Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 171 WHEN IS THE RETURN DATE

Daenerys knew that Winnie's family was not easy in the past few years. Her aunt was responsible for helping to point out the direction, Winnie was diligent to support the whole family, Vanessa worked hard for the future of the family, and even Megan was more sensible than other children of the same age. "Why are you crying? We should be happy. Vanessa, don't cry, it is not only your sister's credit, your family is working hard." Daenerys said and felt distressed for them. Brian said nothing, but he felt distressed more than anyone else. Looking at Winnie who consoled her sister, he felt pain in heart. He hoped he could protect Winnie, make her live a happy life, share the burden of the family, so that she could enjoy being loved. But it was not him to protect Winnie. "Vanessa, which university will you apply?" Brian said in a low voice, diverting the sad topic. Vanessa left Winnie's arms, wiped away tears and answered the question of Brian. "I haven't thought about it yet, but I think I should have no problem to me admitted by University B." "Sure. All the best schools in the country will be fighting for you with your scores. Now you decide what you want to major in and then find a good school for that major." Kevin said firmly and proudly. "Kevin, you are right. The score was received last night, many schools called today and the media wanted to interview Vanessa. We are all proud of her." Rufus said happily, feeling that he was the most proud person. "Really? Is there an interview?" Daenerys asked in surprise. "Yes, I've turned reporters down. There's no need to show off. It's better to keep a low profile." Winnie said faintly. She did not like to expose her sister to the public, otherwise their past would be revealed, and it would cause harm to their family. Winnie paused for a moment and continued. "Vanessa, I want to talk to you about the application. Based on your scores, many abroad schools would accept you unconditionally. Will you consider a foreign school?" Winnie deliberately said this when everyone was present, especially, when Brian was present. In this way, he would be relieved, and he would not worry that her family would make trouble for him and that she would disturb his life. Before Vanessa answered, Brian was nervous. Obviously, if Vanessa went abroad, she and her aunt would go abroad, including Megan. What would he do if Winnie left? What if he never saw her again? Would Luke get sick again? Brian did not speak, but his handsome eyebrows were wrinkled unconsciously. "Sister, it costs too much to go abroad. We don't know anyone abroad, so just give it up. I can find a good job if I study hard." Vanessa directly refused. It was actually her excuse that they did not know anyone aboard. The main reason was that cost was too high for her sister. "Yes, Winwin, let her be with you. I will be worried if she goes abroad alone." Daenerys agreed with Vanessa's choice and did not want the two sisters to separate. And Vanessa had phobia. In case the disease relapsed, it would be troublesome. "You needn't worry about the cost. I can manage it. Oscar is abroad. He will help you if you need help. You don't need to feel insecure. If you choose a foreign school, Aunt and I will go there too. Our family should be together." "Think about what I've told you. I can overcome anything. You just need to think about your own future." After Winnie said that, everyone was stunned. They did not expect that Winnie would leave too. But she was right that family should be together. Rufus looked at Winnie in surprise. Kevin and Daenerys looked at each other, and then at the same time they fell eyes on Brian. Brian had gloomy face and sharp cold eyes. He didn't say anything and didn't know what to say. All he knew was that he had brought it on himself by saying things he shouldn't have said. Brian picked up a glass of wine and drank it up. Now he could only punish himself with wine, and could not say a word to ask her to stay. Wendy had been abroad for so many years, and his heart was abroad for many years with Wendy. Now Wendy would come back, but Winnie was to leave, his heart would continue to stay abroad. He did not know when she would return. "Mommy, is Oscar my Daddy? I saw the name on your divorce papers." At this time Megan asked a surprising question, and Winnie did not know how to answer. Everyone attached attention to Winnie. Everyone wanted to hear Winnie's answer. Winnie glanced at Brian through the corner of her eye, and found that his face was expressionless and cold, and she felt that she had no other answer. "Yes, he is your Daddy." Winnie's answer poured in Brian's heart like cold water. Although Brian was trying to confirm whether or not Megan was his child, he still felt heartache when Winnie answered. Brian was depressed and drank up another glass of wine. "Really? That's great. Mommy, I'm going abroad to see Daddy. I'm going to tell Daddy that I miss him and love him." The most exciting person was Megan who knew nothing. She had been missing a father in her world, and she had been longing for it for so many years. Now her father appeared and her wish would soon come true. How could she not be excited? "Megan, you have been waiting for so many years. Wait a few more days, I will take you to Daddy." Everyone understood Winnie's words, only Brian was angry. "Ok, I will wait." Megan's eyes were filled with expectation. "Vanessa, think about it, I will support you no matter where you choose." Winnie still hoped that Vanessa study abroad, so that Vanessa could have a better future and Brian could feel relieved. Vanessa promised her sister to think about it, but looking at Luke who was nervous, Rufus who was reluctant to see them leave, Brian who only drank, her heart softened. Since she knew that Luke was her sister's child, she had changed her attitude to Brian. Vanessa had been thinking that if their family of four could be together, her sister would be happy, and the two children would have a complete family. But she did not know whether Brian could accept her sister with a child. The family party was still continuing. Everyone left the table and began to barbecue. Vanessa finally found a chance to talk with Brian. "Brian, time is limited, so I will go straight to the point. Is there any chance that you and your sister will be together?" Brian looked at Vanessa in a daze. "Don't you object to our being together?" Brian asked in response, in fact, he did not know how to answer Vanessa. "It's no use objecting. Aren't you together? Brian, you're with my sister now, don't you think of future?" Vanessa seized all the time, afraid that someone would come over and this topic would be forced to stop. "No, there is no future." Brian directly gave the answer, but this answer made himself sad. "Why? Is it because my sister is not good enough or because my sister has us? If it's about us, don't worry, my aunt and I will never..." Vanessa did not understand, she had seen that Brian had feelings for her sister, but why could not they be together? She was thinking about various possibilities, but before she could finish analyzing the reasons, Brian interrupted her. "Vanessa, your sister is good, I never thought you are the reason. Don't give it a second thought. After all, your sister and I are not going to be together. Just take care of your sister." Brian said in a low mood. He couldn't bring himself to name any of the many reasons they couldn't be together. That was a kind of hurt to them, also was a kind of torture to himself. Vanessa was silent, staring at Brian. Since there was nothing wrong with her sister, why couldn't they be together? "Is it because of the great social difference between our families?" Vanessa finally came up with the most convincing reason. Brian was silent and wrinkled eyebrows, Vanessa knew that she found the right reason. She raised her mouth sarcastically, laughing at her stupidity and simpleness, even nowadays, a couple should have families which were of equal background. "Brian, I thought you and sister couldn't be together because Aunt and me. I even thought of living alone with Aunt, we won't bother you or ask you for a penny. But that doesn't seem to be the case. I can't change social status. Our family is at the bottom of the society, and yours is at the top of the society. We are not match to you." Vanessa said and turned to leave. She had had a good impression of Brian, but now she was disappointed, because he, like everyone else, looked down upon those at the bottom of the society. Brian could hear her disappointment in her last words. He wanted to explain that this was not the whole reason, but he knew that what he said would not be convincing. Vanessa was disappointed with him. Would she choose a foreign school? Would their family leave? Brian's mood became low because Winnie might leave. Now the only thing to distract his attention at the moment was wine.

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 172 WHO WILL MARRY ME

Brian was depressed. He drank up one by one. Winnie not far away felt her heart soft seeing that. She was afraid that he would get headache if he drank too much wine. She did not want to see him tortured by headaches. When she saw Brian tortured by headaches, Winnie's heart would be broken. Winnie walked up to Kevin and spoke in a low voice. "Persuade him not to drink, or he will get headache." "No, he never listens to me. You go." Kevin directly rejected Winnie, not because he was cruel, but because he knew Brian. The only person who could stop Brian from drinking now was Winnie. Kevin directly turned around to find Daenerys. Kevin refused to persuade, Winnie was more worried. Standing there, she did not know what to do. She wanted to stop him, but they had broken up. Since then, they had nothing to do with others, with what identity to stop him? But if she didn't, she felt distressed. When Winnie did not know what to do, Rufus came to her. "Don't worry, let him drink." Rufus had been paying attention to Brian and had found Winnie was worried. Brian was drinking alone. He could not guess what the reason was, but he knew why Winnie was worried. "But he will..." Winnie suddenly remembered that no one knew about Brian's headache, so she stopped talking. "He will have a headache?" Rufus completed Winnie's sentence. "You know it?" Winnie asked in surprise. "Yes." Rufus said calmly. Although he felt distressed that Brian had headache, he could not express their concern. But he wanted to let him drink, even though he knew he would have headache. "Let him drink. He is upset. He will be more sensible after he suffers from headache." Rufus not only knew that Brian had a headache, but also knew that Winnie could cure his headache, so he did not worry. "....." Winnie said nothing and did not try to stop him. She did not think there would be any change after Brian's headache, even if he changed, it had nothing to do with her. "Sir, why does he have a headache?" Winnie asked anxiously. "Sequela from a car accident after he was knocked unconscious. He had headaches and selective amnesia. He has forgotten everything that happened during his time abroad." "Alas....." Rufus took a sigh and then continued. "Thanks to his amnesia, or it would not be so peaceful in the past years." Rufus said with emotion, it seemed that there were too many things in his heart. It seemed that Brian's experience was not so simple. "Amnesia, it was a serious accident." From Rufus's words, Brian had story, but she could not continue to ask, because she was not the one who should know more about Brian. "He's okay. His driver died. He had always been very close to the driver and the death of the driver hit him hard." Rufus added and it reminded Winnie of Klara. The driver who died was Klara's husband. Brian once said that it was because of that driver that he had to take care of Klara. He seemed to have a lot on his mind, and some people he felt guilty to. Perhaps the death of his mother and the driver had been become burden to him, so he hoped that Winnie would not become his guilt. Winnie stopped looking at Brian, so that she did not have to worry about him. He had nothing to do with her, but she could not help but looked towards him from time to time, afraid that he would get a headache.

After Winnie said a few words with Daenerys, she found Brian was not in the original position. Winnie looked around and did not find him. She was worried. She failed to find him outside, so she hurried back to the room. He was not in the living room, she hurried upstairs. If Brian was on the second floor, he should be in her room. Winnie went straight to her room. When she opened the door, she saw Brian sitting on the edge of the bed with his head in his hands in pain. Winnie ran to Brian and directly hugged Brian. "Headache again, uh? Why did you drink so much?" Winnie said sadly. If she did not know Brian's headache from the beginning, she did not have to worry about him now. She did not know why she knew something about Brian. Now that she knew, why couldn't they be together? "I don't have to think about anything when I get drunk or have a headache." Brian said drunkenly, but at this time his headache did not cover up his heartache. "Why did this to yourself? Get up and I'll help you to bed. You'll be all right after massage." Winnie always avoided sensitive topics. Only in this way could she control her heart. She lifted him up and let him lie on the bed. Then, as she had done several times before, she put him on her leg and began gentle massage. Winnie said nothing. She just massaged and looked down at Brian's handsome face even though he was tortured by pain. His sharp eyes were closed, his eyebrows screwed together with pain and his face turned pale with a headache. His hair was unkempt. It did look terrible now, but she still liked this face and this man. She had told herself countless times, made countless resolutions, but she just could not control her heart. She had an outrageous idea that she hoped Brian would soon become poor, so that their positions would not be so unequal, and they might be together. But the reality was so cruel. Brian was always the excellent prince with superior status, and she had no background and status no matter how hard she was. "Are you really going abroad?" Brian's headache eased and he broke the silence. "It depends on Vanessa's choice. If she wants to go abroad, we will go with her." Winnie said in a low voice. "What should Luke do, if you leave?" Brian heard a sad answer and he could only speak of Luke since there was no other reason. "....." Winnie was first silent. As for Luke, she had been considering what to do. She did not want to harm him or make it hard for Brian. "Can I take Luke away?" Winnie tentatively asked. She knew it was unfair for Brian, but she was thinking more about the child. "You take Luke away, what should I do?" Brian could not imagine how tragic it would be if Winnie and the children left him together. If so, he would spend the rest of his life in entanglement. "You have Wendy. You can have your child. I take away Luke, I can take good care of him, and you can see him at any time." From Winnie's point of view, this was the best way. There would always be sacrifices in this matter, but the child could not suffer. Wendy would agree she took Luke away, so that she could have a quiet life. "Have you thought about my feelings? Will you allow me to keep Megan with me?" Brian could not accept that. Let alone Luke, he could not even accept that Megan was taken away. "I've thought about your feeling, and I'm not selfish. But it is not suitable for the children to grow up to be with you. Leaving Luke to you is far-fetched, do you still want to have Megan around you?" "I do not have to take away Luke, but think in the child's position, is it better for him to live with you or with me?" Winnie said. She really wanted to take Luke away and to deal with the relationship with Brian, but hearing what Brian said, she felt sad. "If you take him away, if you get married, the situation is no different from mine." Brian admitted that he did not take good care of Luke, but Winnie might not be able to provide him with a good growth space. "I have aunt, sister and children, who will marry me? Don't worry, I will let the two children grow up happily." Winnie thought Brian's thought was ironic. Since the children's father could not accept her, who would be willing to be with her? "Forget it, you are not Luke mother, I have no reason to trouble you. I'll take care of Luke. I'll find a way." Brian eventually rejected Winnie. He could not afford to lose too much at once. "....." Winnie again fell into silence. Even if he knew she was Luke's mother, he would not allow her to take away Luke."Are you better? Take a rest then, I will check on the children."Winnie was to stand up, but her hand was held by Brian."Don't go abroad. Vanessa can make a difference in B City. In the future, I will help her find a job after graduation, and the salary must be higher than the one abroad."Brian tried to persuade Winnie to stay. He was speechless at his repeated attitude, but his words and deeds and his heart were out of control."Well, I can't trouble you anymore. Didn't you say that ever since I was in your life, nothing has gone right? If I leave, your world will be bright, you should have a celebration that I will leave.""Take a rest, I'll go outside."Winnie pulled Brian's hands off and walked out of the bedroom.When Winnie returned to the yard, she found that all the people had left. The yard had been cleaned up. The two children and Rufus were in the pavilion.Then she realized that she and Brian had spent a lot of time in the bedroom, but they had spent most of their time in a daze.The next morning.Daenerys was sleepy, but a headache forced her to open her eyes.But what she saw was strange to her. This was not her bedroom.Daenerys looked around and saw that someone was lying next to her.

CHAPTER 173 THE SECOND ONE NIGHT STAND

Daenerys sat up, and then she found she was naked, which was embarrassing. "Ah..." Daenerys, frightened of herself, cried out loudly. At this time Kevin was awakened by her screams, opened his eyes and turned over to look at the panic Daenerys. "It is not the first time, why are you in panic?" Kevin teased, make Daenerys blushed and heartbeat violently. She pulled up the sheets to cover her body and said. "Can you.....Can you explain to me what this is about? Where am I?" Daenerys wanted to know what was going on. Last night, she got drunk and did not remember how she came here. Kevin's reaction was completely the opposite of hers. He was calm and smirked. He sat up, exposing his solid chest. "Last time it happened voluntarily after we were drunk..." "I tell you to talk about this time. Don't mention last time." Daenerys said in dissatisfaction. Facing Kevin's scoundrel smile, she wished she could punched on him. "Ok, this time. You made the first move this time, otherwise I wouldn't have brought any women home." "Oh, this is my home, my bedroom." Kevin explained. "I made the move? I volunteered to come to your house? Am I crazy?" Daenerys really did not believe that she could take the initiative in such matters. She was not that eager to have a man like that. "I don't care. It was you made the move." "We were both drunk. Rufus asked us to stay at the villa but you wanted to come back, so he called a cab and took us back together, and on the way back you started..." "Stop, stop, I don't believe I'll make the first move... in a taxi." Daenerys felt it humiliating, so she stopped him from speaking. She knew that she got drunk and took the taxi, but why didn't she remember she took the first move. "I knew you won't believe me. In order to prove my innocence, I have the taxi driver's phone number. If you don't believe me, call him and confirm." Kevin seemed to have been prepared, but his bad smile made Daenerys doubt. Kevin was sure that Daenerys would not ask the taxi driver about it, so he said so. And that was not really the case. He was the one who made the first move. He was the one who forced her to come here. He was the one who carried her to his room. "....." Daenerys was ambivalent. How could she ask the taxi driver? Even if she did not believe she could do such a thing, she did not know what to do. "Daenerys, although you made the first move this time, I, as a man, will be responsible. It's up to you to stay together as boyfriend and girlfriend or get married." "Boyfriend and girlfriend? To get married?" Daenerys was surprised to hear that. After so long working together or studying Winnie's thing, she did not feel Kevin liked her. Now because they slept together, he wanted to get married? "Never mind, we don't need to get married and you don't need to do anything. I don't want a marriage without love." Daenerys rejected Kevin, but inexplicably she felt sad. "Turn around..." "Can we get married if I fall in love with you?" Daenerys wanted Kevin to turn around so that she could put on her clothes, but Kevin interrupted her next words with a serious sentence. She looked at Kevin in surprise. She even was not sure what Kevin had just said. Love? Did he love her? When did it start? Why couldn't she feel it? He must be lying. "Is it so simple to fall into love? Fall in love after sleeping together? Don't joke. Love is meant to be loved with the heart, not with the mouth." Daenerys directly wrapped in sheets and got off bed regardless of whether Kevin dressed. "Where's the bathroom?" She asked as she picked up the clothes. Then she went to the bathroom following the direction of Kevin's finger. Although she was wearing clothes, her mind was still on the words of Kevin, and she thought that the credibility of Kevin's words was still very low. Even if he might have fallen in love with her, she had not fallen in love with Kevin, so she was far away from marriage. She went out for breakfast and returned home to change her clothes. She took a taxi to suburb to get her car. Then she had chat with Winnie. Winnie and Daenerys stood outside the yard beside the car. Daenerys asked about the school application. "Do you really want to go abroad?" Although she knew that it would be good for Winnie to leave, but she did not want Winnie to leave. "Yes, I'll go with Vanessa if she wants to." Winnie was adamant, but the decision was not in her hands. "Can everything be arranged? Will your child and aunt go there too?" Daenerys' worry was what Winnie was thinking about. She hadn't communicated with her aunt, but it shouldn't be a big problem. For her aunt, anywhere was better than B City. "My aunt has no problem, the main problem now is the children. Last night I put a feeler on Brian, and he didn't agree that I take Luke away. That's going to be difficult." "Winwin, think more for the child, don't make it hard for the child." Daenerys was afraid that Luke could not stand that Winnie left. Luke was the treasure of the Bennet family, even if Brian agreed Winnie to take him away, his grandpa and great grandpa would not agree. As a result, they would be apart and Winnie could not stand that. "I know. I'll think for the child." Winnie put the children in the first place, if there was no child, why did she pay so much? "Try another way. Isn't there any chance that you can be with Brian?" Daenerys and Kevin considered this question more than once, but she said no. But looking at Winnie, Daenerys hoped that her conclusion was wrong. For two children, it was the happiest thing to have a mother and a father. If the children were happy, the parents naturally would be happy. "It's impossible, and don't ever mention it again. Help me figure out how I can take the child away." Winnie pretended to be indifferent. In her heart, there was no such possibility. Brian was an unreachable man for her. "All I could think of was to sneak the child away, but that seemed to be breaking the law." Daenerys was at her wit's end. It was the most immoral of all. If Brian found out it was her idea, she would probably die. "That's not the way to do it. I'm trying to get it done without hurting anyone." No sooner had Winnie finished speaking than a taxi pulled up beside them and Kevin got out. Seeing Kevin, Daenerys quickly opened the door and got into the car. She was flurried and weird. "Winwin, I am late for work." Before Winnie spoke, Daenerys started the car. Daenerys's reaction baffled Winnie. "Why did she leave when she saw you?" Winnie asked Kevin. "Avoiding me on purpose." Kevin answered Winnie, but with a smile looking at the direction of Daenerys. "Avoiding you? Did you have a fight? You were fine yesterday." Winnie was baffled. "Ask her the reason, or she will be angry at me if I tell you." Kevin did not dare to tell the truth, but he had no intention of concealment. "Winwin, I have an operation today, I gotta to. See you later." Kevin was here to take the car too. It was not that he did not want to tell Winnie, he just thought it would be better if Daenerys told her. What was more, he wanted to earn his love by himself rather than rely on others for help. But he would turn to Winnie for help when he could not solve the problem. They both left. Winnie could not get it and could only find an opportunity to ask Daenerys. Ever since the day of getting humiliation on suburb, Penny had been resentful and thinking of ways to get revenge. But she found a pessimistic fact - everything was bad for her. Brian must have known about her abuse of the child, but he did not come to question her, he must have a plot. The Bennet family already knew about it, but they let it go. Was it really because of the child in her belly? As her father had said, the child was her talisman now, and no matter what she did, the Bennet Family could do nothing to her until it was born. Then she had to make good use of this period of time, she had to make Winnie pay the price in this period of time. As Penny was making a new plan, Richard called her. "Dad." "Daniel's death has been identified as homicide. You now hurry out and hide, or you will be in trouble." Richard said calmly, after all, he had been through a lot of things, but this time he could not guarantee that he could be safe, because it was related to the Bennet family. "Homicide? Dad, what did you do? Your people are unskillful." The moment Penny heard it, she was in a panic. Since it had been identified as a homicide, the police would come to her. "Is it any use talking about it now? If you did not cause trouble, it would not have happened. You cannot even get rid of Winnie, and you just do as what you want." "Now cut the crap and hide for a while." Originally, Richard did not come up with a countermeasure. Now he was angry at Penny's words. Now he was facing a double attack, one was the Bennet family, the other was the police.

CHAPTER 174 COMPARISON

If the police continued to investigate, they would find Richard, after all, he was behind the scene. If the police came to Penny, Richard was afraid that Penny could not deal with it and would tell the police the truth. "I'm thinking about how to deal with Winnie. If I leave now, I won't have a chance." Penny said. No matter what, she could not lose to Winnie. Even if she was now into trouble, she still wanted to bring down Winnie, to win Winnie. "Are you crazy? Why don't you think a way to protect yourself but to deal with Winnie? You know what, with your intelligence quotient, you can't defeat Winnie." Richard roared loudly out of anger. Now he understood that Penny was far behind than Winnie. "Until now you have not realized how powerful Winnie is. You can't do anything to her after ten or twenty years of training. If I can choose between you and Winnie, I will choose Winnie as my daughter. Who do you think Brian will choose?" Richard was angry and regretted that he had recognized his daughter, who could not bring him more interest, but made him be in crisis. "Dad, are you really my dad? How can you slander your own daughter like that? Did I do it for my own? What have I had since I went back to the Burns family? I've been sacrificing myself for the family, and now you resent me for there was something wrong." Penny said sadly. She did not expect that she had a huge gap between her and Winnie in the eyes of Richard. He was her father, he should not say that even if others said so. "Don't always say you sacrificed for the family. What did you sacrifice? That did the family get? In all these years of your marriage, has the Bennet family ever helped the Burns family for your sake? However, your status has risen sharply since you returned to the Burns family, and you have jumped to the rank of famous socialite in B City. Would Brian give you this without the Burns family?" "You abused the child, so Brian would like to kill you. What do you expect from him? It's a wise thing to get your relationship right while the child in your baby can make you safe." Richard scolded at Penny loudly. He didn't know what words to make Penny see herself and the adverse situation clearly. "So what? Even if he kills me, I'll take Winnie with me before I die. As long as I live, I will fight to the end with Winnie. There is no possibility of simultaneous existence for both of us." Penny stared angrily at Richard. Now she not only was angry at Winnie, but also disappointed with her father. She blamed Winnie. If it were not for her, she would not have ended up like this. "Then you will be dead and Winnie will be well alive, will spit to your grave. If you don't hide, wait for the police to come to you then." Richard had nothing to say. Penny was persistent and stupid. She was his most unsuccessful work, a defect that he could not make up for. Richard hung up the phone. Penny finally felt panic. She calmed down and thought seriously of Richard's words. It was indeed not the best time to deal with Winnie, she should protect herself first. As long as she survived, she could have a change to deal with Winnie again. Now the most important thing was to be obedient, so as Richard told her. Although she was very disappointed, she was his daughter. He would not be as cruel as Brian. At this thought, Penny immediately booked a ticket to go abroad. No matter which country was, as long as she could go aboard today. Then she began to pack and then hurried to the airport. But it was not as simple as she thought. As she just got off the taxi in the airport, her bag was inexplicably robbed, all the documents along with the bag lost together. She couldn't register without her documents, she couldn't leave without her documents. Penny was very upset and could not call the police. Dejected, Penny returned home, only to see the man in uniform. Penny was brought to cooperate with the police's investigation. Penny had professional legal knowledge, she knew what she should say and what she should not say. She was calmer than Winnie in the face of the police. "My relationship with Daniel is my personal matter, but I really don't know how he died." Penny denied the police's questioning. "Miss Burns, you should know that it is the duty of every citizen to cooperate with the police, and you should know the consequences of lying. You can deny all our questions, but once it is found to have something to do with you, you will have more crime." The police kept Penny under customary alert, hoping she would cooperate with them. They had found out their records of getting a room and were aware of that Penny was related to this case, but they had no substantial evidence. When time was up, the police must let her go. "Yes, I know. Am I not being cooperative? I've answered all your questions honestly. If there's anything else you want to hear, you keep asking and I'll keep answering." Penny was calm, as if it had nothing to do with her. The police looked at each other helplessly. They asked all the questions, but they did not get the strong evidence. If continued, they were in violation of the rules. So Penny left after the investigation. She was more pleased and thought that she could handle it and that the fact was thus concealed by her. She was no longer in a hurry to go abroad, but began to reapply for various documents. The police continued to track down clues, while continued to find clues from Penny. They found Winnie and Brian again to find out more. "I failed to find strong evidence from Penny, so we can only come to you to get more detail about Daniel." The police said politely. "I don't know much about Daniel so I don't have any information to share with you." Brian said seriously. What he knew about the relationship between Penny and Daniel, as well as some of Penny's conversations with her father, could not be used as evidence. He had his lawyer analyzed those words, which could not make them incriminated at all. "I don't know much about him either. Daniel was in the software business, and his specialty was the development of software such as monitoring and voice, and he was a thoughtful, insidious and dirty person. If it was he who planned it with Penny, he would have kept the evidence." Winnie gave her own analysis based on her understanding of Daniel. This was not a figment of her imagination, but they all had the habit of recording and shooting videos. Daniel was so cunning and insidious, he would certainly put his own interests in the front. No matter what, he would find the person that was responsible for him, so he got something that Penny was afraid of, which he could use it to threaten her one day. "Do you mean audio or video recordings?" "I'm not sure, it's just guesswork."

Check his computer. His important things are stored on the computer." Winnie was not sure without proof, but she felt she knew Daniel after four years of working with him. "We didn't find his computer. We searched his apartment. There was no computer in his belongings." The police said with certainty. Winnie felt suspicious after hearing that. "No way, Daniel has a lot of important things stored in his computer, and everyone in the company knows that he never leaves his computer with him. And he has location-based software on his computer, so he can find it via his phone." Hearing that, the police thought that the clues Winnie provided were important. The computer was likely to be the most critical part in this case. Winnie and Brian left the police station together and came to the parking lot. "Be safe." Brian whispered. "I will." Winnie said indifferently and opened the door. "Has Vanessa decided to go abroad?" Asked Brian anxiously. "Not yet. I gotta go. I need to go to the hospital." Winnie was still indifferent. In the face of Brian, she could no longer indulge her heart, no longer make herself heartache. Winnie left by the car, but Brian was temporarily relieved. They had not decided, so there was a chance to stay. Winnie came to the hospital, and Kevin helped arrange the examination. Everything was normal, expect that she was weak. "Winwin, you need time to recover, but now it does not affect your life and work." Kevin gently explained. In fact, Winnie's recovery was slower than the average person, because she had been in a bad mood during this period of time. She had suffered mentally impact, so the recovery was slow. "Rest assured, I know how to take care of myself." Winnie smiled. Thanks to Kevin's careful treatment, she recovered well. "Is there something between you and Daenerys, Doctor Burns?" Winnie had been thinking about what Kevin said to her, and she could not help but ask again. "Daenerys is in her office now. Ask her, and I'll tell you if she doesn't." Kevin still did not answer Winnie, because he was afraid that Daenerys would be agnry. "Well, then, I'll ask her." Kevin was mysterious and Winnie was curious. She felt that it was not simple. Winnie directly came to Daenerys' office. At this time, Daenerys was looking at the bouquet of flowers on the desk in a daze. "What are you doing here?" Daenerys was surprised to see Winnie. "Regular examiatnion and drop in on you." As she spoke, she walked to Daenerys' desk and glanced at the large bouquet of roses on her desk. "Oh, did someone send it to you? It is a large bouquet of roses, he must love you."

CHAPTER 175 DAENERYS' CONFESSES

Winnie said jokingly, but she was more curious. She took a look at the note on the roses. "Kevin? Roses from Doctor Burns?" Winnie asked in surprise. Although she could guess what happened between them, but she did not expect that. "Yes, Doctor Burns'. He must be crazy." Daenerys did not understand what was wrong with Kevin. Why did he do things that made her feel the burden? "You're in a relationship?" Winnie boldly asked. She knew what the rose represented. "No, we are not." Daenerys said no as quickly as she could, with panic in her voice. Seeing her reaction, Winnie smiled. She seemed have understood everything. "Tell me the truth." "When have I ever told you a lie? I said no. Now, He sends flowers and makes phone calls to me or goes to the cafeteria to get me the dinner. I feel the burden." Daenerys explained. "That is a good thing. His purpose is obvious. Why are you baffling?" Winnie smiled, showing her dimples. Kevin is a good man. Although he was not as prominent as Brian's family, such a family had no pressure. Daenerys' parents were doctors, and she was engaged in medical equipment. Her family condition was good. Winnie thought that they matched each other in every way. Why hadn't she thought they could have a closer relationship? "I just couldn't figure it out. I couldn't see him liking me in any way. That's why I couldn't figure it out." Daenerys did not want their relationship to be bound by responsibility or Kevin to be with her for one-night stand. "Is that why you're avoiding Kevin?" Winnie asked. She thought it was the reason, but she felt there was other reason. "Yes or no?" Daenerys blushed and did not know if she should tell Winnie about it. "Kevin told me to ask you about what happened between you. If you don't, he will tell me. Shall I ask Kevin now?" Winnie thought her threat was despicable, she was curious seeing that Daenerys was shy. "He..." Daenerys was angry, but she could not say anything. If Kevin had really said that, he would tell Winnie everything. It was better to confess to Winnie by herself. "Well, I will tell you. Don't ask him." In this way, with little effort, Winnie's curiosity was satisfied. Daenerys told everything to Winnie, including the one-night stand. Although she blushed, she felt sweet thinking of what happened. Winnie looked at Daenerys in surprise widening her eyes. She did not expect that. "I didn't know that. You hid it well, Daenerys." "One night stand is not something to brag about, so why should I talk about it?" "I thought we would not meet again, but we met again." Daenerys said helplessly, but Winnie had caught the happiness in her eyes. "So you're destined to meet, and it's not really one-night stand anymore. The first time was an accident, the second time you were willing to do that, and the third time it was mixed with feelings. Honestly, do you like Doctor Burns?" Winnie asked. Her things were in a mess and not she began to analyze Daenerys' relationship. Daenerys did not know that. "I think Doctor Burns likes you, Daenerys. He's not the kind of man who wants to be bound by things. He must have feeling for you." "You can meet again, it must be fate. I advise you to have a try, do not lose him, do not regret." Winnie persuaded Daenerys. She knew Daenerys had feeling on Kevin too, but she did not notice that, or she did not dare to admit it. "You and Brian met again too, and you have two children. It is a fate. Why you lost each other?" With the experience of Winnie, Daenerys did not feel that the reunion was fate. She had better to stay away from it. Daenerys' words hurt Winnie and her face darkened. "Daenerys, we are different. There is a huge gap between us. We started as a transaction. We did not meet based on equal terms, so there is no ending." "Doctor Burns fixes to you in every aspect. Give it a try or it will be sad." Winnie seemed to have deep feeling. It was just a joke between her and Brian. A joke was nothing compared with reality. "Did I say something I shouldn't have said? Winwin, I'm sorry. I didn't mean to hurt your feelings." Daenerys realized she had said the wrong words and apologized. She regretted using Winnie and Brian as examples. Winnie had been sad because of this thing, she still mentioned that. "It's all right, don't make a fuss. I'm not sad anymore. After a while, I'll forget Brian. Then I can move on." "Daenerys, I just think it's rare for a love like this to happen. Try it. It's best if it turns out well, and you won't regret it, because Doctor Burns is a good man." Winnie tried to persuade Daenerys. She did not want Daenerys to lose Doctor Burns, to lost the right man like she did. "Well, don't worry about me. I'll think about it." If Daenerys did not agree, Winnie would be concerned. Winnie felt relieved and she would continue to pay attention to it. She thought they could be a happy couple. The road ahead of her and Brian is dark, and even there was no way out, but she was very optimistic about the relationship between Daenerys and Kevin. But she was the miserable one. Winnie put the two children to sleep at night before she came to Vanessa's room. She had given her two days to think it over, and now she came to hear the result. "How is your consideration?" Winnie asked softly. "Sister, I don't want to go abroad. The thought of living abroad fills me with dread. May I not go?" Vanessa replied in a low voice, with reluctance on her face. "Have you decided, Vanessa? It's a great opportunity." Winnie confirmed with her. Now she wanted to put aside everything for Vanessa. But she would never force Vanessa, especially after she said she feared. After all, she was ill, and no one could be sure that if she would relapse in an unfamiliar environment. "Yes, I don't want to go aboard now. I'm thinking about it when I finish college." Vanessa had been thinking very clearly. But it was not fear that kept her from going abroad. It was Winnie. Now she knew the identity of Luke and knew that Brian would not let Luke go. If she insisted on going abroad under such circumstances, it must be difficult for her sister. If her sister gave up Luke, she would live in the guilt for a lifetime. For her sister, she could only try to let her sister have an easier life. "Ok, I respect your choice." Winnie dare not and could not be demanding. It was fine if they did not leave, even so, they could live well. "Do you want to apply for University B?" Winnie asked. "Yes, I want to apply for University B. My score will be all right." Vanessa said confidently. It was good to study abroad, but she did not expect that. She chose University B rather than other universities was because of her sister. At least she could be with her children and help them in time when they needed her. "Ok, apply for it. University B called me today and gave you an unconditional offer." Winnie supported her sister's decisions, but at the moment she was upset. She wanted to take this opportunity to leave Brian though she felt reluctant to leave, but if she stayed, she felt depressed. Now she was tangled, and the cause of all was because she fell in love with Brian. "That's good. I won't have to fill in any application. Sister, I will go back tomorrow and help aunt to sell the drugstore as soon as possible. We can face difficulties together." Now Vanessa was worried about Luke. She hoped that she could come back as soon as possible to help sister to protect Luke and Megan. "Vanessa, don't urge aunt. I will tell her about Luke when she is here. As long as you come back before school starts." Winnie said softly, wanting to give her aunt more time to accept B City. Winnie went back to her room, but she was not happy. Things had come to such a point that she had no choice but to move forward if she wanted to end her troubled life as soon as possible. Winnie stood by the window in a daze. Suddenly the phone on the bed rang. She turned to pick up her phone and frowned when she saw the caller ID. "Hello, Chairman." She had to pick up the phone though she did not want to because she had an unfinished task. "I heard there's been some improvement in the relationship between Brian and his father." Felix seriously confirmed with her. "I think so, but I can't go on with this task. I am sorry, Chairman. Please ask someone else for help."

CHAPTER 176 TEST THE CHILD

Winnie directly refused the task, because she had no time or courage to continue. "Why?" Obviously, Felix's voice cooled down. "I've done a lot of work over a long period of time, but Mr. Bennet never believed me. I had no other way." Winnie did not want to have too much contact with Brian, and did not want to love him more. "It seems that I chose the wrong person. You give up after such a little frustration." Felix's cold tone revealed his disappointment to Winnie. He wanted to urge Winnie to speed up the progress but Winnie gave up. "I'm sorry, Chairman, but I'm not the best candidate. Find someone else. There must be someone who can help him." Winnie tried and got hurt, but the result was not satisfactory. It showed that she was nothing in Brian's heart. He was impossible to change for her or love her. "Are you not afraid I bring back Luke?" Felix did not think there would be another person had the ability as Winnie, even Wendy would not be able to change Brian a bit. He did not want to give up Winnie, did not want to miss such a good opportunity. "Chairman, we can't joke on the child. If you are sure that the child will grow up healthily with you and not be abused by the stepmother, you can take the child back." "The child is very dependent on me now, and the depression has not been cured completely. Do you think it's okay for him to leave me? I just want you to put yourself in the child's shoes." "So that? We don't need you to raise him for the rest of your life?" Winnie just didn't want to let

Felix continue to use Luke as a bargaining chip, but hoped the Bennet family treated Luke simply as a child. But her words clearly angered Felix, and Felix loudly rebuked. "He can't be with me forever, but I do everything for his good. Chairman, you are his great grandpa, you should love him more than that I do." Winnie was not afraid of Felix's anger. Now she did not care about anyone's threat, because the truth was about to be exposed and she would try her best to fight for the custody of the two children. "....." There was a silence and then he hung up the phone. Winnie took a deep breath and her expression relaxed. After dinner, she accompanied her two children to do homework. Winnie asked at the end of the homework. "Luke, come and chat with me." Winnie called Luke to her. "Ok, what do you want to talk about?" Luke came to Winnie, looking at Winnie with a happy face. "Luke, since you know Penny is not your Mommy, do you want to Mommy?" Winnie said in a gentle voice, fearing that the child would resist. Sure enough, when it came to his mother, Luke's smile disappeared. "Yes, but don't dare to tell Daddy. They think I don't know, so I pretend I don't know it. I want to figure it out when I grow up." Luke said in a low mood, which made Winnie distressed. "Luke, do you miss Mommy, so you are depressed?" Winnie seemed to have found out the reason of Luke's depression. She had never asked him if he missed his birth mother and had been missing this reason. Winnie wanted to make her two children had preparation, or she would not have asked about his mother. If Luke's depression was because of his mother, his depression would be completely recovered. "Well, I haven't got anything to think about. I just want to find Mommy. But I was too young to find her. I have to wait until I am older." Luke told Winnie frankly. "Auntie, in fact, since I met you, I don't often think of Mommy. I only think of her when you are not around." From Luke's words, Winnie learnt that he was very dependent on her and finally knew that she was already a Mommy to him. "Luke, if I am your Mommy, can you accept it?" Winnie looked at Luke with expectation. She wanted to know his reaction and if he would get hurt. "Really? Are you really my Mommy?" Luke looked at her incredibly. He had wanted to let Winnie be his Mommy. Even if she was not, he wanted Winnie to be his mother all his life. "Answer me first, do you want me to be your Mommy?" Winnie was pleased to see that Luke was excited, but she wanted to know if her presence hurt the child. "Yes, yes, I want you to be my Mommy. I hope you are my Mommy." Luke hurriedly answered. It was what he had wanted all along. How could he not like Auntie? At this time Megan heard it and ran over. "Mommy, if Luke is your child, then I am a child of Uncle. Can he be my Daddy?" Looking at the children's expectant eyes, Winnie did not know how to answer. She was guilty and felt depressed. She did not know how things would develop in the future. Brian was not the one she could control. Would Megan and Luke leave her? Every time Winnie thought about these things, she wanted to give up everything and run away with her two children, but she couldn't be so selfish. "Megan, I am just hypothesizing. It's not necessarily true. Even if I am Luke's Mommy and you are Uncle Brian's daughter, we can't live together." Winnie's words were complicated, so the two children were puzzled. "Why? Families are supposed to stay together." "I don't understand either." Asked the children, both puzzled. "You are too young to understand some things. In short, father and mother could not live together. What will you do then?" Winnie did not go on to explain because the children were too young to bear the pressure. "I will stay with you." Luke answered directly, because he felt depressed to live with Daddy. Living with Auntie would be much easier. "Me, too. But I will miss Uncle." Megan's answer was the same with Luke's. "I will miss him too. We can visit him when we miss him." Luke seemed to comfort Megan. He always felt that if he didn't stay with Winnie, he would never see her again. If he was with her, he could see Daddy. "If only we could be together." Megan was still disappointed. No matter whether Brian was her father or not, she didn't want to leave him. Winnie looked at the two children's reaction, feeling distressed. Both children could accept this fact, but what they needed more was a complete home. The next day Winnie drove Vanessa to the airport and got preparation after she came back. Vanessa had decided to go to college in B City, so Winnie must find a stable job in B City, otherwise the life of the family would be limited by money. Having been a "free person" at Bennet Group, she had nothing to do with the company. And not it was good to her, so that she could leave at any time. Winnie began to send out resumes and began to look for a suitable job. But it was not easy to find a company that matched the Bennet Group in B City. Before Winnie accepted her next job, she had to sort out the works of the Bennet Group. When she pulled out that phone and was to make sure if there anything she could do, she found that Brian's phone number had been deleted. Slightly sad, Winnie called Albert. "Albert, when my work will be handed over?" Winnie asked in a gentle voice. "I'll ask now and I'll call you later." Albert was reporting work in Brian's office. As for Winnie's work, he needed to ask Brian. But to his surprise, Winnie could directly ask Brian, why had she called him? "And, will I have nothing to do with the Bennet Group after handover?" Winnie needed to confirm to avoid any troubles. "All right, I'll ask." Albert hung up the phone. Then he looked at Brian who had a cold face. "Mr. Bennet, it is Winnie. She asked when the job would be handed over and whether she would have nothing to do with the Bennet Group after the handover." Albert passed on Winnie's words, but he did not want her to leave. The company needed such all-round talents as Winnie, and Brian was more in need of Winnie than the company. Brian became soft since he was with Winnie. But since knowing Wendy would come back, he recovered the original indifference, even beyond the past. It showed that he could not leave Winnie, but he only vented his anger on them. "Have you found a replacement for Winnie?" Asked Brian coldly. He was angry that Winnie called Albert. "Yes." "Mr. Bennet, Winnie is a rare talent. We will lose a lot if we let her go like this. Once she is hired by another company, it will be a threat to us..." "Bring her over tomorrow. Tell her she will have nothing to do with the Bennet Group after the handover." Brian decisively interrupted Albert's words. He knew that Albert wanted to retain Winnie, but he could not hear him to say that, for fear he would do so. "....." Albert was silent seeing that Brian was resolute. "Mr. Bennet, you always say that there is a clear distinction between public and private affairs. Can you make a clear distinction between public and private affairs for Winnie? Winnie's departure is a great loss to the company." Calvin chimed in to persuade Brian. He really didn't want Winnie to leave. "Yes, Mr. Bennet, none of the new people we've found can match Winnie's ability. If Winnie leaves us..." Morgan also persuaded at the risk of being scolded. Winnie was important to Brian, which he might have not realized that. But they felt Brian would regret for the rest of his life for losing Winnie. However, Brian was still persistent and interrupted Morgan angrily. "Do as I tell you, and no one is allowed to mention it again."

CHAPTER 177 HANDOVER

The next morning, Winnie came to the Bennet Group. The colleagues held the same attitude to her, but her heart was cool. It was a place where she wanted to work hard, but in less than a year, she had to leave. Maybe she didn't belong here and it was just a twist of fate. Now everything came to reality. She would leave the Bennet Group and Brian, and then it would start all over. She then came to her office. To tell the truth, she had not too much feeling for it, because since she came to this office, nothing happy had ever happened. The memories in this office were heartbreaking and bitter. Her replacement hadn't arrived yet, and she wanted to be ready. As she turned on the computer and was about to work, Klara pushed the door open and came in. "It's been a long time, Klara." Winnie said. "The president wants you to go to his office." Klara said in disdain. Winnie said nothing but give a self-deprecating smile looking at Klara who ignored her words. "I'll be right there." Winnie was about to get up, but Klara walked in and closed the door. "Winnie, please do not come back, and do not appear to Mr. Bennet again. You had not brought him any interest but trouble." Klara said in a contemptuous manner. From beginning to end, she did not like Winnie and had been enduring. Now she had to leave. "Did Mr. Bennet mean that, or you?" Winnie asked in reply. Winnie knew from the moment Klara broke in without knocking on the door that she was smug again. She thought she would leave and did not care about her, but Klara shut the door to scold her. Winnie could not take it. "It doesn't matter who means it. It will be all right when you leave." Klara said arrogantly. In her view, Winnie was to leave, if she did not say a few words, her heart had been accumulating resentment. "It is not up to you if I leave or not. What you said is the private affairs between Brian and I, as a secretary, you should not say that." "You said that I did not bring interest to the company, may I ask who solved all the problems? Am I not responsible for the steady rise in mobile phone sales? Are you responsible for the development of new software?" Winnie asked coldly. It would be ok to say other things, but her dedication to the company could not be simply erased. "You..." Klara couldn't say a word. "Klara, you're a good secretary. You're competent. But you need to learn to separate the business from the private affairs. If I leave, there will be other women around him. Are you going to keep treating the women like this?" "If I leave, Wendy will be back. Do you dare to do the same to Wendy? If you like Brian, you can fight for him. Don't always be hostile to the women around him, it is useless and will reduce your quality." "Mind your own business." Winnie lost to Brian. She could do anything for the children, but she could not be discriminated by anyone. Klara hated her all the time, but this hatred was the most ignorant, because it was impossible for Brian to have only one woman. Winnie was to leave after that, regardless of Klara who had a pale face. Winnie knocked at the door and walked in after she got the consent. "You want to see me, Mr. Bennet?" Winnie said formally. At the moment they were only superior and subordinate. "I would like to say that if you have any new software, you can sell to the Bennet Group, I will give you the best price." Brian looked up at Winnie from a pile of documents. "Ok, if your offer is high, you will be my first consideration." Winnie answered bitterly. Since he wanted to break off all contacts, why did he want to buy her software? She wouldn't sell it to him if she had one. Winnie took out the bank card she had been holding and put it on Brian's desk. "Mr. Bennet, here's the money you gave me. No I give it back." "I took the money to reassure you, but now that we have nothing to do with each other and you don't have to think too much about it, so this money is useless." Winnie had long wanted to return the money to Brian, but there had been no suitable opportunity. Now they had nothing to do with each other, she should give it back. Brian looked coldly at the bank card. This bank card came and went for several times, and in the end Winnie refused it. Maybe, like she said, she didn't intend to take the money in the first place. It was all about the children. This woman was silly. With this money, she did not need to work hard. Why did she return it to him? "Is there anything else? If not, I have to go back to handover work." Winnie asked. She did not get used to this unfamiliar mode of getting along, but she had to accept it. Before Brian said anything, she turned to leave. "Winwin..." Brian called Winnie in a low voice. "Don't you have anything to tell me?" Brian did not know why he called Winnie. He felt that when he looked at her back, he had a feeling that he would lose her forever. "No." Winnie said and then hurried to leave. She wanted to say there were a lot, but she was afraid that Brian would dislike that if she said it, so it would be better to keep it in her mind. After Winnie left, Brian felt his heart hurt. After the handover of work, Winnie had nothing to do with him. If there was no Luke, they even had not chance to meet. At this thought, Brian was depressed. After Winnie left, Leo came to Brian's office. The two first talked about work, and after finalizing all the work, Leo became serious. "I heard from Daenerys that Winnie resigned. I want her to work in my company. I hope you won't stop that." "....." Brian was silent. He wanted to stop that and did not want Leo to be with Winnie. But with what identity he interfered with Winnie's private affairs? "Winwin supports the family by herself. Without a stable job, she doesn't feel comfortable. Don't put her on the spot for the sake of your relationship before." Leo said. He had heard all about Winnie and Brian from Daenerys. Although he was very happy that Brian and Winnie separated, seeing that Winnie was in a low mood, he felt it ashamed to be happy. Winnie was a good woman, who worthy of love. Why couldn't she meet a good man who would not hurt her? He and Brian were bad men for Winnie. "Why didn't you protect her, why did you hurt her like that? If you had taken care of her, I wouldn't have met her, and all this would not have happened." Brian began to hate Leo. If he had been protecting her, Winnie would not have met him, and they would not be sad to be apart. "I regret that. If I'd taken care of her, you wouldn't have had a chance. I never thought you would not cherish her." "Mr. Bennet, I've been trying to get Wynne back. I'll make her happy for the rest of her life if you allow it. I will cherish her like a treasure." Leo was determined and his expression was firm. He did not complain Brian accused him. If he had not lost Winnie, there would not be Brian. "Can you accept her with the child?" Leo's words hit Brian like a heavy hammer, making him difficult to breath. Would he allow that? "Yes. I don't care even if she brings Luke with her. I love her." Leo answered earnestly. "Will your family accept it?" Asked Brian, who had no clue as to why he asked that question. Now he didn't know what to do and seemed more and more confused. He could not imagine that Winnie would be with Leo. Would he lose the yearning for love? "I do not care whether my family members can accept it. I can give up everything including my present position for Winwin." "I think I can make Winwin live a happy life with my strength." Leo said confidently. Now for Leo everything was not a problem and but the problem was Brian. As long as Brian did not let go of Winnie, as long as he asked her to stay, Winnie would never leave, because she loved him, because they had two children. "You really love Winwin and can give up all for her?" Brian was speechless. Why couldn't he give up everything and be with Winnie? Why did he want to be with Penny which was not love anymore? Why couldn't he give up the power and position? "Mr. Bennet, so you allow me to be with Winwin?" Leo said that and turned to leave directly. He wanted to start afresh, start his love, start approaching the woman he had lost. Winnie had a lot of work to do and she did not finish it until the afternoon. With a deep sigh, she grabbed her bag and left the office full of bad memories. When she walked to the elevator, the elevator door opened and she walked in in a low mood. At this time, Brian walked out of the office. They stood staring at each other. "Goodbye, Brian, from now on we are completely over. Be happy in the future." Winnie expressed the words in eyes to Brian, and then the elevator door closed. Goodbye, Brian, goodbye, the man she loved. Winnie was in a bad mood, but she met Leo in the parking lot downstairs. "Why are you here? You are here for cooperation?" Winnie asked in surprise, thinking that Leo had just come over. "Yes, but it was finished and I am ready to leave. And you? Come to hand over?" Leo asked gently with a smile on his face. "How do you know about my handover?" "Daenerys told me. Okay, talk later. I'm hungry and haven't had lunch yet, so accompany me to have dinner."

CHAPTER 178 FIND A NEW JOB

After Leo left Brian's office in the morning, he had been waiting for Winnie in the parking lot until now. He was hungry but he had been enduring it, so that he could have a meal with Winnie, to appease her lonely heart. "Well, I haven't had lunch either. Let's go together." Winnie thought it was just a coincidence and didn't think much about it. "Get in my car and come back to drive yours after dinner."

Leo said and came to the car to open the car door. Winnie did not refuse but directly got in the car. This scene was seen by the distant Brian. He felt pain in heart Was he really willing to let Winnie go? Could he really let Winnie to be with Leo? Leo took Winnie to a Chinese restaurant, sat down in a private room. "Order what you want, and I'll pay today." Winnie said. She had been using Leo's car for a long time and wanted to thank him for that. "I will pay. A man should not let a woman pay." Leo refused Winnie's proposal. "You are male chauvinism." "The most urgent thing now is to fill up the stomach." Winnie was hungry and was in a bad mood. She wanted to release her depression. Whether it was drinking or eating, as long as it could distract her attention. Leo smiled for Winnie's frankness and loveliness. He liked Winnie and her smiling face. He liked her and wanted to take care of her, even though she smiled less. The meal was quickly served on the table. Both men needed to drive, so they didn't drink. Leo spoke about Winnie again when they almost finished. "I've heard all about you from Daenerys, Winwin. I won't meddle in your personal affairs. But I want to be sure about your job." "Come to my company, I need someone like you right now." Leo said gently and he did not mention her relationship. He wanted to take it slow. When Winnie fell in love with him again, he would confess his love. "Your company and my major are not the same, how can you need me?" Winnie had clear about Leo's mind, but she still did not want to trouble Leo, did not want to be too close to him and did not bring him hope. "Who says it is not the same? We're making games, and it's easy for you." Leo's company was developing games, and it needed people like Winnie. But the game had almost finished and it was not urgent need for Winnie as he said. "You are barking up the wrong tree. The only things I haven't dabbled in so far are games and military affairs. You'd better find someone else." Winnie said with a smile. "Leo, I know what you mean and thank you for worrying about me, but your company is really not the right company for me. Don't worry about me. It is not difficult to find a job." "Even if I don't have a job, I can still support my family by selling software. When I have game software, I will certainly cooperate with you, then I go to your company to work." Winnie refused. She knew that she could not fall in love with Leo again. Even if she did, she could be in relationship with him since she had two children. She could not cause influence on his future. Now she just was a friend of him and wanted him to move on. It would make her happy. "Winwin..." "Well, I'll ask you for help when I need it. Don't think I am annoying when the time comes." "Eat. I have to pick up the kids later." Leo wanted to continue to persuade Winnie, but Winnie did not give him a chance. Her resumes soon received response. Some asked her to go for an interview right away, some asked her to go to work directly, and some have made generous offers straight away. But she still wanted to follow the process of interview, to get a deeper understanding of all the companies to see which one was more suitable for her. Winnie handed her children to Rufus. Rufus was responsible for picking the children up from school and dancing classes as well as computer classes, and she began a new journey. After having interview of all the companies, Winnie got a deep understanding of a software company that was not too big. The two-year-old company was a partnership of two people, one responsible for the money and the other for the technology. Now there was a little bit of success and they wanted to expand the company, so they needed talents. When the two partners saw Winnie's resume, they were surprised and directly offered shares to Winnie. She was only to provide technology. It was an opportunity for Winnie, so Winnie chose it after consideration. Winnie's job was finally settled and she was in a good mood. She came to Daenerys' home to celebrate, but she met Kevin in Daenerys' home. "Am I interrupting you?" Winnie said with ridicule. Although she did not know how far these two people have developed, it should have no problem since they were shy. "No, I just arrived." Kevin replied with a smile. But it might be better without Winnie. "Daenerys was sick today, and I came to see her." Kevin explained the reason for his coming, not afraid of Winnie's misunderstanding, but Daenerys' embarrassment. "Sick? Are you better now?" Winnie asked with concern and she noticed that Daenerys did not look good. "I am fine, I just got a cold." Daenerys was not so serious, but Kevin made a fuss. "Winwin, how's your job?" To save herself embarrassment, Daenerys changed the subject. "I found one. A small firm, but it pays me well, and I became their partner." Winnie was very confident and proud. Her mood was better than that when she worked in the Bennet Group. "So you have your own company?" Daenerys asked in surprise. "You could say so." "Great, regardless of the size of the company, as long as you can make money and be happy. Congratulations, Winwin!" Daenerys happily embraced Winnie. Although she did not know how Winnie's future would be, she would not encounter more trouble if she left Brian. "Thank you!" Winnie was really happy at the moment. After all, getting rid of Brian was a good start. "Winwin, congratulations." Kevin also said congratulations, but he was not as excited as Daenerys. "Thank you!" "Winwin, have you lost all hope to be with Brian?" This was why Kevin was not excited. Winnie found a job and had completely left Brian. When they separated, Kevin always felt that a good relationship was broken. Without Winnie, Brian would live like a zombie, which was the cruelest for Brian. "No, we were impossible to be together from the beginning, and it makes sense to end." Winnie was in a good mood, but she got a low mood hearing the name of Brian. The last person she wanted to see now was Brian, and the last name she wanted to hear was his name. "You have a talk, I will have dinner with the colleague, so I gotta go." Winnie did not want to disturb Kevin's rare opportunity, nor did she want to continue to talk about Brian, so she had better leave. There was no dinner with the colleagues at all. After leaving Daenerys' home, Winnie looked for a house in University B. Vanessa would go to college in two months, and she had to settle the house in two months. There were many new houses nearby University B and it was not difficult to buy an house. After watching a few, Winnie was satisfied and sent the video to her aunt and sister, asking them for opinion. Back home in the evening, Winnie sat in the living room having a video conference with her aunt and sister. She wanted to buy the house as soon as possible. "Check which suits us." She asked in a soft voice. "Sister, buy a big one, at least five bedrooms." Vanessa said happily. She wanted more rooms because there were five people in their family and they had to have a room for one person. "There is no need to buy such a big house in B City. It will spend a lot. Buy one with two rooms. I can share a room with Vanessa. Megan shares a room with Winwin." Isobel opposed Vanessa's opinion. She was afraid it would spend too much money and Winnie would have a burden. "Well, we don't have that much of money now." Isobel's made Vanessa calm down. "Auntie, don't worry about money. If we buy a big house, we can make a loan and then pay it every month. I agree with Vanessa. Let's buy a bigger house." Winnie knew what was in Vanessa's mind, but she did not choose a bigger house for her children. This house was bought for Vanessa. It must be to her satisfaction. "I think it's a burden. Every day you open eyes, you owe the bank money. I just can't bear to be in debt." Isobel did not agree. They carried debts for so many years, which was a lot of pressure to her. "We don't owe the bank money when we open our eyes, but when we sleep with our eyes closed." Vanessa said jokingly. "Auntie, you don't have to worry about money. After I go to college, I will study hard to get through college on a scholarship. I could tutor on the weekends so I don't have a burden, and the money I save could help my sister pay off the loan." Vanessa would rather to work hard to buy a big house, so that Luke could live with them. "Auntie, loan is not the same as debt. We have a house as collateral, and we owe it to the bank, so we don't have to have pressure. I can do it on my own." "Auntie, let's buy a big house." Winnie and Vanessa persuaded their aunt. "Vanessa, there are three big houses in the video I sent you. The location and orientation are good. Which one would you like to choose?" Winnie determined directly, lest her aunt was in opposition. "How about decorated room? We can move in when the school starts." Vanessa wanted her family to live together as soon as possible.

CHAPTER 179 WANT TO STAY AWAY FROM HIM

Winnie had no objection. She wanted to leave the Bennet's house as soon as possible, so as not to meet Brian. "It is up to you, I have no objection. If you have decided on that house, come back tomorrow. It will be in your name." "I'm not going back. The house is in your name. I'm still a student and the bank won't give me a loan." Vanessa didn't want that house and would buy one on her own if necessary. But she could not refuse her directly, so she found an excuse. "Ok, it can be in my name and I will transfer it to you when the loan is over." Winnie felt it made sense. The bank's procedures were complicated. Vanessa did not meet the conditions of bank loans, so temporarily the house could only be bought in her name. "Don't buy a big house, otherwise the pressure is big." Isobel said. She was afraid that Winnie's pressure was too big that she only focused on money and would not find a boyfriend. "Don't worry, aunt. This house isn't that big, and I can afford it. I am now a partner in a firm and earn much more than I used to." "We decided to buy the house." Winnie knew what her aunt was worried about. She was afraid that her pressure was too great and she was too tired. But Winnie did not think so. She wanted to be tired and got more pressure, so that she would not think of unrealistic things. "Never mind. Ask Megan to come over, I want to chat with Megan." Isobel could not convince her nieces, so she had to compromise. "Megan, come, your great-aunt wants to talk to you." Winnie raised her voice and shouted for Megan. "Luke, come over, I miss Luke." Vanessa joined in. The two children ran over together, followed by Rufus. Rufus sat around the sofa and waited quietly. He wanted to talk with Winnie when she finished the call. "Grand-aunt, come to us, I miss you so much." Megan said sweetly. She was excited to see her great-aunt in the video. "Megan, good girl. I miss you too. I will meet you in a period of time." Isobel said. Looking at Megan's pleasing face, she felt relaxed. However her voice fell into the ear of Rufus, making Rufus nervous. Rufus wrinkled his eyebrows, and a woman emerged in his mind. The voice was too similar, as if she was standing next to him. "Great-aunt, can you come here tomorrow? I miss you so much." Megan wanted her great-aunt can come earlier. "No, I can go there tomorrow, I have not finished my work yet. Megan, be patient. When it get there, we will not part again." Seeing that the child was expecting, Isobel wanted to go back to B City as soon as possible, but she had been way from it for a long time, she did not know if she could get used to it. "Megan, is that boy next to you Luke?" Isobel noticed that boy next to Megan and guessed he was Luke. Because Megan always mentioned Luke. And during this period of time, Vanessa kept saying to her that Luke was cute. What was why she remembered Luke. "Hello, great-aunt. I am Luke Bennet, you can call me Luke." Luke was in the arm of Winnie and greeted to Isobel. "Good boy, it is our fist time to meet, but you know how to greet me." Isobel liked Luke very much. "I call you as Megan did. Great-aunt, come. I want to live with you." Luke invited her with enthusiasm. He felt relieved to see a nice great-aunt. He felt that Winnie's family were all nice, enthusiastic and optimistic, which was different from his family. He like this carefree life and did not like the cold feeling of his family. "Ok, ok, I like you, Luke." Isobel liked this boy. No wonder Vanessa always talked about him. "Luke, we were talking about a house. I love you and want to buy a big house so that you can have a bedroom. Do you want to live with us?" Vanessa said proudly. She was pleased to see Luke and wished she could hold him into arms. She wanted to make up her love for him. "Yes, I want to live with you. Thank you for giving me a room, so that I can live with you, Auntie." "Good boy, I love you so much." Vanessa was happy and touched that the child trusted her family. After chatting for a while, they hung up the phone. And Rufus was still thinking about Isobel's voice. "Grandpa, Auntie said I can live with them." Luke came to him and said shaking him. Then he came back to himself. "... What did you say?" "I said Auntie Vanessa will buy a house and there is my bedroom. She asked me to live with them." Luke was excited. If he could live there, he could give up his Mommy. "Gook, Auntie Vanessa likes you." "Luke, play with Megan outside, I talk with Auntie." His mind was wandering, but he had not forgotten his purpose. After Luke and Megan left, Rufus said. "Winwin, I heard that you are to buy a house. Are you not used to live here? Or do you feel a burden?" "No, it is good to be here." Winnie could see that Rufus did not want her to leave and she felt depressed, but she wanted to leave Brian and the Bennet families. "Sir, I will buy a house near to University B, so that Vanessa would feel convenient. And we can take care of her. We have many family members and my aunt will come after some time. We can't always live here." "I never feel that it is a burden you live here." Rufus said. He wanted to have many people to live together, feeling like a family. "Sir, there is other reason. Mr. Bennet and I have broken up, I want to stay away from him as far as possible." "Actually, I want Vanessa to study aboard, and we can move aboard, but she wants to study in University B, I could only try to stay away from him. Every time when she spoke of Brian, she was in a low mood. She did not know when his impact would stop. "You can't part completely. With Luke and Megan, you have to meet and communicate. I don't think you can stay away from him." Rufus knew he should not interfere it, because he never meddled in their marriage. Now Brian wanted to marry Wendy, but the mother of the two children was Winnie, it was complicated. "I know, but I will try my best. I don't want other contact with him expect things related to kids." "Sir, I want to move out now. I am recovered and I can take care of the kids. I got a new job and it will be more convenient if I moved back to city." No matter when, Winnie did not want to mention Brian. He was pain in her heart. Every time he was mentioned, her heart got hurt. She could not bear that hurt. "You got a new job?" Rufus was surprised. He did not expect that Brian would give up a talent. "Yes. I have done the handover of the Bennet Group and I am no longer its employee." Winnie said faintly. After leaving the Bennet Group and Brian, her thing was half done. If only Luke could be settled, then she would have nothing to expect. "Alas....." Rufus continued to say with a sigh of disappointment. "Winwin, I don't want you to leave here and the Bennet Group. You are a talent and you are a good girl. I have treated you as my daughter. When you said you wanted to move out, I have the feeling of marrying the daughter." Rufus really did not want her to leave. "Well, don't move until you buy a house and when your aunt comes over. In the meantime, you go to work and I take care of the two children. Think of it as spending some time with me." Rufus could only try to retain Winnie. He did not want Winnie and the two children leave. if they left, he would be alone again."....." Winnie did not know what to do. If she continued to stay, she would be suffering. If you left, Rufus would be sad. "Winwin, if you don't want to see Brian, I won't let him come to me. He....." "Sir, you can't do that." In order to retain Winnie, Rufus even gave up to see his son. Winnie could not afford it. "Sir, your relationship with him has just improved a little. You can do that. I won't leave until my aunt comes back." "Did Winnie have any other choice? At this time, she could only bear it so that it would not destroy the relationship between Rufus and Brian." "All right, good girl. Thank you." "Tell me how much you need to buy a house, and I'll help you with anything. If Brian threatens you with the children, I will be on your back." Rufus knew that Winnie was not easy, and she did not have the ability to fight with Brian. He would try his best to help Winnie and reduce the harm to the child. In fact, he felt it hard to stand in the middle. If he helped Winnie and the children, Brian became a lonely man. But if he helped Brian, the children would forever separate from their mother, which was cruel to the children and Winnie. Winnie appreciated Rufus's help, but she had her own principles. She would rather owe money to the bank than borrow money from anyone. "I have the money to buy a house. If I need help, I will tell you. I hope you won't think I am annoying when the time comes."

CHAPTER 180 NO NEED TO COMPARE

The next day Winnie paid the deposit and went to work. The formalities would be dealt with when she had time. Nevertheless, after paying the deposit, she felt more at ease and had a faint feeling of a home. Her home had broken up since her parents died. Although she had lived with aunt and sister for so many years, but always felt that she was homeless. Now she wanted to settle down. She wanted a city that could accept her, a home that would accept her and a simple life with her family and children. Brian's office. Albert knocked at the door and came in. "Mr. Bennet, Winnie bought a house in our construction company, and the deposit had been paid." "Full payment or a loan?" Brian asked in a cold voice. "It's a loan. That house is a decorated duplex with high material. The sell price is 20 million. Winnie does not have the money to pay the full amount now." Albert was serious. He knew all about Winnie, because Brian had sent him to investigate her secretly. He knew she got a new job and a new house. Because he was very clear, he was worried Winnie got too much pressure and she could not bear it. "Silly woman, since she has no money, why gave me back the money?" Brian said angrily, but he was annoyed because he was worried about Winnie. "Lower the price of the house, pay the difference with my personal account. Don't let her know." "And help her with work." Brian commanded. Winnie would not accept the one hundred million Brian gave to her. The only way to help Winnie now was to find an excuse to lower the price of her house. "I'll do it." Albert received the order and left. Brian had no intention to work. He got up and came to the landing window. He looked anxiously into the distance. He could not see the clear sky outside, nor could he see the tall buildings. All he could see was Winnie's strong and optimistic smiling face with dimples, and the scene of her crying from time to time. In short, his head was full of Winnie. What was he going to do with this stupid woman? He wanted to forget her, but he found it painful, but if he did not forget her, their relationship had come to an end. He had never experienced this kind of torture, so it was a hard time for him. Brian was in pain. Wendy called. Brian frowned and showed impatience, but finally he answered the phone. "Wendy." His voice was low without any passion. "What's wrong with you? Are you unhappy or tired?" Wendy showed her concern to Brian. She could heard that his voice was different. "I am tired." Brian raised his voice and it sounded better. But every time Wendy called, he thought of Winnie and always compared the two women. Although there was no need to compare, he always wanted to find the disadvantage of Winnie, so that he could forget her. However, he did not find anything wrong. "Rest if you're tired. Brian, have a holiday and come to see me, and then we can go back together." Wendy proposed Brian to pick her up, but Brian froze. There was a month to go, so there was only one month for him and Winnie. If he went abroad, their meeting at the office would have been the last. "I can't take a holiday now because I'm busy. If you feel lonely to come back alone, I will ask Albert to pick you up." Brian rejected Wendy on the grounds of work. He did not want to go abroad. During this time, he even pushed off the business of going abroad, just for the chance encounter with Winnie. "Oh, all right then." Wendy was disappointed.

Although she did not see Brian, from his tone, Wendy could hear that he had changed. He became indifferent to her. In the past, if she asked Brian to pick her up, Brian would drop everything to pick her up, but now he did not have that passion. "Will there be objection to our being together, Brian?" Wendy was not worried, but tried to confirm. "No. Grandfather has accepted you, and no one will object." Now no one objected, but Brian's heart was drifting. Was it right that he asked Wendy to come back? Was Wendy his favorite woman? "Well, then, we'll have wedding when I go back." Wendy was anxious now. She was worried that Brian had another woman. "....." Brian was silent with a cold frown. Although he had proposed marriage first, he had been evading the issue since he knew he loved Winnie. But now Wendy put it forward, how could he avoid it or refuse it? Wasn't what he has been waiting for for so many years this? "Ok, we'll get married when you come back." Brian agreed, but he was not happy. Brian stood in front of the French window for a while. Finally, he made up his mind to eliminate the only connection between him and Winnie as quickly as possible, and then forget Winnie completely. However, only Rufus could help him. Brian resisted to Rufus, but for the sake of the overall situation, he could only put his hope on Rufus. Before getting off work, Winnie received a call from a real estate salesman. "Miss Chambers, I just received a notice that the decoration materials of this house are not so good, and some do not match the quotation, so we could not sell it at 20 million yuan. Our company has decided to reduce the price to 10 million yuan. And because of our negligence, we decide to give you a free space in the underground parking lot for five years." After the salesman hanging up the phone for quite a long time, Winnie had not recovered. The words kept spinning back and forth in her mind. She did not know well about house. But why the cost of decoration could be reduced this much? And a car parking space cost hundreds of thousands. What was going on? Winnie could not figure it out and after work, she came to Daenerys. Daenerys worked overtime today. When Winnie came to her office, she was still busy. "Busy, eh? Help me analyze it even if you are busy." Winnie said to her, because she was really confused. It was not trivial, and she did not have so much money. If she got cheated, she had no time to defend her rights. She had to be cautious before she bought the house. "I won't ignore you. What is it?" Daenerys put down the paper and got up to Winnie. "About the house, today I..." Winnie explained the matter in detail. "I'm afraid this is a scam. Help me analyze if I can buy this house." "Yes, why not? As long as you follow the normal procedures and the bank gives you a loan, we'll have a right if anything goes wrong." Daenerys gave her opinion decisively. "But I don't feel right to receive that call," she said. "If it's not a scam, it's weird." Winnie knew that the possibility of scam was not big, but she had doubts, so she could only say that it was a scam. "Buy it, go to the formalities tomorrow. They offered to reduce the price, it must be their problem, maybe the price is wrong, maybe there is a loophole and now it gets timely remedy. It's not a big deal that they give you a parking spot and reduce your fees for a few years. They'll pay more if we find it out in the future." Daenerys did not think it was a scam. It was a large community and most of the houses had been sold. The construction would not be approved if there were no formal procedures. There must have been a mistake in their internal pricing, and now they were just correcting it. But that call was sudden, she would overthink too. "Are you sure?" Winnie was still thinking about what was going on, but she could not think of a reason to explain her doubts. "Yes, I'll go with you tomorrow. I don't believe he will cheat us." Daenerys was firm. It was 10 million cheaper and there was a parking space, sure she should buy it. Hearing Daenerys' opinion, Winnie was relieved, but she still had doubts. She felt that Daenerys was right. As long as she went through the proper procedures, she could win even if she got cheated. Then came a knock on the door and the door was pushed open before Daenerys answered. Kevin walked in. "Winwin, you are here." "Didn't you get off work, Doctor Burns?" Winnie said with a smile. "I left work early. Daenerys works late today and I have been waiting for her." Kevin said naturally, as if they were new couple. "Oh, you're supposed to get off work together, are you? Then I'll leave you alone." Winnie showed a bright smile. She was to leave after teasing them, but was stopped by Daenerys. "Wait, I didn't make an appointment with him. I'll go with you." Daenerys was anxious, flustered, trying to hide her shyness. Daenerys took the bag and walked to Winnie, leaving the unfinished work on the desk. "Yes, we didn't make an appointment. I want to have a date with Daenerys, but she hasn't said yes." Kevin explained, but he was not worried that Daenerys would refuse him because Winnie was there. "How can's she disagree? I agree, take her away now." Winnie said with joy in the face. She supported Daenerys to be with Kevin, because Kevin was a good man. He was considerate and would make Daenerys feel at ease. Besides, they had slept together. Why should she say no?" Winnie. "Daenerys looked at Winnie angrily. Although she was not satisfied with being betrayed by friends, she felt sweet in heart. "I'm leaving. Have a nice date!" Winnie disregarded Daenerys' warning, still supported them to have a date. Then she walked away. Daenerys followed Winnie and wanted to leave with her, but her hand was taken by Kevin and she was forced to stay in her office.
