CHAPTER 551 NOT A CHILD WITHOUT PARENTS

Stella was angry and then got up. "Wendy, you know where you got that information. I have had someone look into it, although you were in that City, you were not in the place of the accident." Stella wanted to directly expose Wendy, but she was afraid that Wendy would continue to contact with Uncle Thomas, and Uncle Thomas would be alert, so she made up a reason. But whatever it was, she was sure it wasn't Wendy. Wendy looked at Stella in surprise, not she was panic. Stella knew that what Wendy did was just acting. But it did not feel real. Since Stella knew everything, why didn't she tell Brian and allow her to act? Wendy had doubt about it and now she did not know what to do. "Stella..." "Do you want to know why I didn't tell Brian?" Stella knew Wendy doubts and then explained to her. "Brian is get back his memory little by little. If I say it out, it would have an impact on him, so I kept silent. But if you use this to hurt Winnie, it is your fault." "Wendy, you can continue to deceive Brian, and I will not interfere with it. But if you use this to hurt Winwin again, I will expose your lie." Stella can't warm Wendy today. Stella felt guilty that Winnie took all the things. But for the sake of the overall situation, she could not expose the fact, so she alleviated the damage to Winnie by doing this. After warming Winnie, Stella left. At this moment, Wendy found that her sky was dark and could not see the sun today. Things always didn't go the way she wanted them to. Nothing ever went the way she wanted it to. She wanted to get Winnie away from Brian, but it did not work and there were so many people to protect Winnie. Winnie had so many people behind her, how could she possibly win Winnie? One of her most important advantages was revealed by Stella now. What should she do? All she saw was darkness, how could she continue? The next day Winnie recuperated at home, she was bored to death all day. She was thinking what she should do. She used to look forward to going home after work every day, but now she wanted to go to work and did not want to stay at home. When she felt bored, unexpectedly she received a call from Officer Lee. "Officer Lee, Is there any news about the case?" Winnie thought Richard was caught, so she was pleased, but she became disappointed after hearing Officer Lee's words. "Sorry, Richard hasn't been found yet. It's our negligence." Officer Lee was apologetic. He was embarrassed to make the call, but he had to make it because he needed help from Winnie. "It's all right, he will be caught sooner or later." Winnie comforted him. She knew that Officer Lee was a responsible police officer and he had been working hard on this case. "Actually, Miss Chambers, I'm calling to ask you a favor. The security system of our station has some problems and the person in charge is away on a business trip these two days. I have asked several people to fix it, but it did not work." "I know you're a computer whiz, so my I have your help? I'm afraid some of the secrets will be revealed if we delay long enough. That's why I'm calling you." Officer Lee explained why he was calling. He was not out of options, or he would not ask someone outside the industry to fix the system. "I can help, but it is the public security system with a lot of secrets in it. Is it convenient for me to fix it?" Winnie had concerns. In all her years in the industry, she had never been in contact with such network facilities as the government, because she knew that it was likely to leak state secrets and cause great losses to the country. The public security system was the same. There were a lot of serious criminals on the run. If it was leaked, she would have to bear the responsibility. "Don't worry about that. I'm calling because I trust you. Miss Chambers, we're short of time. Please help us." Officer Lee had no time to waste. As he said, if he did not trust Winnie, he would not make this call. "Well, then, I'll be there. But I please ask one of your staff to be with me, so that he can testify that I don't steal any secrets." Winnie agreed, but she had to be careful not to get herself into trouble. "No problem, no problem. I'm coming to pick you up now." Officer Lee was happy. As long as Winnie came, the whole system could be fixed. "Isn't it urgent. I'd better go by myself." After that, Winnie hopped downstairs. "Rufus, is Paul here? I have something urgent to deal with." Winnie walked down the stairs and saw Rufus sitting in the living room. To save time, she might need Paul to send her there. Rufus looked back, only to see Winnie hopping downstairs. He was worried and got up to hold Winnie. "Why go downstairs? You can call me." "It's all right, I can do it myself. Is Paul at home?" Winnie asked again. "No, he went to pick up the kids. Where are you going? I can drive you there." Rufus helped Winnie down the stairs. "Ok, thank you." Winnie was sorry to always bother Rufus, but it was urgent, so she could only ask him for help. On the way to the police station. Learning that Winnie was to go to the police station, Rufus asked curiously. "Is Richard caught?" Winnie gave a smile. "When Officer Lee called me, I thought the same as you that Richard had been arrested. Unfortunately, no. There is something wrong with their public security network and they asked me to come and help." Winnie gave a general explanation. "Oh, I thought Richard had been caught." Rufus said wittily. "Me too." Winnie responded. Both of them wanted Richard to be caught as soon as possible, so that they had less things to worry about. "Winwin, since Officer Lee believes in you, do everything you can do to help. Officer Lee has been doing a lot of work on your case." Rufus said to Winnie like a father. Although he was assured of all aspects of Winnie, he just wanted to nag. "I know, I will try to help." Winnie readily agreed. "Winwin, how is Vanessa these days in school?" Rufus asked about Vanessa. He had been wanting to ask such a question and had been worrying about Vanessa. "She is good, Rufus, you needn't worry about her. I think it can make her independent and have a life with others. In the future, she can make her own decisions, so she'd better have such experience. My aunt and I can't be with her all the time. She has to live on her own." Winnie had her views on that Vanessa lived out. When Vanessa moved out, she was worried about her, but it was a good thing. "Our family is different from others. Others have their parents to support them. Although we have our aunt, she is old not and she could not worry too much about us. We have to support ourselves." "If we don't allow her to move out, I'm afraid it will be difficult for her to solve problem, and it will affect her ambition." Winnie was worry about her sister, but she could not take care of her all her life. "Vanessa is still a child, there are many opportunities for her, so don't push too hard." Rufus felt more distressed after hearing Winnie's words. Vanessa was just twenty years old, she was supposed to be protected by families, but she had to live out. It was is fault. He didn't act like a father. "No matter how old she is, she is not a child since she lost her parents." Winnie said sadly. She and Vanessa were not children anymore. They were stronger than any adult on that day of the accident and endured more than any adult. It was fate and no one could change it, so they had to bear it. Vanessa bore more than she did, she was only a teenager when their parents died. As a teenager, she was no longer childish, because no one was there to love her. Hearing that, Rufus felt his heart was hit and felt that it was so uneasy for two sisters. Although Rufus had not personally experienced their ordeal, he knew it was hard for them to get through it. Rufus was just driving, silent. He was so guilty and he didn't know what to say. It was his selfishness that ruined their lives. His love was a burden. Rufus waited outside the police station and Winnie went in and began to work. "How long has it been since this system was upgraded?" Winnie asked Officer Lee while she was working on it." Officer Lee only dealt with the case, so he did not know any about system, so he asked the professionals around to answer Winnie. "It was recently upgraded. Logically, this shouldn't happen." The professional was explained, seriously watching Winnie operate on it. "Have you heard from the other branch that they had the same situation?" Winnie asked again. She felt there was something wrong, it was not like hacker attack. "Yes, we just got a call. There are already two branches in the same situation." Another police officer answered. Before he told others the situation, Winnie had found it out, so he looked at Winnie with admiration. "It's not your problem, Officer Lee. Can I go to the master system?" Winnie asked. She had to get permission before she entered it or it would be illegal. Breaking the law in the police station would be captured directly. "Wait a moment, according to the regulation, I need to ask the superior." Officer Lee said and then made a call to his superior. Not long after, officer Lee came back. "Ok, you can go into the master system."

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 552 ANALYSIS OF SUSPECTS

Having the permission, Winnie got into the master system with the fastest speed. After a while Winnie spoke. "The problem lies in the master system. If I'm right, if no one breaks it in an hour, the entire system in B City will crash." Hearing that, everyone present was shock. The public security system had never had such a serious problem, so they were so nervous. "This guy is so bold and even dare to hack the public security system? If he is caught, he will learn his consequence." One of the officers said angrily. But it was a timely reminder to Winnie. Why did he attack the public security system? If he is capable, he should hack the government to get information. "Why this hacker only hack the branch system? The root of master system has no problem." Winnie said and then continued to check. "Miss Chambers, please help us out to catch this hacker." Officer Lee pleaded. They all wanted to check it out. "Ok, I will take the credit." Winnie joked and then started her first official collaboration with the police. Winnie first stopped the hacker from attacking each branch in B City, which took about an hour. She then started to catch suspects on the main system. She spent half an hour on it. When she found the criminal, Winnie was stunned. "This....." After thinking for a moment, Winnie smiled. "Your leader is making fun of you." As soon as Winnie said that, all attention was focused on the culprit. The two technicians saw what was going on and then said in disbelief. "It is not a hacker, it is just a test of our skill." "Yeah, he can't make fun on us like this." The two technicians complaint, because they were not able to catch the hacker. "It seems that our superior want to check our ability to prevent a problem." Officer Lee was calmer than the two technicians, but he never expected that it was superior inspection. "I have the hacker under control, is it assaulting police." Winnie could not help laughing, their so-called superior was now under her control. "No, we'll make sure you're okay." Officer Lee laughed, too. There were superior inspections all the time. But this was the first time it attacked the network. It looked like their boss has a lot of tricks up his sleeve. Just as Officer Lee said that, his phone rang. He took one look and answered it immediately. "Yes, Sir....." "....." "Yes, Sir..." "....." "Thanks for you praise!" "....." "We will do a better job, Bye, leader!" Only Officer Lee knew what was said on the phone, but judging by his tone and the increasingly exaggerated smile on his face, it was a good thing. Officer Lee put down the phone, pretended to be serious, but there was a big smile on his face. "We won the first place in the inspections and helped all the branches solve their problems. The crowning achievement is that we caught the man behind. Our leaders will give us certificates and collective awards." Officer Lee said with a laugh. They were so lucky. "Great, what a bonus!" "Great, this collective honor is supreme." "We would like to thank Miss Chambers, without whom we could not have received such an honor." Everyone was happy, but they knew it was Winnie's credit. When Winnie looked at these excited smiling faces, she felt that it was the most correct choice. "Right, Miss Chambers, our leader said let the hacker out first, or their system will be crash." It was only then Officer Lee remembered his leader's order. Hearing that, Winnie hurried to "release" the hacker. The inspection was over, Winnie was helped by Officer Lee to his office. Officer Lee handed Winnie a cup of tea. "Thank you very much, Miss Chambers. You are injured, but you came to help us. I am sorry, but we'd all be lost without you." Officer Lee thanked her politely and felt guilty for Winnie coming to help with injury. "No, it's a minor injury." Winnie said gently. As Rufus said, Officer Lee helped them a lot, so this help was not a big deal. "I am sorry that Richard has not been caught." "He hid himself well, and there's no news about him." Officer Lee, as a police officer, felt that it was his fault not to catch the suspect for so long. "It doesn't matter, justice has long arms and one day he will be brought to justice." "By the way, Officer Lee, is there any clue from Penny?" Winnie comforted Officer Lee, but she was still very concerned about this matter. "We have been keeping a close eye on Penny. None of her family members have seen her for so long. But some friends often go there." Officer Lee said and handed the information of the Penny's visitors to Winnie. "These are the people who met Penny. You can help me to see which one is suspicious." Winnie took it and had a look. Officer Lee continued. "We have investigated all these people and they are not suspected of having contact with Richard. They didn't say anything suspicious during the meeting. But they had talked about you and Mr. Bennet." Winnie read it while listening to Officer Lee. She knew Thomas and had reminded Brian to keep an eye on it. Daenerys, Oscar and her had been there to see Penny. It was not a surprise. But the next two people made her frown. Wendy and Klara. Wendy visited Penny several times, but Klara visited her once. Winnie recalled about it. Wendy did not know Penny, but she came to visit Penny, and the transcript of the meeting made Winnie angry. It was Penny in the back to give advice, and Klara was also behind the scenes. It was she introduced Penny to Wendy. So the three joined hands to target her. 'Penny, you are in prison, but you have no regret, you are so hopeless.' As Winnie wanted to see Thomas's records, Officer Lee's words caught her attention. "Penny volunteered to be transferred to a general cell in recent days. We thought she had a plan, but she said it was too lonely to be in a cell alone and she didn't want to go through six years by herself." "We watched her carefully and there was nothing unusual." Officer Lee considered every detail carefully, but did not find anything wrong or any possibility to contact with Richard. "She volunteered to be transferred to the general cell?" Winnie was confused. Officer Lee didn't know Penny, but she did. Penny was a person who cared about material life and valued face and dignity above the sky. She was so comfortable in her cell, why she asked to be transferred to a general cell? She should have her tricks. "We are watching her closely, and if she contacts with anyone suspicious, we will definitely investigate it." Officer Lee guaranteed Winnie. He had failed to catch Richard, but it was necessary to make Winnie feel secure. "Thank you, Officer Lee, you've done so much to keep us safe." Winnie said gratefully, but she was still thinking about Penny. "Never mind, it's our job. It is our duty to serve the people and bring criminals to justice." "Miss Chambers, do you think these people suspicious." Officer Lee said sincerely and then continued to discuss the case. "I don't think anyone is suspected except Thomas." Winnie gave such answer because she was sure that Klara and Wendy did not have the courage to participate in the murder case, especially Klara. She knew the story, but she would not do that for the elderly and the children. Their target was Winnie, they came to Penny for advice because they had no other way out. They didn't have the guts for a bigger crime. "Thomas, compared with the others, I think he is the most suspected. I did some digging and learnt that he was no contact with Richard. But I know from the conversation between Wendy and Penny that Thomas and Richard knew each other before." "Thomas arranged a single cell for Penny because of his friend. They were very careful about what they said and there was nothing special." Officer Lee said about Thomas. Winnie did not know the friendship between Thomas and Richard, but as a Bennet, he should be an enemy to Richard, so it was incredible. Winnie knew nothing about Thomas and she never asked Brian about the Bennet family, so she now was not sure about it. "Miss Chamber, please keep these findings a secret from anyone, lest words get out." After that, the topic ended. But Winnie needed help from Officer Lee. "Officer Lee, I need your help. I wondered if you know something from real estate. I want to check a house." "I know a classmate from high school who works in real estate. What do you want to know?" Officer Lee agreed to help, because Winnie had helped him. "Well, if you please. I will send you the specific address of the house, please help me find the owner." Winnie said with a smile. She had been wanting to buy her house back. But she did not want to tell Brian, or he would buy it for her, so she asked Officer Lee for help.

CHAPTER 553 LOSS AVOIDANCE

Rufus was in the parking lot waiting for Winnie. During the period of waiting, he had been thinking about what Winnie said, about Vanessa had to be independent. He felt more distressed about it and missed Vanessa. He looked at his watch and found it was time after school. Winnie might take a while, so Rufus sent a message to Winnie and drove to Vanessa's school. Rufus made a call to Vanessa and asked her out. When he saw Vanessa, he finally gave a smile. "Vanessa, have I bothered your class?" He asked before Vanessa reached him. "No, I am after school." Vanessa answered Rufus while walking, but her tone was deep and she was expressionless. "Good, I am worried about you, so I came to see you. I brought you a lot of food, you can take it back and eat with your classmates." With that, Rufus opened the trunk and took out two large bags of food. "Thank you, Rufus." Vanessa was still indifferent. She was not angry but guilty to Rufus. "We are families, no need to thank. How are you going? If you don't get used to live in school, you can go home. I can take you to school." Rufus said with a smile. Vanessa was indifferent, but he did not mind it. She came out to see him, which meant that she did not blame him. "I'm fine. I'm used to it. I need to study, so I will not go home. I'll be back for the holidays." Vanessa refused and said she would go back on holiday, because her aunt would come back at that time, which gave her a reason not to go back. "Vanessa, are you still angry? It was my bad..." "No, Rufus, I really don't want to bother my sister. It's hard enough for her, I can't become her burden." Vanessa interrupted Rufus. She thought a lot. She had no right to judge others. Her sister had told her that no one in the world except her parents had the duty to be good to her. So her dissatisfaction with the Bennet family was unreasonable, because they had no reason to be good to her and her sister. But she and her sister were dependent on each other, and such feeling grew stronger when her aunt was gone. They were like two unwanted orphans, neither of whom was at ease. In this case, she should be nice to her sister, and her sister should be nice to her. She could not be a burden to her sister, so she did not want to bother the Bennet family. "It's not easy for you or your sister, and it's all my fault." Rufus did not continue to say sorry, because Vanessa did not listen to it. He only had inexplicable regrets, which made Vanessa confused. "Don't say that, Rufus. My sister and I are destined to be like this. It has nothing to do with anyone." Rufus words were unpredictable, so was Vanessa's comfort. She comforted him was purely because Rufus was guilty, but she didn't know why he was guilty. He should not be so guilty because of what happened that day. "Vanessa, if you really don't blame me, come back to visit me on weekend. I miss you." Rufus knew Vanessa still cared about that, but he still wanted to invite Vanessa. It was a bit of an imposition, but it'd better than that he could not see her. "Rufus, I'll come and see you when I am available. Thank you for thinking of me." "Rufus, I will accept these food. I must go back to the canteen for dinner. If I am late, there will be nothing to eat." Vanessa said, stooping to pick up two large bags of food, and then said goodbye. "Good-bye, Rufus. I'll invite you out to dinner sometime." Although she saw reluctance in Rufus' eyes, but as her voice fell, she still turned away. She had a strange feeling about Rufus, like a father visiting his daughter at school. Only a father would show such concern. Unfortunately, he is not her father. If he was her father and they had conflict, she would run to give him a hug. Rufus looked at Vanessa more and more away, feeling depressed. She was young but sensible. She had experienced the pain of family loss and had overcome too many difficulties. The next day Winnie decided to go to work because she could not stay at home anymore. "Alice, I need your help." Winnie sat in the office chair and said to Alice who had finished reporting work. Alice gave a smile. "Ok, what can I do for you?" "Personal thing." "No problem, I can help. You seldom asked me for help, you are now giving me a chance to show my ability." Alice joked. She was glad that Winnie came to work, she just had a problem with her injured foot. "Drive me to and from work from today on. Brian's father is old and he still pick me up, I feel....." "I understand, no problem." Before Winnie finished, Alice agreed readily. "Winnie, Mr. Bennet's father is very nice to you. Everyone in the company admires him. They say he treats you like a daughter." Alice said. "You only heard good words, you haven't heard all the bad words. They all say behind me that I am a mistress and that I want to married to Brian taking advantage of two children." Winnie's tone was relaxed. She had heard these words more than once. "They can say what they want, we can't control it. We are mortals, not gods. You never know what you are like in someone else's mouth. So, Winnie, don't pay attention to those words. As long as you are happy and live a sunny life every day, our trip of life will be worth it." Alice seriously enlightened Winnie. She had heard far more negative words than praise about Winnie. But in her heart Winnie was not only a rare talent, but also a good woman, so she never took the disparaging remarks to heart. "Oh, you have a unique understanding of life at a young age. Alice, did you figure this out on your own or did someone else told you that?" Alice was serious, but Winnie smiled. No matter who said this, or it was suspected of plagiarism, Winnie appreciated Alice's positive and optimistic attitude towards life. "My grandpa told me." Alice laughed again. If her grandfather was a man of wisdom, she would have heard a lot of wise words. "Winnie, I have been listening to these words since I was a child. My grandpa always said such words to me." When it came to her grandpa, Alice laughed happily. She learned a lot from her grandpa. While the two were talking and laughing, Calvin knocked on the door and came in. And he had a serious face, which didn't go with the lively atmosphere of the two women. "Winnie, there is a new YB phone. It will be on the market in two days, but something goes wrong. The technicians have been working on it but they can't figure it out. They want your help." Hearing that, Winnie stopped smiling, but she was concerned. "Calvin, I am not..." When Winnie wanted to explain, Brian called. "It is Mr. Bennet, I gotta answer the phone." Then Winnie picked up the phone. "Brian." "Do me a favor, there's a problem with the phone that only you seem to be able to solve it. The damage will be great if we don't fix it soon." Brian was anxious. Two people came to her for the same thing, so it was big, but... "I just wanted to tell Calvin that I am not the person of your company, is it appropriate?" Winnie said in euphemism. She was afraid of leaking industry secrets in the process, even if she and Brian had relationship, it would be hard to explain. "We don't think so much. I trust you. Go and help. We won't have time to correct it if you are late." Brian was on a business trip and could not come back. After receiving the news, he was very worried. If the problem could not be solved, the lost would be huge, and it would be the biggest accident since he took over the Bennet Group. Now only Winnie could help. Brian knew what she was worried about, but he believed Winnie more than anyone else. "Ok, I will be there. Don't worry too much." Winnie agreed after a moment of hesitation. Hearing that Brian was anxious, she could not bear to refuse. "Good, but you have to be careful of your foot. Ask Calvin carry you." Brian was concerned. Hearing that, Winnie gave a smile and felt sweet in heart. "Are you crazy? We are in the company, how can I ask Calvin to carry me? Don't worry, I'll be careful. Just do your work and come back as quickly as possible." Winnie hung up the phone. There was an emergency to deal with, so she did not have time to chat with Brian. Winnie, Calvin and Alice came to the branch together and began to face the challenge. Fortunately, she solved the problem perfectly, and Brian didn't lose too much. Felix learned from Stella that Winnie helped the company avoid the loss. "Grandpa, Winwin has helped the company a lot. If it had not been for her, the company would have lost not only money, but also its reputation and stock. Stella said complacently that she was happy that Winnie had solved the problem.

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 554 DELIBERATE PERSUASION

Stella came with purpose. As long as it was a good thing of Winnie, she would come and tell her Grandpa so that he would have good impression on Winnie. "Winnie really deserves praise. Before Gloria comes to meet, invite Winnie to a dinner. I want to thank her." Felix admired Winnie's ability to work and also recognized her attitude. He wanted to thank Winnie from heart, but Stella could not accept his way of thanking. "Forget it, Grandpa, last time she was here, but Maria gave a black face, which not only made Winnie embarrassed, but also made Vanessa moved out of our house." "Don't thank her. Even if you invite her to dinner, my dad will not agree her to come." Stella made a joke to Felix about what happened last time. Winnie was not a doll, how could she be treated at will? "There were so many people and you are still the younger generation. Maria was no brain, but I could not scold her in front of the younger generation." Felix covered up his selfishness perfectly, and then he asked a question. "Vanessa moved out from home because of it, why?" "She went out so that she wouldn't bother her sister and she sister wouldn't be less discriminated against." Stella said in a strange tone, knowing that her grandpa was in the intentional evasion of responsibility. Stella continued. "Her aunt had worked hard for the two sisters all her life and finally has a chance to travel. Before she left, she entrusted Vanessa to our family, but we drove her away." "There is no one at home now, so she has to go to school to live in with her classmates. How would we explain it if her aunt finds out?" "Maria were happy after saying that. You and Uncle Thomas were silent, our younger generation dare not refute her and could only see Winnie suffered grievance. How do you think Vanessa felt? Vanessa was self-restraint and quality, if not, the situation would have been out of hand that day." Stella said seriously, showing dissatisfaction of that day. She wanted to let her Grandpa know that Winnie needed to be respected and her dignity could not be trampled. "Vanessa's temper is like Winnie's. She is stubborn and unconvinced, but sensible, afraid of getting her sister in troubles." Felix sighed. Was his silence really wrong that day? He not only gave Winnie warning, but also indirectly hurt Vanessa. "Grandpa, don't ask Winwin to come. Since the blind date between Gloria and Brian got spread, Winnie did not say anything, but she has become estranged in the suburbs." "She felt she was outsider since Brian has a girlfriend. She didn't feel at home in the suburbs, how can she come to the old house?" Stella had observed Winnie's changes. Feeling of Winnie's alienation, she felt Winnie was sad. "Grandpa, let Winnie leave with two kids. Don't make her live in an awkward position at our home. Wherever she goes, the two kids are our family."

"And if Gloria and Brian get married, they can have their kids." Stella said this suggestion deliberately, only to test grandpa's determination. "I won't compromise on that. The two kids are my families, no one can take them away. Gloria can give birth to kids, but the kids may not be as smart as Luke and Megan." "If Winnie takes Luke away, the Bennet family will be less of a good successor. I won't agree." Felix had a tough attitude. He would not allow the kids to be taken away, especially they were so smart. They were just six, but they earned much reputation for the Bennet family, they would have a bright future. How could Felix let go such a rare talent? "Grandpa, you even want to control Luke's life? Our family is good enough, what else do you want? You are over 90, can you live in peace?" After listening to Felix's words, Stella was angry, but she had had it under control. How could grandpa be so selfish? Everyone had his own life. Even if Luke wanted to be a mason, it was his own choice and he would enjoy it. But his fate was in the hands of Felix. Even if the living conditions were superior, he would be depressed. Grandpa had controlled Brian, but he even wanted to control Luke, it was too much. "What, what's wrong with ninety years old? You mean I won't be able to see Luke grow up?" Felix was not angry. He knew that his time was limited and he could not control the future of Luke. But as long as he lived one day, he had to give advice for the future of the Bennet Group. "Yes, you can, you can live to be more than a hundred years old. But even if you see him grow up, you will be more than a hundred years old, do you still want to control his life? Since you can't control him, let him grow up freely." Stella was speechless. How could grandpa go so far? Now he was old and had no energy to do anything. Brian had the real power of the Bennet Group. If it wasn't for the respect to his grandfather, Brian would have been out of control of him. But Grandpa controlled Brian by using it. "You've been worrying about the Bennet Group all your life. Don't worry about it now that you're old. Brian runs the company well, you can rest assured." Stella persuaded him. She felt that grandpa should let go and not interfere in anything. "I was born for the Bennet Group, and I'm going to dedicate my life to it. Over my dead body would I let go." Felix's attitude was as usual. Even if he knew Stella was for his own good, he would never let go of the Bennet Group. "Alas..... Grandpa, I don't know what to say." "If you insist, Winnie will suffer a lot. She was judged by people at work because of the two kids. Her whole life has been ruined." "She could have just left the kids with us. With her ability to work, many companies would want her, why was she willingly be wronged to stay in our house?" "Because she was kind, she was not selfish and devoted to the kids and Brian." Stella used all methods and said all words, if her grandpa insisted, there was nothing she could do. "Do you mean I am now kind?" Felix was still not angry, and his voice sounded calm. Only when he talked to Stella, he would not lose his temper. Only when he talked to Stella did his temper break out. "If you don't give in and only use her, you are narrow-minded. You had no equality between people." The implication was her grandpa was not kind. Stella said boldly, but with euphemism. Although she knew that grandpa especially doted on her, she never used it to disobey grandpa. But today she had to say it so that her grandpa could think about it that the rich could not despise others and control others. After saying that, Stella took a glance at her grandfather, afraid her grandfather would be dizzy, afraid that her grandpa's blood pressure went soar. She added, as her grandfather frowned. "Alas..... but I can barely understand, you grew up in the old society after all." Stella saved her grandpa's self-esteem, but it was ironic. "You're mocking me. I grew up in the old society, I could not even have food to eat because we were poor." Felix was a clever person and for sure he knew that Stella was satirical to him. But Stella's words evoked his recollection of suffering. It was because these memories appeared in the mind, he learned Stella's irony and he did not get angry. "Grandpa, if you know how it feels to be poor, why do you care so much about family background now? The society is different. Our family is already very good, and Brian has the ability to make the Bennet Group even better. We don't need help of other families." Stella spoke out boldly seeing that her grandpa was not angry. She went too far today, but grandpa was not angry. Stella was confused, but she had to have a talk with her grandpa since he was not angry. "Grandpa, must we sacrifice Brian's personal happiness to help the Bennet Group? Must two innocent kids bear all these? What the kids want was a home. I don't think you can be so cruel to deprive them of happiness." "And Winnie, she likes Brian, but she did nothing wrong. And as you can see, she is kind and sensible. If other family has so excellent daughter-in-law, they will be so happy. If we lost her, it will be a great loss." Stella persuaded Felix taking the kids and Winnie as the center, to solve the problem as soon as possible and end the suffering of Winnie. It was a shortcut, so Stella tried her best to persuade him. In the past, grandpa refused to such a topic, and he would tell her not to talk about it. However, from the time Luke won the prize to now, although grandpa had not changed his attitude, he would not resist it. Stella had been looking at her grandpa after saying her words. Felix frowned as if thinking, Stella could not guess what he was thinking. "Stella, didn't you advise me to allow Winnie to leave with two kids? You now want me to accept Winnie now?" Felix did not give his answer, but asked Stella.

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 555 THE GAP BETWEEN IDEAL AND REALITY

Through Felix's question, Stella found that all people and all things needed time. Grandpa lived to be more than ninety years old. His roots of thinking were deeper than anyone else's, and it was the hardest thing to change the direction of his roots. "Grandpa, I know your ideas are deeply rooted, and I'm not asking you to change them all at once. After all, Winnie did nothing wrong, we can't always make a hard time for her." "If you can accept Winnie, that's the perfect ending. No child wants to live without their parents. And which couple can suffer the torment of being apart?" Stella did not dare it in a domineering way, so that her grandpa would not resist. Stella tactfully gave her opinion. "Grandpa, it's ok not to accept her, but we must think of a way to make her feel better. Even if it's for the good of the company and she works harder for the company, we shouldn't go too far." Stella looked at her grandpa with expectation, hoping that grandpa could change his mind and everyone could see hope. Felix spoke after a moment of thinking. "The bottom line for me is that she goes home with the kids, continues to work and takes care of the kids. I can turn a blind eye to her relationship with Brian." With that, he got up and picked up his crutch. "Stella, I am tired, I need to go back for some sleep." As his words fell, Felix went to his room slowly. Stella did not ask him to stay, because she knew that her grandpa had begun to resist this topic, but her grandpa's answer had been a concession. With such a promise from her grandfather, even if Winnie really felt the suburbs one day, her grandfather would not make it difficult for her. Brian's business trip was a few days longer than expected. He left on the day Winnie got injured, now Winnie had recovered and could go to work, but he had not yet come back from business trip. It was weekend, as the last time, Winnie went back to her home to stay with Vanessa, as well as the two kids. Rufus felt lonely every time they went back home. At this moment, he missed most Isobel. He stood by the window of his room, watching the drizzle outside, depressed. If he did not escape and did not fear the threat of his father but was brave to solve everything, he thought it would not end up like this. He should be on trip with Isobel now. Brian and Winnie should live happily together. But the gap between the ideal and reality was big, and this gap was caused by him. Looking at the rainy weather, he remembered that he and Isobel broke up in the rainy day. Rufus made a call to Isobel at this hour. Isobel answered his phone, as she promised, afraid that Rufus had someone to follow her. "Yes?" Isobel said in a soft tone. Almost every time she picked up the phone of Rufus, she would say the same sentence. She thought he was to talk about Brian and Winnie, other than that, they had nothing to talk about. "Are you still in H Country?" Rufus asked. He had been used to Isobel's opening sentence and if he said nothing, their conversation would be over. "Yes, I want to spend more days here." Isobel answered indifferently. "Vanessa is not here with me, I become so idle. I'm bored by being alone, so can I travel with you?" Rufus asked but he did not know if Isobel would say yes. "I don't mind you travelling, but you'd better find your own tour group. If it is found out that we travel together, everything will be known. And we are not suitable to travel together." Isobel refused. She did not dare to take a risk and dare not be with Rufus. Let alone travel, standing together would be enough to make her feel guilty to many people. "Isobel....." He called Isobel's name, but did not continue his words. He took a deep breath before he spoke. "Isobel, can you give me another chance? Give me a chance to redeem everything I owe you. Give me a chance to make clear of the chaos in everyone's lives. I want to settle everything and be with you." Rufus said similar words several times, although Isobel refused, he did not give up. "We should bear the consequence of our own mistakes. and I know I'm not being responsible. But the sooner we are found out, the sooner we are dead. The kids will forgive us only if we are dead." Isobel still refused, but not direct as before. She was not afraid of death, and if death would solve the problem, she would trade her life now for peace. But she didn't want Rufus to die, she wanted Rufus to live well. Rufus's life was in a complete mess because of her. Her wife died and he had been living alone for years. All this should be borne by her, but she really wanted the peaceful life last longer and did not want to change the life because of her. "If death would put the whole thing to rest and save the kids's happiness, I would rather die." Rufus said in a serious one. He took a sign before he spoke. "Things look calm on the surface right now, but everyone has something to worry about. All of us torture ourselves when we're alone." "There are different things about me and other people, it never leaves me. I think about it all the time how to solve it and how to make myself feel better." "I've been thinking about it for more than twenty years, but I haven't come up with a good idea. Your idea that death can calm everything is probably the best way." Rufus had always been depressed and his life had always been gray. Although his wife's death had nothing to do with him and he did not own his wife in any respect, he felt sorry for his kids that they had lived their life in haze. Now it was better, but Rufus was clear that it was superficial. His son and daughter still cared about the death of their mother. One day they would expose it. It was like a land mine buried under house, which could explode at any moment, leaving those who know of it terrified all the time. "Live a good life, don't think about the past, don't spend all day planning how things will go. It will all come out in time and you can deal with it when it's time." Isobel knew that Rufus was depressed and he had a hard time for years, but it was their life, on one could change that. When they were helpless, they could only leave it to fate, it would give an answer in the end. "But..." Rufus wanted to told Isobel that he wanted to solve the problem in the fast speed, but after a word, he stopped. He found that he had been repeating these words and Isobel had been refusing. Isobel was not afraid facing it but she considered for others. She was a woman and she could not bear that after she was hurt. "Never mind, don't take it to heart. Since you don't want me to travel with me, I will not go. Since H Country is good, you can spend more time there." "I gotta go out, bye." With that, he hung up the phone. This was the first time he hung up the phone first and did not continue the topic. He did not want to be selfish and did not want Isobel to face the chaos family with him and did not want her to face the past left behind. At that moment, he did not want Isobel to come back, he wanted her to stay in H Country to lead her life in peace. He would face and solve the problem alone, so that Isobel would not lose her life. Winnie was busy at home even if she had a holiday. Vanessa went to the library with her classmates, leaving Winnie alone at home to clean up the house and wash clothes for the kids. And then she went to supermarket for ingredient and fruit. She thought when she cooked the dinner, Vanessa was supposed to come back, but she was wrong, before she cooked, Vanessa had come back. "You are back early, I thought you will be home later." Winnie looked back and told to Vanessa, but found Vanessa was gloomy. "What happened? Do you have a fight with your classmate?" She asked. "No, I am angry about a piece of news." Vanessa changed her shoes and threw herself into the sofa. "Where are the kids?" She was angry, but she was concerned about the kids. "They are doing homework upstairs. What new did you read?" Winnie did not know what happened, but she was uneasy. She was afraid that it was news about Brian, because only Brian had the attention from the media. "Read it yourself." After making sure that the kids were not there, she pulled out her phone and showed it to her sister. It was on the headline, billions of people could see that. Winnie took her phone and saw the title. "Mr. Bennet is in the show." Seeing that, she felt calm, probably it was assure, so there was no need to guess. But she did not feel good. She then began to read the text, saying that Brian had a relationship. After reading it, her eyes were still on the phone. She did not know what Brian was thinking. She told him that he could ignore her feeling, but he could not ignore the kids's feelings.

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 556 HER SISTER IS NOTHING

If the kids read the news, how could she explain to them? Winnie took a sign and then returned the phone to Vanessa. "Don't be angry, it will happen a lot in the future. it is big now, we will be over, though the kids will be sad." "Vanessa, don't worry about me. I have known about it, I know what to do. Don't let this thing affect your mood." Winnie was uncomfortable, but she still comforted Vanessa. It was her stuff, she did not want to bother others. "I will get changed and I will cook." With that, she went back to her room. Change clothes? She was wearing clothes for cooking. Vanessa was worried that her sister pretended to be tough. Vanessa was angry and then sent this news to Brian and added. "Brian, you are so awesome that from time to from you can occupy the headline, I think you will have a wedding soon. Don't forget to invite me. I will bless you for my sister." Vanessa was disappointed again, she had forgot how many times she was disappointed at him. She never saw hope from him. Winnie went back to her room and made a call to Brian. "Don't you really care about the feelings of the kids? Since you don't care about them, I will tell them, so that they will be prepared." Winnie blamed him. Brian was confused and did not know what had happened. "What happened, Winwin?" "You don't know it? You showed up in the fashion show, don't you know that it will be reported by the media? So you create scandal with other women on your business trip?" Winnie was sad that Brian did not care the kids and her at all. She was a man, her heart was made by fresh, it could not be hurt. She understood Brian's situation, so she would give him time. but again and again, he did something to hurt her. Fine, she deserved to be hurt, but what about the kids? Didn't he care about the feeling of the kids? Did he really want to hurt their feelings? "Winwin..." Hearing that, he understood what was going on? It must be that his picture with Gloria on the fashion show had been reported. Brian wanted to explain, but was interrupted. "I am sorry I am wrong, I should not say you create scandal with other women. You just were there with your girlfriend, and it has nothing to do with others." "Brian, I have the last request. Think twice before you act, think about the kids. If you really want them to know that, please tell them yourself and don't let them know in this way." With that, she hung up the phone angrily. It did not matter if Brian knew about it and if he explained or not. It was a fact that he went to a fashion show with Gloria. He should have known the consequence, so it had no need to explain. After hanging up the phone, Brian knew it was big, so he checked out his phone. When he took out his phone, he saw Vanessa's phone and clicked on it. Seeing that picture, he was sure that it had been exaggerated. Reading Vanessa's message, he knew that she was disappointed more at him. He did not call Vanessa back but made a call to Albert. "Delete the gossip news, it is big..." "It has been deleted by Chairman." Albert knew it was his fault on that. When he saw that, he wanted to delete it. But before he made a move, he found out that it had been deleted by Felix. "My grandpa?" Brian asked with disbelief. "Yes, Chairman said it can't be read by two kids, or they will be said, so he has someone to delete it." "Chairman called you just now, but you were on a phone, so he called me and told me to tell you to be careful in the future, or you can't explain to the kids." Albert told him what Felix said. Hearing that, Brian took a sigh of relief and was grateful about what his grandpa did, or it would be troublesome if the kids learned it. He had promised Luke that he would give Luke a complete family and the family of four would be together for a lifetime. If two kids knew his new wife with Gloria, they would think he lied to them and would be sad. "Have you found out who spread the news?" Brian asked. Since it was his grandpa deleted the news, it could not be him to spread the news. "I am working on it, I will let you know when I have the result." To make up his mistake, he had begun his work. After hanging up the phone, Brian was upset. How could he explain to Winnie? She refused to hearing any explanation, it must not be exception. After a moment of thinking, he replied to Vanessa. "It is a misunderstanding. I was taken to the show by a partner, and I did not know Gloria was there. Vanessa, I never lied to you, please explain your sister. The news have been deleted, and the two kids will not see it." "I will not happen again, please explain for me." Vanessa got his message, but did not reply after she had confirmed that the news had been deleted. "You have guaranteed before, but you failed to keep your words. No need to guarantee and explain." "Brian, I have seen your attitude to my sister. In your eyes, your family is important, your company is important, your status and power are important." "Penny is more important than my sister, Wendy is more important than my sister and Gloria is more important than my sister. Any women are more important than my sister. They exist in your world, but my sister is nothing. So it doesn't matter if she is sad or not, because she will go ashes one day." "Brian, I hope you can let my sister go, so that she can live in peace." After sending the message, she turned her phone into mute and threw it onto the sofa and then went to kitchen to help her sister cook. She was clear that she did not want Brian to hurt her sister again. After receiving the message, Brian was more anxious and made a call to Vanessa, but no one answered. He then called Winnie, but Winnie had put her phone in the room, so she did not hear it. Brian knew that two sisters were disappointed at him and did not give him a chance to explain. In the end, Brian made a call to Luke. "What are you doing, son? Where is your sister?" He chatted with him first, for fear that his son could tell he was anxious. "I am writing homework in my room and my sister is writing homework in her room. When will you be back, Dad? My sister and I miss you." Luke would not distract his attention when he was doing homework. If it were not his father's phone, he would not pick it up. "In two days, there is a contract to be signed. Luke, where is your mom?" He asked carefully. "Mom is cooking. And then she will see who is the first to finish the homework. Dad, I can't talk to you anymore, or I will lose." With that, Luke hung up the phone, he almost forgot that he was in a competition. Hearing that Winnie was cooking, Brian felt more at ease. Now Winnie had a reason not to answer his phone, so he would call her later. After having dinner and cleaning up, Winnie went back to her room and it was only then she saw Brian had made several calls to her. Looking at the missed calls, Winnie was sad. Again and again, she took deep breath and signed. She did not know why she had such a tired life. She wanted to leave everything behind and left like aunt. She was depressed, took the phone and walked out with a coat. The rain stopped in the afternoon, but it was wet outside. She walked out of the community and walked under a tree, hoping that she would have a better mood and forget the annoyance. If only she was calm at a minute, she would feel satisfied. But looking at the missed calls, she was still upset. She was unpleasant about Brian, but she knew it could not go on like this. She had not ended her relationship with Brian, so she could not be angry, because she was nothing to him. Winnie unlocked the phone and made a call to Brian. At that time, Brian was working. His phone and the doorbell rang at the same time. Before he picked up the phone, he went to the door. As he reached the door, he answered the phone. "Hello?" Without knowing who was calling, Brian asked, at the same time, he opened the door. He was surprised to see Gloria at the door, so he forgot that he was on the phone. "Gloria?" As Winnie was to say a word, she heard Brian call the name of Gloria, so she listened quietly. "What are you doing here?" Brian asked Gloria.

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 557 A SERIES OF MISUNDERSTANDINGS

At this moment, Brian had completely forgotten the phone on his ear. His attention was on Gloria, and he wondered why Gloria was there. Gloria gave an enchanting smile and joked with him. "It's not a surprise that I came to see my boyfriend. The whole country knows about our relationship, don't you know that?" "Today's headline?" Brian now knew the purpose of Gloria's coming. "Clever." "But Mr. Bennet, who are you talking to on the phone?" Brian did not realize that he was answering the phone till Gloria reminded him. "I forgot it. Come on in." Brian invited Gloria in, and then continued to talk to person on the phone. "Who's that?" Hearing that, Winnie felt irony. He asked her who she was? Didn't he see the caller ID or was he afraid that her phone would affect Gloria's mood? Winnie guessed it was the second possibility. Since Brian was afraid that Gloria minded her phone, she knew what to do. "It is me, since you have things to deal with, I will call you later." After that, she hung up the phone, but Brian was extremely upset. He did not see the caller, so he did not know it was Winnie calling. It was bad that she had heard that Gloria was there. He had not explained about what happened before, not it was another misunderstanding. He took a sigh and hung up the phone. Brian came to Gloria, who had sat on the sofa. "Do you know what happened today?" Gloria asked first, and did not care who Brian was calling. "I don't know." Brian gave his answer. Albert had told him the result at the time of dinner. It was not Gloria, nor grandpa. It was the journalist made it up in order to get clicks. Brian had told Albert to find that journalist, who said he would not do it again, so Brian did not care much about it. "Is that bothering you?" Brian asked. "Yes, I am not afraid of anything except what my boyfriend thinks. I told him we were acting, but if things went wrong again and again, he'd be suspicious of me." "I can't really explain it if it happens again. You should be responsible for me if we break up." Gloria joked with Brian. "I understand, but it was not the Bennet family did it. I'm a victim, too. We should not appear together in public as much as possible." Brian understood Gloria and her boyfriend's suspicion. There was a woman behind him had the same feeling as Gloria's boyfriend. "We didn't mean to show up together today. I didn't know you were going to this show. I was quite surprised when I saw you and I almost fell over." "How can we avoid this kind of accident? I can't tell you all my itinerary, and you can't tell me all yours." Gloria said innocently, meaning it was "coincidence" which she could do nothing about it. "It is not possible to share our itinerary. If I attend such events in the future, I will tell you in advance. If you go, I will decline. I'd be there when you are not there." He only had such an idea. He saw fashion shows not so often and would not have been there if his partners hadn't invited him. "Well, then, do as you said." Gloria readily agreed, no matter what Brian said, she would not refute. "But I have a require, please take care of it. I don't want to be on the front page in this way." Gloria was still smiling, feeling like old friends sitting together chatting. "I'll try." Gloria said with a smile. But Brian did not smile, he was worried about Winnie and wanted to call her for explanation. At the moment he only hoped that the conversation between him and Gloria would end as soon as possible. As Gloria left, he would call Winnie. "Well, then, it is a deal. It's getting late, I gotta go." Gloria said while getting up to leave. As she picked up her bag, Albert knocked on the door and came in. "Mr. Bennet, there is news again." Albert showed the headlines to Brian. It had just come out, it was over 100 million hits and it was going up fast. It said that Gloria went to Brian's hotel for a date at midnight. It was Gloria walking into the hotel and his room. Brian was instantly angry. "Delete it and find out who is behind and hold him legally responsible." Brian did not expect such ridiculous thing to happen twice in one day. How could he explain it now? Winnie wouldn't even answer his phone. Albert ran out without saying hello to Gloria. At this time, Gloria also took out her phone to have a check. "Alas....." She then took an uneasy sigh. "I came to you this late because I was afraid something like this would happen. I was careful all the way. I came to your room after I made sure there were no reporters following me. How could such a thing have happened?" "I'm sorry for my negligence. If it bothers you, I can explain publicly." Gloria made an apology with guilty. "It seems that the two of us have become the focus. It is not a reporter following you, but a reporter has been waiting downstairs the hotel." Brian gave his analysis, and did not respond to Gloria's apology. Because now the matter was not clear, and Gloria's suspicions had not been ruled out. "He may be stalking me. I'd better get out of here. If I stay too long, they'll think more." "Mr. Bennet, please have it under your control and don't make it big." Gloria then strode out of Brian's room. After hanging up the phone, Winnie felt as if her heart had been sprayed with salt and had to endure the pain with all her strength. Winnie was in self-mockery and gave an ironic smile. Was Brian too anxious to open the door? Why did he not even know who made the call? Or was he trying to get her to hear what they were saying so she could take his cue? What was he implying? Did he want her to give up as soon as possible? Winnie felt that Brian did not need to do this. She was ready to leave him from the day she and Brian were together. As long as Brian said, "break up", she would leave directly. Brian hinted euphemistically. Was he was afraid that she would ask for money or afraid that she would not give his money back? Why? She would not take anything from him and would give anything back to him. Winnie looked down at the phone, thinking of her ridiculous phone, feeling depressed. Suddenly there was a piece of news showing up and she accidentally clicked it open. It was the news about Brian. Winnie had no any doubts, because she heard that Gloria went to Brian's room. Winnie then made a call to Vanessa. "Vanessa, take the kids's mobile phone and stop them from playing with it tonight." Winnie tried to calm down, but she was still impatient. "What happened?" Vanessa's first reaction was that Brian had news again. "Yeah, don't let the kids play with the phone, or they will see it." Winnie said again. She did not conceal it with Vanessa, because she knew that Vanessa would see it later. "I know, coming back early. It's cloudy outside and looks like it's going to rain. Come back early and don't worry us." Vanessa was worried about her sister. The kids were around her, so she could not say it directly. "I'm fine. Don't worry about me. Just take care of the kids." Winnie said repeatedly, afraid that the kids would know about it. "Ok." Winnie agreed and hung up, and then took the kids' phone away. In the bathroom, she turned on her phone. Brian's influence was great and his news must be hot. Looking at those harsh words, looking at the pictures of Gloria at the door of the hotel, Vanessa's heart was full of resentment. Whether it was true or not, it was clear that Brian and Gloria had become bound. Vanessa was angry and then sent a message to Brian. "I told you your promises didn't mean anything. You had just made your promise not long ago, and do you not want to make a promise again?" "Don't reply my messages, and don't ask me to intercede for you. I will feel sorry for my sister if I intercede for you." She then turned off her phone after sending the message. After the call with Vanessa, Winnie received a call from Brian. Winnie picked it up without hesitation. "I've seen what happened. If you don't want the children to know about it, try to solve it first. We'll talk about it when you get back." Winnie did not give Brian the chance to speak, but her tone was calm. She then hung up the phone, and then put Brian to the blacklist. Looking at the gloomy and frightening sky, Winnie had an impulse to cry. She really wanted to cry, to relieve her tense nerves. She wanted to a nun and paid no attention to the tedious things and wanted to die, so that she could forget all the pain in this life. There were too many ways to escape reality in her mind, but she was suddenly woken by the rain. Where could she go? What should her kids and Vanessa do if she died? What should her aunt do? Winnie ran a few steps to the bus stop for shelter. She was caught in the rain, but she was not completely drenched. Her clothes were wet, so she shivered and had to hold her own for warmth.

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 558 ENCOUNTER STEFAN IN THE RAIN

Looking at the gloomy sky, Winnie felt that the rain would not stop soon. When people were unlucky, even the rain bullied them. It was lightning and thundering, which made Winnie fear. Now she wanted a car to go home, but she was scared to a taxi. So even though she was afraid, she could only stand there and prayed that the rain would stop soon and her suffering would stop immediately. As Winnie was praying, a car passed in front of her and slammed on its brakes. Then the car backed up until it stopped in front of her. The car looked familiar to Winnie, but she couldn't remember whose car it was till Stefan got out of the car. "What are you doing here?" Stefan ran to Winnie at the fastest speed, and looked up and down at Winnie to see whether she had got drenched. "I was out for a walk. It suddenly rained, so came here to shelter. Where are you going?" As she asked, there was a sudden rumble of thunder, which made Winnie shudder. And it was caught by Stefan's eyes, so he said. "Get in first." He opened the car door and let Winnie get into the car first. Then he ran to the back of the car, opened the trunk and got a piece of clothing. "This is mind, I hope you don't mind. Your clothes are wet, put it on lest catch a cold." Stefan put his clothes on the shoulders of Winnie. "You're wet, too. You might as well wear it." Winnie wanted to return the clothes to Stefan, but was stopped by him. "It's all right for me to get wet, but you'll catch a cold." Stefan then turned up the temperature of the air conditioning, afraid that Winnie got a cold. "I bother you again. I have been bothering you ever since we met, I don't know when I do return the favor to you." Winnie could not remember how much trouble she made to Stefan. "Don't say that. We are friends, and I have caused you too much inconvenience. Let me take you home first, and don't say anything polite more." Stefan was happy to meet Winnie and glad that he could help Winnie. There were a lot happened since they met, but he thought it was a kind of fate. As Stefan was ready to start the car, Winnie spoke. "Are you busy?" Stefan was puzzled about Winnie's question, but he still answered Winnie readily. "No, I am going home, but I did not expect to meet you." "Can you have a drink with me?" Winnie did not want to go home, or she would feel depressed, irritable, and two kids would see something wrong. But now she desperately needed to release and vent out the unpleasant mood before she went home and faced her kids. Stefan looked at Winnie with a serious face. Seeing that she was depressed and gloomy, he knew that Winnie encountered difficulties. "All right, it happens that I haven't had a drink in a long time. But are you okay, your clothes get wet?" Stefan was worried, physical health was much important than any difficulties. "I am ok, it is just a little wet. And with your coat, I'm gonna all right. Let's go for a drink." Winnie did not care if her clothes were wet. In her view, being sick or having a high fever was much better than feeling heartache. "Ok, let's go for a drink." Stefan said. He hoped that Winnie could be healthy and carefree. The two of them went to an elegant bar and sat down in a quiet corner. After ordering wine, Winnie took a sign. "I haven't been to a place like this for a long time. My life is very orderly and I have never had the time or the mood to come to a place like this to relax." Winnie said with sadness and helplessness. She was not yet thirty, an age of passion and boundless imagination. But she had been on the run for life for six years, a mother of two six-year-old kids, and a mistress who had been ignored. It seemed that her life was so tiresome and she had nowhere to hide, but she had to face this ruthless reality. "We have time today, and I am the driver and bodyguard, you can relax." Stefan didn't know what happened to Winnie, so he didn't know how to comfort her. All he could do was to keep her safe while she was drinking. "Ok, and don't laugh at me if I'm rude when I'm drunk." Winnie really wanted to get drunk today, really wanted to release her depression. Even if Stefan was not her bestie, she asked him to take care of herself. "No, I won't laugh at you." As he spoke, the wine had been placed before them. Stefan personally poured wine and handed it to her. "You drink, I am responsible for taking care of you, so that you have no worries." As Stefan's voice fell, Winnie directly drank it up, which shocked Stefan. Stefan froze for a moment before he poured her another glass of wine. "Slow down. If you get drunk after two glasses, you won't be able to relax." Stefan saw that Winnie must have accumulated too many grievances and helplessness and it must be a long time that she had not released her pressure and not she was out of breath. Winnie was a woman with a story, far more complex than he imagined. However he did not know what she had been through. "You're right. I'll take it slow." Winnie smiled and felt the burning sensation of the wine in her stomach. She did not like to drink and had never drunk much. She could not accept that strong reaction that when the wine was in her body. But she was heartbroken, which was worse than the burning feelings. She would rather be burned than feel the pain. She told herself that since she wanted to relax by drinking, she would forget all the bad things and let herself relax for a while, just for a while. "You also drink, it is boring that only I drink." With that, Winnie took a sip and felt the burning sensation from her throat to her stomach. "No, I asked for a juice. Who's gonna drive you home if I get drunk? I'm just here for you." Stefan asked nothing. He supported Winnie's drinking. He just wanted to be beside her silently and let her relax. "Well, I'll drink it myself." Then Winnie took another sip. "You know, I never knew it was such a good feeling to drink this kind of liquor. Once it's inside I can't remember anything, I can only feel its power. It's good. It's really good. I will come to drink more often to release myself so that I can bear more." Then Winnie took another sip. "Am I being nagging?" Winnie turned her head and asked Stefan. "No, it is normal communication, you are not nagging. You can say whatever you want, just pretend I don't exist. You need to release your heart without reservation to feel comfortable. Stefan didn't want to know what happened to Winnie, he just wanted Winnie to say it out and not to suppress herself. "Pretend you don't exist? It is rude. You are handsome. How many girls would be sad if I ignored you?" Winnie joked, gratifying at Stefan's consideration. She heard that Stefan knew she had something on her mind, but he never asked and let her do whatever she wanted. In her heart such a man was a good man, just like Leo and Oscar. But these nice guys did not belong to her. At the moment of surrogacy, she had given up the right to pursue a good man and was doomed to live alone. Winnie took a sip of wine and remembered her original idea. The moment she slept with Brian, she had her life mapped out. From then on, she would try her best to earn money, to take good care of her aunt and sister, to make them live a good life, and pay off the debt left by her father. This was the future she had planned as she sat by the bed waiting for Brian. Now that she had a plan, she should insist no matter what happened. Never get married and never bothered by love. "When my father and mother died, they left me with a debt of nearly 100 million. I thought I was gonna spend my whole life paying debts. I thought I had to pay them back before I died, but I paid them all years early." Winnie said casually. She never mentioned her father or mother to Brian. It was not that she didn't want to say it, but every time she wanted to say it, something would happen to Brian and Brian had never asked her about her parents and her past. After several attempts to say it, Winnie did not want to mention it again. She did not want her past to affect Brian's view of her family. Stefan was shocked to hear that. How could she pay off nearly 100 million of debt? He frowned and did not continue to talk, but secretly gave Winnie less powerful wine. "Do you know how I paid it off?" Winnie asked Stefan and smiled sarcastically. "I am not proud of it. Not on my own ability." "I sold my house left by my mother, my mother's house, my family's villa, and a house my grandfather left to my aunt. In addition to the money I paid the bank, I paid each of my creditors in proportion, which released some of our burden." Winnie stopped at this.

CHAPTER 559 UNDERSTAND HIM

She had never said it to Brian, but today she told Stefan, because Brian would not listen to such a thing, but Stefan was a silent listener. She drank up a glass of wine to herself in the past. Then she continued to say in a low voice. "It doesn't include the money to compensate the other party, and it doesn't include the medical bills for my mom and my sister." "My parents and my sister had a car accident on their way to the airport to meet me in MG to avoid debt. My dad died instantly, my mom was in intensive care, and my sister..." Speaking of this, Winnie could not help but shed tears. These memories were the pain of her life, no matter when she thought of it, she was sad. Stefan felt Winnie's sadness, but he did not say anything, but handed tissue to Winnie. He was not cold-blooded, but because wanted Winnie to say everything out to release herself. If she continued to be depressed, it was really driving her crazy. Winnie took the tissue to wipe her tears and said in embarrassment. "Sorry that you have to hear this." "What are you talking about? We are friends, sure I am willing to hear it. I thank you for trusting me to tell me about your family." Hearing that, Winnie felt warm in heart. "Then you have to have a strong heart, I just released a little pressure." Winnie joked though she was depressed, pretending to be tough. This time she poured the wine herself and drank it up. "I borrowed from all my friends and relatives to get money for my mother's medical bills. Daenerys was the only one who could help me. The rest avoided our families." "But I need so much money, and Daenerys could not help me too much, so I had to go through a surrogate agency." It surprised Stefan. He thought of many kinds of possibilities that Winnie and Brian were together, he even thought that Winnie was with him for money, but he did not expect the possibility of surrogate. Winnie continued. "That was why I met Brian and my two kids were born through a surrogate. But I did not expect to meet Brian again and I will be entangled with the Bennet family." "Brian's grandfather was domineering, and I could only stay with Brian to take care of the two kids in this way." "I don't blame Brian or his grandfather. I stay with him because of my two kids. I don't want them to grow up without a mother." Winnie stopped crying, but her heart was in pain. She didn't pour the wine into the glass, but picked up the bottle and drank directly. If Stefan hadn't grabbed the bottle, she might have drunk it up. "You can't drink like this. How can you release if you drank too much?" "Winwin, drink slowly and speak slowly. After that, you will be relieved and have the courage to continue to face the future life." Stefan enlightened her. If Winnie continued to drink, she could not go to work for several days, and the intention of the release could not be achieved. "All right, as you say. Drink slowly and speak slowly." "Bran had a blind date and is going to marry another woman. I never said a word against it. All I asked was not to hurt the children. But he disregarded anything and made a big scene again and again. He just has a relationship, why he made the whole country know about it?" "He can ignore my feelings, but he can't ignore the children's feeling. Hasn't he thought about how sad and disappointed the children would be if they know it?" Winnie shed tears again. She did not want to cry, because she deserved, no one would pity her even if she cried, but she could not help it and tears kept following down. Stefan was distressed and helpless about it. After he handed the tissue to Winnie, he persuaded her. "Winwin, Mr. Bennet may have his reason. I can see that he cares about you. He loves you. I don't think he would have done it if he hadn't had a reason." Winnie gave a bitter smile. "I understand him. I understand everything about him. Everything I did was in his shoes." "You know, since I've been with him, I haven't asked him to do anything for me. I haven't spent him a penny. I live in his house, but I buy food, afraid that he thinks I covet his money." "I have never demanded anything of him, I have never dared to expect anything from him. The only I want is that he doesn't hurt the children, doesn't put pressure on the children who are still small, doesn't distort the children's upbringing." "Am I asking too much? Is it difficult for him? They are his children too. If he thinks I'm asking too much, there's nothing I can do." Winnie was obvious drunk. Only when she was drunk, she dare complain about Brian. She knew that she was an ordinary person, she could not endure all the time. There was a limit. Now she had reached the limit and she had to release, or she would break down. "He can do it as his ability. It depends on whether he wants to do it or not." "Hum... He has been the hot research often. He's already a big deal. Why would he want to show off like this? I..... I try to understand him, but I really can't." Winnie had never complained like this. She really wanted to say these words to the man she loved and wanted him to know that she had hard time, but there was not such an equal opportunity for her and Brian to communicate. If she really said these words to Brian, it might be the day they broke up and the day she could not bear it anymore. Speaking of this, Winnie drank it up again to release the heartache. "Are you tired to hear me saying this? Let me sing a song for you then." Winnie got up, came to the center of the bar stage, and chose a song. Winnie sat in front of the microphone, holding the microphone in one hand and the brace in the other. She did not look up but quietly waited for the music. Stefan did not know which song Winnie was going to sing, but he felt distressed for her. However, coincidentally, as Winnie went on the stage, Wendy in the corner saw her. Wendy had a bad mood because of Brian's scandal, so she came out to drink. But she did not expect to meet Winnie. At the music played, Winnie was ready, but Wendy secretly went to a place when she could face Winnie. She pulled her phone out. As she began to shoot, Winnie had started to sing. It was a sad song, Winnie was in the mood and she sang it well, but Stefan was upset to hear that. Although he did not know all her experience, but from what Winnie said, he knew it was hard for her. As the lyrics said, a woman did not want much, but Winnie did not get anything. Stefan continued to listen to her song attentively, feeling the similarities between Winnie and this song, listening to Winnie's nasal sound because of crying. Winnie was focus on the song, it was not that her singing skill was good, it was that this song suited her mood. When she sang the line "Do you know I love you like a moth to the fire, why don't you understand the fragility of women", her tears burst out like a flood. This song was tailor-made for her. Was the author suffering from love as she was? She was a moth in reality, and the fire she threw herself at was Brian. The moth and the fire met, and the moth was doomed to ashes. Winnie's tears flowed to the end of the song, and when the applause broke out, she got out of her mood in the song. Wendy quietly returned to her position and quietly observed Winnie. It was then she found that Winnie and Stefan were together. She felt that Winnie was sad because of Brian. Had Winnie realized that she was gonna abandoned by Brian and would Gloria and Brian get married? While watching, she took some pictures. Suddenly Wendy thought it was a good chance to deal with Winnie. Regardless of Gloria, she'd better grasp the opportunity to get rid of Winnie. She remembered Penny told her to make misunderstanding. It was not that Winnie understood Brian, making Brian misunderstand Winnie was fatal to Winnie. Winnie had been self-discipline. Wendy did not find anything that she could be misunderstood. Well, it is the chance. As long as Brian misunderstood Winnie, it would be easy to deal with the matter. At the thought of this, Wendy felt smug and proud of her wit. She first sent a video of Winnie singing to Brian, and some pictures of Winnie and Stefan. After that, she continued to take pictures secretly. After a while, she felt that Brian would suspect her purpose by sending videos and pictures. . So Wendy send sent a message to explain for herself.

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 560 GET DRUNK DON'T GO HOME

Brian made a side after finishing the matter began to call to Winnie after his word, but he had been unable to get through. He was worried, so he had to call Vanessa. "Vanessa, is your sister with you? I failed to contact her." Brian was not in the mood to apologize. He wanted to find Winnie and explain to her. "No, she's been away for a while and hadn't been back. She said she was going for a walk, but it's raining hard and she still hasn't come back." Vanessa was also worried about Winnie, so she did not argue with him. She exaggerated it, so that Brian would be anxious. After the call with Winnie, it was raining outside. Vanessa thought her sister would be back soon, so she waited. The rain got heavier, but her sister had not yet come back. She thought her sister should be somewhere to shelter from the rain, when the rain stopped, her sister would come back. But she was wrong. The rain almost stopped, but her sister had not yet come back. She called her sister just before Brian's call, but no one answered. She wanted to go out to look for her sister, but she could not leave two kids at home. She was anxious but helpless. "Where has she been? I keep calling her, but she doesn't pick up." When Brian said this, Vanessa had walked into the bathroom with her phone. "You asked me what she has been? She wouldn't be out in the rain if it wasn't for you. She could not look sad at home for fear the kids will find out, but you, do you want the kids to find it out? Don't you think you're going too far?" Vanessa finally did not hold back but loudly accused Brian. Brian understood Vanessa's mood at the moment and did not say anything. "Vanessa, I will explain it when I get back. Contact your sister your first and scold me when you find her, ok?" Brian asked. Now the most important thing was to find Winnie. It was raining heavily outside and Brian was more worried. Vanessa hung up the phone angrily. Brian was right she should find her sister first. Vanessa sat on the toilet and began to call her sister again and again. Brian hung up the phone and was to call Calvin, hoping Calvin think of a way to find Winnie. But at this time he received a message from Wendy. Brian clicked opened the video and saw that Winnie was singing in the bar in tears. It was the first time that Brian heard Winnie sing, and the first time he knew that Winnie could sing so well, but he heard it in this way. Watching Winnie had been in tears in the video, listening to her hoarse voice, Brian's heart was broken. He knew that Winnie was sad because of him and went for drinking and that she had been enduring it. Then Wendy sent a few pictures, it was then Brian knew that Winnie and Stefan were together. Seeing that the two people were so close to each other, Brian was uncomfortable. But he felt more at ease since Winnie was with Stefan. How did Wendy get these pictures? As Brian was suspecting, Wendy sent him a voice message. "Brian, don't get me wrong. Winwin is in a bad mood and has drunk a lot of wine. I am worry, so I sent you these. Come and pick her up." Then Wendy added. "Don't think much about it. I come over to drown my sorrows and I happen to meet Winwin." Brian did not judge Wendy's behavior but replied. "Wendy, keep an eye on Winwin for me, I will send someone to pick her up." After that, he called Calvin. And Wendy replied at this time. "Don't worry, Brian. I'll keep an eye on her." After that, Wendy saw Stefan holding Winnie up. Winnie was drunk, and the two were ready to leave. Wendy was nervous. If Calvin came, he would fail to pick up Winnie. Should she tell Brian that Winnie had left or not? After a moment of thinking, she decided to tell Brian later, so she had been secretly following Stefan's car after settling the bill. Vanessa had been calling her sister for an hour and she did not know what to do. The last call was finally connected. "Sister, where are you? You didn't answer all the calls I've made. I am so worried about you." Vanessa was to cry and asked before Winnie said a word, but it came a male's voice over the phone. "Vanessa, don't worry, I am Stefan. I'm with your sister now. You needn't worry." It was Stefan who answered the phone, because Winnie was vomiting in the light rain. Stefan had to pick up the phone for fear that Vanessa would be worried. "Stefan? Has my sister been with you all the time? Did she get drenched by rain?" Hearing Stefan's voice, Vanessa rested assured, but she still did not understand what happened. "No. I met her at the bus stop when it started raining. She was in a bad mood and asked me to have a drink with her. We were at the bar and didn't hear you calling." "Don't worry." As soon as Stefan said that, Winnie, who was vomiting, stood up, and she staggered to reach out and answered the phone. "Vanessa, don't worry about me. I just had a few drinks. I'm not going home tonight. Tell the children a random reason and don't make them suspect." Winnie was drunk, but she was sober. Knowing that she was in a mess, she felt the children would see something wrong if she went home. "I know, take good care of yourself. Sister... Brian has been trying to contact you. He said he could not get through your phone and he was worried." Vanessa still told her sister about Brian after a moment of hesitation. "I don't want to hear anything about him tonight. I've blacklisted him for the time being." "Vanessa, call him later. Just say I'm home, I'm not feeling well and I'm going to bed. I'll wait until he comes back." Winnie was in prevarication and did not want to answer his phone today. After saying that, she ran to a side and vomited up. Wendy put out the car and turned off the lights, parking in a place where Winnie could not see her, but she could see Winnie. Wendy felt it was the time and sent a message to Brian. "Brian, don't let Calvin come. Winwin and Stefan have left the bar. Stefan Will send Winwin home." After sending the message, Wendy continued to follow Winnie. By this time Winnie had got into the car and the car had started. But it was not in the direction of Winnie's house. "Why not go home?" Stefan asked Winnie while driving. "Vanessa and the kids will be worried if they saw me get drunk. You have no idea how smart my kids are. They can tell if something's going on just by looking at my face. I don't want them to know about his father's news so early." "Find me a hotel. I'll be home in the morning." Winnie did not want to go home after drinking. After drinking she was weak and could conceal everything. She was afraid of telling her two kids on the spur of the moment. "I got you a hotel when you were throwing up. A friend of mine is the manager there. I asked her to prepare it for you." Stefan had a fast move. "Thank you! Winnie feebly thanked him. she had no strength because she vomited just now. "Why did you cheat Brian that you had gone home?" Stefan asked another question. "I don't want him to worry about me and I don't want him to know that I was drinking for this matter. He must know why I drank, how much I care about him. It's shameful that I'm clinging to him at this point." Winnie's idea was simple. If she told Brian she did not go home, Brian must be worried about her, must send someone to find her. But at this point, she really wanted to be alone. Vanessa put down the phone. After making up a reason to the kids, she told them to sleep. After that, she called Brian. "Don't worry, my sister is back. She said she isn't feeling well and she wants to sleep. You can talk wait till you come back." Vanessa conveyed her sister's words to Brian. She knew that lying was not good, but that last thing her sister wanted to hear was Brian's apology. She could only help her sister. At this time, she and her sister had no one to rely on except for each other, taking care of each other. "Your sister has gone home? Is everything all right? Was she caught in the rain?" Brian didn't feel anything wrong. He received Vanessa's call after receiving Wendy's message. It must be Stefan sent her home. However Brian was worried about Winnie and wondered if she was drunk "Brian, you don't have to worry about my sister. I can take care of my sister even if she got caught in the rain. From now on, I'll take care of her and we won't bother you again." "Let's talk wait till you get back." Vanessa then hung up the phone. She could not answer him because she did not know how her sister was. And only Brian could hurt her sister, so she had no expectation for him, but disappointment. Brian wanted to explain but when he called again, Vanessa had turned off the phone. Brian was upset. He knew Winnie was said and she did not want to talk to him at the moment. But he was passive, it had happened out of his expectation. He had tried his best to make it up. What else could he do? At the same time, Daenerys had a few friends come to her home. It was Emily, followed by Leo and Oscar. Kevin was happened to be home. "What should we do? Shall we call Winwin? Why can't I feel at ease?" They were sitting on the sofa in the living room. Emily wanted to call Winnie, but Daenerys stopped her.
