's. Seeing his seductive eyes, Winnie feared she could not keep up the disguise. "Who brought you here?" Brian continued to ask in a deep voice. "Paul sent me here." Winnie answered and changed the topic. Such communication made her have more grievances. "Have you found a replacement for me? I'll be back in the company in two days to handle the transition." "Not yet. You don't have to go to the company, you can go to the handover when I get a replacement." Winnie's physical quality was not good. Brian was afraid of her early work would be bad for her health, so it could only be arranged in this way."Well, ok. I won't go to the company until you call."They said calmly, as if nothing had happened, but they felt sore in heart secretly."Winwin, I can recommend a company for you. The salary is high."Brian had been thinking of various ways to make Winnie live a better life after leaving her."Where's the company?"Winnie asked in a low voice, but no matter where the company was, its salary would not be as higher as that of the Berry Group. However, she could no longer work in there."Y Country, over there..."Thank you, but I can't go abroad. I can't leave my aunt and Vanessa."The last time Brian wanted her to go to the MT Software Company in A City. Winnie did not expect that he wanted her to go abroad. How much did he hate her, so that he wanted her to get far far away?"Don't worry, even if I stay in B City, it won't affect your life. I will not contact you for anything. If I want to see Luke, I will call the chairman or your father. It won't put you on the spot."Winnie repeatedly guaranteed, but it still could not make Brian feel at ease."If you don't trust me, I'll give you a letter of guarantee. Or we can delete the contact information."With that, Winnie took out her mobile phone and without hesitation removed all contact information of Brian."I will keep my words and I will give you the letter of guarantee to you the next time you go to the suburbs."I go check with the police. I will leave you alone."Winnie got up and left.Looking at Winnie's back, Brian felt his heart being torn apart.Winnie could delete his contact information, but he could not. Even if they did not contact, he would keep her contact information, which was memory, care and love.Winnie cooperated with the police for investigation and walked directly out of the police station. She wanted to call Paul, but she was afraid of bothering him, so she was to take a taxi.Standing at the gate of the police station, she saw a taxi approaching in the distance and reached out her hand to stop it. Then she suddenly remembered that she had stopped a taxi in the same way the night she was kidnapped.

CHAPTER 160 RUFUS RETURNS TO THE OLD HOUSE

In panic, Winnie put her hand down and had shortness of breath, and even her hands and feet began to shake. She backed away in fear that the taxi would stop in front of her and that she would never come back. At this time, Brian appeared behind Winnie and held the retreating Winnie. "Ah..." Winnie screamed, all the reason had been taken away by the scene that day. She thought the men behind her were going to kidnap her, that he was going to push her into a taxi, and what happened that day was going to happen again. She screamed and pushed the man behind her in panic. "Let me go, don't touch me." "Winwin..." Brian felt that Winnie was trembling all over. He knew she had not forgotten what happened. "Winwin, it is me." Brian grabbed her and forced her to turn around and look at him. Winnie looked at Brian in horror and calmed down gradually. "Winwin, it is all right. There are no bad people here." Brian's eyes were full of love. Looking at such Winnie, he was suffering. He could not imagine how she would face such fear after they were separated. "There are no bad people." Winnie finally came to herself. Looking at Brian, she wanted to cry, but she held back. Looking at Brian, she wanted to get into his arms for comfort, if only for a moment, but she refrained. It might happen again in the future, but would not be with her every time. Now no matter what, she could only rely on herself. Just like when her father and mother die, she would only support herself. "Are you all right, Winwin?" Brian asked with concern. Although panic in Winnie's eyes had reduced, but it could still be seen. She needed time to soothe and needed to be comforted. "It is ok, it is ok." Winnie tried to show that she was strong in front of Brian, but it made Brian feel distressed. He tightened his arms and held Winnie in his arms. "Winwin..." Before he could say a word of comfort, he was rejected by Winnie. Winnie pushed Brian away, stood upright and forced herself to smile. "I'm fine, I'm fine." She did not dare to look at Brian, for fear that Brian found the most weak side of her. She did not want him to feel that she was a poor person. "Don't take a taxi. I'll take you back to the suburbs." No one could realize the pain in Brian's heart. Looking at the woman he loved suffering but refused to embrace him, he really wanted to be impulsive and protect her for a lifetime. But his impulse was always overcome by reason and could only be suppressed. "No need. I won't go back to the suburbs. The subway station is ahead. I'll take the subway home." Winnie temporarily changed the route in order to refuse Brian. Then she turned around and left without lifting her head. "Winwin..." Brian wanted to stop her, but Winnie's footsteps were faster and faster. Looking at Winnie run away, Brian hated his own helplessness. Winnie's fear had not completely disappeared. Brian was worried, so he followed Winnie from behind. Get into the subway station, stand on the platform waiting for the subway, and together get on the subway. Brian had been silently following Winnie. In the car Brian stood not far from Winnie, but he did not let Winnie find that, for fear that Winnie would again escape. Winnie found a seat, since she felt unable to support her heavy body. As she sat down, Brian saw her face. She had been in a daze and held tears in eyes, which made Brian distressed and sad. He should fight for his beloved woman, but why there were so many obstacles? If they separated, how should she live? Would she fear of the future? When Winnie got home and closed the door, she could not help crying. Weakly leaning on the door, she slipped to the ground. At the moment, she was sad and disappointed. She had no hope for everything. She did not expect that she could not restrain that kind of fear, at that moment, she felt like breaking down, But she could not break down in the face of Brian. No matter how much fear in heart, she must force herself to be strong, to calm down. It all stemmed from love, from her humble unrequited love. "Brian, you bastard, why do you appear in my world? Did I own you in last life? Do you have to torture me?" "You bastard, you jerk." Winnie cursed loudly, and only when she was alone, could she vent her emotion, or she really could not hold on. Although she scolded him, she did not hate Brian, after all, it was she felt into love with him. Therefore, she could only shoulder all the grievances and pain. Winnie now knew that love was a dose of intestinal poison. As long as she had it, she could not be able to get rid of it. She still cried sadly. Brian standing outside the door had never felt as miserable as he did now, not even when Wendy left. He felt much pain in heart and was suffering. Paul went back to the suburbs after he sent Winnie to the police station and brought Rufus back to the old house. Felix was surprised at the moment he saw Rufus. It was the first time in so many years that he went home at ordinary time. But looking at Rufus's serious face, he knew that Rufus must come back for something. "Follow me into the study." Felix called Rufus to the study. Butler Lowe served them tea and then walked away. The study only left the two of them. Felix sat on the main seat of the sofa, Rufus sat on the side. "What is it?" Felix said with a deep voice and a serious face. "Do you have to acquire the Burns Group? Can't you ask Brian get divorced now?" Rufus got directly into the point. He was still expressionless. He had lost all his happiness to his father and did not want to see his son suffer the same fate. That was the reason Rufus' sudden appearance. "I have to acquire it. He can get a divorce after that." Felix said firmly. No one could change his idea. "Do you think the Burns Group is more important than Luke? Without Winnie, Luke would have been destroyed by Penny." Rufus was irritated thinking of the fact that Luke had been mistreated. Nothing is more important than the child in his eyes. But now Penny had hurt Luke. Felix wrinkled his eyebrows and remained silent. It seemed that Winnie had told Rufus what had happened. He had come here because he was angry. "I won't forgive her for what she did to Luke, that is the reason I have to acquire the Burns

Group, and I have to make her regret mistreating Luke." Felix would not spare Penney and he would have to something to the Burns Group. In his view, only the Burns Group went bankrupt, it would hit hard on the Burns family, and in that way, he took revenge for Luke."All this is your selfishness. If you had not made them married and had agreed Brian to be with Wendy, nothing would have happened."Rufus said directly. He felt it was enough that he sacrificed, but now it continued to the next generation and there was no intention of stopping. It was because he was selfish."....."Felix frowned coldly, but he said nothing.It was rare that his son came back. They would quarrel if he continued.He admitted that he was selfish, but if one lived without selfishness and desire, there would be no substantial progress, so this kind of selfishness should exist.The study was silent for a moment, then Rufus spoke again."Sooner or later Penny and Brian will divorce. After that, don't force him marry again. Let him find his own happiness."Rufus knew that he could not persuade his father, because his father would not change his idea till he achieved the goal.But as Brian's father, he had to fight for his child's happiness."After the divorce, let him be with Wendy. The development of the Yup family is now good, it is a match to our family."Felix had already thought of the future for Brian. If Rufus did not talk about that, he would not break them up."You still have selfish motives. Is the Yup family your next acquisition target?"Rufus said in a disappointed tone.'That's Brian's business. If he could acquire --'"If he could acquire it, you will let him acquire it and divorce Wendy, so that you can arrange his next marriage?'"Dad, Brian is your grandson. Don't treat him as a chess piece for the Bennet Group's advance. He should have his own happiness."Rufus finally could not help but shouting loudly. As it went on, Brian would be next one of him. He would not be happy for the rest of his life."....."Felix said nothing, but he agreed with Rufus.Brian was his grandson, but he was the president of the Bennet Group with millions of employees. He had the obligation and responsibility to continuously expand the company and make those employees have a better and better life. Felix should prove with his strength that he did not choose the wrong successor."Don't worry about these things. I won't have much time to take care of it. Whether to acquire the Yup Group or not is Brian's own business."In order to make his son feel better, Felix could only cover up in this way."So there is no hope for Winnie and Brian?"Rufus lifted his eyes and asked."No, they can't be together. When Wendy comes back, Winnie has to leave."Felix said ruthlessly, but his eyes had inexplicable feelings.Winnie had good character. She was kind and sensible, and he liked her. Besides, she was capable. If she worked for the Bennet Group, she would make great achievement. But unfortunately she did not have family background, which did not meet the standard that he chose granddaughter-in-law.
