Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 371 WENDY WAITING AT THE DOOR

Leo continued to be earnest. "Emily, perhaps you think I said those words for Winwin, but I didn't, I was serious." "I can say it again if you don't believe me, I..." "Leo, it doesn't matter. Are you willing to marry a person you don't love? Even if you are, I don't want to hurt myself for that." Emily interrupted him. Even if he was serious, his purpose was not simple and his words hurt her. She continued. "Don't stay it again no matter it is joke or not. If you want to say it, don't say it in front of me." "But I never said that to any woman, not even years ago when I was in love with Winwin, not even when I wanted to start over with her." "Emily, I know you don't trust me now, and I know I've hurt you, but I still want you to give me a chance. Can we just start again, like the first day of our blind date?" Leo was restless and painful in heart. He was afraid that Emily would not give him a chance again. "Do you like me?" Emily asked suddenly. "I...I don't know how I feel about you, but I don't want you to leave." Leo did not admit that because now he was not sure what his feeling was for Emily. "Then stop, we will start over when you like me." Emily knew that Leo did not like her and that he had his own reasons for not wanting her to leave. However, Leo's first words really made her move, where she found back her self-esteem. "Will you wait for me?" Leo asked seriously. "I can't wait. If you don't like me when you're eighty, I'll have waited for you all my life in vain. Leo, I have had blind date, so don't force yourself. If we still have the chance if we are destined to be together, if not, don't insist." Emily really could not wait, because waiting was the saddest and most painful. It was the most miserable thing. She would rather marry another man, rather than to wait for a no unknown future. She liked Leo and could not forget him, but she did not want to fall into such a rugged love trap. Leo was upset, but did not continue to ask. All this was caused by his misjudgment. He could not blame that Emily did not give him a chance, nor did she wait for him. If he really could not decide what kind of feelings he had for Emily all his life, he would waste Emily's time. However, Leo would not give up, he would use his own way to prove his feelings for Emily. Brian and Winnie drove to the suburbs, but accidentally saw Wendy standing outside the villa. Winnie was immediately embarrassed. "She hasn't seen me yet, turn the car around and don't let her see me, or you'll be in dilemma again." Winnie did not want to make Brian in a dilemma and did not want to mess with Wendy. Brian looked at Winnie and then followed her instructions and turned the car around. In fact, he thought that he was to tell the truth to Wendy and Winnie had no need to avoid Wendy. But Winnie must have her reason, Brian could only do as she said. After parking the car, Brian got out of the car and walked to Wendy, while Winnie, sitting in the car, unconsciously looked in the rearview mirror. She saw the surprise that Wendy showed on the face when she saw Brian and that she naturally held Brian's arm. It was simple and sweet, but she had no right to do such simple things. Every time she saw Brian, she could not show her happiness and surprise. She loved Brian, and Brian loved her, but they could not walk in front of people holding each other's arms like lovers. This was shady love and she had to humble. "Brian, you come back. I've been waiting here for you for quite a while." Wendy held Brian's arm happily, but Brian stretched out his hand to move her hand away in the next moment. "I told you not to come here, why are you here?" Brian frowned. He wanted to be quiet for a few days, but Wendy bothered him. He was happy with Winnie together, but this moment it was destroyed by Wendy. "I knew your father didn't like me, and I didn't dare go in for fear of upsetting him. But now it is the New Year, we cannot meet in a hurry. Brian, I won't go in since your father doesn't like me. Why don't you come with me, and we have a talk?" Wendy put forward a request, for Wendy, for Brian, it was not too much, but Brian did not want to give himself the opportunity to hesitate. He was afraid that he softened if Wendy shed tears. "Wendy, I said we will talk when it is time for work. These days I really want to have a good rest and accompany the children." "Brian, I'm not your employee, so why wait till work? Why don't you bring the kids out and we'll hang out." Wendy was sour to face Brian's refusal, but she had to keep fighting. Because she wanted to use an opportunity to get along with Brian and try to get some information, only know what Brian wanted to say, she could be prepared. "The children are good at home. Megan is sick and can't go out. Wendy, go back." Brian refused her at last, because he did not want to be alone with Wendy, and did not want to remember those years of waiting. Regardless of Wendy's request, Brian strode toward the yard. Wendy was heartbroken looking at Brian's leaving. She was serious about this relationship, but why didn't she get a response? What on earth could she do to make Brian look at her again? After Wendy drove away, Winnie walked into the villa. After that, she did not say anything but began to wash the children's clothes and got busy, so that she could feel steadfast, so that she would not think she had disappointed Wendy. She always felt that she was a sinner and shouldn't be in Brian's life. Although it was hurtful, but she neglected she had brought change to Brian. Without her, Brian would have married and had children. Without her, Brian and Wendy would still be in love. What to do? She didn't want to be a burden to others. She didn't want to embarrass others because of her. She didn't want anything, but just a car, a house and two clever sensible children. After finishing her work, Winnie helped to cook dinner. She did not have time to relax until very late. "Let me go home, I go back to change clothes, take a bath, dress up myself, so that I can meet Stella tomorrow." Winnie almost begged Brian. She wanted to go home, want to be alone quietly, want to seriously consider what to do. But Brian forced her to stay there and locked the door and Winnie could not open it. "Take a bath here." As she said this, Brian took Winnie's hand and walked toward the bathroom. "Brian." Winnie called Brian seriously, but her hand was still held in Brian's hand. "A bath cannot solve the problem. I'm going back to change." "Well, I'll go back with you." Brian gave in. "What difference does it make?" Winnie wanted to be alone, because she did not know what was in Brian's mind. She had no idea what she had done was right or wrong. "You're trying to avoid me?" Brian was not joking, but looking at Winnie seriously. Winnie did not answer but looked into Brian's eyes. Seeing that, she could not say yes. Brian did not ask again, because Winnie's eyes had answered him. He held her directly in his arms, feeling her body temperature and the rhythm of her heart. "Winwin, I understand your current mood, I also know you have something on your mind, but also know that these days your heart is suffering. But we only have two days, just stay with me. I don't know what will happen after these two days, if we will ever see each other again." "In these two days, put all your concerns aside, think nothing, and just be with me and the children." What Brian said was sad and sensational. He embraced Winnie's arms more tightly. In fact, from today on, he was restless, not because the holidays were coming to an end, but that they were beginning to face Grandpa. After facing Grandpa, there was no telling what would happen. Brian prepared a hundred ways to deal with the problem, but there might be the 101st way to deal with Grandpa. When he thought of his grandfather and of Wendy, he would feel uneasy, and the cure for this uneasiness was Winnie. "Are you worried about me? Afraid I'll disappear from your world?" Winnie asked uncertainly. She thought of Megan's identity. It was agreed to confess to Felix after the New Year. It was not only Megan, but also Luke. She was a Bennet, so she was the only one who had to sacrifice. This possibility occurred to Winnie, and she was likely a victim. She was ready for it, but she would work hard to fight for one percent of the possibility. But feeling Brian's tense embrace, Winnie knew he had no confidence. Even though he had promised her he would not embarrass her. It looked as if he was going to break his promise, as if half of one percent hope had been lost. "Yes, I'm afraid I'll never see you again." Brian did not hide that he was so worried. He had been worried ever since he decided to reveal Megan's identity. He could not imagine how he should face the future life in this woman left him.

CHAPTER 372 RUFUS'S CALL

At this time, Winnie stretched out his arms to embrace Brian, trying to give Brian some of her modest strength. "If I really have to leave you and the children, if we never see each other again, I'd rather wish I was dead, so that you will not live in illusion but have a steadfast life. I....." "Don't say that. I'll try my best. Anyway, I won't let Grandpa hurt your life. Winwin, don't say that, or how can the children and I live in peace?" When Brian listened to Winnie's words, his heart was broken. She had hopelessness and pain as that he felt when he lost his mother. He must not be able to accept the person he loved most leaving again. "Brian, it is possible. You should be prepared. Promise me now that if I do go away, take good care of the children and not let them suffer. You also need to help me take care of my aunt and Vanessa. I have peace of mind until you take care of these people." Winnie said sadly, trying to be strong. She knew Felix, and though he would not kill her, the loss of her children would make no difference to her death. If she was alone, it'd better than dead, so she might kill herself. Winnie let go of Brian, not waiting for Brian to refute, kissed Brian on tiptoe. She did not want to listen to Brian's powerless words, or they would be sad. The kiss was bitter and sentimental. But Winnie still liked the feeling of kissing Brian and she felt it attentively. As Brian said, maybe these two days would be their last two days. Perhaps these two days were their last memories. So stay, that was the only time she could have. At the same time, Rufus paced up and down in his room, thinking about his worries. After thinking for a while and checking the time again, he decided it wasn't too late, so he called Isobel. The phone had been answered after a long time, and then there came the deep voice of Isobel. "Why are you calling so late?" "How are you and Vanessa?" Hearing the voice of Isobel, he missed her spontaneously. Rufus was afraid of that he was too obvious, so he asked about Vanessa too. "We are fine. What are you trying to say?" Isobel's feelings were different from Rufus'. Every time Isobel heard his voice or saw him, she felt sad and distressed. Her whole life was gone for this man. She had spent her whole life in Rufus. Sometimes Isobel asked herself if it was worth it, but oddly, she never regretted it. Rufus knew Isobel hated him all the time and felt hurt all the time. As years passed minute by minute, his hatred to him did not diminish. He deserved to be abhorred by Isobel, after all he cheated her pure love and she could not get over all her life. "I want Brian and Winwin to be together....." "I don't agree." Before Rufus could not finish his words, he was negated by Isobel. "Isobel, don't be so quick to deny it. You hear me out." "I have two children here, Winwin also came today, I think they are happy to be together and two children were excited all the time. I think it's better for them to be together so they can have a complete home." Rufus finished that with a breath, afraid that Isobel interrupted him again. "Are you sure that Brian will accept Winwin? Are you sure that Brian will forget all his hatred? If you can't promise that, don't say it again." Isobel knew that a family of four to be together would be good for everyone. But realistically speaking, Brian could not overcome the obstacles in his heart. He could not forgive her, and he could not accept Winnie. "I've thought about what you're worried about, but what they're doing is more painful.” Rufus continued to analyze. “They’re in a very ambiguous relationship right now, and they can’t live without each other. It can’t last forever.” “Isobel, this is what I think. There are only two possibilities. One is that a family of four has a happy life together. The other is that Brian cannot get over the grudges of last generation and two people completely separate. If they can give up each other, it is much better if they start a new life.” Isobel felt it was reasonable. But Rufus neglected one point: two people who truly loved each other would never give up. Just like her, she did not marry for a lifetime for love. “I have a question, if two people completely separate, what will happen to the children?” This was Isobel’s concern. If the Bennet family gave the children to them, she now would leave with them. There was no need to try, because Brian could not forgive her. “Children...In a sensible way, it would be better for the children to stay with Winwin. But the Bennet family doesn’t want the kids to go, especially my father.” “Isobel, if it comes to the worst and they can’t be together, I will try my best to help Winwin get the children.” Rufus could only guarantee that, for now it seemed that he could not persuade his father, nor force his son. “It seems you can’t guarantee the ending. Don’t even try, just let it be.” Isobel was disappointed. 20 years ago he let her down, and he did it again today. Isobel continued. “I’ve been thinking about it, too. I’m not going back to B City if you take care of the kids for them. In this way, Brian will never know that I am Winwin’s aunt, so that the children can spend more time with their parents. When the children are older and more able to bear it, let them choose.” Isobel thought at the stand of the children, but it was bad for Winnie. “I can’t take care of them. You come back and take care of them.” Rufus refused. He did not want the meeting to end so quickly after twenty years, did not want their love and hatred to continue to be shelved. He wanted to solve the problem left over from 20 years ago. And Rufus has his intention. If Brian and Winnie could be together, Isobel could forgive him. Once Isobel forgave him, he had a chance to be with Isobel again. “Sooner or later, when I return, I will meet Brian. It cannot be concealed for long.” Isobel was determined to be out to celebrate the New Year because he was afraid of meeting Brian. Usually Brian was busy with work, and he had rare opportunities to meet Winnie, let alone to see her. But in New Year, Brian had a rest, so he would always contact Winnie. It was possible to meet her at home. “You can’t hide it forever. Sooner or later Brian will find out about your relationship with Winwin. Isobel, I’d better face reality and solve the problem as soon as possible while I still have some ability.” Rufus still insisted on his opinion, but he must have Isobel’s consent to the implementation of this opinion. Isobel was silent for a moment. What Rufus said made sense. It was not so difficult when you are mentally prepared to accept it. “Give me some time to think about it.” Isobel was not sure, because Rufus did not let her heart’s sureness, so she was going to have to think it over. With that, Isobel hung up the telephone directly, and Rufus was immersed in meditation. He felt that he had been very thoughtful, because the children were the priority. As long as the children were good, it did not matter the adults suffer grievance. In the next morning, Winnie, accompanied by Brian, went home and changed clothes. Then they went to the airport to meet Stella and his husband. Looking at Stella and her husband waking out from the airport exit, Brian gave a smile. His sister and brother-in-law had not changed too much. They looked still so happy. “Winwin, it is my brother-in-law holding my sister’s hand.” Before they reached, Brian introduced first. “I see. They look happy.” Winnie said in an envious tone, seeing such a harmonious and loving picture. “Brian, Winwin!” Stella quickly walked over and excitedly called their names. “Sister.” Brian first gave Stella a hug, and then went to say hello to his brother-in-law. Stella hugged Winnie. She was surprised to see Winnie. “Stella, welcome back.” Winnie greeted her. “Winwin, I’m glad you could come to pick me up, thank you.” Stella’s tone was kind, and the smile on her face had been maintained. “Honey, come over, let me introduce you.” Stella called her husband who was talking with Brian. "Winwin, this is my husband. His name is Joshua." "Honey, this is the Winnie who I often mention with you." Afraid that Winnie would be embarrassed, Stella did not mention her identity. Winnie was moved, but her identity would be revealed one day. "Hello, brother-in-law, my name is Winnie, Brian's friend, the mother of the two children." Winnie introduced herself politely and frankly. Although Stella kindly hid her identity, she still mentioned her sensitive identity.

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 373 STELLA AND HER HUSBAND

Winnie felt that the best words to describe their relationship could only be a friend and the mother of their two children, because she was not Brian's girlfriend or his wife. "Hello, I'm Joshua. Stella often mentioned you and I had seen your picture. But I think she looks better in person than in pictures." Joshua said humorously, and did not carefully and seriously look at Winnie. Because at a glance he thought Winnie's beauty was amazing. It seemed that Brian had good taste in women. She was an excellent woman worth Brian to love. "Thank you, brother-in-law." Winnie smiled and had good first impression on Joshua. "Come on, let's talk in the car. Lunch is waiting for us." With that, Brian took the luggage on the hands of Stella and a few people went to the parking lot. Back home, the scene was a little out of control. Both children know Stella, but they did not know Joshua. But they knew it was their uncle, a member of their own family, so they were at ease. "Aunt, you have gone too long, I miss you. I'll cry if you don't come back." Megan said and Stella was pleased to hear that. "I miss you too, so I hurried to come back before I finished my work." Stella held Megan in her arms happily. At this time Joshua holding Luke came over. "Come, let me look at you. I heard from your aunt that you have a sweet mouth." Joshua put down Luke, and then bent over to pick up Megan. He carefully looked up and down at Megan, feeling incredible. "She looks like Winwin. She is like a pirate." Joshua jokingly said, but it was the truth. They had dimples when they smiled. "Uncle, I'm not a pirate, I'm a genuine one. The copyright holders are Daddy and Mommy." Hearing that, Joshua laughed out loud. The child's emotional intelligence was high. She gave perfect interpretation in a humor manner. "Rights, Megan is the genuine one with copyright." "Luke looks like Brian, and Megan looks like Winwin. I wonder if their second twins will look like this." Joshua liked these two children very much. They were clever and cute. He had to admit that their parents' genes played a part. "The twins are already very good. There is no need to have other children." Stella said, afraid that such words were heard by Winnie, and it would hurt her sensitive heart. "Sister, to tell you the truth, I really want Winwin to have two more children. I don't think Grandpa would have any objection if we have four or more children." "But Winwin had something wrong when she gave birth to two children and the doctor said there was little hope of getting pregnant." When Brian remembered this, his mood was somewhat affected. It was a kind of regret that he did not have the opportunity to accompany Winwin to give birth. "In that case, you did the right thing by giving Winwin custody, or she'll be alone." Stella felt that Brian's idea was feasible, but Winnie could not give birth. Looking at Winnie had been busy in the kitchen, Stella liked her more. After returning from the airport, Winnie went straight to the kitchen to help. Though everyone urged her to take a rest, she felt that the kitchen was the best place for her at the moment. The living room was full of family laughter, and in what capacity did she fit in. And if she did sit there, she'd be with embarrassment. Winnie had been busy and got beads of sweat oozing out. "Raya, all the dishes have been cut and left here. I'm going to..." Winnie was talking with Raya, and before she could finish, her arms were suddenly pulled. She turned and saw Brian. "What is it?" Winnie asked Brian. "Nothing, you've been busy for a while. It's enough to have Raya here. Go and rest in the living room." As he spoke, Brian moved his hand from Winnie's arm to her hand. Then he walked out of the kitchen holding her hand without waiting for her to respond. "I don't know brother-in-law well, and I don't know what to say. I prefer to help Raya in the kitchen." Winnie refused in a low voice. "You don't know Brother-in-law well, but you know me and Stella well. And you must think of my feelings, too. I can't bear to see you busy there." Brian continued to walk with Winnie by the hand. "You go first. I'll wash my hands and come over." Winnie did not refuse again, perhaps was warmed by his last words. Today was the last day, just cooperate as he wanted, as long as he was happy. As Lunch began, it was a real family reunion for Rufus. And he felt like it was the first day of the New Year. The atmosphere at the table was good and everyone was very lively. Brian, who seldom talked, said a lot. Only Winnie felt constrained and could not give full play to her potential. She could not even imagine such a harmonious reunion. So what she saw was unreal. She had a shameless idea that it would be more perfect if she were the wife of Brian. But there was no perfect thing in life, there were always some regrets mixed in life. It was just that her regrets were bigger. "Luke, Megan, eat more and grow up." Rufus said with kindness. "Grandpa, you too eat more, so that you can live a hundred years old." Megan's words were always so pleasing to hear, making him feel warm. "Well, I will live to be a hundred years old, and see you get married." Rufus smiled from ear to ear, at this moment he felt he was happy. But there was regret, if the regret was solved, his life would be perfect. "Winwin, you also eat more, you are getting thinner and thinner recently." Rufus said with a smile, seeing that Winnie was a little depressed. "Ok, I'm eating." As her voice just fell, Brian helped her with food. "You eat, I can't eat too much." Winnie looked at Brian and did not know what was wrong with him today. He was very considerate. He was not a cold and arrogant megalomania. "Winwin should eat more. Our family has this atmosphere thank to Winwin." Joshua spoke. Although he had just met Winnie, she was friendly and generous. Such people were the easiest to get along with and were the kindest. "I didn't do anything, brother-in-law, don't say so." Winnie dared not accept such praise. She was not good and hadn't done anything good. If it was as good as they said, it wouldn't be this awkward situation. "You have done a lot. Stella and I have been trying to change the atmosphere of this house since we were married, but we have not succeeded. You came along and solved the problem, and no one else has more credit than you for bringing two such clever, lovely kids into the Bennet family." "Here, I propose a toast to you. Thank you for making a difference to Brian and to the Bennet family." Joshua wanted to say so from the moment he met Winnie. But before he saw the real situation, it would be so hypocritical if he had said that. But when he felt the harmony, he could no longer hide what he was thinking. "Brother-in-law, I really did not do anything. I will drink the wine, but I will not accept the praise that is given me." "Brother-in-law, welcome you and Stella back. Cheers!" Winnie modestly said that and drank up forthrightly. Joshua smiled and drank it up, too. It was the most enjoyable and meaningful meal he had ever had. After lunch, Winnie still wanted to help in the kitchen, but Brian stopped her and took her to the living room. Everyone sat around the sofa, Brian holding Winnie's hand also came over. "Luke, Megan, ask Paul to take you to play outside, ok?" Brian said, because he planned to say something that he did not want them to know. Two children seemed to understand Brian, said nothing and obediently followed Paul outside. Then Brian sat down with Winnie. "Sister, brother-in-law, since you come back, I have something to say." We did not speak, but looked at each other in puzzlement, waiting for Brian to speak. "Uncle Thomas went to the prison to see Penny more than once. He gave Penny the best treatment and made her live a good life inside." "I am now suspicious of his motives, and I am afraid that sooner or later Penny will tell him the story of the two children, so I want to find an opportunity to confess to Grandpa first in a few days, so that Uncle Thomas will not have the opportunity to do so.” Brian put the matter simply and it was about Megan. “What’s Uncle Thomas doing now?” Stella thought, but she could not figure it out. Winnie and Joshua did not know much about Uncle Thomas, nor had they asked deeply about him, so they kept silent. Rufus frowned hearing that. The Bennet family hated Penny, but Thomas went to see Penny, giving away his motives. It seemed that Thomas did not reflect on himself after he left, but saved up enough confidence to start again. “You’re right. It’s better to be active than passive. Brian, think before you make a move. Don’t hurt Winwin. If you can’t solve it, tell me, and I’ll help you.” Rufus said simply, but it revealed unlimited fatherly love and his calm introverted character.

CHAPTER 374 AN UNINVITED VISITOR

Hearing that, Brian was moved for the first time. It gave Brian the sense of security. This was his father, giving him invisible strength. Brian was stunned for a moment, and then gave an answer. “I’ll figure it out.” Brian’s answer was reserved, in fact, he would like to say that he would put Winnie into first consideration. He also wanted to say that he would talk to him when he was in trouble. But he did not say that and could only use a few words. “I agree. Grandpa should have known long ago. It’s not fair for Megan to keep her identity hidden.” “You should be more careful with Uncle Thomas.” About Uncle Thomas, Stella had to remind Brian, but she just said such a sentence, so Uncle Thomas remained a mystery to Joshua and Winnie. They were smart and composed, so they didn’t ask too much about it. “I know, Sister.” After hearing what his father and sister had said, Brian had a decision in mind. Only a few of simple words made him feel at ease. It was confirmed, and he hoped they could have a mental preparation by telling them, so as not to be shocked by his move. After saying that, they chatted for a while and then went back to their rooms. And soon it was Supper time. But what they didn’t expect there was an unexpected visitor. Thomas and his family came before dinner. “Happy New Year, Uncle Thomas, Aunt Maria!” Joshua and Stella greeted them warmly with a smiling face. “Sister, brother-in-law, happy New Year! Jack was also very polite, but after that, he saw Winnie and walked towards her. “I heard that you had come back, so I came to see you. Am I welcomed?” Thomas said jokingly, but his smile was not sincere. “Yes, welcome.” “We should go to see you, but you came instead, we are sorry.” Joshua said politely, after all, he had been business for so many years. “It doesn’t matter, we don’t pay much attention to those etiquette. Grandpa is not at home, so we came to join in the fun.” As Thomas spoke, he saw Winnie. Winnie was here instead of Wendy? It did not seem right. “Uncle Thomas, Aunt Maria, have a seat. We’ll get ready for dinner.” Joshua invited Thomas and his wife to the living room, but Thomas’s thoughts had been on Winnie. “Is this Winnie?” He asked. It was the first time he had met Winnie, and he couldn’t help looking up and down at this enigmatic figure. She looked good and shrewd, her intelligence quotient was far more than Wendy’s. However, it was not Brian or Winnie who answered Thomas, but Jack. “Dad, you have good eyesight. She is Winnie.” Jack was proud, but was glanced mercilessly by Thomas. At this time Winnie came over. “Hello, I am Winnie.” Winnie simply introduced herself because she didn’t know what to call the so-called Uncle Thomas. “Oh, I’ve heard about you, but I haven’t met you before.” At the moment, Thomas wanted to know why Winnie was there, but the next moment Winnie gave the answer. “I come over to take Megan home, so I gotta go.” Winnie said and looked back at Brian. “I’m going upstairs to pick up the kids.” Winnie went upstairs directly, and Brian followed closely. The two children were playing in Brian's room. They stopped playing when they saw their parents come in together and looked serious. "Winwin, there is no need to leave. They will go home after dinner." Brian would not allow Winnie to leave because this was their last chance to be together. "I'd better go back, they come too suddenly, and the children are not prepared. If they spill the beans, you will be passive." "And it's not a good time for me to be here. I don't know your uncle well, and I don't like to deal with Jack. I'll go back with Megan." Winnie said and went to the cloakroom to get her coat and bag. Brian stood there and did not move. He felt that Winnie's concern was justified. Both children were very excited, and in case they said something wrong, he would have been planning it for nothing. "Daddy, are Mommy and Sister going home?" Luke came and asked Brian, and his mood suddenly fell to the bottom of the valley. "Yes, Grandpa Thomas came, Mommy and sister can't be here." Brian said sadly, he felt sorry for Winnie and Megan. "Daddy, I am going home with Mommy too. I'm going to stay with Sister and Mommy." Since Sister and Mommy went home, Luke felt there was no need to stay. And his sister must be very sad to leave at this time, he must go back to comfort her. "All right, go home and help me take care of Mommy and Sister." Brian agreed to the requirements of Luke, and then called Megan to his side. "Megan." Megan was in a low mood. She lowered her head, pouted and walked to Daddy. "Daddy, you don't need to say anything, I will go back with Mommy." Megan knew that this situation would happen again and again, so she already knew what she should do. However, the more sensible the child was, the more anxious Brian became. "Megan, hold on two days, it will be you home and no one can let you leave again." Brian assured Megan, hoping his words could ease her depression. "Megan, Luke, go downstairs and say goodbye to everybody, don't say wrong words." Brian said to them, and then Winnie came out from the cloakroom. "Luke goes back with me?" Winnie vaguely heard their conversation and asked with uncertainty. "Yes, I'm going home with Mommy, too." Luke said, because in his eyes a place with Mommy was home. "All right, then, I'll take you home." Winnie said and looked at Brian. "The children's coats are in their room. You go and get them." "Ok, you get my coat, too, and I'll see you off." Brian went to get the children's coats. Winnie went back to the cloakroom to get Brian's coat. The four of them went downstairs together, and the two children said goodbye to everyone politely. In order to avoid saying the wrong thing, Megan did not call anyone, but kept saying goodbye. At this moment, Jack came over. "Brother, I send them back." Jack volunteered with a sly smile on his face. "Forgot what I told you?" Brian sounded right, but there was warming in his eyes. "It isn't polite that they leave by themselves, I..." "I'll see them off, you wait for dinner." Brian said, directly took Luke's hand to leave. Arriving in the courtyard, Brian went straight to her car and opened the door. "Take my car home." Winnie opened her car and let her two children in. "I'll drive you back." Brian walked to Winnie's car and pulled open the door on the driver's side. Just then Winnie stopped him. "I can drive myself back. There are visitors, and it's not polite for you to leave, and your uncle will think about it. And your sister and brother-in-law have just come home, you should spend more time with them." Winnie was thoughtful, and did not make Brian have a hard time because of her. Brian stood there and could not look at Winnie, and did not want to carry out the task Winnie gave him. "Go back. Don't let anyone think about it. I'll just go back with the kids." Winnie repeatedly insisted and Brian got off the car. He now felt the sadness of parting, thinking it was likely to be the end of happiness. Looking at Winnie drove away, Brian's heart was painful and helpless. The last reunion dinner was disturbed by Uncle Thomas, and he did not complete the happy holiday as he had hoped. After returning to the house, Brian's face, which had been serious, suddenly returned to its previous indifference. He did not say a word and did not hear what other said, he just sat there coldly, imperceptibly giving a sense of oppression. Except for Uncle Thomas and his family, they all knew the reason for Brian's change. But they all understood him and did not drag him into the topic. Brian lower head, held the mobile phone in hand, tapping the screen. "Remember to eat dinner." The message was sent to Winnie. He knew she was driving, so he didn't expect her reply. But he kept looking down at the screen. Unexpectedly, Brian received a reply after only a short time. "Daddy, I am Luke. Mommy is driving and she asked me to text you back. Mommy said she would cook for us when we get home." Brian looked at the message, and the coldness on his face finally subsided. "Well, you must eat well, and ask Mommy to eat more. And you must be good and not make Mommy angry." Brian replied to Luke's message. Suddenly he felt the reluctance and fear of children leaving him. "I know, Daddy, my sister and I will be good. Mommy asked you to eat more." These were indeed Winnie's words, and what she could only say at the moment. Today was the last night, Winnie had a lot of things to say to Brian, but this chance was gone, so those words could not be said. This was probably a pity. "Well, tell Mommy that I will be good and eat well." Seeing his message, Luke could not help but laugh, which attracted the attention of Megan. She hurried over to see what Daddy had said. "Mommy, Daddy said he'll be good and eat well. Daddy's a good boy, too." With that, Megan couldn't help laughing.

CHAPTER 375 MEGAN SCALDED

Hearing what Megan said, Winnie gave a smile on her face that she could not even feel. But Winnie suddenly remembered Uncle Thomas, and the smile disappeared from her face. Uncle Thomas eyes were shrewd and different, which made her cold. There was darkness in his eyes too, as if he was searching for something important. Uncle Thomas gave a feeling completely different from Rufus, there was not a trace of warmth in his eyes but coldness, and even viciousness hidden in it. At that thought, Winnie felt freezing and prefer to stay away from him. Winnie did not go home directly, but took the two children to eat hot pot, but unexpectedly met Wendy. Winnie did not see Wendy, until Wendy stood next to her table when they were to eat. "Oh, what a coincidence, we meet here." "You are just three, where is your man?" Wendy stood at the table with her arms folded in front of her. "Wendy, the children are here." Winnie reminded her quietly. Winnie heard that Wendy was deliberately provocative. Winnie looked around and did not see familiar people, and she did not know which table Wendy sat at. But she really felt unlucky to see Wendy. She had been trying to avoid Wendy, but still met her. "What's wrong with the children? Your two children are your protection umbrella. You have to protect them wherever you go." Wendy's tone became more and more contemptuous, and to Winnie's ears it had the meaning of warning. Luke could not listen to it, and the awareness of protecting his mother gradually increased. "Wendy, you don't talk like this when Daddy is around. What's wrong with you today?" Luke did not lose his temper right away, because Mommy had been teaching them to be polite. "You..." As Wendy just wanted to refute, Megan added and answered the question of Luke for Wendy. "Wendy is ill, so her tone is strange. Wendy, go home and take some medicine, don't get worse." Winnie's sarcasm almost made Winnie laugh, but she was gratified by the two children's awareness of protecting her. From now on she was not alone and she had a very strong support group. "Megan, Luke, you eat well, Wendy will protect herself." Winnie suppressed her smile and said seriously to the two children. "Winnie, don't think that you are proud because of your two children. I advise you to take the initiative to leave Brian, or you will suffer if you make me angry." Wendy was angry by them and scolded Winnie regardless of the consequences. "Wendy, is that a threat or a warning? I don't understand, it seems that I need to ask Daddy to help me analyze." Luke glowered at Wendy coldly. His momentum was like his father. "Luke, eat, this is between me and her. You're going to live with me, and you'd better be good." Wendy's voice had been converged and she was really scared when she heard that. But she was angry that she got threaten by a boy, so she could only warn Luke. "She's my Mommy, and my Daddy doesn't protect her, it doesn't mean I don't protect her. Wendy, I respect you. Please show self-respect. And let me tell you, even if Daddy marries you, I will never live with you." Luke was imperious, revealing the nature of a man. His desire to protect Winnie was very strong. He did not want his mother to be hurt or attacked. "Brother is right. You are not worthy to be our Mommy. You'd better not show up in front of us. We'll never set foot in your house, even if you marry Daddy." Megan said angrily, which made Wendy ashamed. "You.....You can't learn anything good from her. You are impolite when you are young, you will harm society when you grow up." Wendy was angry and did not say good words, but Winnie could not accept it. "Wendy, it is my fault that my children are not well educated. Just come to me, just scold me. Isn't it too much for you are your age to argue with children?" "You..." "And, this is a public place with so many people watching. If you're not afraid to lose face, keep going. If you've got any dignity, go back to your place." Winnie did not use a dirty word but made Wendy ashamed. If it were not for their quarrel had caused the discussion around, Winnie would put the words more unpleasant. Wendy did not speak again, but was gasping for breath because of anger. She was very unconvinced and wanted to pull Winnie's hair and scold her. But it was a bit embarrassing to be watched. With that thought, Wendy recovered some of her sanity. She turned around angrily to return to her seat, but just then the waiter came with a steaming hot pot. At the sight of the steaming hot pot, Wendy's sanity was lost in a moment and she tripped over the waiter with her feet, spilling the boiling soup. Instantly there was a spray of soup everywhere, and there were screams all around. At that moment Wendy turned to leave, Winnie had been staring at her sharply, thanks to her eyes did not move away, she saw Wendy's dirty behavior and got psychological preparation in advance. She timely protected two children with her body, the soup was only sporadic sprinkled on her body, but unexpectedly, she had protected the children's bodies, but failed to protect the children's feet, so the soup fell on the table and slid to Megan's feet. Megan instantly screamed out loud. "Mommy..." "Megan, how are you?" Winnie took off her shoes and asked anxiously. At this time, all the people nearby came to watch and give advice to Winnie. "Sprinkle some ice water first." "Slowly, or the skin will fall off where it's hot." "Take off shoes, or it will get more serious." Everyone said kindly, but hearing that, plus Megan was crying, Winnie was sad. "Megan, don't cry, Megan, be strong." Luke was also anxious and distressed, but he did not forget to comfort Megan, hoping to reduce the pain of Megan. Winnie took off the shoes of Megan and took off her socks carefully. Her fair and tender feet got rosy now, and there were a few obvious bulging blisters. Looking at Megan's injured feet, Winnie was distressed and got tears in eyes. Her daughter had never had accidentally hurt in all her life, let alone this kind of scald. But today she was hurt by Wendy. She got a dark heart and had no difference with Penny. "It is scalded, go to the hospital quickly." "Yes, go to the hospital to deal with it, if the blister is broken, it will be infected." Everyone was discussing, and then the person in charge of the hot pot shop came over. "Ma'am, we've got the car ready. We'll take the child to the hospital now." The waiter who was tripped over was apologizing. "I'm really sorry, it's my fault. Don't worry, I'll take the responsibility. Let's take the child to the hospital first." The waiter stretched out his hand to hold Megan, and then strode toward outside. Winnie took Luke's hand and followed closely behind. When passing by Wendy, Winnie ruthlessly stared at Wendy. Winnie would never forget her, no matter who hurt her child, she would ask for justice for the child. Wendy had recovered consciousness. Looking at the chaotic scene, she did not know what to do. She did not expect to have such an effect, nor expect to hurt the child. And when Winnie looked at her as she left, it seemed she would kill her. If Brian knew it, if the Bennet family knew it, she and Brian would be completely over. "What are you doing here, go with them." At this time Wendy heard the voice of Klara. Before she had reaction, Laura pulled her outside. Wendy had dinner with Klara and Laura, their position was in a hidden corner and Winnie could not see them. They saw Winnie, who caught their attention when she came in with her children. Seeing Winnie, Wendy became restless. Wendy was taken to the car of Klara. Klara drove to chase the hot pot shop owner's car. "What are you doing?" Wendy was afraid and puzzled. "Go to the hospital and apologize to Winnie and the child." Klara said with some eagerness. "Why?" Wendy was not used to apologize, especially to Winnie. Laura explained. "If you don't apologize, Mr. Bennet will find it out in a minute. Do you think you still have a chance if he knows it? You can't use anything you've prepared. You can only be dismissed." "Wendy, it was Winnie's child got injured, so you still have a chance. If it were Luke, you even have no chance to apologize." "Apologize before Winnie tells Brian, so you still have hope." Laura said and she thought Wendy was brainless today. Seeing Winnie came in with two children, Wendy was impulsive to go to them. Laura and Klara persuaded her, but before they had come up with the best way to deal with it, Wendy had come to them. They wanted to get her back, but they were afraid of exposing, so they could only watch Wendy did such a stupid thing. After hearing Laura's explanation, Wendy felt reasonable, and she was afraid, because only she knew no matter Megan or Luke got injured, it was the same to Brian. "Will she accept my apology?" Asked she timidly. "Yes, she will. As long as you have a pious attitude, Winnie will forgive you. Winnie has the softest heart." Klara knew that, after all, she had experienced it herself.

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 376 APOLOGIZE IN TIME

Klara had to remind Wendy, because the final choice was in the hands of Wendy. Whether Winnie would be angry, it was up to her. "But you need to think about it, Winnie would not be easy to deal with if she is angry. You have to be prepared to get beaten up. At that time, Penny was beaten several times by Winnie." "Yes, it's still a little way from the hospital. You need to decide whether to apologize or not." Laura reminded her too and continued after a moment of pause. "It's the best way now. If you get over this, you'll have your chance. But if you don't get this right, you'll never get another chance." "Well, there's something I was going to say. Winnie and I will go to work in the Bennet Group from tomorrow, so Wendy, you will be in more danger." Laura's words were undoubtedly worse to Wendy, but Laura said that for Wendy's future. If Wendy could not get it right today, and Winnie would be close to Brian, then Winnie would get Brian. When Laura finished speaking, there was silence in the car. Wendy was thinking about what they had said, and the more she thought about it, the more it made sense. Now if she didn't apologize, there would be no future for her. The car stopped at the gate of the hospital. As Wendy hesitated in the car for a while, Megan had already been sent to the emergency room. Winnie waited anxiously outside the emergency room, not knowing what was going on inside. "Mommy, tell Daddy. Wendy is so cruel that I won't let Daddy marry such a woman. She would kill me and my sister if they get married." Luke was afraid. Wendy's venomous behavior reminded him of Penny. In Luke's eyes, they were the same, they were like Snow White's stepmother. "Luke, don't be afraid. I won't let you live with them." "Daddy has visitors. Your aunt and uncle just came back today. If we call Daddy, the whole family will be worried." "Luke, we will tell Daddy tomorrow." Winnie had many considerations. What she said was part of her concerns, and some worry was from Uncle Thomas. She was afraid that Uncle Thomas knew the truth, which would cause troubles to Brian. Winnie pacified Luke, stood up straight, just to see Wendy walking towards her. At that moment, Winnie was angry and could not control her emotion. "Luke, stand here, don't move." After that, she strode toward Wendy and slapped on her face without hesitation. "Wendy, this is for Megan. You even harmed a small child. What's your distinction with the devil?" Winnie questioned angrily. This slap for Wendy was the lightest punishment. If she did not slap her, she felt sorry for Megan's injured feet. This slap came suddenly, which stunned Wendy. She had psychological preparation, but did not expect that Winnie would slap her. As Winnie's voice fell, Wendy came back to her sense. "You..." When she wanted to retaliate, she remembered that she had come to apologize and try to get a chance. So she stopped her anger. But she did not expect that before she stood up straight, Winnie slapped her again. "This is for me. What you have done to me for so long will never be repaid." Winnie was kind and repeated tolerance, but it did not mean that she could be bullied. It was fine to do harm to her, but if she did harm to her children, she would not spare her. The slap made Wendy's tears come out. She felt wronged and humiliated at the moment. But she had to bear it. "Winwin, I'm sorry. I did go too far this time. I was just angry and wanted to teach you a lesson. Absolutely I did not mean to hurt Megan." Wendy continued to speak. "I know that because of Brian, I have become a different person. I have become sensitive, anxious and always afraid of losing him. That's why I treat you as a rival in love. It's all my fault. It's because I'm too stingy and too burdensome. I am sorry, Winwin." Wendy's tears and apologies were very useful, which softened Winnie's heart. Wendy's apology was unexpected. Winnie thought that Wendy would slap her back or scold her pointing at her nose, and might immediately complain to Brian, but she apologized. Winnie was silent, thinking about Wendy's apology at the moment was true or false. Wendy continued to speak, sobbing. "Winwin, I'm really sorry. I didn't mean to hurt the child. The moment I heard her crying, my heart ached. I have feeling for the children after I spent so much time with them. I said something out of anger and I couldn't control myself." "I apologize to you and to the children. Please forgive me, and I promise it will never happen again." "Winwin, I won't be jealous of you, I won't be suspicious of you and Brian. Hurting the child today has sobering me up. I won't guess like that again." "I'm sorry, Winwin, I am sorry...I'm sorry." Wendy said with tears. What she said messed Winnie's heart up. Regarding their relationship, it was Winnie who should say sorry. Wendy's suspicion had her reasons. So today she also had the unshirkable responsibility. However, Winnie knew that Wendy came to apologize because she was afraid that Brian would find it out. "Stop it, go home. Megan doesn't want to see you at this moment." Winnie said coldly. She had not decided whether to forgive Wendy or not, and she also needed to ask for the child's opinion. "Winwin, I want to leave before I see Megan. I want to make sure she's okay. Do you hate me or do you refuse to forgive me, Winwin?" Wendy continued to cry. She could see that Winnie's mood had eased a lot, so she must make persistent efforts to solve today's problem and make sure that Winnie would not tell Brian about it. "Wendy, the child will be emotional to see you, so don't disturb the child. As for my forgiveness, it doesn't make any difference. You have to think it ring and don't do this kind of extreme behavior. It was Megan's foot that burned today. If you had burned her face, you would not have had a chance to apologize." Winnie was still angry, but luckily, there was no danger. "I know, so I am scared, I am afraid of hurting Megan. Winwin, please forgive me. I have realized the seriousness of the problem today, and will not do it again. Winwin...Please." Wendy reached out and held Winnie's hand, hoping to express her sincerity. However, this contact annoyed Winwin. She took back her hands and did not want to see Wendy in tears at this time. "Fine, go back and I will pursue your responsibility." Winnie said, turned around and walked toward Luke. At this time Wendy stopped crying and gave a proud smile. But she had to make sure something. "Winwin, I have one more request. I hope you will not tell Brian. Even if he knows, please put in a good word for me. I cannot live without Brian, I cannot give up our relationships of years." Winnie stopped walking but she did not turn around. She knew Wendy had this reason, she felt uncomfortable to hear that. And Wendy was too anxious. She would not tell Brian since she had forgiven Wendy. Why did she stress it, why was she so eager to expose her selfishness? "Don't worry, I won't tell him." Winnie turned and continued. "But Wendy, I have to tell you this is the last time. If something like this happens again, I won't forgive you." After that, Winnie turned to leave. Wendy felt relieved when she heard the guarantee from Winnie, it seemed that Klara knew Winnie well. She did conquer Winnie with tears. Wendy turned and left proudly. At the same time, Winnie took Luke's hand and came to the emergency room. As they reached the door, the door was pushed open. However, it was Kevin who walked out with Megan in his arms. Winnie was surprised to see Kevin. "What are you doing here?" Winnie obviously was panic, afraid that Kevin would see Wendy. "I am on duty in the emergency room today, and I didn't realize that the first patient was Megan. What's the matter? How did she get scalded?" Kevin asked, drawing back his gaze from afar. "I took the children to eat hot pot, the waiter accidentally tripped over, and spilled out the soup, that was why Megan got scalded. How are you, Megan?" Winnie eagerly asked Megan. "Don't worry. It's nothing serious. I have taken care of the burns." "Winwin, come and sit over here." Kevin had something he did not understand and wanted to ask Winnie, so he held Megan and called Winnie to sit in the chair. "The blister is not broken, and I have given her some medicine. If it breaks, come here and give her injection. But you don't have to worry about it." First, he briefly described the situation about Megan, and then he asked. "Winwin, Stella came back today, aren't you in the suburbs? Why did you take the children out to dinner?" Winnie took a sigh of relief after hearing that Megan was fine. "We had been in the suburbs, and Brian's second uncle came with his family at dinner that evening. He asked me who I was, and I was afraid that everyone would be embarrassed, and that the children would not be able to stop themselves from revealing their identities, so I made an excuse to take them out." "We didn't have dinner and didn't have anything to eat at home, so we went for hot pot. I didn't expect Megan would get hurt." Winnie blamed herself very much, and while saying that, she took Megan back to her arms with great care.

CHAPTER 377 CONCEALMENT

Kevin continued to ask. "Does Brian know?" "No, I didn't call him. I'm afraid I'll alarm everyone." Winnie did not want to tell Brian, but Megan was injured and could not hide it. "Then he must be told. He is the father and should know." Kevin pulled out his phone and was to call Brian. But Winnie stopped him. "Don't call, Brian's second uncle is there now. He will be overreacted if he knows it and his second uncle will suspect it. I'll call him when I get home later." Winnie considered it for Brian. If it were not for the fear of leaking Megan and Luke's identities, Winnie would not have taken the children to leave, and they would not meet Wendy and encounter such a scaring thing. "OK, then call him later." Kevin felt Winnie loved Brian too much. No matter what it was, she considered Brian's feeling, rather than herself. This kind of love was losing herself. "By the way, Winwin, I just seemed to see Wendy, what did she come for?" Kevin suddenly thought of the figure he had just seen, but he wasn't quite sure. However, Winnie's words made Kevin suspicious. "No, I didn't see Wendy, did you see the wrong person?" Winnie tried to hide. Lying needed skill and not everyone could do that. "Mommy..." As Megan wanted to speak, Winnie stopped her. "Megan, I know you're not feeling well, and we'll come home at once." With that, Winnie stood up holding Megan in arms, and holding Luke with one hand. "Get back to work, if there is something wrong with Megan, I will call you. Megan is scared, I will take her home and comfort her." Winnie hurried to find an excuse to leave. "I'll see you off." Kevin followed Winnie and wanted to take over Megan. "No need, the owner of the hotpot shop has been waiting for us. He will send us back. And we should get settlement on this. You go back to work. I will contact you if there is something wrong." Winnie refused and walked out of the hospital with her two children. Back home, Winnie changed the children's clothes, and sat them on the sofa because she had something to tell them. "Luke, Megan, I have words to say to you." "I have forgiven Wendy today, so you let it go." Winnie said in a mild tone, afraid that the two children did not come out in fear. "Why? Why should we forgive her? She is bad." It was Megan who asked the question, and she couldn't understand Mommy's forgiveness. Luke saw the whole process, so he did not speak and he could understand Mommy's kindness and forgiveness. "Wendy is bad, but she has already apologized to me. We can't just hold on to her shortcomings. Forgiving others is a kind of comfort to ourselves. I feel good not, but if we pursue it, we will really be enemies." Winnie knew that Megan could not accept that, so she explained it carefully. "Megan, which one do you think is better, to become enemies or friends?" Winnie asked Megan, hoping that she could understand. "Of course to be friends, but Mommy, Wendy can't be our friend." Megan had her own views on this matter. "Why not?" Winnie asked in reply. "Because she and you are rivals. It is impossible for rivals to be friends. There is only one possibility between rivals." Megan said unfathomably, like an old pedant, like a philosopher with rich experience. She analyzed human nature thoroughly. It made Winnie laugh. "Where did you learn that from?" "That's what they say on TV. Doesn't it suit the situation between you and Wendy?" Megan did not think her words funny, but felt realistic. "Well, well, well, you're right. But we can't have an enemy even if we can't be friends. If you have an enemy, you will always worry that she will seek revenge. There are a lot of things to spend your energy on in this world. You can't put all your energy on enemies." Winnie tried her best to persuade Megan. One reason was that she did not want Megan to be cruel and the other was to stop the children from telling it to their Daddy. "Megan, we should be tolerant, and kind. In this way, when we make mistakes, someone will help us." Winnie said that looking at Megan, hoping that she could understand. Megan was silent and did not contradict Mommy. Luke was worried seeing that Megan did not speak, so he helped Mommy persuade Megan. "Megan, Mommy has taught Wendy a lesson today, I stood there watching. Mommy slapped Wendy in the face twice, and Wendy had given sincere apology. Let us forgive her once." Luke pacified Megan, but he felt he could not forgive Wendy. Even if she did not hurt Megan's foot, her words had hurt his heart. She was cruel and impersonal, and such a person would not change even if he forgave her. Now Luke just wanted to grow up quickly, so that he could protect his mother and sister. "Did Mommy really hit Wendy? Is Mommy really that awesome?" As expected, Megan was excited to hear this news. She didn't care how Wendy apologized, she just wanted to know whether Mommy was so awesome. Because she did not like Wendy even if she apologized, and did not want to accept that cruel woman. "Yes, I saw it, so you can forgive Wendy, because she was punished." He was still excited by his mother's two powerful slaps. He thought that was the way Mommy was supposed to protect herself from being bullied. "Ok, I'll forgive her for Mommy had avenged for me." Megan smiled from ear to ear. "Megan, I am jealous. I said a lot, but it didn't work, while Brother only said such a thing, you agreed to forgive Wendy." Winnie pretended to be dissatisfied, because she wanted to put forward the next request. Because the two children were so smart, Winnie could only use tricks. "No, Mommy, I am not partial. If you think I am partial, I can promise one of your requests." Megan coaxed

Mommy with a sweet voice afraid that Mommy would get angry. When Winnie saw her 'prey' fall into her trap, she knew her chance came. "You said that, and I do have a request." Winnie was pleased. The children looked at each other and thought they had been cheated. "Don't tell Daddy what happened today, and just tell him Megan got scalded accidentally, ok?" Winnie gave a sly smile. The two children knew that they had been fooled, but they had promised Mommy, and they could not go back on their words. Even though Winnie knew that they would still have a shadow in their hearts, it was enough that they were no longer heavy. Winnie wanted to let it go. She knew it had impact on the children, but it was not serious. After that, she told the children to play, and she cooked noodles for them, after all, the accident happened before they had finished the hot pot. The children had the noodle, but she did not. She looked good on the surface, but in fact she was very depressed. When the two children went upstairs to sleep, Winnie got some free time. Sitting on the sofa, she picked up the phone and looked at the time, thinking whether the Bennet family was sleeping at this time and whether Brian was convenient to answer the phone at this time. When Winnie hesitated, the doorbell rang suddenly. Winnie rushed to the door for fear of waking the children. Seeing the person in the monitor was Brian, she immediately opened the door. "Why are you so late?" Winnie did not expect Brian would come here, so she asked with doubts. "I miss you. I am restless being alone, so I came." Brian said naturally, as if the person in front of him was his legal wife, and it was natural for him to miss her. He changed his shoes as he spoke, and came in. However, Winnie was worried, it seemed that Brian had induction for Megan's injury. "Have all the visitor gone?" Winnie asked softly. "Yes, my sister and brother-in-law have gone to bed." "Have Megan and Luke been asleep?" Brian asked. He still did not feel relieved when he saw Winnie. "Yes, they're asleep, too." "Brian, I have something to tell you." Winnie walked to the front of Brian with a face of guilt. "What's the matter?" Asked Brian. Seeing Winnie's seriousness, his uneasiness increased. "Megan's foot got scalded. We....." As Winnie to explain, Brian interrupted her. "Scalded? Was it badly scalded?" Then he walked towards the room of Megan, followed by Winnie. "Don't you worry, it's nothing serious. Be quiet, they had just fallen asleep." Winnie had to remind Brian, afraid of disturbing Megan. Brian was very worried at the moment, because he did not see Megan's injury. But he still carefully pushed open the door of Megan. The little feet of Megan were exposed, wrapped in gauze. Brian's heart suddenly ached at this moment. It was at this moment that he realized what kind of feeling as a parent to see his child got hurt. Brian squatted down and stroked Megan's feet. He wanted to ask the reason, but for fear of waking Megan, he swallowed the words back. There was swelling in the part not covered by gauze, which made Brian more worried. He looked back at Winnie, but she couldn't speak either, so she pulled Brian out with her hand.

CHAPTER 378 BRIAN WAS HEARTBROKEN

They went back to Winnie's room and closed the door. After making sure the children could not hear them, Winnie began to explain. "Two children were hungry when we came back from the suburbs, and there were no ingredients at home, so I took them to eat hotpot. The waiter of the hotpot shop accidentally spilled the hot soup and scalded Megan." "But don't worry, the hotpot shop owner was very active to Megan treatment. He even sent Megan to the hospital and paid the medical bills." "It was Doctor Burns dealt with it, he said nothing is serious, do you don't have to worry." Winnie was afraid that Brian would be angry at the hotpot shop, so she spoke for the hotpot shop. "Really?" Brian asked with concerns. "Yes, Doctor Burns won't let us come back if it is serious." "Don't worry, it's late and hurry up to bed." "Winnie went to the wardrobe to get pajamas, but when she turned around, Brian saw that her back was dirty. "Winwin, why are your clothes dirty in the back?" With these words, Brian walked up behind her and touched the dirty part of her clothes. But when he touched her, Winnie's felt painful. She could not control herself and let out a cry. "Ah..." "What's the matter?" Brian quickly moved his hand away, not knowing how he hurt Winnie. Winnie then remembered that she was also splashed by the soup, but at that time she only paid attention to the children and she did not feel hurt. "Maybe I got scalded too." "Take your clothes off and let me see." Brian got nervous again. He helped Winnie carefully take off her clothes, only to find that the burn was more than a little. There were blisters everywhere where it was splashed by the soup. Brian looked angry and distressed. "This hotpot shop is too irresponsible, doesn't it know you got scalded? Go to the hospital right away. You need to take care of it." Brian put Winnie's clothes on again, but Winnie stopped him. "I don't need to go to the hospital. The ointment Doctor Burns prescribed for Megan is outside. Just bring it and apply it on me." Brian opened the door quickly and went out to get the ointment. When he returned, Winnie sat on the bed wearing a dressing gown. "Why are you wearing that, if the blisters are broke, you will have ache." Brian said with dissatisfaction, and then help Winnie take off the dressing gown. "Lie on the bed." Brian ordered. Then Winnie lay on the bed. Brian covered Winnie's lower body with a quilt so that she would not get cold. Brian sat beside Winnie and began to apply the ointment on her with great care. His move was very light and gentle, afraid of touching Winnie. "Be careful next time. It is not serious, if it is serious, you will regret it." Brian said while applying the ointment. "At that time, I only paid attention to the children but myself. You would do that too if it were you." Winnie felt it did not matter she got hurt but had been blamed herself that Megan got hurt. "Yes, but be careful. It's my fault. If I had insisted on coming back with you, it wouldn't have happened." Brian did blame himself that he was not persistent enough. But in Winnie's opinion, it would have been more serious if Brian had been there. "What are you blaming yourself for? It's not your fault. Forget it and talk about work tomorrow." Winnie changed the subject, afraid that she would tell the truth. "Did you tell Wendy I am going to work in the Bennet Group?" Winnie asked Brian. "No, I don't have to report to her about work." Brian said in a cold voice, because Wendy was mentioned. "It is not only about the work. If she knows I work there, she will make a scene." Winnie could even imagine that. "No, I will talk to her tomorrow and she will have no chance to make a scene after that." Brian had made up his mind, and he didn't want any change to make it waver. "What about Chairman? Did you tell him? Don't embarrass me at work." Winnie was most worried about Felix, after all, he was the chairman of the board. If he did not like to see her in his company, she would be driven out. But from another point of view, it was not necessarily a bad thing to drive her out, so that everyone would not have to look at her. "I told my grandpa and he doesn't care about work." "By the way, my sister would confirm his schedule and ask him to come back a day earlier, and then take him to the suburbs, so that Uncle Thomas would not play tricks in the middle." Brian was upset when he mentioned tomorrow's plans. He did not want to end his vacation and face reality. It was Uncle Thomas again. Winnie really wanted to ask what was going on, but she thought it would be meddling if she was asked. "You make the arrangements, as you like." "By the way, Klara..." "Don't worry so much about it. Now the whole company knows you're going back to work and no one will dare to be rude to you. And Klara has been doing well. I think she won't be a fool again after what she learned last time." Brian interrupted Winnie. He was not impatient but felt distressed that she had too many things in her head. She must have a tired life. "I am worried. I have no confidence to come back. I want to finish work as soon as possible. I'd rather go back to my own company and it makes me steadfast." Winnie had already had a psychological shadow, fear of working in the Bennet Group. At the thought what she had experience there, she could not accept it compare it with the comfortable working environment now. When Winnie was sad, Brian had finished applying the ointment and then asked Winnie to lie down on her side. "Winwin, don't think so much, don't put your head and heart so full. Relax and there will be different results." Brian appeased Winnie. He knew that Winnie suffered a lot before, but he did not want Winnie to have a tired life. "I don't want everything I've been through turn out to be different. But for you, I hope there will be different result. But it is just my hope." Winnie said in a sad tone, she did not know why she said that, these words will only make her confused and Brian embarrassed. But she really wanted to be true for once, in front of love, in front of the man she loved deeply. She wanted to say the words she most wanted to say. Winnie's words made Brian both moved and speechless. He did not know what to say to make Winnie at ease. She hoped for a different result, which meant that she wanted to be with him for a lifetime, but what she wanted was perfect. She wanted to be his only woman. If Brian were an ordinary person, unfettered, he would give Winnie the safest and most touching answer and gave her a life-long promise. But it didn't work out as he wanted it to. "Why are you serious? Look at you, are you afraid of me pestering you?" The smile on Winnie's face was warm, and she took Brian's hand. "Don't worry, the best thing you've ever done in your life is to fall in love with a woman who won't stick to you. Unlike other women, I don't make it difficult for you to get what I want, even if I really want it." "I just said that offhand. I'm not going to do that. When the children are older, I will give them to you, and then I will look for what I want." Winnie said generously, but her heart was painful. If it hadn't been for appeasing Brian, she wouldn't have broken her own heart. "Yes..." "Don't say that, I said don't say sorry to me. You hadn't done anything wrong. Whatever happened between us, whatever will happen in the future, it is not your business alone, after all, I'm in it too. So don't ever say you're sorry." Winnie stopped Brian in time. She thought that saying sorry was the most irresponsible performance of men. "Take a shower and go to bed. Get fresh and we'll start fighting." Winnie let go of Brian's hand, just like letting go of him. She loved him but never felt humble. If there were no children, she believed that she had already flown away. Even if she could not forget Brian, she would never be around him. The next day. The holidays were over and people all over the country were back to work. Winnie and Brian returned to reality. The seven-day vacation was like a dream for Winnie, but it was a beautiful and sweet dream, because in the dream there were Brian and the four family members laughing. This dream was the best memory of her life, medicine to relieve sadness when she was lonely. Brian needed to go back to the suburbs, so he took the two children back to the suburbs. Winnie left later. But when she went downstairs, she remembered that her car was still in the hotpot shop. Last night the owner of the hotpot shop sent them to the hospital and home from the hospital, so she didn't remember her car at all. And the parker still had the keys. On her first day at work, Winnie encountered obstacles and was somewhat chagrined. But it was too late to get the car. Finally, she decided to take the subway, which was fast and convenient. But when she came out of the community, she was stopped by a man. "Miss Chambers." Winnie stopped and looked at the man who stopped her. "Are you calling me?" Winnie inexplicably asked. "Yes, I am calling you." The man said and walked to the front of Winnie. "You seem to have forgotten who I am, so let me introduce myself. I'm the owner of a hotpot shop. Yesterday your daughter got scalded at my place." Hearing that, Winnie suddenly saw the light and gave an embarrassing smile. "Oh, I felt you familiar. I'm sorry I didn't recognize you."

CHAPTER 379 DODGED A BULLET

In the face of the man, Winnie was embarrassed, but the incident happened suddenly last night and she did not pay attention to the owner of the hotpot shop, so she did not recognize her. "I'm sorry your daughter got hurt. I wonder how she is." The man was guilty. "She is much better. Accidents are things that nobody wants to happen, and you don't have to worry about it." Winnie said tolerantly and then looked at the time. "I checked the surveillance yesterday and found you got scalded too. We'll pay for the medical bills, as well as the cost of time off work and nutrition." The man's words made Winnie feel warm. She did not expect that the owner of the hotpot shop was a careful person. "I am ok, I don't need to go to the hospital or any medical bills." Winnie looked at the time again. She couldn't talk any more. "Sorry, I'm rushing to work. We can talk another day." Winnie was about to leave, but the owner of the hotpot shop stopped her again. "Miss Chambers, I come to deliver your car." The man raised his hand, holding Winnie's car keys. Winnie was very happy to hear that and turned around quickly. "Thank you very much. The car arrived just in time." Winnie took the key. "I gotta go. Thank you for returning my car." After thanking the man, Winnie left quickly because she was pressed for time and had to go back to her company before going to the Bennet Group. The man looked at the back of Winnie leaving in a hurry, leaking the look of appreciation. Brian had an early morning meeting. After the meeting, the first thing he checked when he was back to the office was whether Winnie had come to work. "Winnie has come. She is having a meeting with Albert in the small conference room." The secretary reported respectfully. "Get some ointment for scald, and no one will be allowed to come in my office when Wendy comes by." Brian finished the order and got to work. The secretary went out to get the ointment. Wendy was nervous on her way, because she was not sure whether Winnie had told Brian what happened yesterday, because she was afraid of what Brian would say to her today. Although she was afraid, Wendy put on the clothes when she first met Brian as Klara and Laura said. She hadn't tied a ponytail for a long time and she had not used to it, but in order to fight for the opportunity, she endured. As she pushed open the door of Brian's office, she saw Brian was working. She was afraid to disturb Brian, so she closed the door gently. However, as she turned to close the door, Brian looked up. As he looked up, the back in front of him looked the same as that in the dream and the picture. Brian was shocked to see that, and everything in his dream appeared in his mind. Was the woman who pushed him away Wendy? Was that why he and Wendy were together? Brian began to have a headache in this moment, and repeated the moment of being hit in his mind. He felt dizzy and like the head did not seem to belong to him. Brian clutched his head and hummed, and then Wendy hurried to go to him. "What's wrong? What's the matter with you?" Wendy asked with concern and had no idea what happened to Brian. "I am fine, I just have a headache." Brian was still trying to endure the pain, but he felt it was getting better. "Did you have a bad sleep, have you had medicine?" Wendy was worried and did not know what to do. "It's all right, I am much better. I don't have to take medicine, I just did not sleep well." Brian said irritability and felt less painful. After a while. "Why are you wearing this today?" Brian asked. Wendy should not like this style. "I got tired of wearing suits for too long, so I changed my style. Just the way it used to be." Wendy saw the nostalgia in the eyes of Brian and thought he liked that. "You don't like these kinds of clothes, do you?" Brian did not remember what Wendy said. His amnesia was selective not complete. He did not remember what it was like when he was with Wendy, so he was panic and messed up with everything. "I used to wear this kind of clothes all the time when I was younger. I liked it, but as I grew up, the things I like changed." "I looked in the mirror today and suddenly felt myself old, so I wanted to find out what I looked like when I was younger, so I wore it. Brian, have you forgotten that I dressed like this when we first met?" Wendy tried her best to talk about the past and the memories, because she was afraid to face the present. Wendy's words made Brian nervous. Was Wendy really the woman in his dream? "It's been a long time and I don't remember it." Brian could only be so perfunctory. "It's so sad. I remember everything and you don't remember anything. It's not fair." Wendy pretended to be angry. She wanted to wake up Brian's love to her. "Sorry." Brian was confused at the moment. He wanted to put all these together, but he did not believe that person was Wendy. He wanted to ask, but he was afraid that Wendy knew too much. But if he did not ask, he felt hard to breathe. "Wendy, this is my first day at work. I didn't expect there are so many things to do today. I called you here because I have something to talk to you, but you might have made a trip in vain. We'll talk about it when I'm done with works these days." Brian needed to calm down and think about whether he should say that. "Oh, I'll come when you are available." "Brian, I will go first, and you don't be tired." Wendy said and turned away. In the past, when Brian drove her away, she always wanted to find various reasons to stay a little longer. But today, the sooner she left, the better it would be for her. This was equal to have opportunity. Wendy walked out of Brian's office happily, thinking about how to thank Klara and Laura, but she saw Winnie coming over, her smile froze at once. Seeing Winnie reminded her of what happened last night. She apologized to Winnie and got twice slapped by her, but she had to endure it, because it was not over. If she offended Winnie, Winnie would complain to Brian. "Have you come to work here, Winwin?" Wendy asked. "Yes, temporarily. I'll go back to my own company when it's over." Winnie answered with indifference. However, Wendy was relaxed and happy, so Winnie had doubts. It seemed that Brian did not say anything, so he did not want to give up Wendy. But Wendy remembered what happened last night. She thought she was right to forgive Wendy, otherwise how do they get along? "Wendy, I have something to take care of and need to go back to the office." As she spoke, Winnie walked to her office. When she went into the office and closed the door, she accidentally saw Wendy and Laura seemed to be saying something, because Wendy blocked Laura's face, Winnie could not see their expressions. Winnie didn't think much of it, closed the door and got to work. Wendy saw Laura before she took the elevator, she could not help but share her joy with Laura. Then she came to Laura and whispered. "No problem for now. He didn't say anything today." "You're not afraid of being seen talking here?" Laura nervously asked, looking around to see if Winnie was there. "I am leaving. Laura, thank you and Klara, your method has worked." Wendy said quietly and went directly to the elevator. Laura was scared and broke into cold sweat. She calmed her mind and went to Winnie's office. "Winnie, this is the summary of the meeting." Laura said and put the folder on Winnie's desk. Finally she started looking around Winnie's office. It was the first time she walked into Winnie's office and she felt grand. And the decoration should have taken a lot of effort, which was consistent with the temperament of Winnie. This office was a million times better than theirs. It was a big company after all. But with such a good environment and treatment, why Winnie was willing to leave? Laura had heard the reasons for her departure, there were many versions, but it was more about her relationship. She now did not understand why Winnie left the Bennet Group. If it were related to relationship, Winnie should try to seize the opportunity. "Winnie, this office is really beautiful, and ridiculously big." Laura could not help sighing. "Yes, the office is very nice. It has a break room inside, but it is not suitable for me." Winnie belittled herself, for the office, no matter how good it was, she would not miss it. "Winnie, why did you leave with such good condition? It's the biggest company in the country, and many people can't get in even if they want to, but you're out of it." Laura tried to make her words sound as nice as possible. Now she was in the Bennet Group with Winnie, and she had to rely on Winnie, so she had to compliment her. "It is not suitable met. It is true that a lot of people want to come in, but I'm not happy here and people don't like me. I feel it's better to leave." "To be honest, the working environment here is good, and the pay is the best. But I can't survive here, so I have no regrets or nostalgia." Winnie stopped the work at hand and said with emotion. In her view, everything here was pain, if possible, she did not want to step in here again. Winnie's frank words touched the heart of Laura. Was Winnie the kind of people who did not fight for anything? Didn't she really care about status? Did she not attach to the privileged environment as she said? How did she not find that Winnie was such a frank woman? "Laura, why did you say to Wendy, do you know each other?"

CHAPTER 380 DAENERYS GETS IT RIGHT

Winnie's sudden words pulled back Laura's thoughts. Because Winnie asked suddenly, Laura was flustered. "Oh, no. I met her in the elevator and she asked me if I was new, and I told her I don't work for this company. But I hardly recognized her, she didn't look like a person at all the last time I met her in the president's office." Laura explained, but then she felt she said too much. In some cases, too many words made people suspicious. "Well, I was surprised by her outfit today. But it's pretty." Winnie did not care about Laura's explanation, but thought of Wendy's dress. Though she had never seen Wendy wore that, she felt familiar with that style. "Well, it's time for me to go out to work." Laura was to leave. She had different attitude to Winnie today and held less hatred to her, but she did not know why, maybe it was what she had just said touched her heart. Winnie had been busy had forgotten that she was in the Bennet Group and that the man she loved was in the next room. It was not until noon that Winnie put together a preliminary plan. It was before Brian took a rest, so Winnie took materials to report work. After greeting the secretary in a formal way, she knocked on the door of the president's office. Hearing his permission, she opened the door and went in. "Mr. Bennet, please confirm this, if it is OK, we will proceed." As Winnie walked along, she went to Brian's desk and put the documents in front of him. "Does the burn on your back still hurt?" Brian did not deal with the work, but cared about Winnie. "If it is not touched, it won't hurt. Don't worry about me. Work is important. If you don't confirm it soon, we won't be able to get on with our work this afternoon." Winnie stressed the work. Now it was working time, and it must be given priority to work. But Brian did not look at the documents. Instead, he got up and walked around the desk to Winnie. He took her hand and walked to the break room. "Why, work, work..." Winnie stressed the work but Brian did not look back and directly took Winnie to the break room. "Take off your clothes." Brian ordered. However, his words made Winnie look puzzled. "What do you want? Why take off my clothes?" Winnie asked with doubts, at this time, Brian gave a rare smile. "Apply medicine on you. Don you have a disorderly thought?" Brian said evilly and thought Winnie must misunderstand him. "You.....You didn't say to apply medicine. You just asked me to take off clothes, sure I will have disorderly thought." Winnie was blushed, embarrassed and wanted to run out. "Well, I will watch my words. Take off your clothes, apply the medicine and I'll go to work." Brian urged her, in fact, he was not in a hurry to work, but wanted to see if Winnie's burn was better. Winnie obeyed and began to take off her clothes. Then she lay on the bed and Brian began to apply medicine to her. Winnie did not say a word during the whole process of applying the medicine. Brian also closed his mouth and made no sound at all. Winnie did not speak because she was waiting for Brian to talk about Wendy, and Brian did not know what to say. More than once, he had guaranteed Winnie that he would talk to

Wendy, but he did not say anything. Winnie must be curious about it, but she did not say anything. "Now, get dressed. Be careful not to break it." Brian put away the ointment and Winnie began to put on her clothes. Winnie still did not speak and Brian was embarrassed. "Hurry up to read my document, or we'll go back to our company if we get nothing to do this afternoon." Winnie got out of bed and saw that Brian had something on his mind, so she had to put forward the work. As Winnie said that, she walked toward the door. Just as her hand touched the door handle, Brian stopped her. "Winwin..." "Yes?" Winnie turned to Brian. "I..." Brian hesitated, but finally he could not speak. "Talk another day. Work first." "Ok, I'll go out. Ask your secretary to inform me the result." Winnie opened the door and went out, but after two steps, she came back. "Thank you for applying the medicine on me." After expressing her gratitude, Winnie left. Winnie had no expectations at all, because their future could not be determined. It was not even clear that if the partnership would be completed. Winnie's gratitude and Brian's apology had the same effect, which was a sign of alienation. Every time Winnie said thanks, Brian had the feeling that they were strangers. Winnie did not go home after work in the evening or go to the suburbs but to Daenerys' home. Because she was alone if she went home and there were so many people in the suburbs, she didn't know where she was, so the best choice was Daenerys' home. In Daenerys' bedroom. "Doctor Burns is still on duty?" Winnie held Jelly Bean in her arms and asked softly. "He said there is an operation and it seems that he can't come home tonight." "Winwin, please put the baby down, it is tired to hold her." Daenerys persuaded Winnie. Since she entered the room, she had been holding the baby. "It is not tired, holding Jelly Bean makes me have sense of achievement." As Winnie said that, she bent her head and kissed the forehead of Jelly Bean happily. When she bowed her head, the clothes hurt the burn on her back, and Winnie could not help twisting her face. "What's wrong?" Daenerys noticed Winnie's discomfort. "It's a long story." Winnie gave Jelly Bean to the matron. "What's the matter? Tell me exactly what's wrong." Originally Daenerys was lying down. Seeing that Winnie did not look well, she sat up. "I got scalded on my back, and Megan got scalded on her foot." ... Winnie said what happened last night, Daenerys was angry to hear that. "Winwin, what do you think? Why do you forgive her? Do you want to make her into Penny? Are you willing to be bullied all the time and get hurt for no reason?" "You should tell Brian and let Brian handle it. Penny targeted Luke, now Wendy hurt Megan. The two children got involved all the time." Daenerys said angrily and pulled out her mobile phone. "If you don't tell him, I'll call Brian right now. I want to see who is more important to him, the children or Wendy." Winnie came forward to stop her and grabbed her phone. "We are fine, I've taught her a lesson. She was afraid and had apologized to me." "Unlike Penny, Wendy is at least sober." "I warned her that it would be the last time, and that if it happens again, I will not spare her." "Don't be angry, it is not good for health." Winnie appeased Daenerys, which made Daenerys speechless. "Winwin, you can't be so merciful. No one remembers your goodness, and she is taking advantage of your goodness. You will end up hurting the children." "Winwin, sit down and we'll have a talk." When Daenerys thought about it, she remembered that Penny had gone to the abyss little by little. She had to help Winnie with advice. "Why are you suddenly so serious?" Winnie asked, but she still sat next to Daenerys. "Winwin, it must never happen again. You and Brian can't go on like that, it's too dangerous for you." "Fight for Brian. Fight to be his wife, so that the children and you can be safe." Daenerys thought it was the best way. "Why do you change your mind so suddenly? You were always against my being with him. And it's impossible that I can be his wife. Brian can't even decide his own marriage." Winnie had never dared to think of such an unrealistic question. She felt she was able to marry into the Bennet family. "Winwin, because Brian couldn't control his marriage, I asked you to fight for it. Penny went to prison, and now there is Wendy. If Wendy is not in line with the conditions of the Bennet family, there will be other women. It goes on and on. Can you bear it?" "The relationship between you and Brian is not clear, and there are two children. If a woman becomes Brian's wife, she will not feel at ease and will try to make you and the children disappear." "You said Wendy is not as vicious as Penny, but people change. If she had been kind, she wouldn't have said those things to the children in your presence." "Winwin, that's it. But everything was an obstacle in face of power and status." Daenerys not felt the most suitable for Winnie was to marry Brian. Winnie did not speak, and Daenerys continued to say. "You always say you want to go away with the children, but it isn't feasible. The Bennet family won't let you do that." "If you leave the children here, the woman married with Brian will have her own children and then your two children would become obstacles, it is dangerous." "That's the way it is in a rich family. No one is pure in heart. They all want to fight for power and gain. What is more, Luke and Megan will be in trouble because of your problem and they can't have a peaceful life." Daenerys tried to persuade Winnie, and regretted her opposition before. If she had thought it through earlier and encouraged Winnie earlier, perhaps these things would not have happened.
