Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 571 TWO SISTERS GO HOME

Vanessa didn't understand what was going on, but when she heard that the owner was her father, she wanted to go home, feeling that it was her, as if her mom and dad were still alive. "I don't know. I asked my friend to find out the information about the buyer. When I have it, I will contact him." "Vanessa, even if it costs a lot, I want to buy back that villa, how do you think?" Winnie told Vanessa about her idea and wanted to have Vanessa's advice, because she was afraid Vanessa could not accept that memory. "I have no objection. I agree to buy the villa back. There's a little bit of mom and dad there, a little bit of their smell. If we move back there, we won't be orphans." Vanessa said with tears in eyes. She did not dare to recall the villa, did not dare to think of parents before. But now she wanted to, and dared to. Especially after her aunt left, especially after she moved to the dormitory alone, she felt lonely. "If you agree, no matter how much it costs, I will buy it back." Winnie understood the mood of Vanessa at the moment and knew that she missed her parents more than she did. "Sister, if the money is not enough, we can sell this house. I can go to school by bus and subway, as long as we can move back." Vanessa was so urgent that she even wanted to move back and go home right away. "I bought this house after I sold your house, it is your house. Our parents got it for you. I have money and we can earn money from the game, so you don't have to worry about money. Just study hard and I'll buy it back." Winnie didn't worry about money now. Even if she didn't have enough money, she could borrow it from Leo. "Ok, I will study hard." Vanessa knew she couldn't help. The only way she could help was to listen to her sister and study hard. "Vanessa, don't tell Brian about it. If he finds out, he will help me, I don't want to owe him anything, either money or favors." Winnie had to tell Vanessa about it. She wanted to do it by herself and did not want Brian to help her. She wanted to have a clear conscience without little guilty when she left him. Vanessa was silent before she answered her sister. "Don't worry, I won't tell him." Vanessa knew sister's idea and knew that her sister was ready to leave Brian. It seemed that her sister saw the truth, she clearly knew that it was impossible that she would be together with Brian. Her poor sister, she was so kind and diligent, why couldn't she meet a man who would risk everything for her? After lunch, the two sisters drove together to their old home. As soon as she got off the car, Vanessa could not control her emotion. "It hasn't changed at all. It's still my home." Her voice was shaking and her eyes were blurring. It was the first time she'd been back here in years, the first time she faced it. "Sister, our home hasn't changed at all. If only mom and dad were still alive." Bravely she mentioned her parents, but she could not control her tears. It was her memories, her parents' memories in this villa. It was not as clean and tidy as before, but the memories were clear and the warm feeling was still fresh. "No, it hasn't changed at all." Winnie said sadly. She did not comfort Vanessa. On the contrary, she wanted Vanessa to cry, to recall the past. Only in this way could she broaden her mind, and her chances of relapse would be much smaller. "Sister, no matter how much it takes, buy this house back. This is our real home." Vanessa could not control her tears. She secretly vowed that even if her sister could not buy back this villa, she would work hard to buy it back in the future. "Rest assured, I certainly will buy it back." Winnie's will was stronger than Vanessa's, and she wanted more to buy back the villa when she knew the owner was still her father. The current buyer had not transferred ownership, for them, it was good news. No one lived in there, so that the buyer might not want to keep it. It was all arranged by god so that one day she would be able to buy the house back. Vanessa walked close to the villa, holding the iron door, and looked inside. The inside of the villa was invisible, but she could take a glimpse of what it used to look like. Weeds were all over the yard. It looked like the buyer hadn't lived in the house since he bought it. "Sister, I have a lot of gifts, a lot of things I have used in it. I wonder if all that stuff is inside." Vanessa said. She came here because she missed her parents and missed those things she liked. "I think so. I came to pack them up. I put our things in cardboard boxes and put them in the next garage." "If no one lived here, I'm sure those things would still be there." Winnie was not willing to throw away those things. Her parents had died, if those things were thrown away, they had nothing left. "Really? If they were still here, can we get them out?" Vanessa was excited, as if she could have treasure back. "I will ask the buyer when I find him. We can't break in without permission, because it's not our home." Winnie understood the law, if they broke into the house, it was illegal. Thinking of that, Winnie raised a satirical smile. Things had changed, this was her home, but now it was illegal for her to break in. Winnie did not go to the suburbs on Sunday and went directly to work on Monday morning. The first thing she did when she came to the company was to find Brian to sign a document. So Winnie came to Brian's office. "Have you had your breakfast?" Brian asked Winnie while reading the document. "Yes, I ate out with Vanessa. After breakfast she went to school and I came to work." Winnie answered calmly, and then asked Brian. "Did Megan and Luke have a meal in the morning? They're lazy on Mondays. They don't want to get up and eat breakfast." "Yes, they were all good without you around." Brian was telling the fact that the two kids were good in this morning. They were not lazy as Winnie said "Well, they seem to be better without me around." Winnie said casually, but hearing that, Brian was nervous. These days he felt Winnie had a problem. Was she implying him something? "They can do without you, but I can't. I haven't had breakfast yet." Putting aside what he was thinking, He thought he might be too sensitive. He signed and then went to Winnie with the document. "Why didn't you eat breakfast? I'll ask the secretary to get it for you." Winnie turned around without taking the document. She cared much that Brian had not had breakfast. "Come back, I've had my secretary got it ready for me." Brian took Winnie by hand, and then encircled her waist. "You are not around, the kids came to me with everything. I told them to ask Raya for help, but they refused. I was busier than I am at work. By the time they were done, I was too late for work, so I didn't have breakfast." In a gentle voice, he described what happened to him this morning as "horrible". He found it very busy to take care of kids, not to mention two kids. He could handle all of the Bennet Group, thousands of employees, but he could not handle the two kids. Hearing that, Winnie could not help laughing. "You can't have breakfast only with two kids. If you have two more kids, you will have to quit your job." Winnie imagined that Brian was busy at home, feeling the two kids will drive Brian crazy. "I'd quit if you give birth two more kids." Brian said seriously. He really hoped that Winnie could give birth to two more kids, so that the problem would be solved. "I can't, if you want more kids, go ask other women." Winnie joked, though it was hurtful, which was ironic. Winnie pushed Brian away and took back the document. "I'll go out later, if you need help, go to Alice. Enjoy your breakfast." Winnie said with a smile and then turned to leave. The smile on her face disappeared instantly when she turned over. Two more kids? Having five more kids would not change Brian, just a few more kids would be hurt. It was just a joke. If he really cared about the kids, he would do anything to protect them. However, Brian would not do anything to her and two kids, but the Bennet family but the Bennet Group that he was proud of. Brian was a good man, a capable and responsible man, but this kind of man took career seriously, and did not care the feelings of his family and had no time to take care of two kids and her. He was good at everything, but he was not a good father or a good husband. Winnie went directly to the public security department, went through the entry procedures, and got her police uniforms. Everything was ready. She was given a professional laptop at the bureau, which she used to develop her software, but which required absolute secrecy. Winnie's identity was easy to keep secret, but a laptop like that was not. Winnie had to put her laptop and police uniform in the trunk of the car and took them out when she needed them.

CHAPTER 572 WHO'S LYING

It was noon when Winnie returned to the company. She thought by this time Brian should have a break, so she went to him for lunch. When she walked out of the office, only to see Wendy pushed the door in. Seeing Wendy, Winnie was upset and returned to her office. Brian's office. "Can I help you?" "Oh, by the way, I never thanked you for taking care of Winwin the other day..." "Brian..." Before Brian could finish his words, Wendy sitting on the sofa interrupted him, but she hesitated, wondering if she should tell him. "Why? Is your work not going well, or have you encountered something difficult?" Brian asked Wendy with a frowned. He was worried because Wendy seemed to have something to say. "Yes, but it's not my business." At this, Wendy stopped. "No matter whose business is, just go ahead." Brian was impatient. He thought even if it was not Wendy's business, she must need his help. He once said if Wendy asked him for help, he would not refuse. "It's Winwin." Hearing Brian's strict voice, Wendy directly said it out. "Winwin? What's it?" Brian was at a loss. "That day in the bar I met Winwin. She was sent home by Stefan, while I went home." Speaking of this, Wendy again deliberately stopped, but Brian focused on it. "Go on." Brian said in a cold voice. He believed that Wendy would not only say nonsense he already knew. "Brian, I can go on, but you must not be angry. I've only seen the surface. You must make it clear." Wendy first placated Brian. She wanted Brian to be angry after he learned the truth. "Say it, I have no time to waste." Brian was completely out of patience. He even suspected that Wendy wanted to have more time to be with him. "On my way home, I met Winwin vomiting on the side of the road. Just as I was about to get off and check on her, they got in the car. But later they changed their route and didn't go home." "I was curious and worried about Winwin, so I followed them. But, but they went to a hotel." Wendy's voice got smaller and smaller, for fear that Brian would go rage and be angry at her. Wendy paused for a moment and then continued as Brian had no response. "I thought that Stefan would leave after he sent Winwin to XX hotel, but they spent there overnight." Wendy had finished her words. She was ready for Brian being angry, and then he would question Winnie. However, it did not happen. Brian asked Wendy coldly with a frown. "Is that all?" "Yes... That's all." Wendy was panic. It did not go as she wanted to, so she did not know what to do. Brian had no response after he got to know the truth. "So what if they stayed in a room? Wendy, I know why you're telling me this. Why didn't you tell me that night, but now?" Brian did not lose his temper, at least on the surface, he looked calm. "Nothing... That's why I asked you to check it out. It is my guess, I have no purpose." Wendy was more panic. She did not understand why Brian had no response and did not know how to answer Brian's question. Brian was now suspicious of her, rather than Winnie getting a room. "Why didn't you tell me until now? Why didn't you tell me that night?" Brian still did not get angry, but after saying that, his eyes grew cold. "I've been hesitating. I was really shocked by what they did that night. I've been wondering if I should tell you." Wendy knew Brian will ask her such a question, so she had got and the answer in advance. Wendy continued. "Brian, Winwin and I were not on good terms before, as you know. I was thinking, if I told you, you would think it was my chance to get back at her. So I didn't tell you." "I have decided to tell you now, because I can no longer keep it in my mind. I can't watch you in the dark. I'm not sure what happened to them, but I think it was a thoughtless thing for Winwin." "If anyone takes a picture of that, if anyone knows about your relationship, it will be a terrible blow to your reputation even if nothing big happens." Wendy gave a perfect explanation, saying her starting point was for Brian's good. "So should I thank you for telling me so that I can be prepared?" Brian said in cold voice, not because of Wendy's answer, but because of the blow to his reputation in Wendy's mouth. The meaning of Wendy's words was so obvious that he had to take them to heart. "Brian..." "Get out of here, pretend you didn't see it, and don't talk nonsense if you have no proof." Wendy wanted to say more, but Brian did not feel necessary to hear it, so he asked her to leave. "Ok, then." Wendy left in fear. Although it did not have the effect she expected, she believed that Brian would take it to heart. After Wendy left, Brian's face changed, and then he clenched his fists. Winnie was abnormal these two days. She secretly answered the phone and went home on every weekend. Now there was the fact that she and Stefan got a room. There was no proof that they did anything, but no one could prove that they were innocent. No, don't be fantasizing. Winwin was not that kind of person, she would not betray him. Brian banged his head to sober himself up. That night Vanessa said her sister had gone home, he could not just listen to Wendy's one-sided words. He must not wrong Winnie before he found out the truth. At that thought, he felt better, but he had told Albert to check it out. When he was lying in bed, he was still thinking about it. It was really irritable to think about it. "Winwin, I forgot to ask you, did you get caught in the rain that night?" Brian asked tentatively. "Which night?" Winnie went to the bed with doubts. "The day I met Gloria on a business trip. I called Vanessa and she said it was raining and you hadn't come back yet. I was worried about you." Brian mentioned that day, but it was Winnie's gloomy day, speaking of it, she felt upset and heartache. She couldn't figure out why Brian asked about it. "No, I got home after walking outside for a while." "You did not ask me till now. You do care about me." Winnie said sarcastically and walked to the dressing table to put on hand cream. Winnie wanted to forget what happened that day, forget everything, but Brian brought it up. It was not concern, it just hurt her heart. Since so, Winnie gave a perfunctory answer. Winnie gave the same answer as Vanessa, but Brian still had doubts, but he did not continue to ask. Albert would have the result tomorrow, and he would know why was lying. After thinking about it for a day, Brian now believed Wendy. He felt Wendy would not talk nonsense on this term. Even if she was stupid, she knew he could find out the truth. Every hotel had surveillance, if Winnie and Stefan could not be found, her lie would be exposed. And Wendy should know the consequences if her lie was exposed. So, what Wendy said was probably true. The next morning, soon after he got to work, Albert brought the surveillance video from XX Hotel. "Mr. Bennet, Stefan and Winnie did get a room in this hotel. These videos were of them arriving at the hotel. See for yourself." Albert thought it was serious, but he didn't believe Winnie was such a person. Brian took the USB flash drive and connected it to the computer and began to watch it. Two people came to the hotel together and came to a room. Winnie was drunk and even needed Stefan to help her walk. At this, Brian began to play it fast. It was true that Stefan did not come out for a night. In the morning, Stefan came out for a while and then went back. It took about forty minutes for the two of them to come out together. After watching the entire video, Brian got a gloomy face. He clenched his fists and could not conceal his solemnity, but his mind was a blank. Wendy did not lie, it was truth, so Winnie hid the fact. To make it more true, Vanessa lied with her. "Ask Winnie to the rooftop." Brian issued an order in an angry tone, and Albert spoke at this moment. "Calm down, Mr. Bennet, watch carefully the video. I don't believe Winnie would betray you. Maybe she was drunk, and Stefan..." Before he could finish speaking, Brian interrupted him angrily. "Go and get her. Don't give her any hints." Brian said angrily, and then went to the elevator. Albert did not dare to hesitate and had to go out to get Winnie.

CHAPTER 573 WHO IS OUT OF CONTEXT

Winnie came to the rooftop, only to see Brian is facing away from her. The awe-inspiring figure left her at a loss. When Albert went to her, he was embarrassed and he was about to speak, but he stopped. Finally he reminded her, "Mr. Bennet is in a bad mood, be careful." Hearing that, Winnie was puzzled. He was in a bad mood, but she did not provoke him, why should she be careful? Why asked her to the rooftop? What couldn't he say it in the office? Was it a very serious thing? Was he gonna break up with her? Winnie stopped for a moment to think about all kinds of possibilities, but did not come up with a conclusion. She could only face it. "Why asked me to be here?" Winnie said behind Brian in a light tone. She did not mention any of her guess and pretended that Albert had said nothing to her. However, Brian did not pay attention to her, did not turn around to her or say anything. He was angry with her, but Winnie did not know what she had done wrong. Winnie stood beside Brian, looking sideways at him. And then she stopped her false smile. He gave a black face, like the sky before the storm with overcast and dark clouds, giving her a sense of pressure and fear. "What is going on? Are you not going to say a word?" Winnie asked in a serious tone. Still, Brian remained silent, immersed in his own world. "Did I screw up some project?" Winnie continued to ask, but he was till silent. Winnie was worried that Brian got into troubles, so she asked impatiently. "Say it, is there anything can be solved by silence? Did I do something wrong, or..." "Yes, you did something wrong." Brian finally spoke. When Winnie was worried about him, he shouted her angrily. "What did I do wrong?" Winnie was sad. For no reason, she felt she was back to the past. He shouted at her like this when he thought she was a cheater. "Don't you know you've done something wrong? And you asked me about it?" Brian roared angrily. He could not help but vent out his anger. He could not accept that fact that Winnie did such a thing and that Winnie betray him. Seeing that, Winnie became angry too. "Tell me what is wrong with me, why you treat me in this manner? When Penny did such a vicious thing to Luke, you didn't look like a murderer like now. Have I done anything to deserve death?" Winnie shouted back at Brian. She did not know what was going on, with what she should be treated like that. "Brian, you are a man. If you have anything to say, say it out, if you want to drive me away, don't..." "You're covering for your actions. What have you done wrong? Well, see for yourself." Brian didn't want to take the topic too far. He just wanted to know why Winnie hid him from the truth, why she got a room with another man. Angrily, he clicked on the video and then handed it to her. Winnie took over the phone and did not understand what happened till she saw the video. Brian misunderstood that she had an affair with Stefan. With this thought, Winnie felt better, but it was not just misunderstanding, it was Brian's distrust of her. Without even hearing her explanation, he believed the truth. Winnie felt cold in heart. Since Brian believed it, why was the use of explanation? Winnie sadly raised her mouth. "So you followed me. You've been following me, have you? You've never believed me, have you?" Winnie's heart was so freezing that even the hot sun did not warm her heart. "Don't run from the problem. I did not follow you. It was you've been caught misbehaving." Brian was still angry, at the same time, Winnie's attitude made him panic. "I misbehaved. Don't you forget, Brian, you were with another woman in your room too. Have you behaved properly?" Winnie was hurtful by his words. It was also possible that Winnie had never been good in Brian's heart, after all, she was a woman who sold her body to make money. "I'm different from you. My story that day was taken out of context. She and I..." Brian shouted to explain, because he knew he did not do anything wrong. However, Winnie did not want to hear it. She interrupted him forcefully. "Yours is taken out of context and mine is true? You're sure I'm fooling around with another guy without even watching the whole video. Is that trust you have in me?" Winnie angrily stared at Brian, she knew her innocence. Although she did not clarify, she was confident. "My stalker was paid off, or do you just want an excuse to break up with me? Well, I agree with you. What you saw and what you thought is the truth. Do what you want to do." Winnie said angrily and turned away. She did not want to explain, nor did she need to. Brian arranged everything to be the truth and she had nothing to explain. It could be seen from this matter that Brian never believed her, in his heart, she was never a good woman. Since she was not a good woman, break up. It was always going to happen, it just came a little earlier than expected. Brian solved the problem in this way. She despised him. Two people made it big in a few minutes.. Brian stood on the rooftop angrily. He wanted to learn the truth from Winnie, but why she wanted to break up? He never wanted to break up? Winnie returned to her office and began to pack up her things. Just then Albert and Calvin came in. "Winnie, please forgive that Mr. Benet is angry with you. It is normal for him to be upset when he saw that video. It will be fine after you explain to him." Albert persuaded Winnie, knowing that they had a quarrel. "There's no point in me explaining things I didn't do. He was upset watching that video, so why didn't he finish the video? It's insulting to my pride that he suspects me with that video. Why should I explain it to him?" Winnie was still angry. Every time when she felt upset, she felt sour in nose, but now she was tough. Even if she was upset, she had to be strong, never hurt her own self-esteem. "Winnie, I got the video back. If there is anything wrong, it is my negligence, please don't blame Mr. Bennet." Albert tried his best to persuade Winnie, as long as Winnie put forward any dissatisfaction, he took the responsibility on himself. But Winnie did not think so. "Albert, Calvin, I know you have come to persuade me. And I know you're doing what's best for us. But that won't solve the problem." "I believe you got the video back, but why did he only watch part of it? Why didn't he watch all of it? If he did see Stefan and I have an affair, it won't be too late to come to me. Why does he think I did something wrong before everything is not clear?" Winnie did not want to hear any persuasion. She did not believe that Brian was unintentional, but she thought it was just a fuse. "He can think what he wants, and do what he wants." "Go back to work, all of you. Don't let me drag you down." Winnie said and continued to pack up her own things. "Winnie, Mr. Bennet might go too far, don't get angry with him. He just cares about you." Seeing that Winnie was packing things, Calvin was worried. She seemed want to leave and to be sad. But as a bystander, he did not want it to get this bad. "He doesn't care about me, not at all. To him, I am a babysitter, a money-maker... Well, it doesn't make any sense." Winnie did not continue, because it made no sense. "Albert, who has been following me? Are you sure this person is reliable?" Winnie wanted to know whether the person tracked her had a problem. Why did this person tell Brian till now? "Followed you? Nobody is following you." Albert looked dazed and turned to Calvin. "Mr. Bennet sent someone to protect you when Wendy was always bothering you. But no one's following you now." Calvin explained. They did not understand why Winnie asked this question. "No one followed me. Who told Brian about this then?" Hearing such an answer, Winnie felt surprised. Calvin and Albert looked at each other. They knew who it was, but they were not sure if they should tell her. Seeing that they were silent, Winnie knew that they could not answer this question. "Never mind, I will check it by myself."

CHAPTER 574 BREAK UP NOW

As long as she could do it, Winnie never bothered others. And she knew that Albert and Calvin got the answer, they just could not tell her. She could not force them to say it. It was not hard to find out. If Brian could find the video of the hotel, she could. Winnie had finished packing up. "Let Mr. Bennet know that I want to take a few days off, and let me know when he has the solution. If you have a problem at work, let Alice contact me." After that, she left the company with her laptop and her bag. She had a complex mood as she walked out of the company. It was a prison to her, but she was in and out of it all the time. She wished she would never come back, she wished to solve all the problems. She left resolutely without looking back. She drove back to her home. No matter what was the problem, as long as she had a house, even if she was alone, she got a place to go. Winnie returned home. She did not think about Brian's words, but turned on the computer and got into the XX hotel monitoring system. She found the video from that day and began looking for clues. She was not looking for who was behind it, but she wanted to know whether she was framed or Brian did it on purpose. After that, she would know the truth and know what she should do about it. Winnie soon saw Wendy in the video and then she got the truth. So it was why Wendy came to Brian yesterday. No wonder last night Brian asked her whether she had been caught in the rain that day. Winnie did not think about it but continued to find out when Wendy began to follow her. Finally she found the source. Wendy had been following her since she was in the bar. Winnie also saw Calvin in the video but he showed up after Wendy left. Wendy told Brian that she drank with a man at a bar back then and told him she got a man with Stefan yesterday. Winnie turned off the computer. She now wanted to know whether Wendy deliberately caused her trouble or simply wanted to tell Brian about it. Winnie thought Brian would have no doubt about the intention of Wendy, otherwise he would not get anger before he figured out what had happened. However, Winnie did not believe that Wendy had no purpose. During this period of time, Wendy had been jealousy of her, how could she miss such a good opportunity? Wendy was the one who most wanted her to break up with Brian. Winnie thought for a long time, she decided to call Brian to confirm his attitude. If he was influenced by Wendy's words, she would break up with him. She called for a long time before Brian answered. Winnie was blunt and went to the point. "I checked the surveillance. It was Wendy told you, right?" Winnie could not control her anger. "It is no important who told me, what matters is the thing itself." Brian did not answer that question, because he felt that was not the point. "I want to know what Wendy told you. Did she run into me by accident, or did she follow me on purpose?" The first question was not important to her, because they both knew the truth. But the second question depended on Brian's attitude. "Don't think she is so dirty, ok? Do you want to put the problem on others? It's your problem, you need to face it." Brian was angry and he could not accept that Winnie wanted to escape from the problem. However, Winnie could not accept his words. Hearing that, Winnie felt sad. "You're right, my thoughts are dirty. Wendy's thoughts are good and simple." "Don't you want to hear the truth? I'll tell you right now." Winnie gave up on Brian. He didn't have the least respect or trust for her, why should she insist on her damn love? "I spent the whole day with Stefan. I got a room with him. What you think is true. I cheated on you." After finishing the last sentence, Winnie smiled sarcastically and then corrected herself. "I used the wrong word. I am not cheating, because we are not married. I just fell in love with someone else." "Winnie..." Brian became furious, but Winnie had become accustomed to his attitude towards her. "Don't be irritable. I'm telling you what you want to hear. You can tell the kids that I am misbehaving, that I fall in love another man. The responsibility is on me anyway, so you can say whatever you want." "You can do with it any way you want, and I have no complaints." Winnie took all the responsibility and thought it was what Brian wanted. She bore all and the kids would not hate him. He could be with Gloria with no burden. "Break up, break up now." Brian lost his reason and wanted to break up. Winnie fell into silence. She had been wishing to break up, but she did not expect they would break up in this way. Hearing that, she felt her heart broken. Winnie stopped being angry. Since they broke up, what he did had nothing to do with her. Why should she be angry about someone she didn't have connection with? "Ok, I agree, now that we're breaking up, make it clear. Let's meet somewhere tonight." "I'll let you know when I've chosen the place." "See you tonight." Winnie said calmly and hung up the phone. Surprisingly, she didn't cry, but smiled sarcastically. Her love, which she thought was deep to the bone, was so fragile. With one small misunderstanding, her love was over. Well, the earlier it was over, the earlier she would get it over and end such a messy life. Winnie put down the phone. She did not cry. She was sad, but it proved that Brian did not believe her. Even if she explained, even if she cried, it could not solve the problem. But she would not endure Wendy anymore, would not endure everything for Brian anymore. Winnie asked Wendy out to meet in a coffee shop. "Sit down. What would you like to drink?" Winnie greeted Wendy gently, now showing her dissatisfaction to Wendy. "Iced coffee." Wendy sat down, but she did not know why Winnie wanted to see her, why Winnie was so gentle. "Wendy, do you know why I want to see you?" Winnie said softly, but there was a sharp light in her bright eyes. "No." Wendy could not say it even if she knew. "Well, then, let's have a little chat." Winnie took a sip of coffee and looked at Wendy with no temperature in her eyes. "You met Brian at the airport on purpose. I found out that there was no entry or exit record of you on that day. You were waiting for him there on purpose. And you know why." Hearing that, Wendy could not calm down. "Winnie, are you here to take about old things?" Wendy avoided answering Winnie's question. "It is just a little chat." "You secretly followed Brian on a business trip... Here I want to make it clear, you learned about Brian's itinerary through Klara, deliberately encountered him at the banquet, and then sent those photos to me." "You did all this, didn't you?" Winnie raised eyebrows and asked Wendy, with a calm face. She was not angry at all even though she had learned the truth. Wendy was panic. Winnie knew all this, but did not say it. "I don't know what you're talking about." The only thing Wendy could do was play dumb. "It's okay that you don't admit it, as long as you have it in mind. I came out in a hurry and I have learned it in half an hour. I will continue when I get home." Winnie was not afraid that Wendy did not admit it and now she did not need her to admit it. She just wanted to give Wendy a heads-up. "I have a good news for you. You reached your goal. A few minutes before I called you, I broke up with Brian. "You know the reason. It was you told him that Stefan and I spent the night in a hotel." "Congratulations, you can start over with Brian." Winnie said with a smile. She did not look sad but gave a gentle smile, which was creepy. "Did you break up?" Wendy asked with suspicion. It was a bit of a surprise. She expected that Brian and Winnie would have quarrel, but as long as Winnie made explanation, it would be over. Breaking up was unexpected, and it might be Winnie's tricks. "Yes, we broke up, it's true." "Here, I'll give you a video. Go home and watch it. And you will know it." Winnie took out the U disk from her bag and handed it to Wendy. Then she got up. "By the way, let me remind you, if you get back to Brian, don't let him know about your relationship with Penny. Otherwise, you will be screwed. He hates Penny so much." Winnie said that before she left.

CHAPTER 575 WHY NOT EXPLAIN

Wendy sat in situ looking at the U disk in front of her in a daze. She had spent much effort and time to separate Brian and Winnie. But when Winnie put forward to break up, why she felt flustered? And from Winnie's words, she obviously knew that she and Penny had contacts. At this thought, Wendy was helpless. She did not understand with half an hour of time how could Winnie find out so many things. She had found out Klara and the secretary, even that she went to prison to see Penny. Was she that awesome all things could not be hidden from her? If she was, Winnie was the most terrible person, no wonder Penny would be defeated. Wendy left the coffee shop and went straight home to play the U disk. It was about that Winnie got a room in the hotel. A female staff in a hotel uniform walked in the room before Winnie and Stefan entered. And she had never come out since the moment she got in. The next morning Stefan and Winnie left the room, but the staff was still in. Wendy was confused, wondering whether she had not noticed the staff coming out, or whether she had not come out. Wendy remembered Winnie asked her to watch it from beginning to end, so Wendy continued to watch. It was only after 12 o'clock that the woman came out of the room and checked out at the front desk, where she could clearly hear the conversation between the female staff and the receptionist. "Your friend left this morning. Why are you checking out at this hour?" The receptionist said when she was checking out. "Miss Chambers threw up all night, so Stefan and I took care of her all night. I was too sleepy so I continue to sleep as soon as they left and did not wake up till this hour." Wendy now understood everything. So there were three people in the room, Winnie threw up all night and nothing really happened to them. At this, Wendy did not know how to deal with such a fact and had no idea why Winnie and Brian broke since the fact was clear. Therefore she made a call to Winnie. Winnie was waiting for Brian in the agreed place by this time. She felt her mood complex and sad, but she picked up Winnie's phone without hesitation, at least to temporarily ease the heartache. "What is it?" Winnie asked in a cold voice. "I finished watching the video, and there were three people in the room, why did you break up?" Wendy went to the point. "Brian didn't know it was three people. He saw no third person in the video, only saw me and Stefan." Winnie did not hide it from Wendy. Everyone had a dark side. Now she wanted to show Wendy what it was like to be overshadowed. "You didn't explain to him?" Wendy asked with puzzlement. "No, I didn't explain. He saw only the two of us. Do you think he'll believe me? Even if he reluctantly believed it, he would still mind it." "It is going to affect our relationship sooner or later. We might as well break up." Winnie said sarcastically, as she said, there was no essential change even if she changed. "Besides, I should think for you. You were quite tired to manage it, I want to make you achieve your goal." "That is it. I wish you and Brian will be married." Winnie then hung up. She told herself to break up was the most sensible choice, otherwise she had to deal with Wendy and Gloria. Since they had broken up, she would leave the problem to Gloria and Wendy. As Winnie hung up the phone, Brian appeared in the door. Seeing this tall and straight figure, Winnie felt her heart in severe pain, but she had to bear it. She told herself she must keep her dignity as long as she was alive. "Just in time. Sit down. I only need a few words to make things clear." After saying that, Winnie took a glance at Brian and then took back his sight. He had an angry face, a pair of cold eyes, and bushy eyebrows. They were to break up, she did not know why he still looked like that. "Go ahead. Let me know what you want." Brian sat down and said in a cold voice and a patronising tone. Winnie raised the corner of her mouth. She knew Brian would use this way to solve the problem. "Leave the kids to me. I can take care of them." Winnie raised her requirements and then fell into silence. Seeing that she was speechless, Brian asked. "What else?" "No. I just want to raise my kids." Brian's words froze Winnie's heart to the extreme. After being together for such a long time, he didn't know her at all and still asked her if she had other requirements. What else? Money? She asked for money when she gave birth to kids, so he thought she would ask for money to raising the kids? At this, Winnie suddenly thought of another possibility that Brian asked such a question. She pushed the file bag she was holding in front of him. "And this. These are all properties that you have transferred to me. You said it was for the kids, but since we broke up, it's not appropriate for me to keep it, so take it back." "I don't ask for anything, just let me take care of the kids. As for work, if you agree, I will go back to my company and send someone over." In addition to that, Winnie did not have any requirements, so that her self-esteem would not be hurt. Winnie said that and stood up. "Go back and tell the kids, and then I'll pick them up. You can rest assured that the kids are with me. And you can see them whenever you want. On Saturday and Sunday, I will send them to the suburbs to spend the weekend with your father." "I've said all I want to say, we have no relationship from now on, and it's not appropriate for me to sit here... Just call me when things settle down with work and kids." "I gotta go." Winnie took a look at Brian before she stepped away. "Why not explain?" When Winnie was to go out, Brian asked. He asked her why she didn't explain. He should ask himself if he had given her a chance to explain, if he needed her to explain. Since he had his judgment, why should she explain? Winnie faced away from Brian and was silent for a minute. "It is true that I got a room with Stefan, and it is also true that I lied to you that I was at home. I was wrong and there was nothing to explain." That was what Brian wanted to hear. Since he wanted to hear, it was kind of Winnie's explanation. Then Winnie left. Brian was angry. Winnie ended their relationship with just a few words. He had uttered the word of 'break up', but he had said it in a fit of anger. Why Winnie did not refuse? Why did she end it easily? Did she fall in love with Stefan? Winnie's dream of breakup came true, but she was not used to it. She hardly slept, and the night was endless. Her relief for the night was work, crazy work. She spent the whole night on the public security system software development, which made her feel much better. Winnie did not know that it was dawn and did not feel sleepy until the evening, so she turned off the phone leaving everything behind. She slept until the next morning. Winnie opened her eyes and turned on the phone to read the message one by one, but she was disappointed. Everyone sent her a message, except for Brian. At this point, Winnie realized that she and Brian were totally over. She felt sad about it. It was only five in the morning, Winnie went out for a morning run to shake off Brian's figure in her mind. It was said that running could forget all the troubles, Winnie would like to have a try and see if she could forget Brian. However, Winnie found it was not truth. Even if she got exhausted from running, she could not shake him off her mind. After Winnie returned home, she washed her face so that she could look afresh when she got to work. Even if she was upset, even if she could not forget Brian, she must cheer up, work hard and not to be tortured by love. Instead of going to the Bennet Group, Winnie went back to her own company. When she came to her new office, everything was so strange. She hoped that when she saw Brian, he was strange too. Winnie devoted herself to the work and discussed work with Alice on the phone. Brian's office. "Winnie hasn't come to work yet?" Brian asked in a cold voice. He had a difficult time these two days. He had not told the kids about his breakup and did not make arrangement for Winnie's work. He felt that even if they had to break up, Winnie should give him an explanation, but Winnie disappeared for two days, refused to answer his phone and did not return to the suburbs. Brian was angry but worried. "Alice said that Winnie had gone back to her company. Winnie and Alice will talk about work on the phone." Albert replied to Brian in a low voice. Since that day, Brian's face had been gloomy, and his temper became hot. He would blow up at the slightest thing that was wrong. As a result, neither Albert nor Calvin dared to talk about it. "Her job is here. She can't go back to her own company. Call her back."

CHAPTER 576 TWO DAYS AND NIGHTS OF HARD WORK

Brian gave an angry command. When Albert was to call Winnie, Brian stopped him however. "Stop it. Leave her there." He changed his mind and calmed himself down. Both of them needed time to think about it. Albert put away his phone and looked at Calvin. The two made eye contact and decided to speak. "Mr. Bennet, have you watched the video from the beginning to the end? Can it be a misunderstanding of Winnie?" Albert spoke first, followed by Calvin. "Yes, Mr. Bennet, Winnie was not that kind of person, she would not do that." "It doesn't matter if I watched it or not, it doesn't matter if you believe it or not, it matters that she admitted it." Brian was angry that Winnie did not give any explanation but admitted it. Since she had admitted it, he had nothing to say. "Mr. Bennet..." Albert tried to continue to persuade, but Brian interrupted him sharply. "Don't say another word, we have officially broken up." "Mr. Bennet, how can you break up? You can't break up without figuring things out. Even if Winnie admitted it, it is not be true. Calvin said anxiously hearing that they had broken up. He and Albert had been worried these two days, afraid that they would break up out of anger, and now they really had broken up. "Mr. Bennet, aren't you too impulsive? You've been through so much together, you can't just break up. Winnie admitted it, she was probably angry. Albert persuaded, he did want them do something regretful. "Stay out of this and do your own jobs." "Get out. I have to work." Brian gave a cold command. They did not understand what happened to him and Winnie, and they had no need to interfere with it. Since Winnie could be separated from him, he did no reason to ask her to stay with him. Albert and Calvin did not dare to speak again but obediently quit Brian's office. Leaving Brian's office, they felt uneasy, so they decided to take time out at noon to meet Winnie. They had appointment, but at noon Winnie could not keep the appointment for something. Winnie received a network case of the public security department. She must finish all her work on today to set aside two days to deal with the case. So she worked overtime in the company at noon, even did not go home at night. Winnie finished her work at three o'clock in the morning, so she drove directly to the police station. In the parking lot of the police station, she formally changed into a police uniform for the first time and wore her badge. The sense of responsibility the dress gave her made her forget her pain. Winnie was beautiful, in the handsome police uniform, she got a lot of attention. It was the first time anyone except the leader had met Winnie. They had heard that there was a new master was a woman, but no one thought she was so young and so beautiful. Winnie did not have time to know everyone, after a simple familiar with the case, she began to track on the network. It was night, and the other side was a criminal, so it was difficult to track. It was her first time to deal with such tracking, she was particularly cautious. She thought it would usually take her an hour to finish and five hours would be enough. But to her surprised, it took her two days and nights. "They got caught. We got a call just now saying the criminals Officer Chambers tracked down have been arrested." The silence of the office hall was suddenly broken by a policeman running excitedly across the hall. Before Winnie had a reaction, there was cheer-up in the office hall. "Good, finally." "Good, good." "It's all Officer Chambers' credit. Officer Chambers is amazing." Hearing the cheering and shouting, it was not until then that Winnie experienced the true joy of success. This kind of achievement could not be replaced by her international awards. "We worked together for two days and two nights. It isn't my credit, it is the credit of our team." Winnie responded in a modest way and enjoyed the happiness with everyone. Winnie talked to the leader before going home. She was so tired that she was to collapse. In a daze, she drove back home. Under such a state of exhaustion, she met the last person she expected to see right on her doorstep. Winnie felt her heart in pain again when she saw Brian again. And it was because she felt the heartache that she knew she was alive. "I'm very tired now. Can we talk after I get some sleep?" Winnie spoke feebly, his eyes blurred like having a layer of ashes. She had no mood or energy to talk to Brian about her kids and work. She simply wanted to sleep. "Where have you been these days? You didn't answer my phone, I failed to find you. What do you want?" Brian's tone was hard and cold, with rage. Since there had been no news from Winnie for two days, he was as anxious as an ant on a hot pot. It was this anxiety that made him not pay attention to Winnie's current state. "I hung out with Stefan. Go back and call me if you need something." With that, Winnie pressed the password of the house. Brian was angry to hear that. "Good, you had a good time. Don't worry about the kids. Have fun." Brian said mercilessly and walked away with anger. Winnie was in such a state of exhaustion that she slept only 12 hours in five days. Though the word of 'kids' did perk her up, she decided to go to sleep before her heart really stopped beating. Winnie opened the door and went into the room. Then she came out again. She changed the passwords of her house and walked back home. She didn't wash her face, take a shower or even take off her clothes before she lied in bed. Brian went downstairs angrily but suddenly she sensed something wrong with Winnie's words. Winnie said she had hung out with Stefan, but he had sent someone to Stefan's shop. Stefan had been busy and was not with Winnie. Winnie lied, but why? Brian recalled carefully the scene when they talked and felt Winnie was in a bad state, so he walked back. When Brian rang the doorbell, no one answered, so he input the password, but the password had been changed. Under emergency Brian could only call Winnie. But she did not answer till he made the fifth call. "Please, can I get some sleep? Just pretend I'm still your girlfriend, and let me have some sleep, okay? It's been five days. I've only slept twelve hours. I'll die if I don't sleep." Winnie said in her dream, even if her consciousness was not awake, Winnie felt distressed. "Please?" Winnie once again whispered begging, her voice worried Brian. He did not know what happened to Winnie these two days, did not know why she only slept for twelve hours in five days, did not know why she was so tired. He wanted to know the answer, but he gave up after hearing Winnie's weak pleading. "Have a good rest..." Before he finished speaking, he heard the sound of even breathing over the phone. It sounded reassuring and familiar to him. He would never forget it. Brian hung up the phone and left downstairs again. Winnie slept until the next morning. After washing herself, she went to work without eating breakfast. Laura wanted to report work, so they came to Winnie's office, and then Laura found Winnie looked bad. So she asked with concern "Why do you look bad these two days?" "I had no enough rest." Winnie was still weak. She had slept for a day and a night, and she didn't even eat anything until now, so she had no vitality. "Why? Is there something bothering you? How about breakfast? Have you eaten breakfast? Why you look so weak?" Laura was an experienced person in life. If Winnie ate breakfast, even if she did not have a good rest, she would not look like this. "You're right. I haven't had breakfast. I....." "What do you want to eat, I will buy some food for you." Laura interrupted Winnie, took out her phone to order breakfast. "Thank you, Laura, just get me some porridge." Winnie did not refuse. At this time, her biological clock was out of order. If she did not get some food, she would not be able to make it through. Laura soon got the breakfast ready for Winnie and then continued to talk with Winnie. "Did Klara and Wendy bother you again?" Seeing Winnie's state, Laura thought the two bothered Winnie again, and it could be big, or Winnie would not be in this state. "They've been messing with me all the time, but I'm used to their tricks. It has nothing to do with them." Winnie denied it, but she did not want to tell Klara that she and Brian had broken up before telling her kids. "Then why do you come to work here these two days?" Laura did not believe Winnie's answer and continued to ask. She knew Winnie was a woman who could endure everything. Winnie raised the corner of her mouth bitterly. She had been concealing it well, but it had been seen through, there must be something that she had not done well. "I recently took a private job, and it was easy to get caught at the Bennet Group, so I came back to work. Don't worry, Laura, I'll be fine. I can handle Klara and Wendy." "I'm in this state because I've been staying up late to catch up on my private work." Winnie made up a reason that could be believed to cover up her things. She now was not strong enough to handle all the attention from everyone. When she was strong enough and the kids knew it, when her family knew it, she would face it.

CHAPTER 577 HEAR YOU EXPLAIN

It was not that Laura did not believe Winnie, but she was worried that Winnie could not cope with it alone. So once again she confirmed with Winnie. "Really not because of Klara and Wendy?" "No, you may rest assured." Winnie smiled and thanked Laura for her exquisite thoughts and was touched by her concern. "Good. But Winwin, I still want to remind you, if they look for you, don't endure it, you must fight back and let them know that you can't be bullied easy." Laura temporarily believed Winnie, but she thought Wendy and Klara should be part of the reason. It was not all because of the private work. Laura continued. "You should show your attitude to them and can't indulge them. Winnie, you can forgive them if they are kind, but they have no heart, for their own selfish desires..." "Ok, Laura, I know what you mean. You may rest assured that I will not indulge them. Don't you know me? I wouldn't have gotten here if I had been bullied." Winnie still smiled and interrupted Laura. Laura reminded her every time they met, Winnie was perfunctory every time, but now she wanted to take Laura's words seriously. Although she would not retaliate against them, Winnie wanted to expose them, wanted to let them know that she had just been enduring, but actually she knew everything. "Winwin, hear me out. I know you're not a sucker, but I you don't take measure on them, they won't stop." "I told Wendy that Klara likes Mr. Bennet and that Klara used her, but it didn't work. Klara and Wendy still worked together to do harm to you. I don't know if Wendy didn't believe me or if she had other ideas. In short, these two are bad. You must be careful." Laura knew she was nagging, but it was the first time she told Winnie so. Wendy and Klara used each other, but they had the same target. Winnie was standing in the light, while they were in the dark staring at her. Laura was afraid that Winnie would get hurt, so she reminded Winnie. "Wendy knows that Klara likes Brian?" Winnie was surprised. Since she had known the fact, but they still worked together, Wendy was a scheming. "Yes, she already knows." Laura answered in the affirmative. "Well, then, I know what to do. Laura, don't worry, I will not indulge them." Winnie had no worries. She was not afraid who would be in the middle. Now she would find her position and expose the tricks of Wendy and Klara. But Winnie felt there might be another possibility - two people sooner or later would do harm to each other even if she said nothing, and she played a role at most. Winnie had breakfast and started working, and it was only during her noon break that she called Brian. "Mr. Bennet, sorry to call you late. I have been busy all morning and can only call you now." Winnie said to Brian politely. She thought it should be so, after all, they had broken up. Winnie continued without waiting for a response. "Was it about work or about the kids last night?" "Neither, I haven't told the kids yet and I haven't decided about your job either. I came to you to hear the truth." He did not express his concern, but did not know how to say it, so he had to change the topic to the truth. "Mr. Bennet, it's what you think it is, and there's no truth beyond that." Winnie frowned, but her tone was composed. She felt that it was ironic that Brian was now seeking the truth. Since he was sure about the truth, there was no point to verify with her. Brian did not trust her, even if she gave a hundred explanations, Brian would not believe her. "What I think?" Brian asked Winnie. "You think that I got a room with a man, that I have an affair with someone else and that I cheated on you since I had sex with another man. "These occurred to you, I cannot lie to you. The only explanation I can give is that what you think is true." Winnie understood that Brian thought in way. Who could believe that two people in the same room did nothing? And she let Vanessa lie to Brian, so it was right to suspect her. How Winnie could not accept that Brian got angry with her before he had figured things out and that he believe Wendy's words instead of her character. If Winnie remembered correctly, when they quarreled on the rooftop, she hinted that Brian should not be taken out of context. But now it appeared that Brian did not watch the video again and did not want to believe her. "Even if what I think is true, I want to hear your explanation." Brian said in an angry voice. His inner thoughts were said out by Winnie. He did think so and felt Winnie cheated on him, otherwise he couldn't have been so angry, or even motivated to kill. Although he thought so, he wanted an explanation that she had nothing to do with Stefan. "I have explained it. Mr. Bennet, stop it. We broke up. I did something wrong. I'm sorry. I apologize." Winnie gave a heartbroken apology, but she never regretted. There was no difference between doing it and not doing it in Brian's mind. "Mr. Bennet, you'd better tell the kids first, and I hope you can arrange the job soon." Winnie did not continue this topic. They had broken up, and as long as the kids and work were settled, they would be fine. Brian was angered by Winnie's attitude. He did not want such an explanation, her explanation was a kind of harm to Brian. And Brian found that Winnie seemed to hide something. She had been doing something secretly recently. Since Winnie refused to him, he would keep her around until she said it out. "Your job has not changed, and you must be responsible for the part of your company. Or I will buy your company." Brian could only use such a domineer way to keep her around. As long as she was by his side, she would tell him someday and would give him an explanation. "You..... Mr. Bennet, don't talk about business and personal affair..." "Come back tomorrow if you want to save your company." Brian was insolent like a scoundrel, after the order, he hung up the phone. Winnie was so angry that she wanted to throw her phone. The Bennet family only solved the problem with money. Winnie thought Brian would keep her away since it was her fault. In this way, she could be free from the interference of Brian. But he got a problem in his brain and he still kept her around. Did he want to get back at her, want her to see him be in love with another woman? Winnie dare not bet with her company. She could go back to work and take all the pressure that Brian put on her. She believed that one day Brian would get tired of her and send her away. These two days Winnie had not been to the suburbs, had not contacted with friends, had not called Vanessa and her aunt. She only had buried herself in work all day. This day she had to go back to work, had to face Brian. As she got into the office, Alice came in. Alice found something wrong with Winnie, but she had no idea what exactly was going on. "Winnie, have you finished your vacation?" Alice tentatively asked. She was not a gossip person, nor curious about what happened to Winnie, but worried about Winnie because she looked bad. "Yes, thank you for your hard work." Winnie gave a faint smile, but her smile was not from her heart. Alice knew it was disguised. "You don't look good, didn't you have a good rest?" Alice continued. She was tired these days, but not she was not weak without spirit as Winnie. "Do I look bad? I stayed up late last night to finish my work. Maybe it's because I didn't sleep well." Winnie patted her face and answered Alice with a smile. She knew she didn't look good, but there was nothing she could do because she did not sleep well. "Then you sleep for a while at noon and I work..." Before Alice could finish speaking, someone knocked at the door. The person who came in was none other than the secretary who leaked Brian's whereabouts to Klara. "Winnie, Mr. Bennet wants you to go to his office to report your work." "All right, I'll be there." Winnie said. "Then I'll go back." The secretary was to leave, but was stopped by Winnie. "Bonnie, wait." Winnie called her and then looked at Alice. "You go out first, I have a few words with Bonnie." "Oh, I'll be out." "Here's the schedule that you need to report to Mr. Bennet. I put it here." Alice put the documents on the desk and went out. "What's the matter, Winnie?" Bonnie came to Winnie and spoke to her respectfully. "Do you have a good relationship with Klara?" Winnie got limited time, so she went straight to point. Hearing the name of Klara, Bonnie was nervous. Although she was not sure what was going on, there was a secret between her and Klara. "We met before." Bonnie did not know how to answer and could only say she knew Klara. "Well, I'll go to the point. You told Klara the itinerary of Mr. Bennet, didn't you?" Winnie asked Bonnie in a cold tone.

CHAPTER 578 FAINT AGAIN

Winnie exposed her in the way of questioning, to give Bonnie a chance. Regardless of whether she knew what Klara was doing with the information, she violated the principles of the industry. The taboo of being a secretary was revealing the boss's schedule. "Winnie... How do you know that? I am not malicious, Klara asked me, and I told her directly." Bonnie was panicked and admitted it in a sincere attitude. "Bonnie, have you ever thought about Klara's intention to ask these things?" She didn't need Bonnie to answer her question, she just reminded her. Winnie continued. "No matter how good the relationship you have with Klara, even if she is your family, as a secretary, you cannot freely divulge The Bennet Group schedule." "Conduct yourself well, if Mr. Bennet finds it out, you will lose your job." Winnie gave her a warning. She would not tell Brian or pursue the responsibility of Bonnie. But if there would be something happened, it depended on how Bonnie handled it. After that, Winnie took the document to Brian's office. Brian was not alone in the office, Albert and Calvin were there reporting work. Seeing that Winnie came in, Albert and Calvin gave a smile greeting with Winnie. "Winnie." "Winnie, you are here to work?" "Yes, I have to come to work." Winnie indicated that if she did not come to work, she might even lose her life. Winnie then looked at Brian after saying that. "Mr. Bennet, I am here to report my work." Winnie said to Brian politely and formally. She experienced such scene several times, as if everything had come full circle. This time she had to do it thoroughly. "You two go out first." Brian gave an order coldly. He was dissatisfied that Winnie had fit to the state that they had broken up. Albert and Calvin went out without saying anything. But they prayed that they could have a good talk and were good again. Only Winnie and Brian were left in the office. Winnie knew why Brian told Albert and Calvin to go out, but she still avoided talking about private affairs. "Mr. Bennet, I now begin to report my work." "This month..." "I don't want a report. I just want an explanation." Brian interrupted her in a domineering manner. At the same time, he noticed that Winnie did not look well, and she seemed to have lost a lot of weight these days. Since she was with another man, since he agreed to break up, why tortured herself? He was angry but felt distressed for her. Winnie was angry with Brian's behavior. She did not like the mix of public affairs and private affairs, and did not like Brian's tough attitude. "Mr. Bennet, it is work time, we can talk about private affairs after work." Winnie refused to answer. She gave her answer, what else did he want to hear? "It's my call. If you don't explain, his restaurants will be shut down one by one." Brian used this method to threaten Winnie, and only this method was effective for him. "You..... can you do anything else? Can you not get anyone else involved? We were in love, at least I thought so. Does it have to be this way even if we have broken up?"

"I've explained everything. I don't know what else you want to hear. Do you want to hear more about what we did in the hotel room?" "You wanted to break up, I did not pester you or cause you trouble, what do you want now?" Winnie was angry. Brian chose to break up, why did he still make it difficult for her? She just wanted to breathe air, just wanted to relax, was it really that hard? Winnie now understood that Felix was not the most difficult to deal with in the Bennet family, but Brian. She would never gonna be herself once she got involved with him. "You are afraid that I get anyone involved into our affairs. Why are you not afraid hurting me that you got a room with Stefan? Have you ever considered my feelings?" Brian's anger went beyond his love for Winnie, and it was difficult for Brian to control himself whenever he mentioned the images in the video. "It was me wanted to break up. You already have other man, do you still want to be together with me? What kind of person do you think I am? How can I even want a woman like you who has no sense of shame?" Brian was so angry that he did not mind his words. He was angered by Winnie's words. He couldn't hear that kinds of words and couldn't stand that scene. But he said in a fit of rage that he regretted the next moment. Looking at Winnie's sallow face, looking at her hurtful eyes, looking at her being sad by his words, he regretted. "Yes, you're right. I do not deny that I am an unscrupulous woman. That's why I said I was wrong, and that's why I deserved to be abandoned by you." "I see what you mean, Brian. You have never treated me like a good woman. You have been looking down at me." Winnie felt wronged and wanted to cry, but she blinked her eyes with force, as far as possible to hold back tears. Brian's words were too hurtful to her dignity that she had been trying hard to maintain. Why now she was an unscrupulous woman? She only had Brian from the day of surrogacy. In this way, was she an unscrupulous woman? Was it shameful to be so attached to a man? Okay, he could say whatever he wanted. It was okay to look down at her. She got nothing, after all. "I have explained everything I need to, and I will work here at your request. Hate me if you want. Torture me if you want. Don't hurt the innocent." "Mr. Bennet, I'll get Alice to report the work to you. I'll go back." Winnie turned around and left resolutely. She had lost all hope of this man. Winnie slammed the door. Before Brian had response, there came the sound of chaos outside and the people outside seemed to be anxious. "Winnie... What's wrong with you, Winnie?" "Winnie, wake up." "Bonnie, call the ambulance." "Mr. Bennet, Winnie fainted." By the time Brian heard this, he had already opened the door of his office. Winnie fell to the ground and seemed to have fainted. Brian crouched down to hold Winnie in his arms. "Winwin, Winwin, wake up." Brian urgently called her name, but Winnie did not respond at all. At this time, Brian had forgotten his anger and was anxious like an ant on a hot pot. "Albert, get the car." Brian gave an ordered and walked to his office with Winnie in his arms, and was ready to take the president's exclusive elevator, so that it could be faster. Winnie was sent to the hospital for a careful examination. Kevin said, "Severe sleep deprivation and malnutrition. If my analysis is correct, Winwin has not slept or eaten well for several days." "Another cause of her coma was emotional distress." Hearing what Kevin said, Brian felt ashamed. He did not notice Winnie's problem. She said she was sleepy and tired, but he had been abusive to her. He knew that Winnie was poor in physical condition, but he still forced her. "Did you have a fight?" Kevin asked Brian seeing that he was in silence. He frowned and did not answer. He did not know how to answer, if he said they had a fight, it was more serious than a fight. If he said they had broken up, he himself did not recognize this ending. When two people were silent, Winnie slowly opened her eyes. She was ignorant of where she was. She knew nothing since she came out of Brian's office. Winnie looked sideways and saw the infusion bottle over her head. She realized that she had fainted again. The thought of her fainting outside Brian's office made her angry with herself. Resentful, she suddenly sat up and pulled the infusion needle out of her hand. She cursed herself. "That's all I can do. It is so embarrassing to get fainted in front of him. I am useless, I am better off dead." "Winwin, what are you doing?" Brian found Winnie had woken up when she sat up, but as he ran to the hospital bed, Winnie had pulled out the infusion needle. Seeing that her blood flew out, Brian felt distressed and hurried to grasp Winnie's hand. "Let go, don't you touch me. Don't get your hands dirty, Mr. Bennet." Winnie almost exhausted all her strength to shake off Brian hand. She hid her hands behind her back despite the bleeding. "Winwin..." "I'm sorry, I didn't mean to faint. My damn body is not good enough, I am sorry to bother you, Mr. Bennet." "I'm all right now. Mr. Bennet, please get back to your work." Winnie's hatred for herself had been in the extreme restraint, but Brian's words insulting her were clearly reverberating in her ears. She was a capricious and shameless woman, how could she affect The Bennet Group reputation? "Winwin, your hand is bleeding. Stop the bleeding, ok?" Brian was angry, but hearing what Winnie said, he only felt distressed. He knew Winnie was still angry about his words. He already knew he was wrong to say that humiliating word to her, no matter what happened. "No, I hope I bleed to death. My body is useless and will only embarrass me." Winnie's anger did not abate. She had nothing to do with Brian and she did not want him to see her like this, or he would think she was playing tricks to get his sympathy. She's been on her own all the way, and now she could get through it without Mr. Bennet.

CHAPTER 579 DON'T ASK QUESTIONS

Winnie was to get out of bed. Since Brian refused to leave, she would leave. When Winnie wanted to get out of bed, Kevin came over and stopped Winnie. He reached out to Winnie's hand and it was only then he found Winnie got blood on hands, as well as her clothes and the quilt. Kevin directly pressed it with hands. To be exact, it was the blood vessel was cut when Winnie pulled out the needle, otherwise she would not have shed so much blood. "Come and hold it, I get my medicine." Kevin called Brian over to press the wound of Winnie. Then he ran out. "Let go, my blood is not clean. Don't make you infectious." Winnie pushed Brian away with the other hand. She would never let Brian touch her or help her. "Stop that, ok? I don't want your explanation, I won't force you, ok?" Brian did not let go of Winnie's hand. It was scary, his hands, the quilt, and Winnie's two hands were covered with blood. For him, it was heartache. Now Brian found that even if Winnie was wrong, he still loved her and felt that she was the most important in the world. "You'd better force me, so I can die faster. Let go, I have my own hands, I can press it myself. If it infects you..." Winnie did not care if Brian forced her or not, she had been used to Brian's attitude to her in one year and a half, but Winnie knew she would sooner or later be tortured to death Brian. "Stop, I shouldn't have said that. Winwin, I won't force you, I won't buy your company, I won't break down Stefan's hot pot restaurant, ok?" Brian shouted loudly. She was still bleeding and he felt so distressed about it, how could he still think about these things? Hearing that, Winnie stopped pushing him. She could not believe what he said, but she saw hope. She hoped he really would not hurt innocent people and carry the burden of blaming himself. Sooner or later he would know that he was wrong. And then he himself would regret hurting innocent people. Winnie gave a bitter smile. Though they had broken up, she was still concerned about Brian. She must be mad and had lost herself. When two people were silent, Kevin and Oscar ran in together. "What's the matter?" Oscar saw blood everywhere and asked with panic. "Don't ask, deal with it first." Kevin said and then dealt with Winnie's wound skillfully. He was right that it was needle cut her blood vessels, which caused so much blood bleeding. It could be told that Winnie used much strength and it was not a simple quarrel that Winnie and Brian had. Kevin soon finished treating the wound and then gave her simple dressing. Everyone in the ward was quiet. Kevin spoke and broke the silence. "Don't die in this way. If you die here, I will lose my job. If you die for such a simple disease, who will come to me in the future?" "Shut up, don't say anything unlucky." Brian stared at Kevin and told him not to talk nonsense. Winnie ignored their conversations and looked up at Oscar. "Pay my bills and come back for me. I want to get out of here." Winnie could only rely on Oscar. "Winwin, this is my hospital, you don't need to..." "Because it's your hospital, I want to pay every cent of the medical bills." Winnie interrupted Brian. She could use money of all people in the world, but she could not use Brian's. She was looked down upon by him, how could she use his money shamefully? "Go, Oscar." Winnie urged Oscar. Oscar was embarrassed and he did not know what happened. "Oscar, go pay the bills and go through the hospitalization procedures. She is weak and has to be admitted to hospital." Kevin said as an attending doctor. Winnie was stubborn, so he could only do as she required. "I don't have to be hospitalized. I can discharge now. I'm fine." Winnie insisted, but by this time Kevin gave a wink to Oscar, motioning him to do what he said. "I'll pay the bill and be back in a minute. You have a good talk." Oscar pacified Winnie and then went out. "I told you I am fine." Winnie was not fine, but she insisted on saying so, because she did not want to be weak in front of Brian, either physically or mentally. "I am a doctor, and I know your condition better than you know yourself. If you don't hospitalize, you'll break down." "How many days have you not eaten? How many all-nighters have you been up for? You don't have a good physical condition. It is like committing suicide if you don't eat and sleep, you know that?" Kevin said seriously, to calm Winnie down, so that she could be hospitalized. "I know. I'll take care of myself, I will go home to get some sleep." Winnie knew her situation, but Brian did not know. He must think that she was pretending and that she did not want to have a breakup. "Winwin..." "Please call me Winnie." As Brian was about to speak, Winnie stopped him. "Winnie, you hospitalize and I will leave you alone. I'll leave when Oscar gets back." It worked. After that, Winnie said nothing more. She waited for Oscar to come back, and then Brian left. During this period of time, Kevin gave Winnie infusion again. Winnie's left hand was injured and bruised, and she would use her right hand to get things. Kevin had to put the needle in Winnie's foot. As the infusion started, Oscar came back. Brian was afraid that Winnie would be emotional, so he got up. "Oscar, please take care of Winwin. I have to go back to my company." "Don't worry, I'll take care of her." Hearing Oscar's assurance, Brian looked up at Winnie who was sallow on face and then he stepped away. Brian closed the door, and Oscar sat on the bed. "Winwin..." Oscar wanted to ask what was going on, but as he only called the name of Winnie, Winnie got into his arms and began to cry. Winnie had been crying hysterically, trembling. But she just cried without saying a word. Kevin wanted to comfort her, but she was so sad and he did not know how to comfort her, so he only reached out to hold Winnie's shoulder. Oscar and Kevin felt the same. Seeing that Winnie was so sad, they knew she must have been wronged. Since so, she had to cry loudly to vent herself, so Oscar did not persuade her, but only held her in arms as comfort. Brian left, but he was still standing outside the hospital room. He was not to eavesdrop or peek, but hearing Winnie cried sadly, he felt distressed and could not walk away. Through the window, he could see that Winnie crying in the arms of Oscar, just facing him. Winnie's tears streamed down her face and she looked heartbroken. How much grievance did she have? How many things in her mind that made her down? Brian hoped that it was him she was holding, it was him to give her comfort. But on the contrary, it was his reason that Winnie felt sad. Brian could not continue to watch it, or he would forgive Winnie. He then strode away with great determination. In the ward, Winnie did not stop crying till no tears could flow out, but still she did not speak. Oscar and Kevin didn't say anything until she calmed down. "Sorry to worry you. How did you know I was here, Oscar?" "A colleague of mine hit a pedestrian with his car and I came to help him visit the pedestrian. When I came, I saw Brian running in with you in his arms." "Later, I went to help my colleague deal with things, and helped the person who was hit to go through the hospitalization procedures. After all the arrangements, I came to see you." Oscar told Winnie why he was there. "Alas..... I didn't want you to know, but it all happened." Winnie sighed and went on. "Don't ask me anything, and don't tell them anything about today. I'll tell you when I'm in a better mood." "Kevin, don't tell Daenerys. She will be worried." Winnie had to tell them not to make too many people worry about her. She could bear it herself. "We won't ask if you won't want to talk about it. Since you need us to keep it a secret, I won't tell Daenerys. Winwin, as a doctor, I have to remind you that no matter what happens, you have to put your health first. It's dangerous for you to abuse yourself like this. Think for the kids." Kevin as a doctor reminded Winnie. She must now get nutrition medicine to recover as soon as possible. She was really cruel to herself. "I see. I've been working too hard these days. I'll take care of myself." Winnie was touched by Kevin's words – think for the kids. Who was going to take care of the kids if she fell ill? "It is good to realize the seriousness of the problem. Oscar, stay with Winwin, I have to see a patient." Since Winnie said nothing, Kevin had no need to be there, so he asked Oscar to take care of Winnie before he left. "Lie down to have some rest. I'll get you something to eat. Eat more and sleep more, and you'll recover faster." Oscar did not ask too much. He knew Winnie that if she did not tell, she would say nothing. Oscar helped Winnie lay down, and then sat on the bed to Winnie called takeout.

CHAPTER 580 FOR REVENGE

Winnie was really tired and sleepy. After lying down, she had fallen asleep before Oscar finished his order. Oscar wanted Winnie to have more sleep, so he stopped ordering takeout. He has been guarding Winnie in the ward, watching her get infusion. Winnie slept until the night and did not wake up when she felt hungry. At this time Oscar had gone and her infusion had finished. "You are up, I have the nurse got porridge for you." Kevin said with Winnie's dinner in his hand. "I am hungry." The porridge, which she didn't like to eat at ordinary times, now smelt sweeter than meat. Winnie took the dinner in Kevin's hand and began to eat. "Aren't you off duty?" Winnie asked Kevin while eating. "No, I have a colleague who has to change shifts with me. I'll take his shift tonight." In fact, Kevin had been off work, but Brian told him to take care of Winnie. He could only find an excuse to fend off the two women at home and at the hospital, or else he would be caught. "Oh, when did Oscar leave?" Winnie continued. "After your confusion." "Eat slowly, call me if you need me." With that, Kevin was to leave, but was stopped by Winnie. "Are you busy right now?" Winnie asked. "No." "Sit down and let's talk." Winnie motioned to Kevin to sit on the bed, but Kevin had been sitting, now needed to stand for a while. So he went to the window, put his hands in the pockets of his white coat, and stood against the windowsill. "I'm tired of sitting, I need to stand for a while. Say what you want." Kevin thought Winnie was to talk about the reason for the chaos today, but he was wrong. "Talk about Wendy and Brian." "Stella told me that Wendy was not the girl who saved Brian. Do you know who that girl was?" Winnie was not trying to find out what the meaning of the girl to Brian, no matter what the position of the girl in Brian's heart was, it had nothing to do with her. She wanted to know it because she wanted to expose Wendy. She wanted Wendy to realize that what she had done was wrong. "I don't know who the girl was, but it was definitely not Wendy." Kevin believed in Winnie, so he didn't hesitate to answer. Then he talked briefly about it. "When Brian first got together with Wendy, he thought she was that girl, but when he got to know her, he felt it was wrong, so he started looking for that girl again." "It took her a long time, but he found her. When he called me from abroad, he said that he had found that girl and that Wendy was not that girl. But he didn't give the basic details of that girl." At this, Kevin could not help sighing. "No one can resist fate. If it is supposed to be imperfect, you can't overcome it. Just when Brian went to see that girl, there was a sudden emergency in the company. He didn't see the girl but hurried back." "And it was unlucky that he got amnesia in a car accident, that girl was completely forgotten by him." If not the fate, he had seen that girl, Wendy would not have been involved. "Why Stella stop be from divulging this fact?" Winnie continued to ask. "Because Stella didn't want Brian to think of the accident." Kevin had never mention these to Daenerys, but he mentioned it to Winnie, because he thought Winnie had the right to know about Brian's past. He continued. "That car accident should be caused by Thomas." Hearing that, Winnie was shocked, she did not understand why. "Uncle Thomas?" Winnie asked in shock. "Yes, it was indeed Brian's uncle. Thomas and Brian became opposites because they fought for the dominant power of the Bennet Group. In order to let Thomas down from the position of the person in charge of the Bennet Group, Brian collected a lot of evidence about the improper management of Uncle Thomas." "He collected all this evidence before he could expose and he had the accident abroad. He wasn't hurt in the crash but his evidence was gone." Kevin told Winnie what he knew. He paused and was to go on, but Winnie asked a question at this time. "Why did he have to fight for management rights? Was it his ambition that controlled him?" Winnie asked, but she understood when she thought of that Brian had been devoted to the Bennet Group. Perhaps he was a man who valued power and status above all else. Just like the ancient imperial house, who wouldn't want to have the throne that can give a man everything? "One reason was that during the period of Thomas's management, the Bennet Group started to go downhill. And Thomas did something opportunistic. What he didn't realize was that the more opportunistic he was, the faster the descent was." "There was another reason..." Kevin sighed, hesitated for a moment, but finally said it out. "The other reason was that Brian wanted revenge, so he must be in power." In fact, Kevin knew that the second reason was the most important. He would not have been so obsessed with being president of the Bennet Group had it not been for hatred. "Because of hatred?" Winnie found that she did not know Brian. Did he fight for power with his family because of hatred? "His mother's death had a great effect on Brian. When his mother died, he changed." "He studied like crazy. He was moody and cranky all day. He suddenly became cold-blooded and filled with hatred for the whole world. "After studying abroad, he was arranged by his grandfather to work at the Bennet Group. He had accumulated experience from the bottom bit by bit, laying his position. During that period of time, he learned about some major loopholes in Thomas's management of The Bennet Group." "He initially approached his grandfather about taking over, but his grandfather refused, citing his youth and inexperience. But it was known by Thomas, and then the two of them began to have fight secretly." "Things became more and more serious, Thomas did harm to Brian more than once, but Brian did not give up. Their infighting went on for years." "Finally, Felix gave the position of the ruler of the Bennet Group because Brian had a son." Kevin said the whole thing in detail. He felt it was of great help for Winnie to get to know Brian. "For hatred? He has come all these years to hate?" Winnie had nothing to say. It was the most specific she had ever heard about Brian's past. To tell the truth, she felt sorry for Brian, who made hatred all his life. It was his hatred that made his solution so extreme. Winnie sighed and felt herself and kids sad in front of Brian's hatred. "He has made hatred his whole life. Even though he lost his memory, he still wanted to avenge his mother subconsciously and was trying to hold on to his position. He thought it was the only place where he could feel safe, the only place where he could avenge his mother." "Am I right?" Winnie said what she thought, Kevin felt it was right and it showed that Winnie understood Brian well. "Yes, you're right. If there's any uncertainty in his world, he doesn't feel safe, he has to figure it out. In fact, it was a disease. Like the girl he remembers who saved him, he has to find her and figure everything out so he can be at peace." Kevin explained. Winnie realized that not only the girl, but also she and Stefan made him uneasy. Brian's unease might be caused by his mother's death, but Winnie felt that Brian did not trust her. Since he felt uneasy, he should find a way out himself. She had told him what he wanted to hear, and Brian might never find a sense of security from her. Winnie wanted to target Wendy and did not make Brian take occupation in her mind. "Stella didn't want to talk about Wendy because she was afraid he would think of all this, and then Thomas..." "Yes, you're right." Before Winnie could finish, Kevin knew what she wanted to say, so he answered in the affirmative. "To be exact, Stella was worried about Brian. She was afraid that Brian would be entangled with Thomas and that Brian would devote all his resources, even his own life." His words shocked Winnie. "Will he risk his own life? Will he go to great lengths regardless of his family's feelings?" Winnie asked, not wanting to hear a positive answer. If Brian really had such thought, Winnie felt that it was not right. "It is not up to him, Thomas will do whatever it takes, and Brian will never admit defeat." Kevin knew Brian's temper, but also knew Thomas would persist. As long as they began the fight, neither of them would give in. Kevin changed a stand posture and then continued to say. "Stella said, now her family is in rare peace and harmony. She does not want it to happen again, does not want Thomas and Brian fight again, so she doesn't want Brian know the truth about Wendy." Kevin put the exact idea of Stella to Winnie, hoping that Winnie could understand more Stella. "But it can't be hidden for long, once Brian has back his memory, it will happen again."
