

My Twins 22

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 22 UNCLE IS SO MEAN

Brian felt the taste of blood, but stared at Winnie with an indifferent face. It was the first time a woman bit him while kissing. "You're getting bolder and bolder." Brian said angrily with fire in his eyes, as if he wanted to swallow Winnie. "I was only defending myself. You should be glad I didn't slap you in the face." Winnie showed no weakness. She was now his employee and could obey him unconditionally at work, but she was not his woman, not someone he could treat casually. "Brian, I warn you, if you do it again, I will resign. I don't care about the contract, but I will take care of Luke. I don't agree your way to teach him." Winnie said loudly and turned to leave. Winnie got angry early in the morning, but she had no one to talk to. She and Brian kissed and hugged more than once, and no one would believe that they had nothing to do with each other. She wanted to leave like she did four years ago. She did not care about work, she just don't want to be wrong. But when she calmed down, she had to face the reality. She needed this job, needed more platforms to display her talents, and more efforts to earn enough money to pay off her debts. She had to raise her child, support her younger sister's study and support her aunt. She had to face all. How could she willfully lose her job? Winnie told herself to stick to it, one day the sun would shine. Winnie went to pick up the two children directly after work, but was blocked by the housekeeper. Winnie called Brian again. "Tell your housekeeper that I will pick up Luke." Winnie's tone was stiff. She was clearly still angry about things happened in the morning. "What if I don't allow Luke to go to your house?" His tone was so defiant. Brian wanted to see how stubborn the woman could be. "I'll go with the housekeeper to see Grandpa. I'm sure I can persuade him." Winnie insisted on doing so, as if no one could change her, if not this persistence, she could not make it through for these years. "Grandpa? It is pleasing. Do you know what it means?" Brian's voice was cold, but the corners of his mouth showed a sarcastic radian. It seemed that this woman tried so hard. She not only got close to Luke, now she tried to get close to grandpa. She was not simple. "Don't change the subject. The housekeeper is with me, and if you don't speak to him, I'll go with him to see Grandpa." Winnie did not want to say a word more with this arrogant man who was so cold and lukewarm, afraid of being frozen. "Don't call him grandpa, you are my woman or my wife?" Brian did not answer her. The woman was trying to cheat him. He wanted to see who to be cheated. "I won't talk nonsense to you, rascal." Winnie saw no hope from Brian, so she could only look for another way. Winnie said that and hung up the phone directly. When she raised her eyes, she felt stunned. Brian was standing behind the housekeeper at the moment, but pretended to make trouble. He was really hateful. "Young Master ." The housekeeper greeted Brian. "Daddy..." Luke was excited and directly ran to Brian. If he remembered correctly, it was the first time his Daddy picked him up from kindergarten. "Butler Lowe, go back to tell grandpa that I will pick up Luke these days." Brian commanded silently, but his eyes had been locked in Winnie's body. Looking at her angry red face and her stubborn clear eyes, Brian thought of that bloody kiss in the morning and his throat tightened. "Yes, Young Master." Butler Lowe said and turned around to leave. Butler Lowe left. Think of what Daddy had said, Luke was panic. "Dad, I don't want to go to your house. I'm going home with Auntie." Luke said, while taking back two steps, apparently he feared. Winnie felt the fear of Luke, stepped forward to Luke, put her hand on his shoulder, gave him warm and eased his fear. "Say it, how will you allow Luke to go to my house?" In front of the children, Winnie did not want to quarrel and did not want to affect the children's mood, she could only compromise. "Come to your house first." So Brian once again came to Winnie's house with Luke. "I'll cook and you play with the kids." Winnie used cooking as an excuse to avoid Brian directly. The man was poisonous, and she feared constant contact would make her callous. Winnie had the dinner prepared soon. Because Brian was present today, she had prepared more food. The four of them sat down together at the table and began to eat. "Daddy, Auntie, let's have dinner." Luke said politely in a happy smile. He was in a good mood. While Winnie was cooking, Brian had been in the living room reading a magazine, while watching Luke. He was happy here and always had a smile on his face, which Luke never had at home. Now Luke at the table showed a bright and innocent smile. It seemed that he was really like Megan and Winnie. "Mommy, Uncle, let's have dinner." Megan said as Luke politely. But she continued. "It is strange to call Uncle and Mommy. It's much more comfortable if it's mommy and Daddy." Megan was naughty, but she thought so in heart. "Megan." Winnie did not expect she would say so and instantly got embarrassed. "Yes, then we'll be a happy family of four." Luke answered Megan. Brian was stunned. Why Luke had such an idea? He had a mommy, but why did he want Winnie to be his mommy. It seemed that Winnie had bewitched the kid and had won the trust of Luke. If Winnie went to see his grandfather, he would be cheated. Thinking of this, Brian looked at Winnie coldly. He underestimated the strength of this woman. "Don't look at me. It's none of my business. It's you who don't give them the opportunity to be close with you." Winnie understood Brian's cold eyes, but she was not afraid, nor did she care about his warning. As long as Luke was happy for one day, she thought everything worth, even if she was misunderstood or scolded miserably. The children seemed to feel the coldness and bent their heads to eat without another word. The meal was in peace. No one said anything. Brian put aside what he was thinking and ate carefully. He had to admit that the woman was a good cook and that he had not eaten such a home-cooked meal for 19 years. No one cooked for him in the past 19 years. Brian ate a lot tonight, and the delicious food on the table was eaten up by him. He put down chopsticks with satisfaction. But Megan said sadly. "Uncle, when I saw you kissing Mommy the other day, I thought you love Mommy, but these days I found that you always are mean to Mommy. I don't know what Mommy did wrong, but I don't think Mommy should be treated like this." Megan was thinking about Brian's threatening eyes on Mommy in the whole meal, and she felt annoyed, but she did not want to affect everyone's appetite and said when everyone finished the meal. "Daddy kissed Auntie?" Luke was surprised. Before Megan answered him, he turned to Brian. "Daddy, you are a man, if you kiss Auntie, you should be responsible for her." Luke built up courage and said, because compared to his own mother, he really wanted Auntie to be his Mommy. Brian looked sternly and Luke bowed his head. "Mommy, you were on a blind date. If that Uncle can accept us, if he is not mean to you, you can marry that Uncle. In that way, someone will protect us, and no one will hurt us in the future." Luke was afraid of Brian, but in order to protect Mommy, Megan was not afraid of anyone. This could make Uncle worried, if he was really worried, he would not be mean to Mommy. Winnie knew that the two children spoke for her. They didn't like Brian's temper and that she was treated by Brian coldly. But she didn't want the children to worry about grown-ups. "Megan, Luke, you go to the living room and play. I want to talk to Uncle." Winnie gently told the two children to leave, and only her and Brian stayed at the table. "First of all, I apologize for Megan, she was impolite." Winnie endured all the emotions in her heart and tried her best to make herself peaceful. Because the restaurant was open, she feared it will affect the children. Winnie paused for a moment and continued. "Once again, I have no unkind desire for you. When my husband and I got divorced, I decided that I would never get close to a man. You are a man, and you have a wife and child, so I will not considerate you." "Now you want me to believe you? You have brainwashed Luke and still want to see grandpa. Your purpose is half the success if you win grandpa's trust. Woman, don't ever act in front of me. I've seen so many people that I can tell you who you are." Brian lowered his voice, because Megan's words made him ashamed, but there was anger in the chest, which was caused by Megan's words. "I... I don't know what to say. Now that you think that I am a cheater, I have nothing to say. Dinner is finished, go home. Don't let me sully your noble character." Winnie was sure, no matter in what way she would not change Brian's though, so she stopped explaining. What could she cheat? Winnie got up and went back to her room, leaned on the door in a decadent way with red fundus and wronged heartache. Four years ago Leo said she was a cheater, but she was not as indignant as she was now, but now she could not stand it. Unexpectedly, Brian did not take Luke away in the second day, so Luke lived in Winnie's house freely.
