

My Twins 201

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 201 INDULGE

Brian had been holding on as hard as he could, and Winnie's words were likely to break him down. But he did not want to take advantage of her while she was unconscious. "Winwin..." "I'm not a woman when I get drunk? I'm disgusting you? OK... I'll see if any men take me as a woman." Winnie got off the bed and was to leave. It was hard, but she walked firmly. "Winwin..." Brian caught up with Winnie and grabbed her arm to force her to turn around and face him. "Will you sober up? I....." When Brian was to persuade Winnie, Winnie took the initiative to kiss Brian. It was a passionate, lustful and wild kiss. Winnie knew she was crazy and that she should not be flirting with the man. But she really missed him. She felt her heart pain in every lonely night. He was in front of her now. Even though he hated her, she wanted to hold him, to occupy his strong and warm chest. Let her indulge once, let her have this man again. Brian had been abstinent for a long time and got strong hormone secretion, he could not help with Winnie's active and wild kiss. Soon, he turned from passive to active and hugged Winnie tightly in his arms. How could he hate her? How could he not see her as a woman? He would endure for her sake and never touched other woman. She was the woman he loved deeply and the woman he wanted to protect all his life. If he hated her, there was no woman in the world he would not hate. Brian picked up Winnie again, put her on the bed, and then released his repressed desire. The next day, Winnie woke up suffering from a headache. The room was so dark that Winnie couldn't see where it was. She reached for the phone, and then saw clearly the room by the light. It was the hilltop villa, where she and Brian made deals. Then the memory of last night came back little by little. Brian appeared in the barbecue restaurant and refused to send her home. She vomited on the roadside and invited Brian to bed. "Damn you, why did you drink so much? Why did you do such an embarrassing thing?" Although she was cursing herself, Winnie did not regret it, because with him by her side, she had a rare and sound sleep. As Winnie was to get up, she got a text message. "Your clothes have been soiled by your vomit. I have got one for you on the bed. The car keys are in the drawer; you can drive whichever you like. I have arrived at the company. There is breakfast in the kitchen. Eat before you leave." Seeing that message Brian sent her, Winnie felt warm in heart, but all this was like a dream. Stella went to her grandpa's house. Felix asked Brian to come back. Felix and Brian were the only two people in Felix's study. "Did Luke and Winnie separate?" Felix asked in a serious tone. "Yes, but not completely. Luke went to the hospital to have examination and he does not have a good state, so I let them meet at the weekend. I am afraid that Luke's condition will get worse if they separated completely." Brian calmly answered. Since bribing grandpa's people, Brian felt it easy to deal with grandpa. He cheated grandpa with the illness of Luke, but with only this reason, grandpa would not force Luke to separate with Winnie. "It's all right to take time. When Wendy comes back, let him contact Wendy more. Luke is smart and Wendy will like him." Felix was not against Brian now, after all, he did not want Luke's condition get worse. "Brian, arrange a position for Jack in the company. He won't leave this time." Felix said to Brian with the tone of command. Brian's face did not change, but doubts arose in his heart. However he could not show it "Grandpa, do it yourself. If I don't do it well, Uncle Thomas will be angry at me." "Ok, I'll do it." Felix knew that Brian would say so. Seeing that he had no expression on his face, Felix was relieved. "Brian, you will be in charge of the Bennet Group as long as I am alive. I only believe in your ability." Rufus gave

Brian reassurance. "Grandpa, it doesn't matter who manages the company. As long as it is good for the development and the employees can have a good life, he is a good manager." Rufus understood Brian. "You're right. It is for the company." On the dinner table. "Brian, help your brother when he goes to work. He is still young and doesn't know anything, so please forgive him if he does something wrong." Thomas said with a fake smile while eating. "I'll get someone to teach him, if he works hard." Brian said in a cold tone. "Uncle, Jack is smart, he can do a good job. Don't worry." Stella said gently. "Well, I don't worry. With Brian, I am not worried. Stella, stay for a longer time. Grandpa is getting old, and your father needs your company. They're all happy when you're around." Thomas turned the topic to Stella. "Well, that's what I think. I have no plans of going back any time soon." Stella was still gentle with a smile. "Stella, live here from today. I miss you and you can with me." Felix liked this granddaughter very much. To him, boys were used to expand the family business. They must work hard for the Bennet Group. The girl should be loved. Felix doted on Stella since she was a child and never forced her to do anything she didn't want to do. "Yes, Grandpa. I'll live here from today on." Stella readily agreed. Her grandfather's words were just right for her. Even if he didn't say that, she would find an excuse to stay. By living here, she would have more time to contact with Uncle Thomas. She would find something wrong and thought of a solution, so that she could help Brian. When Winnie came home from work, she saw her aunt in the kitchen staring into space. She put down her bag and went to the kitchen. "Aunt, what are you thinking about?" Winnie asked softly. Then she washed hands to help her aunt cook. "I don't need your help. Take a rest, you are tired today." Isobel came to her senses and stopped Winnie. "I see you're in a daze. Are you too lonely at home alone? Aunt, if you get bored staying at home, we can open a drug store." Winnie thought her aunt was in a daze because she was bored at home. "No, I enjoy taking care of two children. I'm not lonely at home. I can clean the house and cook for you. This is the happiest time for me." Isobel just wanted to take care of the families. "But you were in a daze." "I was in a daze because today I saw my former colleagues. We are all old." Isobel thought of that her colleagues helped their children to take care of grandchildren, but she was still single, and she was upset. "You are not old. You are still young. Be healthy. Bring up my two children and then help Vanessa take care of her children." Winnie said mischievously, only for her aunt to be happy. "Okay, I'll. I'll take care of your children." "Change your clothes and have dinner." Isobel had a better mood. With Winnie, Vanessa, and two children, she was not alone and she had children to take care of too. Dinner began. "Mommy, I miss Daddy." "So do I." Megan and Luke had been shouting that they missed Daddy. "Call him when you finish homework." Winnie said gently. Several days had passed since the last time the two parted, and they hadn't seen each other or contacted each other by phone. Now the children missed him and she could only contact him. "Ok, brother, let's eat quickly and finish our homework, and then we can make a call to Daddy." Both children were very happy and excited, and they ate faster. After dinner, the two children came to Winnie's bedroom. Winnie wanted Luke to call Brian. "Daddy, are you available? My sister and I miss you. Let's have a video chat." Luke asked Brian. "Sure." Brian hung up the phone and connected the video call. "Daddy, where are you?" Megan asked first. Everything behind Brian looked strange. "In the office." The voice of Brian reached Winnie's ears. Winnie involuntarily looked at the time. It was already eight o'clock in the evening. Hadn't he been off work? "Daddy, are you working?" Megan felt distressed. "I am off work. This is Daddy's rest room." Brian took the phone for a slow tour to show the children his rest room. "Why don't you come home from work? The rest room is not as warm as home." Although Brian's rest room was good, Megan felt distressed. Megan's words stunned Brian. He had no home to return to. This was his home. "Daddy, come here. There's me and brother and Mommy. This is your home." Megan continued to say warm words. "Yeah, Daddy, we haven't lived together in a long time. Come home." Luke also asked Brian to come back. The two adults were sad to hear that. Hearing these words, Winnie felt sorry for Brian and felt sorry for the children. Brian and Wendy would soon get married and there would be less chance for them to meet. She was not sure if the two children could accept it. Brian was heartbroken. He could not always accompany his children, live with them and provide them with a complete home. This would be the biggest regret in his life.

CHAPTER 202 REAR-ENDED BY A LUXURY CAR

"I am going on a business trip by plane tonight. If I go back, I will disturb your sleep. I will go back when I am less busy." Brian made up a reason and kept the children from worrying about him. "Daddy, work is not important, the Bennet Group is not important. Our family being together is important. I'm happy with Mommy, and I'll be happier if you spend more time with us." Luke was sensible, and his words made Brian feel depressed. "Ok, I'll stay with you when I make enough money." Brian was guilty, because he could not fulfill his commitment. "Megan, Luke, time for take a bath." Winnie did not want to hear the promise of Brian to the children, otherwise the children would have expectations and they would be more disappointed. In order to keep the children from having expectation, she had to interrupt their conversation. "Bye, Daddy!" "Bye, Daddy!" Although two children were not willing to say goodbye to Daddy, they were obedient to Mommy. After that, Megan and Luke went out together. Winnie sat by her computer and thought for a long time before finally deciding to call Brian. Brian's phone number and contact information had been deleted by her, but she clearly remembered his mobile phone number. When the phone was put through, Winnie spoke formally. "I want to talk to you about the children." "OK." Brian's voice was cold. "You are about to get married. I think we should tell the children about it lest they will not accept it." There was a moment's silence on the other side of the phone when Winnie finished. "It's up to you, just don't make them sad." Brian had nothing to say. Winnie did it for the sake of the children, so he had no reason to oppose. "I will tell them some day. Be ready, they will ask you." Winnie continued. "I'll take your car to the suburbs this weekend. You can get it when you have time." Winnie felt awkward to mention what happened a few days ago, after all, she took the initiative. "I will ask Albert to get the car." Brian still said coldly, as if nothing had ever happened. "Ok, bye, then." Then Winnie hung up the phone, feeling bitter in heart. They could no longer contact by phone and she would let Luke or Megan contact him. Winnie drove to work the next morning. She was focused on driving, afraid of accidents during the rush hour. But she was unlucky today. When Winnie's car was waiting at a red light, there was impact suddenly came from behind. Winnie was shaken by the impact and realized she was being rear-ended. She was annoyed. She had an important client interview this morning, and she couldn't calm down because she didn't have enough time. Winnie got out of the car and came to the car behind, but the owner didn't even get out of the car. Winnie looked at the car that caused the accident and knew why the owner was so arrogant. It was a luxury car. Winnie tapped on the window of the luxury car. "Please get out of the car. Your car hit mine." Winnie suppressed her anger, and her tone was mild. However the owner was disdainful. The window fell a little, and then the owner handed over 20,000 yuan in cash. "There's my number on it. Call me if it is not enough to fix the car." The man even did not look at Winnie and his tone was arrogant. Winnie could not help being angry. She did not take the money but criticized him coldly. "Sir, it was you who caused the accident, and your attitude is not going to solve the problem at all. Please get out of the car..." "The money is not enough? Give me your WeChat ID. I will transfer to you one hundred thousand." The man took his hand back and picked up the phone. "It's not the money, Sir. I....." "Old lady, can you stop being so melodramatic. It is my first day to work..." The man couldn't help but get angry. He finally turned his head to look at the "old lady" and wanted to rebuke her, but when he saw her, he stopped abruptly. The man was surprised by her beauty and fixed his eyes on her. She was not an old lady, she was a beautiful woman. The next moment, the man got off and the car. "Sorry, beauty, I have a bad mood, it is my fault. I drove carelessly. I'll fix your car and pay for your damage." Winnie was puzzled by his sudden change, but she felt better. That was the right way to deal with things. "Since you say so, let's solve it as soon as possible. It's the rush hour and it will affect other people's travel. You don't need to pay for me. You just need to fix my car." Winnie's tone eased down and was not as cold as just now. She attracted the man. "No problem. I'll fix the car. Beauty, give me your contact information, I will inform you when I have it fixed." The man even call her beauty. "I..." When Winnie hesitated to give the contact information to this man, the voice of Leo came from behind. "What's wrong, Winwin?" Leo asked with concern. He passed by and found an accident. He inadvertently saw Winnie standing there, so he ordered the driver to pull over and walked over with his assistant. "Leo, the car was hit. I'm in urge to see the client." As if seeing her savior, Winnie remembered that she was going to be late for work and had no time to solve the accident. "It is ok. Let my assistant handle it for you. I'll take you to work." Leo said and took a look at that man, who should be the owner of the luxury car. "Martin, deal with it. I will leave first." Leo gave on order and left with Winnie. That owner of the luxury car did not expect Winnie would leave, so he called Winnie. "Beauty, you haven't given me contact information." "I'll take care of it." Leo's assistant said seriously, however, it annoyed that man. Winnie got into Leo's car and drove off toward the company. "Sorry to crash your car." Winnie said, and that was why she did not like to trouble others. "Never mind. No one can avoid getting scratched."Leo said. Let to mention getting scratched, even if it was seriously damaged, Leo didn't care, as long as Winnie was safe and sound."I'll give it back to you after I fix it. I'm ashamed to use your car all the time."Winnie felt guiltier.She did not want to owe favors. She didn't want to bring troubles to anyone, especially after meeting Brian."It is ok, don't put it in heart. If you give me back the car, it's inconvenient for you. You have two kids. You can't always carry them to the subway."Leo said gently. He did not offer too much help to Winnie and he hoped Winnie could use his car all life."My aunt's drugstore has closed, so I have some money. I want to buy a car, so I don't have to take my children to the subway."Winnie had had the idea of buying a car since her aunt said last night that she would not open a drugstore. "All right, as long as you have a car to get around easily. If you want to buy a car, let me know. Several of my friends sell cars and you will get a discount."Leo did not force Winnie, because he knew that Winnie did not like to be forced. She just liked to do things with her own way, so let her do it."Ok, but I can't afford an expensive car. An ordinary car will do."Winnie gave a bright smile. As long as others did not force her, she would be happy. Moving the line of sight from Leo's face, she inadvertently saw the pendant in the car.It was knot bracelet she had given him."It's still there."Winnie pretended to see it for the first time.Leo looked along the line of sight of Winnie and understood what Winnie referred to."Well, I haven't been willing to throw it."Leo's mood became low. Seeing that knot, his thoughts returned to the time in foreign country. He had happy time with Winnie. Unfortunately, time could not go back to the past."Throw it away. Only throw it away can you start a new life. If you don't throw it away, the unpleasant things from the past will always affect your life." "Mine was thrown away long ago."Winnie was persuading Leo to give up and told him that she had forgotten the past and had moved on. It was impossible that they could be together again. "It's been there for so many years, and I'm used to it. If I throw it away, I won't get used to it. I'll feel like I'm missing something." Winnie's words made Leo sad. Winnie could move on, but he could not. Even if she could not accept him, Leo did not intend to give up his love. Silent attention and company was also a way of love. "You're rather nostalgic. The color is faded and doesn't match your car. They are not the same level and it becomes an eyesore." Winnie insisted and did not give Leo hope. "Winwin..." "I have arrived, pull over." Leo wanted to go on, but Winnie suddenly spoke to the driver, interrupting Leo. "If you have nothing to do after work today, come with me to see the car. I don't know anything about cars." Winnie asked Leo's help before she got off the car, she really did not know how to choose. "Yes, I'll pick you up after work." Leo readily agreed.

CHAPTER 203 WORK WITH LEO

Winnie returned to the company and was ready to meet with the client. This client was received by the other two partners. Winnie had never met this client once and did not know which company he was from. The cooperation project had been almost settled, and now only her explanation and analysis were needed. As soon as she opened the door of the meeting room, Winnie's eyes widened in surprise. "Leo." Winnie was confused. Was Leo their client? "Winnie, you know Mr. Johnson?" One of the partners asked in surprise. "Yes. He's our client?" Winnie wanted to confirm her guess. "Yes, I am the client you are to see." Leo replied with a smile. Although he had just met Winnie, he missed her and was happy to see her. "Why didn't you tell me just now? If I know it is you, I would not be so urgent." Winnie pretended to be dissatisfied. "You two seem to have a good relationship." The partner laughed when he saw this scene. It seemed that the business would be successful. "Yes, we are friends for years. And I came here by his car." Winnie roughly explained the relationship between them. "Let's get to work and talk later." The work began like this. Winnie's explanation was very wonderful. It was the first time Leo saw her work so seriously, so he felt more love for her. The work was smooth, then Leo put forward another cooperation. "I have another suggestion. Recently, there have been a lot of accidents involving online car hailing, almost the victims were women. They fear of it. I think if we work together to develop a software that can restrict online car hailing, it will be very popular and the government will support it." "It is good, Mr. Johnson, we can study on it. Is it a software in the car or in the user's mobile phone?" One of the partners said with great interest. "My initial idea is to install a hardware device that connects directly with the authorities in the car so that passengers will feel easy to call the police. Miss Chambers is responsible for the software. My company is responsible for contacting online car-hailing companies and working with the government. I can find manufacturers to customize the hardware facilities, while your company is only responsible for software research." Leo said his idea. He could cooperate with other companies, but Winnie was here, and she was the best software designer. If the cooperation was successful, he would get more chance to contact Winnie. "It is not safe to install the hardware on the car, as the driver can completely control it. It is better to use software directly and install it on the passenger's mobile phone and the monitoring platform of the car-hailing company. Mr. Johnson, you can communicate with the government. It is best that the police can install the corresponding software, so that the three constraints will contain the occurrence of crime. Even if it happens, the police will arrive in time, so that it will reduce a lot of losses. Winnie gave her thoughts on the matter. "Good, I support your opinion. You can rest assured that I will communicate with the government. If your company has the intention of cooperation, you can start the development immediately. I must communicate with the government in advance.” Leo was optimistic about Winnie's idea. In the field of software, he admired Winnie's smart mind. Two partners fell on the line of sight of Winnie, only Winnie was confident, they dare to take such a large cooperation case. Winnie looked thoughtfully, then looked up at the partners and nodded affirmatively. “Okay, we've decided to cooperate.” The partner gave the final word. “OK, I will ask my assistant to sort out a plan for specific cooperation. You study it first, and I will communicate with the government. We will sign the contract while proceeding.” Leo was very happy. It was the first time to do business in violation of the rules, only for Winnie's trust. Since the end of the meeting, Winnie and another partner had been working overtime. Both projects had to be completed within the specified time, which was still difficult for her small company. Luckily, Winnie had rich experience and the partners were capable, otherwise they would not dare to take two tasks at the same time. Winnie would have to put off her plan to buy a car, because she got no time to see a car. Now the time was limited and the task was hard. In the morning, she got up early and in the evening, she had to work very late. She had to take subway Tired and hungry after work in the evening, Winnie felt that her legs were not her own but she had to walk to the subway station. “Well, it's inconvenient not to have a car.” Winnie said to herself. She walked slowly, sometimes even needed to stop to massage her sore legs. Thinking about the progress of the work, she should stick to it for at least half a month, which was really difficult for her who was used to driving. Thinking of this, Winnie sat down on chair in the bus station. While massaging her legs, she made a call to Daenerys. “Am I waking you from a beautiful dream?” Winnie tried to lighten her tone, but her exhaustion showed. “I've just gone to bed, and you haven't come home yet? Winwin, can you not work hard like this?” From Winnie's tone, Daenerys knew she was very tired. “I just got off work and wanted to go to the subway station. I was so tired, so I sat down in the bus station and had a rest.” Winnie did not need to pretend since Daenerys knew the truth. “What about the car? Why take the subway? Are you afraid to take the subway at this late hour?” Daenerys was sleepy. But hearing that, she was worried about Winnie. “The car was hit two days ago and hasn't been finished fixing yet. I plan to return it to Leo when it is fixed. That's why I've been taking the subway these days.” Speaking of this, Winnie looked at her high-heeled shoes and sighed. “My high heels are killing my legs.” “You deserve it. Leo still has other car, and Brian has many cars. You can borrow one and you don't have to be so tired, why are you so stubborn?” Daenerys was angry. Winnie was too independent and wanted to anything without any help. But she would suffer. “It has nothing to do with me. I can't rely on them all my life. No one in this world can be relied on for life, so independence is good for me.” “Daenerys, I'm calling to ask you for a favor. Buy me a car when you have time. I'm too busy to go out these days.” Winnie did not need Leo or Brian, she could do everything. There was no man for her now, and she had to support herself. “I'll see it tomorrow, what kind of car do you want?” Daenerys was the only person who can help Winnie. “Any brand will do, not more than 200,000 yuan, fuel saving, spacious for five people.” Winnie didn't have much requirement on the car, she just need it to go to work. “All right, I'll ask Kevin to go with me tomorrow. He knows more than I do.” “Thank you, otherwise I would have lost half my life. Love you!” Winnie was glad that she had such a true bestie to her and that she had someone to talk to in difficult times. Winnie put down the phone and got ready to go home. Just as she stood up and turned to go, to her surprise, Brian's car stopped there. Brian was sitting in the driver's seat staring at her angrily. Winnie was puzzled. What did she do wrong? Why did he look at her like that? Brian stayed in the car. Winnie did not understand what he meant and did not say hello. Winnie looked away and walked toward the subway. Whether her legs hurt or nor, she had to put up with it now. But there was the sound of car door opening. Winnie involuntarily accelerated her pace. No matter Brian got off because of her, she did not want to see his eyes of hatred. Winnie wore high-heeled shoes, coupled with weak legs, coupled with the heart to avoid Brian, accidentally she got her foot sprained. "Ah..." Winnie screamed and had to stop. Brian came to her. "Did you get your foot sprained?" Asked Brian in cold tone. "I am fine." Winnie gritted her teeth to endure the pain and wanted to move on. "What do you want, walk with a sprained foot? You have my car. Why don't you drive it? Why do you have to take the subway so late? Aren't you scared when there's no one on the road?" Brian suddenly roared. He had heard Winnie's words on phone and he was angry about that. Brian was on his way to the company from a party, and saw Winnie when he passed by her company. There was no one on the road, so he was worried and kept following her. Watching her stop and go and rubbed her legs, Brian knew that she must be very tired. As she sat in a chair at the bus stop, he stopped, rolled down the window and listened to her talk. It was very quiet at night, and he could clearly hear Winnie's voice. It was so sad and lonely to hear a single woman say those words in the middle of the night. And she was the woman he loved. Winnie stopped. She did not know Brian was concerned or gloating, but she knew, even if he was concerned, his words hurt her. "Is my affair any concern to you? Sir, you seem to be meddling." Winnie said that coldly and continued to walk forward. It was painful as she walked.

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 204 DOES HE LOVE HER

Brian could not help the stubborn Winnie. Her bumpy footsteps were like stepping on his heart. He felt distressed that her feet hurt. Brian quickly caught up with Winnie and picked her up without giving her a chance to refuse. And then he turned around and strode to the car. "Brian, I told you mind your own business. You can't do this to me." Winnie was helpless. She knew that her struggle was a waste of physical energy, so she could only let him hold her. "Cut the crap." Brian said angrily. From the moment he picked up Winnie, his heart was more painful, like a bee stung it. She had lost a lot of weight in just a few days, and at this rate, she was going to die. Brian took Winnie to the car, stepped on the accelerator and went straight to the hospital. After arriving at the hospital, Winnie's feet were swollen. The doctor checked the bones, applied some medicine and took some oral medicine, and the two men left the hospital. Brian put Winnie into the car again. As he put down Winnie, he heard the rumbled voice of Winnie's stomach. "You have no dinner yet?" "I will have when I am home." Winnie said with some embarrassment. Actually, she had been hungry, but she had been suffering. But now her stomach rumbled. Brian said nothing. He put Winnie in the back seat and drove away. Instead of taking Winnie home, he found a restaurant. Brian, regardless of Winnie's opposition, walked into the restaurant holding Winnie. Fortunately, they booked a private room, otherwise, Winnie would be treated as a weirdo. The food was delivered soon, otherwise Winnie would faint. Winnie did not refuse but eat directly, because she was too hungry, otherwise she would have stomachache. "I was about to seek you these days. Have your meal and listen to me." Brian sat aside and found a topic that did not affect Winnie's appetite. "I want to transfer some of my property to Luke and Megan's names before I get married. Hospitals, insurance companies, supermarket chains, car stores, hotels, shopping malls..." "You don't have to do that. I want them to fight for it." Winnie interrupted Brian. She didn't know how much Brian's personal wealth was, but she didn't want her children to covet it. "That's what your intention. I made so much money, should I throw it away if I don't give it to them? You have no say in this matter."

Brian rejected Winnie's remarks. "The kids are still young, and I can't transfer to them, so I have to transfer to you." "Don't. Others will think I cheated you on money." Winnie refused outright. "It is temporary. We will sign an agreement that will automatically transfer the property to the kids when they turn 18." Brian had guessed that Winnie would say so, so he had thought of countermeasure. "Brian, you make me difficult to me. Find someone else for help, you father or your sister. I don't want to..." "They don't know this. It's all my private property. How can I tell them? It is not for you, you just help the children temporarily keep it." Brian lost patience and raised his voice. He admired Winnie that she always could easily annoy him. Winnie said nothing, thinking alone. "Well, our agreement should be notarized at the notary office." Winnie compromised and then continued to eat. Brian got up and pushed a chair to Winnie's side. Then he squatted down and put Winnie's injured foot on the chair. "The doctor said the foot could not be hung for a long time. Or it will get more swelling." Brian said and sat down. Winnie was moved but she did not know what to do. She did not expect that Brian was so considerate and remembered what the doctor said. At this moment, Winnie wanted to cry. She wanted to hug Brian and cry, but once again she managed to bear it. "Thank you!" "You don't need to thank me. Just be good to yourself. You can only take care of the children with a healthy body." What Brian wanted was not her gratitude. He hoped that Winnie was fine with everything. "From tomorrow on, I will ask Albert to pick you up every day. You can drive my car when your feet are all right. You can have the car." Seeing that Winnie had eaten almost enough, Brian talked about the topic again. He knew that Winnie would refuse and quarrel with him, so it would affect Winnie's appetite. "No, I've already told Daenerys to buy me a car." As expected, Winnie refused. "You didn't get a penny or a gift after being around me for so long. This car will be your compensation for sleeping with me so many times." Although Brian thought Winnie would refuse, he was still angry. Every time when he was angry with Winnie, his brain would not work and he would say something he regretted. Brian's words hurt Winnie. She put down her chopsticks and stopped eating. "No, I was willing to sleep with you, not to sell my body to make money." "Brian, we can't meet any more, or our relationship will not end. And I will I become an obstacle between you and Wendy, I don't want to live so no self." "Pretend you don't know me when you see me, even if I died on that road, leave me alone." "I can't, I can't, you know? Do you think I want to see you like this? It distressed me. When I see you, I cannot move the line of sight away, I cannot move my pace, so be good to yourself, don't let me see you like this. It's you who keep me restless." Brian got excited and said loudly. He felt distressed and had been enduring it. He also wanted to forget Winnie and moved on, but he just couldn't do it. Hearing that, Winnie froze, she did not understand what he meant. He would feel distressed, would be unable to ignore it, would be restless. Was this all for her? Why couldn't he turn blind eyes on her? Was it love? Was he in love with her? She ventured to guess. Would he? Would he fall in love with her who had no money and status? Would he fall in love with her, a cheater with children? Winnie repeatedly asked herself in her heart, but she did not dare to give her affirmative answer. But she was happy to hear those words and appeased her heart. "I'm full." Winnie moved her leg down and was ready to get up. At this moment, angry Brian walked to her and picked her up. Two people were in the car, but they did not say a word. Brian started the car and was ready to send Winnie home. "Drive me to the company. It's almost time to go to work." Winnie spoke in a low voice. "You need to rest, I will get you home." Brian got angry again that Winnie wanted to go to the company. She was really desperate. "It takes me half an hour to get home. I have to change my clothes and freshen up before I go back to the office, and it's not convenient for me without a car." "I'd rather get an hour's sleep in the company than waste all my time on the road. Send me back to the company." Winnie whispered softly in reply. Now she took these things as an expression of Brian's love for her, and it made her feel much better. "Winwin..." "I'll walk back if it's troublesome. It's not far from the company. Drive if you don't think it is troublesome." Winnie knew what Brian was trying to say. She would not do as Brian said, so she cut him off. Brian could only send Winnie back to the company, but his mood was very bad. Thinking that she had to work at this hour, he felt sad. The car stopped at the gate of Winnie's Company and Brian got off. He came to the back seat to open the door and was to hold Winnie off and to send her to the office. "I will work overtime for half a month at most. After half a month, I will return to my normal schedule. Don't take it to heart." Winnie began to fear that Brian was worried about her. If he also loved her, Winnie did not want Brian to be distracted by her and to affect his mood because of her. Because Winnie knew that feeling was very torturing. "If you keep doing this for half a month, you will get tired." Brian could not accept this, but he could not persuade Winnie. Brian reached out to hug Winnie. This time, Winnie refused. "Just help me down. There is a security guard at the gate, I can't explain if he sees that. Even if I'm not afraid of the security guard, you can only send me to the lobby. Our company is not allowed to enter without a work permit." Winnie knew that Brian could only send her here, just like their life, even if they love each other, there were obstacles in the middle. Even if they were together, there would be an end. Brian did not speak, but looked at Winnie affectionately and helped her to get off the car. "Thank you, because of me, you did not sleep well this night, go back and have sleep." Winnie said gently and turned to leave. "Winwin..." Brian came to Winnie and did not want to leave. "Winwin, quit your job. I can take care of you. We'll be together just like before. You don't have to do anything but take care of the children." Brian really could not bear to see that Winnie worked tirelessly for life. He would rather feel sorry to Wendy than let Winnie work overtime at this late hour. Winnie and Brian looked at each other. Winnie felt sad that she was a secret mistress, but was happy that Brian was willing to betray Wendy for her. "Do you love me?" Winnie asked suddenly. "....." Brian was silent. He did not know how to answer Winnie. "If you love me, let me live with dignity." Although Brian's silence disappointed her, she believed her words would make Brian give up his plan.

CHAPTER 205 HOW ABOUT I MARRY YOU

Winnie limped into the company. With complex emotions, Brian looked at Winnie gradually went far away. Looking at her lonely figure, he felt distressed like the black clouds in the sky. However, Winnie's last words hurt him. He loved her but he could not stay with her, he could not give her dignity. Was that still love? If it was not love, why did he care about everything about her, why did it hurt so much to forget her? Brian knew what he had just said was not an impulse. He didn't want to lose Winnie, and he didn't want to see her living such a hard life. But he ignored Winnie's feelings and her self-esteem. Brian's words hurt her again. In the next days while Daenerys rested at noon, she called Kevin to help Winnie pick a car. "Winwin said it is for five family members, and the price had better not exceed 200 thousand." In a large car store, Daenerys said to Kevin. "All car brands are sold in this store. It's Brian's store. Why does she have to pay for one? Brian can give it to her." Kevin responded to Daenerys. "Mr. Bennet's store?" Daenerys asked Kevin in surprise. "Yes, but don't tell anyone, it's his store, not the Bennet Group's, so he can give Winwin a car even if it costs millions." Kevin did not take Daenerys as an outsider, so he told her Brian's private property. "It is of no use. Mr. Bennet's global limited edition luxury car is sitting in Winwin's underground parking lot. Winwin doesn't use it. She would rather take the subway or bus than drive his car at that late hour." "Now Winnie wants to keep distance from Mr. Bennet. She does not use the limited edition luxury car, do you think she will accept that?" Daenerys knew well of Winnie that she could not accept Brian's car. "Winwin is stubborn. As long as it was her business, as long as she tells Brian, Brian will help. He will help her for the sake of the children, besides, Brian loves Winwin." Actually, Kevin felt that Winnie was very poor. As a woman, being too strong was poor performance. Actually, a woman's heart was not so strong as their surface. They were strong because of unknown difficulties. Winnie was a typical example. She turned a gentle and soft woman into a strong woman. "You mean Mr. Bennet loves Winwin? Did he tell you himself?" Asked Daenerys doubtfully. "He didn't, but I can see that." Kevin said. "Why can't I see that? I thought he told you. Anything that doesn't come out of his mouth is speculation." Daenerys said with disdain and walked on. Kevin followed her. He was sure that Brian was in love with Winnie and wanted Daenerys to believe that. "I have known Brian for years, Daenerys. We've known each other since we were in high school. I know everything he's been through, and I've been part of his transformation from a sunny boy to a cold, moody, overbearing president. I know him better than I know myself." "In all these years, he had never lost his mind for anyone or anything. In all these years, he had never said a word to his father. In all these years, no one had dared to contradict him. But Winwin did all these things. What's more, Winwin beat him. If he does not love Winwin, he would not have tolerated these things." "Do you think Brian can stay with any woman? As Wendy had left for four years, he did not have a woman. Winwin was a woman with a child, but she could be with him. Do you think it is just physiological need?" Kevin told Daenerys Brian's change and his tolerance of Winnie. A man was willing to change and pay for a woman, that was the performance of love. "So what? He still chose Wendy. Even though Winwin has children, he did not choose her. As I said, even if they love each other, they cannot be together." Daenerys was very serious. She hoped Winnie to be with the person she loved, but there was a big gap between her and Brian. Besides, in those days she stayed with Brian, Winnie did not have a peaceful life. They had better not have a relationship, so that Winnie could live a peaceful life. "What about us? Can we be together?" Kevin said and stopped in front of Daenerys. Kevin had never spoken so seriously, and had never looked at Daenerys with such deep feeling. At this moment, compared to the love and hatred between Brian and Winnie, his love was more important. Daenerys was stunned. She saw love and sincerity in the eyes of Kevin. Did he really like her? Daenerys was nervous and could not control her heartbeat. Flurried, she took back her sight. "I don't know, but time will tell." Daenerys deliberately said so. She did not make it difficult to Kevin, she just needed more time to think about it and Kevin could have more time to confirm if Kevin really liked her. Daenerys turned in the corner and walked straight into a brand store. Kevin smiled gently. For the answer given by Daenerys, he was not disappointed but felt hopeful. Every time he mentioned such a topic before, Daenerys said that it was impossible. At least this time she did not give a negative answer, which was the hope. They chose a domestic SUV white car, which was in line with all the requirements of Winnie. It was economy and fuel saving with large interior space. It was spacious and comfortable. In the second day, Daenerys and Kevin helped Winnie take the license plate in the afternoon and then sent the car to Winnie's company. "Winwin, you don't need to take subway anymore, and I don't need to worry you." Daenerys had been busy for two days, but she was at ease. Winnie driving home was safer than taking the subway so late. "You helped me a lot, Daenerys. I don't know how to repay you, how about I marry you?" Winnie said jokingly. "Too bad I'm not a man." Daenerys replied to Winnie. Since returning to B City, Winnie had rarely been such happy. Now that Penny's case was settled, she could feel fewer burdens. "Daenerys, thank Doctor Burns for me, and I'll reward you when I finish work." Actually, Winnie felt sorry. Kevin was a busy man, but he still helped her. "I have thanked him. You can get back to work." Donnie said it casually, and then she calmed down. "Winwin, if Brian loves you, will you be together?" Daenerys got the influence of Kevin and asked tentatively. Winnie stopped her work at hand, but her hands were on the computer. "No, we are not from the same world, so we cannot be together. And he's going to be married soon. It won't change anything." Winnie said with great affirmation. Even if Brian loved her, he loved Wendy more. True love was desperate rather than rational. If Brian loved her, he would choose to be with her even if he gave up everything. However, he chose Wendy and the Bennet Group. The person he loved most was Wendy, and Winnie was a spare lover. Spare lover silently stayed there and was occasionally taken out to use. Winnie would not be Brian's spare lover. It was the weekend, but Winnie was still busy working overtime. However, she told Brian that she would send the car to the suburbs. Winnie drove her car home while it was time for lunch. Then she took the two children to the suburbs. On the suburbs, Winnie parked Brian's car and got off. Then Rufus and Paul came out. Two children happily ran toward Rufus, Winnie also walked toward him. "Sir, here is the car key. Please give it to Brian when he is here." "Ok." "Come in. Lunch is ready." Rufus did not know what was going on with the car, but he had never asked much. "Sir, I won't eat lunch. I have to go back to the company. I will leave the children there. I'll pick them up when I have time." Winnie didn't even have time eat. Rufus still wanted to ask Winnie to stay, but was interrupted by a man's voice. "Uncle." Jack walked this way and greeted him with a smile. "Jack." Rufus replied. "I am free today, so I am here to visit you." "Why are you standing here? This is?" Jack saw two strangers, one woman with her back to him and a little girl facing him. Winnie knew that Jack was asking about her, so she politely turned around. "It's you." When Jack saw Winnie, his eyes suddenly lit up. He looked at the beauty with surprise, never expecting to see her here. "Oh, hello." Winnie greeted casually and recognized the man was that driver of the luxury car. "Hello! Hello! Excuse me..." "She is Mommy of Luke's classmate. This little girl is her daughter." Before Jack asked, Brian said coldly. "Daddy." Luke called him and Megan said after thinking for a moment. "Hello, uncle." Megan was smart, her sudden change of address surprised Brian. Brian was very proud. He knew his children were the most intelligent and would cooperate with him.

CHAPTER 206 BELLY GROWLS

"Her child?" Jack looked at Megan and Winnie inconceivably. They were alike, but he did not expect that she had a child at her young age. Suddenly, he felt disappointed. Winnie was surprised to see Brian, but she felt upset to hear what Brian said. However, she forced a smile. "Sorry, I have to get to work. Paul, can you send me? I am getting late." Winnie said with embarrassment. She sent Brian's car back, so she had no car to go back and she had to ask Paul for help. "....." However, before Paul answered, Brian spoke. "I'll give you a ride." Then Brian turned around and walked to the car. Winnie could only allow Brian to send her. Winnie walked to Brian's car and reached out to open the back door. At that moment, Brian stopped her. "Sit in the front, I'm not your driver." Brian said with anger and got in the car directly. Winnie hesitated for a moment and followed him. She hesitated because she did not understand why Brian was angry with her. On the way back to the city. It was quite in the car and embarrassing that Winnie's belly growled. Winnie got more embarrassed. But now she could only endure. She did not have food since last night. "Hungry?" Brian heard it clearly and asked in a cold voice. "....." Winnie did not know how to answer, only to blame her stomach growled at the wrong time. "Didn't you have breakfast?" Brian continued to ask and guessed she did not have breakfast, or she would not be so hungry. "Yes..." Winnie was hesitant, which annoyed Brian. "You have not have food since last night?" Brian guessed that this was the reason why Winnie answered with hesitation. "Yes." Winnie answered affirmatively this time. "Winnie..." When he heard that, he got so angry that he braked on the car and pulled over. "Winnie..." Brian wanted to scold loudly at Winnie, but hearing that her stomach grumbled, he stopped. After glancing at Winnie, he pushed open the door and got off. He went to the back of the car, opened the trunk and found some cakes and milk there. Brian returned to the car and handed her the food. "Eat these first." He said coldly, and started the car again. Winnie looked at the lunch in her hands. Simple as it was, it meant a lot to her and even touched her. "Thank you!" "I'd rather not hear your thanks than see you like this. Winnie, if you let me see you like this again, I will lock you up to prevent you from working." Even if Winnie objected, even if she wanted to live with dignity, he would never give her the chance. She might as well have lived under his wing as abused herself. "It won't happen again. The work is almost over." Winnie promised. But it would often happen, she just would not let him find it out because she worked hard and did not wanted to be seen by Brian. There was another silence in the car, and a moment later. "You know the man in the suburb?" Thinking of Jack, Brian said in a cold voice. Jack was famous for his lasciviousness. He would chat up beautiful girls when he saw them. This made Brian the most disgusted. Today, he knew that Winnie would come to the suburbs to deliver the car. He had contacted with Megan and knew that Winnie would come at this time, so he wanted to make a chance to see her. But as soon as he entered the courtyard, he saw Jack chatting with Winnie. He only saw the back of Jack, but he could hear his flirtatious tone from his voice. This was why Brian got angry at Winnie. "I don't know his name. He rear-ended my car, so I had to take the subway." Winnie truthfully said and felt curious why that man was in the suburbs. "It is him. The car hasn't finished processing. I will ask Albert to deal with it." To avoid Jack and Winnie to have more contact, Brian had to stop the connection between them. "No, Leo's assistant has been following it up." Winnie refused, and Brian was silent again. It was Leo again. Did he really begin to pursue Winnie again? A moment later. "There's something I want to tell you. The man in the suburbs is the son of Uncle Thomas. His name is Jack Bennet. He and his family have just returned from abroad." "They don't know you gave birth to Luke and I don't want then to know it, so be careful and tell the two children." Brian had to inform Winnie in advance of these, so Uncle Thomas had nothing to threaten him. And it was not good to Winnie. "That's why you send me back?" Winnie then understood the reason why Brian sent her. He just wanted to tell her that she could not talk nonsense. "I..." Feeling misunderstood, Brian tried to explain, but Winnie interrupted him. "Don't worry, I will do as you said." Winnie was eating. After hearing Brian's words, she lost her appetite, but she still forced the food into her mouth. "There's an office supply store in the front. I need to get some much-needed stuff back to the company. You can drop me off there." Winnie pointed to the front. She said it in a relaxed tone, as if Brian's words had no effect on her. Winnie felt sad when she was alone with Brian, so she wanted to get away from him as soon as possible to make her feel better. Brian followed Winnie's instructions and dropped her off at an office-supply store, then drove to the intersection ahead to turn around and head back to the suburbs. Winnie watched Brian's car drive away and breathed a sigh of relief. She didn't have anything to buy, but she knew this office supply store was close to the subway entrance. She went directly toward the subway entrance, but she met Leo driving over. "Winwin." Leo lowered the window and shouted to Winnie. "What are you doing here?" Winnie was surprised. "Where are you going? I can give you a ride, get in the car." "I am on my way to the company. It is not convenient to you." "It is convenient, get in, I can't stop the car here for too long." Leo urged her, not for fear of violation the rules, but for fear that Winnie did not get in the car. Leo's words worked. Hearing that it was not allowed to stop the car here, she opened the door and got in. However, this scene was seen by Brian. Brian's felt upset, jealous and angry. It seemed that Winnie and Leo made an appointment. She was not to buy office supplies. Leo was important in her heart. Brian was disappointed and angry, stepped on the accelerator and left. Leo's car. "What are you doing here?" "What are you doing here?" Two people said in unison, then smiled together. "I'll say first." Leo said. "I was at a funeral of a friend's father today. I was just coming back from the cemetery and I met you when I passed by." "No wonder we met, we headed for the same direction. I sent my children to the suburbs, and I took Brian's car when I came back. I got off here and was about to take the subway to the company and then I met you." Winnie's mood at the moment got much better, at least not as depressed as just now. "Are you still in touch with Brian?" Leo asked gently, but he felt sour in heart. "Yes, it's impossible to have no connection, because we have children, but it was only for the children." Winnie inadvertently answered, but she understood one thing. With children between them, it was really impossible to break the connection. Only when she stopped loving Brian, they could contact like friends. But could she do it? Could she forget Brian? "By the way, didn't you say it is convenient? Where are you going? Or did you just say that to give me a ride?" Winnie changed the topic. The more often she mentioned Brian, the more difficult she was to forget. "I am going to your company. I got a call from the graveyard and received good news. I know you are working overtime, so I wanted to come to your company and tell you in person." Leo was obviously excited and Winnie showed a smile. "What is it?" Winnie asked. "The government has begun to pay attention to the frequent accidents of online ride-hailing. I have communicated with the government and we can cooperate in a three-way way. The government wanted to see if your software works well. It can try in B City, and if it works well, it will be promoted to the whole country." Leo was happy and excited. This cooperation for him was not the biggest benefit, but for Winnie it was a new starting point. "Really, it is good, thank you, Leo!" Winnie could not contain her excitement. It was a new milestone for her to work with the government to promote it nationwide. However, this opportunity was from Leo. She thanked Leo from the bottom of her heart. This kind of help was meaningful, nobler than Brian's money doctrine, more noble than being his woman. "You are welcome. Now I have paved the way for you, it is up to you to walk beautifully." Leo believed that Winnie had strength and that she could make everyone satisfied. "Don't worry, I will work hard." Winnie was confident that she could do better. It was the confidence that had sustained her for so many years, and it was the confidence that had led to her achievements today.

CHAPTER 207 WAIT TILL I COME BACK

Winnie continued to work overtime and because it was too late, she did not come to pick up her children in the suburbs. Not until the next day after work, she got some time. She drove to the suburbs alone, but there was a visitor. She found it out when the car got into the yard and it was too late to avoid. As she got off, the two children ran over. "Mommy." "Auntie." Winnie knew what was going on when she heard that Luke called her auntie. The visitor in the pavilion should be Brian's uncle. Originally, she planned to have dinner here before returning with her children, but now it seemed that she could not stay here. If she said anything wrong and brought trouble to Brian, she would become a sinner. "Have you been good here?" Winnie greeted the children with a smile. "Yes." Megan answered and then she took Winnie's hand and made her squat down. "Mummy, Daddy said there's a visitor here. He's Daddy's uncle." Megan conveyed Brian's words in a low voice. Winnie took a look at Megan and understood what Brian meant. It seemed that Brian was still worried that she would say something wrong. "I see." At this time, Rufus came over. Stella and Brian saw her, but they continued to chat. Winnie was embarrassed by that. "Winwin, you come at the right time. Have dinner here before you leave." Rufus said enthusiastically. "No, Sir, I am here to pick up the kids. I still have work to do. I'll be late for work if I have dinner here." Winnie made an excuse because it was not her place. "You need to have food and it is weekend, you should have a rest. Both children are hungry. Eat before you go." Rufus insisted to ask Winnie to stay. "My aunt has got dinner ready. We can have dinner at home." Winnie bowed her head and asked the two children for advice. "Do you want to go back with me, or wait for your father to see you off after dinner?" "I... Mommy, I want to go back." Megan whispered. There was a stranger here, and the stranger seemed not to like her, so she did not want to stay. "Then I'll go back too." Luke felt it was not fun to stay alone. "Well, I'll take you home." Winnie, who knew her children best, felt her child's awkwardness in front of strangers. "Sir..." As Winnie was about to say goodbye to Rufus, Jack walked quickly over and interrupted Winnie. "Hello, Beauty, nice to meet you again." Jack greeted her politely. "Hello." Winnie replied gently, forcing a smile on her face. "It seems that we have predestined relationship, but the way of knowing each other is special. I am Brian's younger brother, my name is Jack Bennet. May I have your name?" Jack asked Winnie her basic information and did not want to miss the chance again. "Hello, my name is Winnie Chambers." Winnie introduced herself politely but simply. "Miss Chambers has a very nice name. Where do you work?" Jack continued to ask, and Brian came over. "Luke, Megan, I take you to wash your hands and get ready for meal." Although Brian's tone was calm, he wrinkled eyebrows. Winnie felt uncomfortable. "Uncle, Mommy's here to take us home. I'm coming home with Mommy for dinner." Megan said to Brian. "Daddy, I'm going to Auntie's." Luke also said. "Ok." Brian did not retain, but hoped Winnie to leave earlier. He hated the image of Jack chatting with Winnie. Winnie understood Brian's impatience and said. "Sir, I'm so busy with my work that I won't have dinner with you. And I am not going to say hello to the visitor, please help me to explain." Winnie said. She knew Rufus was really want to stay her, also knew that only Rufus cared about her. But because of Brian, she could not stay. "Drive carefully." Rufus did not continue to detain her. "Megan, Luke, get in the car." Winnie gave Rufus an apologetic smile and left with the children. "Brother, you come at the wrong time. You don't give me chance to talk with beauty." Jack looked at the car to leave and complained. "Stay away from her, she's not one of those women around you." Brian's tone was obviously with warning. "What is the difference? She just has a kid. It doesn't matter." Jack said arrogantly, which annoyed Brian. "Put your energy into your work and you can achieve great achievement." Brian said coldly and directly turned to leave, leaving Jack who was puzzled. Brian returned to Stella, looking upset. "Why did Winwin leave?" Stella asked. "She needs to work." Brian answered simply, but he felt uncomfortable. "Brother, doesn't Luke come back?" Jack came over and asked, actually, he wanted to know more information about Winnie through Luke. "He lives there, and the kindergarten is there." Brian still said in a cold voice. Seeing that Jack had bad intention, Brian got annoyed. "Brian, isn't it not good for our children to live in a classmate's home?" Thomas asked. "Luke's kindergarten is over there. It's a waste of time to pick him up, so I let him stay with a classmate. That's all for now, and we'll see about it later." Brian didn't shy away from the subject, because they would ask about it sooner or later. "When Wendy comes back, ask Wendy to take Luke. Don't bother his classmate's parents." Thomas said to Brian as an elderly. "We will communicate with Wendy when she comes back." As Brian's voice just fell, Wendy's phone call came in. Brian took the phone toward the door and picked up the phone while walking. "Wendy." Brian said coldly. "Brian, I..." Wendy wanted to speak but stopped, as if there was something to say. "What's the matter?" Asked Brian. "I... I don't know what to say." Wendy said hem and haw. "Say what you like." Brian was impatient and worried. "I'm sorry, Brian, but I can't seem to go back." Wendy put the words out. "What do you mean?" Brian suddenly felt that something was wrong and got nervous. "I... As the time for my return approached, I found that I was getting more and more nervous and wanted to escape. Brian, I have been thinking about it all day, and at last I understand why I am in such a mood." Wendy stopped and wanted to see what would Brian response. But Brian did not speak and remained silent.".....""Brian, I'm sorry. I still can't accept the fact that you have a child. I think our love is no longer simple. I can't accept such love.""Wendy....."Brian said, but to his surprise, he did not feel sad then he heard that."I'm sorry I can't go back, Brian. I'm sorry I've kept you waiting for so many years. Don't wait any longer. Get married when you meet the right person."Wendy finished in one breath and hung up the phone as quickly as she could.And Brian stopped his pace at the gate.He was stunned holding the mobile phone. He did not feel hurt but relaxed. It was as if a heavy stone had been lifted from his heart. It was as if the sun had finally appeared in a rainy sky. Brian's face gradually showed a smile, a relaxing smile.His smile got brighter and brighter and he got excited.He did not have any concerns now and the only choice was Winnie.As he was about to call Winnie, his phone rang.Brian picked it up with displeasure. Klara's voice was heard."Mr. Bennet, there is emergency situation in HK, you are needed to solve the problem."Brian was to get angry, but at this time he could only focus on business."Book air ticket, you and Calvin go with me, get the relevant documents ready."After giving the order, Brian hung up the phone and returned to his car. He drove away without telling anyone.In the car.Brian used his headset to make a call."Sister, tell Uncle Thomas that the company has an emergency and I have to go on a business trip.""Okay, I'll tell him. When will you be back?"Stella asked with concern."I don't know, it depends.""All right, take care of yourself."As the voice of Stella fell, Brian hung up the phone.He was thinking whether he should confess his love to Winnie now, but he thought it was better to tell her face to face. Even if Winnie didn't accept him, he wouldn't give her a chance.But now he had to call Winnie.Winnie turned on her Bluetooth headset as she drove."Yes?"Winnie asked coldly."Did you tell the children that I am going to marry?"Brian's voice was not cold but excited."Not yet.""Don't tell them."Brian breathed a sigh of relief."Why not?"Winnie wondered."Don't tell them, and don't have relationship with Leo. I'm on my way to a business trip. Wait for me. I'll tell you when I get back."Brian wanted it to be romantic, so he didn't say anything over the phone, only to tell Winnie to wait for him."I don't understand."Winnie was confused. What did he want to say? Why was it related to Leo?"Don't ask why, wait for me."Brian hung up the phone after that. Although his tone was overbearing, his heart was sweet. Only then did he know that he was so eager to be with Winnie.

CHAPTER 208 BESTIE GOT PREGNANT

After receiving this phone call, Winnie had been waiting. According to Brian, she did not tell the children that Brian was to marry. As for Leo, she never wanted to promise him anything. But what did Brian mean? Winnie was still busy but she had expectation that Brian would come back and explain what he had said. The police had the news of the case progress The one forced Daniel to jump off the building had been found and they offered the information of the person who contacted him. When the police investigated, they easily knew that it was Richard's assistant who was in charge of the hired killer. And then he confessed that Richard was behind the scene, and there was a recording of him and Richard discussing the matter. The police began to chase Richard, but he was not caught. Penny had been brought to the police station. Regarding Richard, the police interrogated Penny. "Penny, we have the evidence that your father murdered Daniel. He is hiding from us. Do you have any idea where he might be hiding?" Asked the policeman in a serious voice. "What is wrong with you? How could my Dad murdered Daniel?" Penny pretended not to know anything and questioned the police. Although she was calm on the surface, she was psychologically panicked. If her father was caught, she would have no hope at all and would spend the rest of her life in prison. Winnie's case was not enough to sentence her to death, but she was involved in Daniel's death, so she was doomed. "Watch your language, Penny. Don't talk nonsense without proof." The policeman was angry and raised his voice. "But my father..." "No buts, we have evidence. Think where your father is and it might be good to you." The policeman interrupted Penny with a sharp voice. "I don't know. I've been home rarely for so many years, and I don't know much about his habits." Penny really did not know. "Never mind. Take her back." The policeman spoke to the C.O. behind him. "Officer, may I see Winnie? I want to talk to her." Penny suddenly offered to see Winnie and put her hope in Winnie, because she knew that Winnie's heart was soft. As long as she asked her for help, there must be hope. "No, you can't see anybody now. Wait till your father gets caught. If you have nothing to do with Daniel's death, you can be sentenced and then you can see her." After that, the C.O. took Penny forcibly away. At this time Penny was restless and desperate. She hadn't seen a person since she got arrested. Her family, Brian whom she loved, even her enemy had not been seen. All this made her world dim and limitless. Winnie's office. "Don't be in a daze. Once Richard gets caught, everything will be over. I can assure you that Daniel's death must be related to Penny. If it hadn't been for Penny, how could Richard have committed murder?" Daenerys said to Winnie. "I agree. Daniel was not a good man. He might be a threat to Penny, so Penny wanted to kill him. It seems that Daniel never thought that Penny was far more ruthless than he was." Winnie said with some emotion. She believed that Penny got involved in that. It was at this time that she really realized how terrible Penny was. She was a devil. "Don't talk about her. It was upset to talk about her. She must take the consequences for what she has done, and she has brought it upon herself." Daenerys never wanted to feel sad because of Penny. "You..." As Daenerys was about to ask Winnie about her work, she vomited. "What's wrong with you?" Winnie got up and came to Daenerys. Daenerys kept vomiting. Winnie patted Daenerys on the back and asked with concern. "Have you eaten something bad? Do you want to spit it out in the bathroom?" "No, I didn't eat anything." Daenerys relieved herself and shrugged off the vomit. "Do you have stomachache? Go see a doctor." Winnie was worried and Daenerys looked bad on face. "No, I just have nausea. Don't worry, get to work." "I've been bothering you for a while. I'm going back." Daenerys got up from the sofa, but vomited again. "Go to the hospital..." Before she could finish, she realized something and stared at Daenerys. "How long has your period been away?" Winnie asked. If it was not stomachache, she could be pregnant. "What do you mean?" Daenerys asked incredulously. "You are pregnant. In the initial stage of my pregnancy, I have no reaction, but most people have early pregnancy reaction. Tell me how long your period hasn't come." Winnie's hunch was getting stronger and stronger, and even had some expectations. "I..." Daenerys thought for a moment. "It seems like two months." Daenerys was frightened by her own words. Her period had not come for two months, why didn't she notice before? Was she really pregnant? "Come on, I'll take you to the hospital. Make sure now. I think you are pregnant." Winnie took her bag and pulled Daenerys to the hospital. After examination, Winnie confirmed her guess. "Congratulations, Daenerys. Congratulations on your pregnancy." In Daenerys' office, Winnie was excited. "Why do you congratulate me? How am I supposed to explain to my parents that I'm pregnant without a boyfriend or marriage? Other will laugh at me." Daenerys now looked bitter, even afraid. The baby was out of her plans. Now she panicked and did not know what to do. "Why do you care about these? Boyfriend is a problem, he will marry you now if he knows it now. You don't need to worry, Kevin will take care of it. With the consent of your husband and parents, you have no need to be afraid of gossip." Winnie persuaded and offered ideas. These were the simplest and most perfect solutions. If Daenerys agreed, Kevin could solve all difficulties. "Kevin and I are not that easy to be together, and even now I'm not sure if he loves me. Now there is a child, he will be with me even for the sake of the child." "Winwin, you know me. I want love. I want my marriage that was supported by love, and if not, I'd rather not to have marriage." Daenerys did not want Kevin to be with her for the sake of the child. "This is your thought, Daenerys. You are overthinking. You should have felt that if he loves you. Although he can fake to be considerable, he can't fake the love in his eyes. It comes naturally from his own heart. You can tell that, right?" Winnie persuaded Daenerys. Her idea was the same as it was at the beginning, Kevin and Daenerys were definitely the perfect match. "You're right. I just can't feel the love in his eyes, so I'm not sure if he loves me. How about you? Do you feel if Brian loves you?" Daenerys retorted, but she remembered the time she bought a car for Winnie, she saw love in Kevin's eyes. "I feel it. I feel he doesn't love me. So I stayed away from him. Daenerys, your situation is different from mine. I told you we couldn't be together even if we loved each other. You and Doctor Burns are perfect for everything, and now that you have a baby, it is perfect." When it came to herself, Winnie felt sad, but that Daenerys had a baby distracted her most of the attention. "Alas.....I don't know what to do, it's a mess." Daenerys finally no longer refuted Winnie's words, but she was not sure about her relationship with Kevin. "Daenerys, tell me the truth. Do you love Kevin or not?" Winnie wanted to facilitate the relationship between Daenerys and Kevin. She feared that the opportunity would be lost. She feared that Daenerys would have abortion. She did not want Daenerys do regret things, did not want to have tortuous relationship. And she was afraid that she could not be with the one she loved. "I don't know. I don't hate him. I should like him." Daenerys did not hide from Winnie, but she liked Kevin carefully, because of those obstacles in heart. "Since you like him, have a try. Think about it. Ask Doctor Burns out and talk about it. Then you will have your idea." Winnie needed not to worry now, since Daenerys liked Kevin. It was about the time and the child could effectively shorten the time. "I should go. I left all my work." Winnie said and got up. "Wait, I haven't talked about your thing yet." Daenerys was refreshed now, and forgot her confusion. "What is it?"

CHAPTER 209 SAY YES TO THE PROPOSAL

Winnie's life was monotonous. She ran back and forth between home and company every day, and never came back late except for work. What else could happen with a life like this? "Didn't you say a few days ago that you would tell your children about Brian's marriage? Wendy will be back in a few days. Haven't you told them?" Daenerys knew all things about Winnie and concerned about her. Although her life seemed to be flat, there were still many hidden problems. "Not yet. Brian told me not to tell them before his business trip and asked me to wait for him to come back." At this thought, Winnie was depressed. He left for five full days without a single phone call or text. Winnie did not know what she was waiting for, nor did she know what he wanted to tell her, but just waited for him. "Wait for him? Does he want to tell the children himself, or is there something else?" Daenerys said with doubt and wondered whether Brian wanted to shake Winnie's heart. "He just said he wanted to talk to me and asked me to wait until he came back from his business trip. I don't know the exact words." Winnie felt bitter. If she knew, she would not be at a loss. "What does he want? There's nothing to talk about. It's just about the kids. Winwin, now that it's over, now that your relationship is over, no matter what he says, you can't relent. You just said, even if you love each other, there's no way you can be together." Daenerys and Winnie had opposite views of love. Winnie supported Daenerys, and Daenerys was against Winnie. Even if she had no obstacles to be with Brian, even if they loved each other, it was not easy to marry into a rich family, after all, there was a huge gap in identity. Daenerys did not want Winnie to live a lifetime of grievances, so she give her a reminder in advance. "Don't worry, the things you worry about will not happen. He has Wendy, so he will not come to me. Don't worry about me but yourself. You are going to be Mommy." Winnie managed a smile and left with her bag. Daenerys' reminder and Brian's call kept appearing alternately in her mind. What if Brian did choose her over Wendy? What should she do? Should she treat it rationally as Daenerys said, or take the challenge for love once? Winnie said she could handle her own things, but Brian did not say anything and she did not know what to do. Daenerys sitting in the office could not calm down. Winnie told her to think about her thing, so she would think about it. Yes, she was sure that she liked Kevin, but did Kevin like her? Daenerys thought for a long time, and finally decided to find Kevin to talk about it when she got off work. Daenerys directly came to Kevin's office. "What are you doing here?" Kevin was bowing his head to sort out a case. The arrival of Daenerys surprised him. Since he started courting her, she hadn't been to his office and had been avoiding him. He was not sure her arrival was good or not. "Come and talk to you." Daenerys said as she strode over to his desk. "What is it? I hope it is good news." Kevin had no confidence. "I don't know if it's good for you." Daenerys stopped, feeling nervous. She was afraid that Kevin was kidding her. Once she mentioned the existence of the child, he would immediately run away. But whether she was nervous or afraid, the child should be dealt with. "Kevin, I want to know if it is true that you like me and how much you like me..." At the moment, Daenerys did not know how to express her thought, and it was restrained. Luckily Kevin interrupted her, otherwise she would have been really embarrassed. "Daenerys....." Kevin put down the case on hand, got up and came to her. "I know what you want to ask me, and I know you're unsure about my love to you." At this, Kevin held her shoulder, forcing her to look into his eyes. Kevin's eyes were full of deep feeling. Watching Daenerys, he said. "I like you, I love you and I want to marry you. I now formally tell you, Daenerys, I love you." Kevin's words moved Daenerys' heart thoroughly at that moment, yes, she saw love in his eyes, saw the love that belongs to her. was moved and could not say a word, but looked at Kevin. "Daenerys, I never thought of courting you for responsibility. My feelings for you came out of our relationship and had nothing to do with our one-night stand. Believe me, I really love you." Kevin became flurried because Daenerys had no response. He felt nervous that Daenerys came to him and after he confessed his love, she still have not response. It could be that Daenerys came to end their relationship that had not yet begun. Daenerys was moved. She was happy that Kevin was so sincere and about his confession. There was still one problem that needed to be solved. "I'm so happy to hear that. But there's something you need to know. Then decide if you love me or not." She then took the B ultrasound report out from her bag to Kevin. "Take a look. You're a doctor, and you should be able to understand." Kevin took the report. When he read it, he was surprised. "You're pregnant?" Kevin asked in surprised and restrained the excitement in the heart. "Yes, I've been pregnant for more than two months now, so your love must..." At the moment when Daenerys was about to tell him that his love must be based on the acceptance of the child, Kevin suddenly returned to his desk, opened the drawer and pulled out a delicate red gift box. Before Daenerys figured out what happened, Kevin got down on one knee and opened the delicate box. "Daenerys, I love you, please marry me." Kevin was serious and proposed to Daenerys sincerely. This sudden move once again made Daenerys stunned. She did not expect it to develop so fast, nor expect that Kevin had got the proposal ring ready. Her heart melted as she looked at the dazzling diamond ring. "Daenerys, I had this ring long time ago. I had it ready the first time I said I liked you. I decided then that you were my wife, and that I would marry you anyway and let you wear this ring." "It's not about the baby, it's not about the one-night stand. But the arrival of this baby has accelerated my marriage proposal. I want this baby, and I want you to be my wife. Marry me, Daenerys!" Kevin looked at Daenerys who was stunned, for fear that she refused him. He had been explaining his love was pure. "I...""Marry me!""I...I have many shortcomings, and I..."Daenerys knew it was abrupt to decide her own marriage, but this man was so deep in love that she was moved and could not refuse him."I love you, I will accept all your shortcomings, I don't care. Marry me, Daenerys!"Kevin interrupted Daenerys' various reasons. Right now he was perturbed, for fear of being rejected."I... our parents...The baby..."Daenerys still had things to work out, but at this moment they seemed insignificant."I'll talk to them, if you agree to marry me."Kevin saw hope, and his mood got uncontrollable excitement. He was able to deal with all the things that Daenerys was worried about."I... I agree to marry you."Daenerys finally said yes, for the sake of the child."Great, Great..."Kevin could not bear the excitement and hugged Daenerys directly."Thank you, Daenerys. Thank you for accepting me. I will be good to you and love you for life."Kevin could not restrain his joy. He did not expect that it came so fast. It was his lucky day, which he would remember for the rest of his life."Let's get married. I'm going to be get it ready... We need to see our parents...Let's go to your house tonight."Kevin was excited. He said a lot, but he was not clear what to do."Wait..."Daenerys suddenly said."What?"Kevin asked."We can register our marriage, but I don't want to have the wedding now. I have been pregnant for more than two months now, so it will take two months to prepare for the wedding, and I will not be able to wear a wedding dress when my belly is too big. And I want to wait Winnie, we agreed to have wedding together."It was not important whether Daenerys could wear a wedding dress or not. The most important thing was that she wanted to abide by the agreement with Winnie and hold a wedding together with her."But Winwin promised Brian she would never marry. Till when shall we wait?"Kevin seemed to see no hope of wedding, but considering that they could register marriage, wedding was not so important."She won't, I will persuade her to marry. You are responsible for persuading Brian don't be so selfish and interference Winwin's private affairs. He will get married and Winwin has to live with two children all her life, which is not fair."

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 210 HE HAD BEEN AWAY FOR TEN DAYS

Daenerys' attitude was firm. She could do as the arrangement of Kevin, expect for this. She wanted Winnie to live better. "What if we don't succeed?" Kevin asked, after all, Winnie was a persistent person and Brian was stubborn. Neither was easy to persuade. "That we wait for two years. If there is no hope in two years, we will have the wedding." Daenerys also thought of this point that the stubborn Winnie might not to be persuaded. So she gave it a time limit and wanted to have understanding of each other with Kevin in these two years. "Well, ok. So can we meet the parents?" Kevin agreed to Daenerys' opinion. It was only two years and time would pass quickly. Kevin told Winnie the good news at the first time, because Winnie was the one who cared about them most. Then he told Brian the news. Daenerys was sitting in the passenger seat on the drive to her house. "Bro, I have good news for you. I'm getting married." Kevin was still excited and said in a festive tone. He was waiting for Brian's congratulations. "I'm too busy right now to listen to your nonsense. You don't even have a girlfriend, how can you get married?" Brian said with discontent. He was displeased to hear Kevin's boring joke when he was so busy. "I'm not talking nonsense, I mean it. I will register marriage with Daenerys tomorrow. Bless me, Bro." Kevin repeated and told him the bride's name. "Who? Daenerys? You marry Daenerys?" Brian asked in disbelief, because he had heard that Kevin was courting Daenerys. It was unbelievable that they would get married. "Yes, Daenerys. Daenerys is the woman I want to love with my heart for a lifetime. If you don't believe me, see my marriage certificate tomorrow." Kevin understood why Brian did not believe him, after all, he did not mention it to Brian. He wanted to tell him after their relationship was determined. And now he was going to get married. "Are you serious?" Brian asked again hearing that they would get marriage certificate tomorrow. "How can I make a joke on this? Daenerys is with me now. If she doesn't marry me, will I call you?" "Oh, and there's something important I want to tell you. I'm going to be a father. Daenerys is pregnant for more than two months." The more Kevin said, the more shocked Brian was. It was surprising that they got married, and now they had a baby, it looked like they got married because of the baby. "Good for you. You didn't even tell me. Congratulations." Brian finally said congratulations, but at this time he was very jealous of Kevin that he could marry the woman he liked. "Thank you. Get the red envelope ready." "I will, but it won't take long for you to return it to me." Kevin motivated Brian. He wanted to finish the work as soon as possible, so that he could go back to Winnie and stay with her for the rest of his life. "I forgot that you are also getting married and you have children. It seems that I have asked the wrong person for a red envelope. We can set off." Kevin made a joke and hung up the phone. He thought Brian was talking about Wendy, and did not think much. Daenerys and Kevin spent three days to have things settled. Winnie once again got busy at work, but as long as she insisted for two days, the software would enter the experimental stage, and she could return to the normal schedule. Only her heart could not settle because of Brian. Two days later, Winnie finally took off the burden. To reward their hard work, Leo invited them to a high-end restaurant. "It's my treat today, so everyone can relax." Leo said forthright on the table. He was in a good mood. The success of software development meant that they would have a lot of cooperation opportunities, so he would be closer and closer to Winnie. "Winwin, thank you for your hard work. With your efforts we can cooperate and win. I am looking forward to our next collaboration." Leo was more and more appreciate Winnie's talent. He felt that she was strong with tenacity and grew fondness on her. "The success of the software development is not my own credit, everyone made effort. You should thank them all." Winnie said humbly. But everyone knew that she paid the most and she got the biggest credit. Without her, this software could not be developed. "Winnie, don't be modest, you made great contribution. Without you, we can't make this money." Winnie's partner said and he knew his ability was far less than Winnie's. He also knew that their company would have a bright future with Winnie, and he knew that they had done the right thing by giving her shares. "I am not modest, everyone has contributed. I cannot take the credit alone. I'd like to propose a toast to all of you for your trust and tolerance in this first successful collaboration." Winnie raised her glass and proposed a toast to everyone. After the last time she got drunk, she vowed never to drink again, but it was a different occasion. It would spoil everyone's fun if she did not drink. Winnie raised her glass and drank first, and then everyone followed. "I propose a toast to you. I hope we can have better cooperation in the future." Leo raised the glass, and everybody drank again. Then two partners proposed a toast, Winnie finally got drunk. Leo was happy and had drunk a lot. Thanks to his assistant, otherwise they might have to sleep in the restaurant. Leo and his assistant sent

Winnie home, on the way, they were talking. "I arrived, the car is not allowed to enter the community with door card..... My card is in the car...Drop me here and I'll walk in." Winnie said and the car stopped. Fortunately she did not walk in a daze and could speak clearly. Perhaps it was because she was in a good mood and she was not so drunk as to be ashamed. As the car stopped, Winnie got off. Then Leo followed. "I send you in. It is now late, it is not safe for you alone." Leo said considerately. "No need, it is safe here. The street lights are on and the security guards are on patrol. There's nothing to be afraid of. You've had a tired day too. Go home and rest." Winnie rejected Leo. "Can you do that? My assistant can see you off." Leo drank more wine than Winnie. Some of the wine he drank was for Winnie. So now he was not in a good state. He was afraid that Winnie had to send him back if he sent Winnie in."Yes, I can go in myself. You've drunk more than I have. Go home and go to bed. I'll see you tomorrow."Winnie said naturally, turned around and walked inside the community.Leo felt relieved looking at the steady pace of Winnie, and then got in the car.Winnie walked in the community with beautiful environment, but she felt depressed. Every time when she was alone, Brian would appear in her mind."Well, it's so hard to forget someone. The more I want to forget, the clearer it becomes.""See, you come to disturb me again. I don't know what you really want to do."Winnie soliloquized."Don't sway before my eyes, it makes me giddy. Didn't you have something to tell me? Say it, I am listening.""Say it, I've been waiting for you. You made me wait. I've been waiting for ten days.""These ten days... Never mind, you must be lying. You are an illusion before my eyes.""I've had drunk too much to and I'm not conscious. Go away, I'm going to sit in the park for a while. I'm going to sober up, or my aunt will nag me."Winnie stretched out her hand to push away Brian, who was hovering in front of her all the time, and walked toward the park.She sat down on a chair in the park, but the illusory figure of Brian followed and sat next to her."Are you so bored? You want to drive me mad, don't you? You follow me but don't say a word."Winnie knew she was talking to her hallucinations, but it was good that she could talk and free her mind."Hey, it's you who sits next to me. I'm dizzy. Lend me your shoulder for a minute, just a minute. I promise not to let Wendy know. I promise I will not affect your life."Winnie leaned her head on Brian's shoulder. To her surprise, it was so real and so comfortable."It feels so good," he said. "If the hallucinations were so real, I'd like to get drunk every day."Winnie closed her eyes to feel the rare reality, feeling the unique way of getting along with Brian."Why are you so close to Leo? Why did you drink? And you drank with Leo, are you testing my patience?"Brian's voice was suddenly heard."Ha...You finally spoke. Let's have an imaginary conversation."Winnie gave a self-deprecating smile. She did not expect the she would miss Brian to this extent, but she felt sad that she could only chat with him in this state of consciousness.
