CHAPTER 61 AN ANGRY PUNCH

Winnie put down her chopsticks, lowered her head and smiled bitterly. She had thought of what Leo said long ago. If she hadn't known the true identity of Luke, she might have left long ago. But now she had to stay here for Luke. "I signed a work contract with the Bennet Group, and I will have to pay a lot of money if I breach the contract. I can't afford that." Winnie found an excuse because she could not tell anyone the real reason why she stayed. "However much money it will cost, I will pay it for you." Leo offered to help without hesitation. Hearing what he said, Winnie was stunned. This conversation was just similar to the one happened four years ago. She felt she had clutched the straw when she received the last phone call from Leo, but Leo finally didn't help her. From then on, she was doomed to be entangled with Brian. Now it seemed to be too late for her to stay away from him. Winnie shook her head helplessly and sadly. "Leo, thank you for your kindness. That will cost too much money and I don't want to owe you." Winnie needed money most four years ago when her family was ruined and she lost loved ones. She had got through such hard times. Now she didn't need anyone, especially Leo. "Winwin..." Leo tried to continue to persuade her, but Winnie immediately interrupted him. "Well, don't worry about me anymore. I'll find a way to deal with it and I'll take your opinion into account." Leo had cooked this dinner earnestly and everyone had a good time, so Winnie didn't want to affect everyone's mood because of the change of topic in the end. The next day, Winnie went to work as usual. Before entering the company, she received a phone call from Daniel. So she went directly to the rooftop of the building of Bennet Group. "Why do you ask me to come here to talk about work, Manager Daniel?" Winnie spoke helplessly. She knew that Daniel knew how to use the software but pretended that he didn't, but she didn't say anything and just wanted to hand over the work smoothly. "Winwin, I've basically known how to use the software. I asked you to come here for something related to MT because I'm afraid that it's not convenient for us to talk about it in the company. The President called me and asked you to go back to the head office. He said he wanted to talk to you about leaving the company." Daniel talked in a serious way, but there was ill-intention in his eyes. Winnie was disgusted with his coquettish eyes. "There's nothing else to talk about. I've been fired by the company." "I called the President last night and said a lot to persuade the President to reconsider your reinstatement. You can't miss the opportunity that I take effort to get for you." Daniel came close to Winnie as he spoke, which made Winnie feel a little uneasy. Winnie found that Daniel behaved strangely and couldn't help reminding him. "Manager. Daniel, mind your own business. I'm not going back to the company. Besides, please call me Winnie in the future. Only my family can call me Winwin. I don't have such a close relationship with you." Winnie said seriously. In the past, she had to endure this disgusting face because of her livelihood. Now she still tried to endure it as long as she could. However, not in MT, Daniel seemed to be more presumptuous and blatant. He looked at her with lascivious eyes. Winnie was afraid that he would go too far if she didn't warn him sternly. "Winwin, what are you talking about? You must understand that I can both convince the President not to fire you and persuade the President to dismiss you. Make it clear that I'm the one who matters most." Daniel immediately exposed his sinister and continued to approach her step by step. Seeing Daniel approaching, Winnie somewhat panicked and retreated quickly. However, it was too late and Daniel embraced her by force. "Let go of me!" Winnie pushed Daniel away directly with a strong force, and then slapped Daniel in the face angrily. "You're a bastard!" Winnie was so angry that she said dirty words. However, Daniel's reaction was out of her expectation. He didn't get angry, but laughed lasciviously. "You little woman are quite strong. Winnie, you should have understood something from what have happened just now, so I will be honest with you. I have liked you for a long time. As long as you are willing to be my girlfriend, I will let you stay in Mt for the rest of your life and no one can replace you." "Only if you are my girlfriend." Daniel put on an evil smile on his lascivious face and then rushed to Winnie. However, at this moment, someone grabbed his collar with force and punched him in the face with all his strength. Instantly, blood came out of his mouth. "Who hit me?" Daniel was dizzy. He was punched so hard that he couldn't react for a while. "....." Brian didn't answer, and then punched him with anger again. This time, Daniel's nose was also hurt and bled. Then Daniel was knocked down to the ground. Brian was not going to stop and kicked him with great strength again and again. Daniel whined in pain on the ground. Worried that things would get serious, Winnie quickly stepped forward to stop Brian. "Stop hitting him! Stop! He'll die if you continue to hit him." Winnie spoke as she pulled him. Albert, who followed closely, came and helped Winnie. It was until then that they pulled Brian apart. The next moment. "Are you out of your mind? What kind of person is he? A lascivious man and scum. Can't you see that he eye you up covetously? How dare you meet him alone here? Do you know what will happen if I didn't come here? Can you, as a woman, protect yourself from being harmed by a lascivious man without humanity?" Brian loudly denounced Winnie. He sweat when he thought of Daniel embracing Winnie by force. If he came here later, Winnie would have been raped by Daniel. He didn't even dare to imagine such a consequence. Today, Brian parked his car in the parking lot outside the building of Bennet Group. When he got off his car, he saw Winnie who was not far in front of him. Then he saw Winnie entered the lift. When Brian walked to his private lift, he saw the lift Winnie was in stopped at the mobile phone branch. At that moment, Brian remembered that Daniel looked at Winnie in a very possessive way when he saw Daniel after work yesterday. Brian was worried about Winnie, so he followed Winnie to the mobile phone branch. However, he became even worried when he was told that Winnie went to the top floor. Then, he hurriedly got into the lift and came to the platform of the top floor. He saw Daniel hug Winnie when he was far away. Brian couldn't stand that such a trash hugged Winnie, so he rushed over and beat Daniel up. Brian glowered at Winnie and was angry at Winnie for not knowing how to protect herself. He felt even bad for Winnie for enduring Daniel in recent years. "I..." Winnie was not frightened by Daniel's unreasonable behavior, but was so frightened by Brian's loud reprimand that she was stunned and unable to speak. "You what? Are you interested in such a man?" Brian was so angry that he spoke without thinking about his words. "I..." "Shut up and follow me." Brian couldn't calm down, but couldn't bear to continue scolding Winnie when he saw her aggrieved expression. Therefore, he could only took Winnie away by force. However, there was one thing he did not understand: why should he worry about Winnie for no reason? Why should he feel bad for Winnie's experience these years? "Albert, handle this guy seriously." After say these words, Brian and Winnie disappeared from the rooftop. On the rooftop. It took Daniel quite a while to realize what had happened. He looked up at Albert with great difficulty. "Albert, can you tell me if it was Mr. Bennet who just hit me?" "Yes. He had already shown mercy by not killing you." Albert was also very scary when he became cold. "Could you tell me why he hit me? Did I do upset him?" Daniel still didn't know what the matter was at this time. He just embraced a suspended clerk. Why would the head of the Bennet Group beat him up in person? "You know the reason yourself. There can't be any such scum in the Bennet Group. Daniel, you did a very stupid thing today. You personally ruined your own career." Albert warned sternly with malicious expression in his eyes. "Albert,

I don't understand what you mean. I'm an employee of MT, not the Bennet Group's. I'm the victim today. I don't care what a big shot Mr. Bennet is. He should bear legal responsibility as long as he hits me. I'll report to the police to handle this matter. It's you who should be afraid."At this time, Daniel had already sat up with the support of his hands. However, Albert smiled sardonically at Daniel's ignorant words."Daniel, are you out of your mind? Are you sure you're not dreaming? Well, call the police. We've got invisible monitors everywhere. Let the police see you committed a crime first or Mr. Bennet protected someone from being harmed."Daniel became alert instantly and looked around quickly after hearing Albert's words. Only then did he see disguised monitor and suddenly sweat.He had carefully checked before Winnie's arrival. If he had found a monitor, he would not have done that kind of thing.After Daniel realized that he was wrong, he hurriedly try to please Albert."Albert, it's my fault. I won't call the police. Please beg Mr. Bennet to be the bigger person and let me off this time."It's too late. No one can save you after you upset Mr. Bennet."Albert said coldly and left after giving Daniel a contemptuous glance.Brian took Winnie's hand and took his private lift to the President's office."I'm busy and no one is allowed to disturb me."Brian coldly ordered his secretary and then hung up the intercom.Then he came close to Winnie."Are you scared?"Brian still spoke in such a cold voice even when he was showing concern for others, but this time Winnie still felt the warmth in his eyes."Yes."But she was frightened by Brian instead of Daniel."I know that there is something wrong with your mind..."Brian got angry again, but stopped abruptly."Forget it. Be careful in the future."Seeing the pain in Winnie's eyes, Brian really couldn't bear to reprimand her again."Thank you."No matter how Winnie felt now, she should say thank you because it was an indisputable fact that Brian came in time to save her.Brian stared at Winnie. For the first time, there was only anger and no indifference in his eyes.Seeing his eyes, Winnie's heart palpitated and wanted to flee subconsciously."Mr. Bennet, I'll go to work if there isn't anything else."She was asked to stop the next moment after she turned around and walked."Stop!"Winnie, I want to talk about Luke."Brian went to Winnie, stopped in front of her and continued to say."Luke told me that it was Leo who went to school to pick him up after school yesterday and the dinner was also prepared by Leo. What I want to tell you is that you can give Luke back to Penny if you don't have the time and energy to take care of him. You are not qualified to take care of him if you are like this."Brian soon became indifferent again and there was a stern expression in his dark eyes.

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 62 FATHER'S OLD FRIEND

Winnie became nervous after hearing Brian's words and explained hurriedly. "It was an accident yesterday, and such a thing won't t happen in the future. Mr. Bennet, Luke's living with me is my condition in an exchange. Since I want him to live with me, I have the confidence to take care of him. Even if I can't take care of Luke one day, I won't let him live with Penny." Winnie knew exactly how vicious Penny was most. She used this hypothesis to suggest to Brian how vicious Penny was, but she didn't know if Brian would think deeply about what she said. "If you couldn't take care of Luke? Do you want to resign or have a new objective? Or you can't take care of Luke if you find a dad for Megan?" "Winnie, if you have such ideas, I will cancel our deal now and buy your voice software at the highest price. I can't let Luke be hurt by you." "No, I don't have such ideas. It's just a hypothesis. I wouldn't leave Luke alone." Winnie hurriedly explained. She had always been confident, but she couldn't be poised whenever she talked about Luke. In her eyes, there was the panic of losing Luke and the extraordinary love for Luke, all of which were seen by Brian. Brian had always suspected that Winnie approached Luke to better approach him, but no matter what, he could see that Winnie really treated Luke well. Penny accompanied Luke for four years, but she still not loved him; while Winnie and Luke's feelings were as deep as mother and son after they got along for a few months. "Well, I'll give you another chance. I will bring back Luke without hesitation if you let Leo pick Luke up or send him to school next time." Brian said coldly, but he was sure that it was again himself who compromised this time. Although Brian compromised and although Winnie was relieved, she still looked at Brian with anger in her eyes. She wanted to scold him for being unaffectionate. She wanted to slap him so that he could had a clear mind and saw what kind of vicious scum Penny was. She put up with all this. She told herself: other people's things had nothing to do with her; what other people's wife was like had nothing to do with her; she was only responsible for taking good care of Luke. "Why do you stare at me like that? Are you dissatisfied with my decision?" Brian suddenly came close to Winnie evilly. "No, I'm very satisfied with it. I'd appreciate it more if you don't threaten me in the future." Winnie dared not look directly at Brian. There was irresistible magic power in his dark eyes. And Winnie was afraid that her heart would palpitate after she saw his eyes. She looked to one side, and then turned to leave. However, Brian blocked her way again. "You don't need to try hard to avoid me in the future. If I don't want to see you, you are just air to me even if you sit in front of me." Brian forced himself to spoke in an even colder voice. Every time Winnie stood in front of him and every time he got along with her in close proximity, Brian had a kind of uncontrollable desire, which was also the case at this moment. The desire to hold her in her arms expanded rapidly and the impulse to appease her anger spread rapidly. However, he couldn't do whatever he wanted because the victim could only be Winnie in the end if he did as he wished. Hearing what he said, Winnie frowned and felt sad. "Ok, thank you for treating me like air." Winnie didn't know why she was so angry. This time she didn't bypass Brian. Instead, she pushed Brian away with force and strode away with her slender long legs. Just air, right? What's the big deal about being treated like air? How free the air was since no one could restrain it. Winnie had an appointment with an old friend of her father when her father was alive during her lunch break. That person was also the last creditor of Winnie. Originally Winnie wanted to sell the voice software of the calculator, so that she could pay off her final debt. However, she used it to get the opportunity to live with Luke. Besides, for the time being, she couldn't sell the medical Probe Software that she had planned to sell to Daenerys's company. After Winnie formally signed a contract with the Bennet Group, she wanted to contribute this software to the Bennet Group as the cornerstone of her new job. She couldn't turn either software into money, so she had to ask the creditor out to negotiate for delaying paying off the debt for one more while. In a restaurant that offered C Country cuisine. "Uncle Romeo, I haven't been able to pay you back the money my father owed you for four years. I'm ashamed to see you." Winnie apologized with shame to this man who was like her father. This man, who she called uncle, was her father's best friend and a partner of her father when her father first founded the company. Winnie only knew that this uncle had left the company a few months before the company went bankrupt. "Your father is gone, and I don't blame him. It's fine as long as you have the intention to pay back the money. Winwin, it's good for you to come back. No matter where you go, it's better to go back home. Did your aunt and Vanessa come back?" The uncle named Romeo Phillips asked gently. "Yes, it's better to be home. Aunt and Vanessa aren't sure to come back or not yet." What Romeo said was the warmest words that Winnie had heard after she came back. "They had better come back if they could. You can still take care of each other when you are together. How is Vanessa? Has she recovered from her illness?" Romeo continued to ask. "Yes, she has recovered. This year, she would attend the college entrance examination. If she hadn't been delayed for two years, she would have gone to college long ago. My aunt is fine, too." "What about you? How's aunt?" Winnie asked. "Fine. After your dad passed away, your aunt and I started a small barbecue restaurant, and business has been good for four years." Romeo wore a calm expression. He had watched Winnie grow up, so Winnie was just like his daughter. Therefore, for so many years, however difficult life was, he didn't urge Winnie to pay back the money. "I'm sorry, uncle. It's my family that get you into trouble. If I could pay back the money earlier, you wouldn't have to live a hard life." Winnie said apologetically. After a moment's pause, she spoke again with embarrassment on her face. "Uncle, I came to find you today to talk to you about the money. Originally, I thought that I could sell Vanessa's real estate when she was 18 years old and pay the money back to you. However, Vanessa might come back here to study at university. We must have a place to live in. Therefore, I'd like to ask you to give me another grace period for paying back the money." "It's okay. I'm not in an urgent need of money. Although it's not so easy to earn money as before and it's a little tiring to work, your aunt and I live a full life. I've got a house and insurance, so I'm not in an urgent need of money. You don't have to pay it back in a hurry for the time being." Romeo agreed readily. In the past, Dominik's company closed down and he owed a huge amount of debt. Winnie all relied on herself to pay back the debt bit by bit. Therefore, he believed that Winnie could keep her promise. Winnie didn't expect that Romeo could trust her so much. The feeling of being trusted was a good incentive, enabling people to be more diligent and hardworking. "Thank you! Thank you very much! I will make money as quickly as possible and pay it back to you as soon as possible." Winnie smiled. It could be seen from her expression that she was moved. Romeo also smiled kindly. He was pleased to see that Winnie was still working hard. A moment later, Winnie continued to ask. "Uncle, I don't really understand what happened four years ago. My dad never told me that there was a financial crisis. Why did the company suddenly go bankrupt?" Winnie had always wanted to figure out what happened four years ago, but her aunt didn't know and Vanessa even knew nothing about it. She could only ask Romeo. Hearing her question, Romeo was obviously depressed. He sighed helplessly before speaking. "As a matter of fact, there had been a financial crisis for a long time, but your father did not listen to my advice and insisted on continuing to invest. At that time, the company was already short of money. In my opinion, we should close the company before we lost money because there was no prospect for the company. However, your father did not agree and insisted on cooperating with the Bennet Group. Then we stopped working together because we had different opinions." "The Bennet Group?" Winnie frowned in perplexity. "Yes, that's the Bennet Group you're working for now. At that time, Felix was unconscious by accident and Brian was abroad. It was Brian's second uncle who was in charge of the Bennet Group." Romeo stopped here. Then, he continued to talk but no longer mentioned the Bennet family. "After I left the company, I didn't get any money. Later, I lent all my savings to your father. I also hoped that the company could develop well. However, the company didn't overcome the financial crisis." Thinking that the Chambers family was ruined and Dominik passed away four years ago, Romeo felt so bad that he kept shaking his head. Until now, he was unwilling to believe that his best friend of all his life would pass away miserably like that. Winnie was still puzzled. With her father's ability, even if the company was not well managed and even affected by the financial crisis, her father should not owe so much debt. "Uncle, how on earth did my father's company close down?" Winnie continued to ask. "I...I don't know much about this. I hadn't been in charge of the company's matter since I left." Romeo said with reservations. It was useless to tell her something about it. They couldn't go back to the past even if he told her something about it. Dominik had passed away, and the rest of the people should still live well. What's more, the Bennet family was so powerful now that no one could shake it. "Kid, forget the past. Just live a happy life with your aunt and Vanessa. Your aunt suffers from a lot of grievance all her life and your sister is young. They can't live happily without you. I believe that you can support this family and that you can make your aunt and Vanessa live a happy life."Romeo continued to persuade her."Well, I'll make it, uncle. I'll let Vanessa and my aunt live a happy life."Winnie nodded and promised, but she didn't figured out what had happened to her father's company.Since being warned by Brian, Winnie never worked overtime no matter what happened. If she worked overtime, she would have to explain to Brian and let Brian send someone to pick up the child.Compared with giving up taking care of Luke, Winnie would rather lose her job.Winnie drove to the gate of the kindergarten where many parents were already waiting.Winnie sat in the car and stared at the gate of the kindergarten.Suddenly the door was opened and Penny got on the passenger seat."What do you get on my car for?"Winnie asked in a low voice with worries in her eyes."Nothing. I just come to see how you've been going these days. Did Brian go to your home?"Penny was arrogant. It was obvious that she had come to provoke her."No."Winnie said coolly. She knew that Penny came to provoke her to show off, but she was not interested in acting with her. "Are you disappointed? Do you feel lonely? How's it? I still have a way to get him back to me."Penny smiled and said evilly, with contempt in her eyes.

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 63 SHOWING OFF SOMETHING THAT WASN'T TRUE

Winnie gave Penny a contemptuous glance, but regretted it immediately. She felt disgusting when she looked at her. "I've told you not to disturb me. Now that you win Brian back, you should prevent him from finding other women and make him love you. Don't show off to me." "Why should I not show off? How can I not show off after I beat you again? Winnie, this is the reality. You are doomed to be the loser when you compete with me all your life." Penny kept saying. She couldn't calm down her anger before she spoke it out. "....." Winnie found it bored and gave her a glance, and she didn't say anything. It wasn't that she didn't hate Penny. She just didn't want to become an impolite person like Penny after finding that Penny was acting like a clown now. Seeing that Winnie keep silent, Penny thought that Winnie was afraid of her, looking more triumphant. "Brian not only was back together with me, but he also decided to marry me. He said he would hold a most terrific wedding ceremony for me." In order to get more sense of joy, Penny began to show off something that wasn't true. Hearing this, Winnie couldn't help feeling sad. However, she told herself that she should show indifference when Penny said such words. "Most importantly, Brian asked me to give birth to a baby for him. This time, I'll see how you can ruin my family." Penny continued to say something untrue. She was happy when she saw Winnie's sullen face. However, she forgot that one was bound to have a slip of the tongue if he talked too much. When Winnie heard her mention child, she couldn't stand it any longer however much she could endure. She finally had a reaction, turning around and stared at Penny with sharp eyes. "What are you talking about? Giving birth to a baby for him? Don't you already have Luke? Why do you talk as if you were going to give birth to a baby for the first time? Did you say something you shouldn't say by accident?" Winnie asked Penny, and Penny was unprepared for it. "What? What nonsense are you talking about? I didn't say anything that I shouldn't say. I meant that I am going to have a second child." There wasn't any triumphant expression in Penny's eyes. Instead, there was panicky and unconfident expression in her eyes. "Are you sure you that you won't abuse your second child?" This time, it was Winnie who was pushing Penny. The words she said and the questions she asked were much sharper than Penny's. Every word she said was to the point. "Winnie, I warn you not to talk nonsense. It's normal for a mom to beat and scold her child a few times when she was educating her child. Don't describe me as a stepmother." Penny continued to let her gaze wander. When she looked at Winnie's eyes, she panicked because she felt that Winnie knew something. "Are you really his mother? Are you sure that you gave birth to Luke?" Winnie was not going to let Penny evade this issue and continued to ask. "I...I gave birth to him. Winnie, what do you mean? I suggest that you should not to gossip, or I'll let you pay for it." Penny warned Winnie because she somewhat couldn't deal with her. "I don't want to say anything. Penny, you should know me well since we were best friends. I never gossip. I only talk about fact." Winnie put on a strange smile, which made Penny even uneasy. "You..." "I have a question for you since you gave birth to Luke. Luke was born on January 23rd of solar calendar. Ten months before this date, you seemed to be abroad with Leo and don't know Brian. Is this child..." Winnie said thoughtfully, but saw Penny's face darkened instantly. "Winnie, couldn't I have a premature birth? You're just a scheming bitch and you talk so unkindly." Penny couldn't help getting angry. How could she carelessly walk into the trap Winnie had set for her? Originally, she had intended to humiliate Winnie once, but she was counterattacked by Winnie and almost told her the fact. "Oh, you had a premature birth. No wonder you give birth to Luke on the date that you should not had according to the date of your pregnancy. It seems that I've thought too much about it. I'm sorry." This time Winnie was triumphant. If she continued this topic, Penny would definitely break down. Winnie had already showed Penny mercy by stopping here. She hoped that Penny would not be so triumphant in the future; she hoped that Penny would not be so arrogant in the future; and she hoped that Penny would no longer come to provoke her in the future. Penny glowered at Winnie and wanted to take revenge on her now. "Winnie, don't be complacent too early. You'll pay for it in the future. I swear that I'll bring you down." After saying these words, Penny pushed the door open and wanted to leave. At this moment, Winnie must do something, otherwise Penny would absolutely make trouble for her. "Penny, remember that I'll go to ask Brian whether you had a premature birth or not if you dare to come to disturb me again." Penny did grew tense with Winnie's words. She angrily turned around, glowered at Winnie and then left after slamming the door. Penny got on her car and drove away. While driving, she thought about Winnie's warning and the expression in her eyes. It seemed that Winnie had known everything. Winnie now doubted whether Luke was her son or not. Winnie must suspect that Luke was Leo's son when she considered his birthday. However, it was easy to know the fact and Winnie just needed to take a paternity test for Luke and Leo. Then, after Winnie knew that Luke wasn't the son of Leo, how should she explain? If Winnie publicized it, Brian would definitely say that it was all her fault. Then, she would lose her position. The more Penny thought, the more flustered and angrier she became. She had to deal with Winnie as soon as possible, otherwise she would be in great trouble. After being warned by Winnie, Penny really stopped disturbing her for a few days. These days, without the disturbance of Brian and Penny, Winnie began to live a normal life at last. Brian continued to avoid meeting with Winnie. When he met Winnie occasionally, he treated her as air just like what he had said. Although Winnie still felt uncomfortable, she could endure the sadness as long as she could live a normal life. Winnie got off work after she cleared away. When she came to the lift, Brian happened to come out of his office. Unexpectedly, he was also accompanied by a charming woman. Winnie knew this woman. She was a very popular star recently named Stella Lee. Winnie didn't know when Brian began to socialize with stars and felt puzzled. They came to the lift together. Brian still ignored Winnie, as if she were air. However, Winnie couldn't ignore Brian in the company. After all, he was her boss. "Mr. Bennet." As usual, Winnie greeted him and Brian said nothing in reply. Winnie had been used to the deliberate neglect of Brian and didn't speak anymore. They entered the lift together, after which Winnie consciously stood at the end of the lift. At this time, the star couldn't help doing something. She took the initiative to hold Brian's arm and said in a sweet voice. "Mr. Bennet, what about having dinner together tonight?" "Ok." Brian agreed readily. He didn't speak in a voice as cold as he used to. And at this moment, after hearing his answer, Stella's hand moved downward and took Brian's hand directly. Winnie was stunned by what she heard and saw. Their relationship developed too fast, and Brian's transformation was unusual. If she remembered correctly, Brian had asked her to be his girlfriend not long ago. She felt that she could still hear his voice and feel his kiss. She remembered clearly the scene when they were so close to each other. However, Brian got a new girlfriend now. At this moment, Winnie was both angry and sad, not knowing why Brian changed so quickly. Winnie's face darkened. She looked away, neither watching them nor hearing what they said. Since she was unwilling to be Brian's girlfriend, she was not qualified to hinder him from finding a girlfriend. Winnie went out of the lift at the ground floor. This time she didn't greet Brian who was still in the lift for fear of disturbing them. Getting on her car, Winnie was so angry that she honked the horn with great force. She didn't gather her wits until she heard the shrill sound. Brian had nothing to do with her. It was Penny, not her, that should be angry. Winnie drove to pick up her two children and then drove home. In the parking lot of the residential quarter she lived in, she met Leo. "You seem to come back early today." Winnie greeted Leo who wasn't far away. "Yes. I didn't have to work overtime, so I went to the supermarket and bought some food." As he spoke, Leo took out the food he had bought from the trunk. "Winwin, I'm free today. Why don't you come to my home for dinner with your two kids?" Leo happily invited her. The reason why he bought so many food was that he wanted to invite Winnie to have dinner with him. For the time being, he couldn't help Winnie. The only thing he could do to make himself feel at ease was to cook for her, so that Winnie didn't need to cook and had more time to rest. "Great. Thank you. I'll help you cook after I get changed at home." Winnie didn't stand on ceremony and directly agreed. Today, she was a little depressed, and she really wanted to have a drink with someone to vent her sadness. "You don't need to help me. It'll be better for me to cook alone. You can just sit there and wait for the dinner." It was obvious that Leo was considerate. Winnie unconsciously thought of Brian. If he could cook for her, she must be very... It was impossible. Winnie began to think about something that was impossible to happen again. "Well, I'll go home and wait first. Let me help you with these food." Winnie came close to Leo and offered to help. "You don't have to. I couldn't be said to be a man if I need a woman to carry food as light as these." Leo joked, and it was very considerate for him to do so. After coming back home, Winnie got changed and washed off her makeup. After a short rest, she came to Leo's house with her two children. They began to have dinner. Looking at the delicious dishes, Winnie felt much better. She couldn't help wondering that Leo would be a good friend if he didn't stand with Penny. The two kids kept eating without saying a word, maybe because they were hungry or the dishes were too delicious. Winnie was happy at this. "You see, Leo, the dishes you cooked are so delicious. Kids like them." Winnie praised Leo. "Really? Have some more food if it's delicious." Leo was very pleased. It was worthwhile for him to cook as long as they liked the dishes. "Well, I've eaten a lot. If I eat so much every night, I'll be fat in a month." Winnie joked and the two kids also laughed.

CHAPTER 64 SINCERE APOLOGY

Just when Winnie smiled happily, her phone suddenly rang. However, it was not a voice call but a video invitation. Seeing that it was from Brian, Winnie handed the phone to Luke. "Uncle, aunt, I'm full and I'm going to talk to daddy." Luke put down chopsticks and ran out of dining room with the mobile phone. Megan also finished eating hurriedly and went to find Luke. Only Winnie and Leo were left in the dining room. "Have some more food, and don't stop eating because kids left the table." Leo was afraid that Winnie would also put down her chopsticks. "Well, I'll continue. Leo, do you have any wine? I want to drink a little." Originally, Winnie had forgotten the issue about Brian after having a rest at home. Naturally, she wouldn't want to drink some wine. However, she remembered it once again because of the video invitation from Brian. When she was upset, she would want to drink some wine. Only in this way could she not think too much and have a sound sleep, although she got drunk easily. "Well, wait for a while. I'll go get it." Leo was willing to have a drink with her. As he spoke, he stood up and went to get some wine. Soon, he was back. Leo poured two glass of red wine and handed one to Winnie, after which they drank off the red wine. "The red wine tastes good." Winnie said while tasting the red wine. She didn't know much about wine. Considering that it tasted mild and soft and not sharp at all, she thought that she could drink a little more. "It's ok, but it's strong. You're not good at drinking wine, so don't drink too much." Leo said out of concern and saw that Winnie was a little helpless. "It doesn't matter. My apartment is next to your home. I don't have to drive. I can get home even if I'm so drunk that I can only crawl." Winnie joked. At this moment, she wished she could get drunk. In this way, she could fall asleep and would not think of anything else. "Just drink if you want to. I won't let you crawl back home." Leo said considerately. Winnie had never taken the initiative to ask for drinking wine like this. Today was an exception, which meant that she was in a bad mood. Since she wanted to drink wine to vent, Leo decided not to stop her anymore. If she got drunk, he would send her back to her home. If she was so drunk that she couldn't walk, he would carry her back in his arms, as long as she could felt better. "Well, let's have another drink." As she spoke, Winnie poured two glasses of red wine and drank off again. She drank too quickly, so she coughed after putting down her glass. Seeing this, Leo said to her in a hurry. "Slow down. You shouldn't drink red wine in such a quick way. You should taste red wine slowly." "It tastes so good. If I don't drink it quickly, you'll drink it all. Let me have another drink. This time I, I'll pour a little less red wine." She began to pour red wine while she spoke with a smile. She didn't pour much less red wine than before. "Come on. One more drink." For reasons unknown, the more red wine Winnie drank, the more she felt aggrieved. She managed to smile, but her smile was too unnatural. Winnie put down the glass and picked up the bottle of wine, but Leo took the bottle away from her. "Stop now. You can't keep drinking." Leo was afraid that Winnie, who easily got drunk, would drink too much, so he stopped her hurriedly. "Are you in any trouble?" Leo asked. Winnie looked at the empty glass and was in a daze for a while. Then she tried to disguise herself with a smile. "No, I'm fine now. Penny doesn't come to make trouble for me and I'm getting along all right in my job. I'm not in any trouble." Winnie denied. She didn't know why her mind was in turmoil and how to tell others about it. "Winwin, I promised that I'll help you unconditionally if you are in need of me no matter what happened. Four years ago..." Leo wanted to explain things clearly and overcome the barrier between them. This time, Winnie didn't stop him. However, when he just began to talk, Winnie's other phone rang and Leo had to stop again. "I'm sorry. Wait a minute. I have to answer the phone call." Winnie was lost in thought and didn't notice what Leo was saying. If the phone hadn't rang, she wouldn't be able to push those thoughts away. Winnie answered the phone call. "Vanessa." "Winnie, aunt agreed that I can study in a university in B City. Besides, aunt will go back with me." Winnie heard Vanessa's excited voice. She smiled happily, too. Leo couldn't help staring at her because of her smile. Winnie got through hard times and became silent. However, she was still the kind woman who smiled happily. However, there was something that could not be changed and Leo regretted very much. "Great. Then work hard in the rest days. Only when you get good grades can you go to the best university in B City. I'll be here waiting for you and aunt." She hung up after chatting with Vanessa for a while. Hearing that aunt and Vanessa would come back a few months later, Winnie felt much better. "I'm very happy that my younger sister and aunt will be back soon. Let's have another drink." Winnie took the bottle of wine and poured a glass. Then, she drank off it without paying attention to Leo. At this time, Winnie's face was slightly red. The wine had already begun to work. "Your younger sister?" Leo asked. Seeing that Winnie felt better, he couldn't bear to talk about previous topic. "Yes, Vanessa." Winnie was relieved. She looked forward to Vanessa and aunt coming back. When they were back, they could help her take care of her children and she didn't always have to ask for help. "Has Vanessa recovered from her illness? Would she be stimulated if she come back to B City?" Leo asked casually without thinking too much, but Winnie grew tense after hearing it. She suddenly looked up at Leo in doubt. "Why did you know that Vanessa was ill?" Leo knew nothing about what happened four years ago, and she didn't tell him after she came back. However, Leo talked about it naturally as if he knew everything. Winnie asked seriously, and Leo just knew that he asked something he shouldn't have asked. Leo was stunned for a moment and then calmed down. Since it was inevitable to talk about this topic, just go with the flow. Winnie could feel relieved earlier if he talked about it earlier. "Winwin..." Leo repeated what Daenerys had told him. After his explanation, there was only silence. Leo dared not act recklessly because he was worried that Winnie would get excited. Hearing his explanation, Winnie's eyes turned red, and she couldn't help feeling painful. It seemed that what had happened four years ago happened just now and could still hurt her. Winnie was in a daze. She didn't say a word. She thought that she would scold Leo angrily after Leo knew the fact, so that she could vent her resentment. However, Winnie could only feel painful at this moment, having not the strength of getting angry. Wasn't she painful anymore? Was she not resentful? Did she give up her hatred for Leo? "Winwin, I wanted to apologize to you the moment I knew the fact, but I'm ashamed and haven't the courage to mention what happened four years ago. If I hadn't been cheated by Penny four years ago, you wouldn't have suffered from those painful things." Leo came close to Winnie, sat down and began to apologize sincerely. Seeing Winnie's sad and resent expression, Leo's heart palpitated. Winnie said nothing and Leo continued to say. "Winwin, I was wrong four years ago. I'm sorry. I'm sorry, Winwin." Leo said sincerely and he felt even more painful when he saw Winnie was about to experience an emotional breakdown. "Winwin, I dare not ask you to forgive me. You can continue to hate me until you feel better. You're not a liar. You're a good woman who is more kind than anyone else. I'm silly and out of my mind, so I believe what Penny said. Being so stupid, I deserve to be hated all my life." Leo could only say these words. Winnie was treated unfairly because of his distrust. And she suffered for so many years because he abandoned her. It was his ignorance that caused all these things, so he dared not expect Winnie to forgive him. "Stop...Stop..." Winnie finally couldn't help weeping. It seemed that his apology was meaningless. Could it be of any other use but to prove that she wasn't a liar? Leo had already known that it was Penny's fault. That's enough. It was unnecessary to think about love and hatred because they had disappeared as time went by. "Winwin, I'm sorry. I claimed that I loved you so much, but I did such a nasty thing when you needed me most. I am sorry." Seeing her tears, Leo blamed himself more and felt that he was a bastard. He kept apologizing and couldn't help feeling distressed. "Leo, stop. I don't want to mention what happened four years ago anymore. At that time, I was desperate and wanted to commit suicide." Winnie was completely heartbroken because of his words and couldn't help crying. She had been depressed and wronged for four years. Today, Leo said these words to her and sincerely apologized to her. She could finally vent her depression and grievance. Seeing Winnie cry sadly, Leo was so distressed that there were tears in his eyes. He couldn't help holding Winnie in his arms and comforted her in a soft voice. "I'm sorry, Winwin. It's all my fault. I was wrong. Don't cry anymore. You can beat me and scold me. Don't suppress yourself." Winnie couldn't say a word. Although she felt comfortable when she was held in his arms and although she had vent her depression and grievance, she no longer loved Leo like she did four years ago. It was too late. Everything had disappeared. And they couldn't go back to the past. She got through hard times alone. The apology was just a little consolation for her. She still bore everything alone. Winnie cried so hard that she couldn't speak. And she didn't have the strength to push Leo away. All right. For the time being, let her vent while leaning against Leo and let her cry for a while. At the same time, Luke was still talking to Brian in the living room. Brian wanted to see Megan, so he let Luke switch the camera. In fact, only he knew who he wanted to see more. However, after the camera was switched, Brian saw not only Megan, but also the two people sitting together in the dining room. Brian looked at them coldly. Although he couldn't hear what they were talking about, he could see that Winnie was very sad and Leo was guilty. Later, Winnie didn't speak but cried, and then Leo held her in his arms. At this moment, Brian couldn't stand it anymore and hung up the video directly. ☒

CHAPTER 65 YOU ARE A KING AND I'M YOUR SERVANT

When the two kids felt puzzled, they received a phone call from Brian. "Why did you hang up just now, daddy?" Luke asked hurriedly, but he heard Brian say coldly and angrily. "Put your aunt on the phone." Luke found that daddy got angry, dared not delay and ran to the dining room hurriedly. Luke was stunned for a while when he saw Leo hugging his aunt. Of course, he also felt uncomfortable. However, Luke had no time to do care about it because the most important thing was to finish the task given by daddy. "Auntie, daddy wants you to answer the phone." Luke lifted the mobile phone and handed it to Winnie. It was only then that Winnie collected herself. Then, she left Leo's arms hurriedly. "Who is on the phone?" Winnie asked when she was still sobbing. Brian could clearly hear that Winnie was trying to stop herself from sobbing through the phone. He became even angrier. "Daddy is on the phone. Daddy wants you to answer the phone." Luke repeated again clearly. Winnie was stunned for a moment and took the phone after wiping off her tears. "What's the matter?" Winnie had tried her best to control herself, but her voice was obviously nasal. "Come out." Brian said coldly. Although he was angry, he was domineering and awe-inspiring, just like a king who was giving orders. "Now?" Winnie took a look at the time. It was not too late in night, but she was unwilling to go out when she heard his cold voice. "Yes, now. Come out immediately. I'll wait for you downstairs." Brian still said in peremptory and domineering manner. At the same time, he left the restaurant and drove out by himself. "Can I know the reason why you ask me to meet you now?" Winnie continued to ask. If he didn't come to find her for work, she wanted to refuse to come out. "Cut the crap. If you don't come out, I'll take Luke away immediately. You won't be able to see him in the future." Brian threatened her. He didn't want to say a single useless word. And he even didn't want Winnie to continue to stay with Leo. "You..." Winnie found that Luke and Leo were looking at her when she was about to refute, so she gave up. Brian took a tough stance and he always did what he said, so Winnie could only compromise in the end. After placing the two kids, Winnie went downstairs. Brian had already stood at the door when Winnie arrived downstairs. Seeing Winnie, Brian pulled her and went towards the parking lot without saying a word. Winnie was somewhat opposed to his action. Moreover, Leo used such a great strength to take her hand that her hand somewhat hurt. "Just tell me if you want to say anything. Can you not behave like this?" Winnie asked. She was puzzled, not knowing why Brian was so angry. "Shut up. If you say another word, I'll take Luke away." Brian threatened her with Luke again. He found that Winnie's soft underbelly was Luke. "Let...Let go of me. I'll follow you myself." Winnie dared not to say anything else, fearing that she would make him angry and he really took Luke away in anger. It was obvious that her struggle was useless. Brian pulled her and walked quickly as if he hadn't heard what she said. Winnie's hand hurt more and she really couldn't bear it, so she spoke. "Brian, you're hurting me." Hearing these words and finding that Winnie talked as if she were in unbearable pain, Brian finally let go of her hand and stopped. He turned around and looked at her sullenly. "What are you doing? Did I do anything that upsets you? Why do you treat me like this?" Feeling aggrieved, Winnie asked when she rubbed her hand. "....." Brian kept silent, came directly close to Winnie and took her hand with force again. He didn't pull her by force and didn't continue to walk this time, but began to carefully check Winnie's hand under the dim light. Only when he saw that her small delicate hand was all red did Brian know that he had really exerted too much force. Brian found that he felt even worse because he hurt Winnie. He began to rub Winnie's small soft hand, which astonished Winnie. It was difficult for Winnie to believe that Brian was rubbing her hand now. She thought that she must have hallucination because she drank too much red wine. Brian was as cold as snow. How could he be so considerate? Only Leo would do such a thing. The person in front of her couldn't be Brian. She must have hallucination. Winnie withdrew her hand hurriedly. "I can do it myself." "Follow me." Brian said coldly again. Winnie allowed Leo to hold her in his arms, but she refused to let him take her hand. Considering this, Brian couldn't calm down. Winnie had learned a lesson. She didn't want to be hurt; she didn't want to repeat what had just happened; and she didn't want to lose Luke. If she wanted to achieve all these, she could only follow Brian. She raised her head, glared at Brian with displeasure, and then strode forward. It was so silent in the car that they could hear the tire noise. Winnie was happy about this because she didn't have to hear Brian's cold voice if they didn't talk. She was a little dizzy. She couldn't help yawning under the effect of alcohol. "How much wine did you drink?" Brian asked with disgust. "Why do you know that I drank?" Winnie turned her head sideways and asked in doubt. "The air is filled with the smell of alcohol. Do you think that I lose the ability to smell?" Brian turned his head sideways and glowered at Winnie, but found that Winnie was looking at him with an innocent expression. His heart palpitated when he saw her innocent expression and bleary eyes. "If you dislike it, stop the car. After I get off the car, there would be no such smell." Winnie somewhat threw a tantrum and said. It was he who invited her to come and she didn't insist on staying in the car. Therefore, he had to put up with the smell of alcohol. Even if it was the smell of poison gas, he had to endure it. "Winnie..." Brian warned her in louder voice. Every time Winnie became contrary in front of him, he could do nothing. "Speak in lower voice. I can hear you. Don't deafen my ears." Winnie said playfully. That's what she was like, and she just had drunk a little wine. If Brian couldn't accept it, he could stop the car and she would get off. Winnie turned her head sideways slovenly. Suddenly, she turned back and looked at Brian after remembered something. "Mr. Bennet, didn't you have dinner with a beauty tonight? Why did you leave so early? She is such a beautiful woman. You should take the opportunity to accompany her." Winnie said in a slightly sarcastic and sad voice. Seeing Brian being accompanied by a beauty, she was so depressed that she drank much wine, after which she was taken to the car and then was disliked because of the smell of alcohol. In short, Brian was the culprit and he ate his own bitter fruit. "Winnie, I told you to shut up." Brian got angry again and said in an extremely cold voice. He dared to say that he would stop the car and left her halfway up the mountain where was forested if she continued to speak. He became even annoyed when it came to that actress. He was originally having dinner with that beauty. Then, he left before finishing the meal to find her. Now, she not only didn't know what he had done, but also made fun of him. It was impossible that Brian didn't scold her loudly. "Ok, ok. Don't shout. I'll shut up. You're the King, and I'm a servant who lives on the reward you give. I, as a servant, shouldn't care about how many girlfriends you had." After saying that, Winnie turned her head sideways and looked out of the window. Brian was too peremptory. She disliked him. But she disliked herself more because she allowed herself to be affected emotionally by such a peremptory man. Winnie no longer talked, leaning her head against the car door and falling asleep soon. Brian looked at her from time to time. Her face was slightly red; her eyelashes were long and curly; and her lips were sexy, red and attractive. He remembered everything about Winnie well. He had suppressed himself for a long time, trying to stay away from her and telling himself to treat her as air even if she appeared in front of him. He had stuck to it very well these days. However, he couldn't bear it anymore when he saw Winnie being held in Leo's arms. Losing control, he wanted to teach Winnie a lesson, telling her that she would always belong to him after she slept with him once and that no other man was allowed to have an affair with her. Winnie had a sound sleep. She didn't wake up until Brian stopped the car steadily and she heard the sound of closing the door. Looking at the villa with bleary eyes, her mind suddenly became clear. This was the villa on mountaintop. Why did Brian take her here again? "Get off the car." When Winnie was puzzled, Brian opened the door of passenger seat and ordered peremptorily. "No. It's too dark here. I don't like this place." Winnie rejected decisively. She wasn't afraid of the darkness, but was afraid that Brian would recognize her when they were surrounded by darkness. "I told you to get off the car." Brian commanded again with obviously impatient expression in his eyes. "No, you said I that I didn't deserve to come here." Winnie soon found another excuse. However, unexpectedly, Brian carried her in his arms and took her out of the car. "Put me down! Why're you so shameless?" Winnie said while she struggled, and she failed to resist as usual. Carrying Winnie in his arms, Brian went to the dark familiar room. The moment Winnie was put on the bed, she felt as if it were the night of four years ago when they made love. Four years ago, Brian was indifferent, but he was probably the warmest people for Winnie at that time. Without Brian, she couldn't afford to pay the medical expenses of her mother and sister. It was because of him that she could feel some warmth in cold nights. "Why did Leo hug you?" Winnie was thinking about what happened four years ago, but Brian's cold query pushed those memories away. Winnie decided that what she just thought was false. Warmth? She would thank god if Brian didn't treat her in too cold a manner. However, Winnie realized a problem. "How do you know that?" Did he send someone to follow her? It was impossible. Even if he sent someone to follow her, that person couldn't enter Leo's apartment. Did the kids tell him that? There was just a slight chance for it. The kids was playing so happily that they didn't notice it at all. Then, why? How did this arrogant guy know that? "I saw it myself. Don't you know that I was making video call with Luke? Or did you let me see it on purpose because you know that? Did you act? Or did you try to get back together with Leo?" As he spoke, Brian turned on the light. Although it was dark, he could see Winnie's innocent face clearly. ☒

CHAPTER 66 COMING TO THE VILLA ON MOUNTAINTOP AGAIN

Under the dim light, Winnie saw Brian's cold face and she realized that fantasies were just fantasies. It seemed that people only felt well when this room was in darkness. However, Winnie remembered something at this moment. Last time, Brian said that there couldn't be any light in this room. Now, he took the initiative to turn on the light. Was he out of his mind again? "Mind...Mind your own business." Winnie sat up and didn't look at Brian because she was afraid that Brian would look at her with disgust. If that was the case, she would be sad. She was even more afraid to see the seeming tender feelings in his eyes. In that case, she would be lost. "I have to mind your business. Winnie, I don't care about what you was like before, and I don't care how many boyfriends you had had before. However, I won't allow you to have an affair with any other men after you slept with me." Brian said coldly and peremptorily. He couldn't help getting angry when he remembered that scene and heard her indifferent answer. He thought that his reaction was too different from that of Winnie. "Brian, how can you say so? I can't find another man because I had slept with you. What if you don't want to maintain a long-term relationship with me? Shall I stay single for the rest of my life? You're irresponsible! Who are you? Why should you interfere in my emotional life?" Winnie finally couldn't stand it anymore, stood up and glowered at Brian. "I don't care about fairness, and I just won't let you see other men." Brian was still peremptory and was unprecedentedly possessive. "You would like to be an irresponsible man? Well. If you divorce Penny and convince your grandfather, I agree with what you said." Winnie rebutted angrily. It was impossible for them to have any kind of relationship. Why won't he let go of her? Winnie raised her head and glowered at Brian without fear. She became stubborn again. Brian frowned and looked at her coldly. Every time he was cornered by Winnie, he felt that it was a kind of enjoyment and another kind of happiness. And the only way to deal with Winnie who was stubborn was... The next moment, there was desire in Brian's angry eyes. Winnie noticed that he was smiling evilly. Realizing the imminent danger, Winnie no longer looked at him with provocative eyes, turned around and fled. However, Brian embraced her from behind. His body was pressing against hers. "Don't...Don't touch me. You have such a beautiful star as your girlfriend, don't..." "Are you jealous?" Brian interrupted her struggle and asked in a low voice. Winnie could feel that his warm breath in her cheeks and her already slightly red face turned red quickly. "Why...Why should I be jealous? I have nothing to do with you..." Hearing his words, Winnie didn't know what to do. She was so nervous that she got her words muddled up. Just when she finally talked coherently, Brian suddenly made them stand face to face by force. Before Winnie could react, Brian kissed her. Brian couldn't help becoming wild as soon as he kissed Winnie's sexy soft lips. He sucked her lips hard, and then kissed her deeply. This kiss was wild, and Winnie couldn't resist it. Brian kissed her in such a peremptory manner that Winnie couldn't think of anything else. Now, she was held in Brian's arms, enjoying his domineering kiss greedily. Undeniably, she didn't hate his kiss, and she even missed it. Although she kept telling herself that she didn't like a man like Brian, she forgot all these when he kissed her lips. Winnie was tired of being like this. At this moment, she could only find an excuse for herself, although it couldn't be called a reason. She got drunk and couldn't control her heart. Let him be. Winnie put her hands on Brian's neck and began to respond enthusiastically. Because of her enthusiastic reaction, the kiss became even wild and was out of control. Brian had always been wise, but he had a hard-on now. Brian began to touch Winnie's body with his hands that had magic power. Winnie felt excited because of it. Brian began to take off her clothes and threw them on the ground. At this moment, Winnie felt cool and somewhat gathered her wits. It took her great effort to stop the kiss. Then, she put her forehead against Brian's chest and took deep and quick breaths. "If anyone knows it..." Winnie spoke out her worries in a hoarse and low voice. Before she could finish speaking, Brian interrupted her. "No one would know it. Even grandpa doesn't know this place. If anyone knows it, I'll take the responsibility." Brian said in a calm and dull voice. His voice was magnetic. Winnie couldn't help looking up at Brian and saw his confident expression. Should she believe him? Looking at the confidence in his dark eyes, Winnie believed him. "Do you want me?" Winnie suddenly asked. Although she felt it stupid and immoral to ask this question, she just wanted to ask. Brian kept silent for a while and there was more and more desire in his eyes. "Hmm." He wanted her very much. He wanted her so much that he couldn't work and lost usual calm. "I have a requirement for you." Winnie looked at Brian enchantingly. "Tell me." As long as she made her request, he would agree, no matter what it was. "Don't be cold to me immediately after making love. At least treat me as a woman instead of a liar in this house." Winnie just want to feel how warm and how intimate it was to lie on a bed beside him. Every time after they made love, Brian would get cold immediately. It hurt Winnie a lot, thinking that she meant nothing to him. "Hmm." What kind of promise did this word "hmm" mean? Did he promise it for a day, a year, or a lifetime? It was unsure, but Winnie was satisfied with it. This time, she took the initiative to kiss him. After they made love, there was still a romantic air in the air. Winnie was held in Brian's arms with her eyes closed. She was so tired that she was weak and sleepy, but she refused to sleep. Such a moment was too precious, so she wanted to enjoy it, even if only for a moment. "Stay here tonight. I've asked Albert to take care of the kids." Brian said in an unprecedented low and gentle voice. Winnie unconsciously smiled, telling herself that it was enough to keep such gentleness buried deep in her heart. "Hmm." Winnie agreed directly. She was still dizzy after drinking wine. It was impossible for her to drive back by herself. Besides, the villa was on the mountaintop. It seemed unrealistic to walk down the mountain. Brian got the answer he wanted and held her more tightly for unknown reasons. For the first time, he felt so at peace. "Is there any contraceptive?" Winnie suddenly thought of an important matter. To avoid unnecessary trouble, she had to be very careful even if Brian didn't remind her. "Yes, I'll go get it." Brian was stunned for a moment before he answered. "You don't have to. Tell me where it is and I'll go get it." Winnie just want to do something to revive herself, so that she wouldn't just fall asleep in rare coziness. As she spoke, she got up, picked up Brian's shirt casually and put it on her body. "It's in that drawer." Brian pointed to the drawer near the bed. Winnie knew which drawer he was referring to without seeing where he was pointing to, got up directly and crouched down in front of the drawer. After opening the drawer, Winnie revived a lot when she saw what was inside. Except contraceptives, there was also a document envelope. Winnie knew what was in inside. There were also two cell phones. She had used one of them and she didn't know anything about the other one. Winnie stretched out her hand to take out the contraceptives and then closed the drawer again. After that, she stood up and went to take out a bottle of mineral water in the refrigerator that was opposite the sofa. She did all these in a natural way and she seemed to be familiar with this place. Seeing this, Brian frowned. If he remembered correctly, it was the second time that Winnie had come to this room. The room was always in darkness from the moment she came in to the moment she went out the first time she came to this room. This time, she had been on the bed since she was in the room. It was impossible for her to notice where the refrigerator was. Thinking of this, Brian remembered what happened last time. Winnie left a message, saying that she drove his car away after she found that there were other cars in the garage. However, Brian found that Winnie didn't go to the garage at all when he watched the surveillance video. So there were problems. How did she know that there were other cars in the garage? How could she easily find the refrigerator and take out the water? Brian was puzzled, but he did not ask. He just lay on the bed and stared at Winnie. After taking medicine and drinking water, Winnie didn't go back to bed. Instead, she went directly to the bathroom. When she came back from the bathroom, she turned off the light in the room. Brian was puzzled because of these details. It was not surprising that Winnie could find the bathroom. However, Brian was puzzled when she turned off the light accurately. There were many kinds of lights in this room and these lights were turned on or turned off on a touch-screen. It was impossible for someone unfamiliar with it to know exactly how to turn off the light that gave dim light. Why would Winnie turn off the light accurately? Why was she familiar with this room? Winnie went back to the bed again and directly lay down at where she previously lay with her back to Brian. "Can I ask you a question?" Winnie asked in a light voice. After getting out of bed and doing all those things, she revived a lot."Ask."Brian said in an indifferent voice. He was no longer as warm as before."Why are there two identical mobile phones in the drawer?"Winnie asked tentatively, not knowing why Brian still kept that mobile phone.What Winnie didn't expect was that Brian became angry just because of her question."Winnie, what else do you want to know? You shouldn't ask too much."Brian said sternly and sat up suddenly in anger."What did you do the last time you came here when I was asleep? Did you rummage around this villa? No one lives in this villa, so how did you know that there is water in the refrigerator? How did you know how to turn off this light? Did you even take a look at the drawer, too?"Brian finally couldn't help asking these questions out loud. He didn't know if Winnie had any premeditation and whether she saw what was inside the document envelope or not.Brian was doubtful about so many suspicious details.

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 67 THE QUARREL ON THE MOUNTAIN ROAD

In the dark, Winnie was completely awakened by Brian's harsh words. Because of his question, she realized that she had done something that she shouldn't do, which almost exposed herself. In the dark room, Winnie could no longer feel the warmth coming from Brian's body. Her face was pale because of Brian's question. Fortunately, she turned off the light before going to bed. Although she accidentally exposed her familiarity with this place, the darkness could conceal the panic on her face at the moment. It was impossible for her to spend the night peacefully anymore. Winnie calmed down. She got up and picked up the remote control next to her to turn on the light again. "Mr. Bennet, you are too sensitive." Winnie glanced calmly at Brian's face which was full of vigilant and suspicious. He seemed to treat her as a thief and as if she had made a big mistake. Winnie smiled bitterly. She got out of bed and picked up her clothes on the carpet one by one. While wearing her clothes, she said again. "Mr. Bennet, you always think of me as a liar, so your first reaction is what tricks I'm playing, right?" Winnie paused for a moment. Before Brian could answer, she continued speaking. "Mr. Bennet, if you don't trust me, why did you bring me here? You can just pick one hotel causally. If Penny can't satisfy you, you can find another woman. Why did you look for me, a liar?" Seeing the suspicious looks in Brian's eyes, Winnie got hurt. She felt ached. "Knock it off. Just answer my question." Brian also felt bad when he saw the sad face of Winnie who was wearing clothes. But he asked again harshly. "Nothing. The reason why I've been familiar with here is because I have already come here last time. I am thirsty and I want to drink water. I can't wake you up. I need light to go to the bathroom. So I fumbled to turn on the light. I didn't do anything except these. As for the stuff in the drawer you said, I didn't watch it either." Winnie said indifferently. She had already put on her clothes. Looking at Brian confidently and stubbornly, she continued to speak. "Mr. Bennet, I have been the villa twice and it was all because of you. You took me directly into this room. I didn't move anything except using your bathroom and drinking the water in your refrigerator." "Oh right, I just took one contraceptive pill." "I haven't moved anything except this room. Mr. Bennet, you can check this room carefully. I can compensate you if you lose something." After speaking, Winnie turned around to wear her canvas shoes. Then she went straight to the door. She walked to the door and stopped, because she felt particularly aggrieved. "Mr. Bennet, I admit that I am a liar, but I never steal anything. Don't look at me as if I'm a thief." Winnie thought she would feel better after she said these words out, but she didn't expect that she felt more uncomfortable. She furiously opened the door and slammed it closed. Walking out of the door of the villa, it was pitch black and cold outside. Winnie took a breath and was a little scared. Even if she was so scared, she felt it was better than being questioned by Brian. Thinking of this, Winnie walked into the darkness with courage. At this time, Brian was wearing clothes. It was so dark outside. He didn't think Winnie would leave here. He thought Winnie just went to the living room or another room. But when he came to the window, he found that Winnie had already reached the gate and was opening the door. Brian panicked suddenly and ran downstairs quickly. How could he forget that Winnie was a so stubborn woman? When Brian went downstairs, Winnie had already walked out of the villa. So Brian had to drive to chase her up. There were wild boars and weird birds from time to time on this dark mountain road. Even a mouse that came to the road would make Winnie feel creepy. Thinking of this, Brian speeded up. Then he stopped the car in front of Winnie after less than a minute. Brian got out of the car and slammed the door closed angrily, questioning loudly and coldly. "Are you insane? Don't you know how dangerous this road is? You will be scared to death. Don't you know?" Although Brian was shouting angrily, he felt relieved because he finally chased Winnie up. "Please get out of my way. It's better to be scared to death than to be wronged." Winnie said arrogantly, bypassing Brian and continuing to walk down. She was not afraid of death. Death was a relief for her. But she was afraid that she would die with an inexplicable crime. She was afraid that others would put an inexplicable crime on her when she was dead. "Winnie, can you curb your temper? It's so dark and dangerous outside. Don't make trouble here unreasonably." Brian quickly came to Winnie's front. Watching Winnie continue to walk into the darkness, he was full of anxiety. He didn't know how to keep Winnie staying, so he could only shout loudly. Winnie stopped and suddenly looked into Brian's eyes. She was pissed off. "Am I making trouble? You can just lose your temper for no reason. I didn't want to hear that you lose your temper, so I left. But for you, I'm just making trouble? Don't you feel it's a bit unfair? I want to ask you, what are you to me? What rights do you have to lose your temper to me?" Winnie was angry. She asked back loudly. Her voice sounded particularly bleak on the dark and silent mountain road, which was just like her life. Brian frowned. Seeing the sad expression on Winnie's face under the light of the car lights, Brian felt so sorry. "...". He couldn't answer Winnie's question. He didn't know what the relationship between them was now. "Let's go back and have a good talk. It's too late now." Seeing that Winnie insisted, Brian could only say these words in a low voice, and then stretched out his hand to pull Winnie. Winnie avoided Brian's hand as quickly as possible. "Do you still know that it is late? You let me stay here overnight. But I just asked a question casually, and then you were annoyed. If you don't want to answer, you can say that you don't know. Then we will be in peace till dawn. But you just make a fuss. I just asked a question. But in your eyes, I have ulterior motives. You just use this as an excuse to yell at me. You just treat me as a thief." Winnie shouted loudly with anger. The bright eyes were also full of anger. "Brian, what did I owe you in my previous life? Did I make you unhappy in this life? Why do you always make trouble for me? You treat me as a liar? Fine! I don't care. But now you want to turn me into a thief. Since you hate me so much, you can send me to the police station. I would rather accept legal sanctions than to be despised by you." "Follow me back." Hearing what Winnie said, Brian felt extremely sad. Now he realized that his anger had hurt Winnie. He reduced his volume again. Besides, he softened his tone. Brian had already made a compromise to Winnie again. "No, I won't go back with you. If there is something missing in your luxurious villa again, I can't explain it clearly." Winnie was still angry. She felt that every time she came to the villa, she would be unlucky. Brian was sent by God to torture her. Every time, Brian would make her mood so bad. Seeing Brian's cold and angry face, Winnie could not feel any hope. "Get out of the way. That villa is yours. This road is not yours. I have the right to walk." Winnie wasn't reluctant, but her grievances became more and more intense. He brought her here at midnight and had sex with her, then he shouted at her. She couldn't accept it. "Okay, we won't go back. I will drive you down the mountain." Having no choice, Brian could only take a step back again. After he finished speaking, he directly used his brute force to get Winnie into the car. Winnie didn't resist this time, because she didn't dare to go down the mountain alone. After this incident, Winnie deliberately avoided Brian, not wanting to have any physical contact with Brian. Because she could not imagine what kind of crime Brian would put on her next time. The advertisement about mobile phones started shooting. The model was the actress, Stella. Brian had been with Stella these days. So even if Winnie didn't hide herself, she couldn't see Brian. Winnie came to work early in order not to meet Brian. Just when Winnie stepped into the elevator, Penny also walked in. "It's really bad luck to meet you." Penny said unkindly, with contempt in her eyes. "... Winnie kept silent. She didn't want such a woman to affect her mood in the morning. "Did my husband stay with you for a night again? Winnie, you are so bold. Grandpa has gone to warn you, but you still dare to entangle him." Penny's words were so harsh. From the looks in Penny's eyes, Winnie could feel Penny wanted to kill her. Winnie glanced at Penny indifferently. When she looked at the paper bag in Penny's hand, she knew why Penny was so angry. "You are here to deliver clothes? No wonder you are so angry. There are so many women in the world. Don't take me too seriously. He didn't stay overnight with me. As for where he went, you can go to investigate. Don't just slander me before you don't know the truth." Winnie said calmly. Since that day, Brian hadn't come to her anymore. She really didn't know where Brian went last night. "Oh, did I wronged you? You mean you never slept with Brian?" Penny said maliciously. Her eyes filled with insidiousness. "I didn't say that." Winnie was still calm. She had never denied the fact that she slept with Brian. The reason why she didn't dare to admit, it was just that she was afraid of causing trouble and affecting whether Luke could stay with her. Winnie's unclear attitude made Penny hate her more. If Winnie didn't confirm or deny it, it would show that she indeed slept with Brian. "Winnie, I'll see how long your arrogance can last." After Penny finished speaking, the elevator door opened. A war ended. There were too many and too frequent such things. Winnie had been used to it. But Penny's hatred grew day by day, and her anger deepened every time she saw Winnie. Winnie was on the way to pick up the children from the kindergarten after getting off work. While talking with Daenerys on the phone with her earphones, Winnie drove the car at a constant speed. "Winwin, don't get angry with me. Leo always looks for me. Besides, he always asks me. I have no choice, so I told him." Daenerys asked for forgiveness, confessing her mistakes. "Now your relationship with Leo is better than with me. No matter what he asks you, you will tell him." Winnie didn't mean to resent. She just felt a little better after complaining a few words. "It's not like that. I just think Leo is also the one who was hurt. Leo has also lost a lot." Daenerys didn't dare to tell Winnie about Leo's love for Winnie. She didn't want to participate too much in other people's love.

CHAPTER 68 HAVING A CAR ACCIDENT

Winnie was unconvinced. Leo didn't lose a penny, and he even despised her. She should be the one who lost the most. "He has lost a lot? What can he lose?" "Losing you is his biggest loss. You are such a good woman. But he gave you to others. He won't meet such a good woman like you anymore." The meaning in Daenerys' words was already obvious. She could only say those words. The rest had to be solved by Leo himself. "I'm not as good as you said. He said that I was a liar. He would be so happy that he had given me to others. Wait, what does it mean to give me to others?" Winnie felt that Daenerys' words were inappropriate. She was not given to others. She was the one who no one wanted to accept. Otherwise, she didn't have to make money through the surrogacy. Thinking of the surrogacy, Winnie smiled bitterly. "He gave you to Brian." Daenerys said half-jokingly. In her opinion, Leo gave up Winnie when Winnie needed help the most. It was because of his giving up that Winnie met Brian. Then Winnie gave birth to children for Brian. Maybe it was the arrangement of fate, or the involvement of the children. Once again, Winnie met Brian. Brian was so lucky, but Daenerys didn't know if Brian would cherish it. "...". Speaking of Brian, Winnie was silent. If Leo gave her up, Brian might be the one who regarded her as trash. "What's wrong? Why don't you speak?" Daenerys asked. But after she finished asking, a huge impact sound came over. Daenerys suddenly panicked. "Winwin, Winwin, are you listening to me?" But she still did not hear the answer. "Winwin..." In the hospital, both Daenerys and Leo waited anxiously outside the emergency room. When Daenerys learned of Winnie's car accident, the first person Daenerys contacted was Leo, because she didn't have Brian's phone number. "Please. God! Please bless Winwin. The life has already been so hard for her. Don't torture her anymore." Daenerys prayed worriedly. Her face was full of anxiety. "Don't worry, Daenerys. Winwin will definitely be fine." Leo comforted Daenerys, but he couldn't hide the panic on his face. When he received Daenerys' call, he was so anxious. He drove at a high speed to hurry to the hospital. He kept speeding up all the way. The feeling of anxiety was too tormented. He also silently prayed that Winnie had to be safe. He still had a lot of words to say. Besides, he still didn't express his love. At the same time on the other side. Brian's work was not over yet. He was holding an urgent video conference. At this time, Albert knocked on the door and broke in without waiting for Brian's response. This made Brian frowned. "Mr. Bennet, the kindergarten called and said that the two children have not been picked up yet." Hearing that, Brian quickly suspended the video conference. "Where is Winnie? Why didn't she pick up the children?" Brian asked in a cold voice, but he felt uneasy. "I can't get contact with Miss Winnie. She doesn't answer the phone." Albert also obviously panicked. "Call Daenerys." The first person Brian thought of was Daenerys. At this time, he was more and more uneasy. Because Winnie was not the kind of person who didn't care about children and went to have fun, let alone deliberately not answering the phone. It was very likely that something happened to her. Brian directly hung up the video conference. He had no mood to preside over the conference. "We don't have Daenerys' phone number." "Then call Leo." Brian was anxious. He couldn't calm down at all. Hearing Brian's order, Albert hurried to the secretary office to get Leo's phone number. After a moment, Albert returned. His face was obviously gloomy. "Mr. Bennet, Miss Winnie has a car accident and is now in the hospital." As soon as Albert finishing speaking, Brian felt so anxious. He picked up the car key and went directly into the president's exclusive elevator. The moment the elevator door closed, he didn't forget to give orders. "You go to take care of the children." For the first time, Brian was so worried. Ignoring speeding, he was rushing to the hospital regardless of his own safety. After arriving at the hospital, Brian went directly to the emergency room. At this time the doctor came out of the emergency room. "How's she?" Brian asked anxiously. "Mr. Bennet?" The doctor knew that Brian was the boss of this hospital. But he didn't know what the relationship between the woman lying inside and Brian was. Why could the woman let Brian come here in person? "Answer me." Brian ordered. Only then did the doctor react. "We have done a detailed examination. Some of the injuries on her body are skin trauma. It's not a big deal. Now the main cause of unconsciousness is the head. A small bleeding spot in the head caused her to become unconscious. Now..." "Talk about the point." Brian severely interrupted the doctor's words. The doctor's words were a bit verbose for Brian. He didn't have the patience to wait for the doctor's detailed analysis. Brian just wanted to know if Winnie was in danger. "She needs to rest. When the blood clot is absorbed, there will be no problem."

This time, the doctor's words were succinct and dared not to say too much. "Then why is she still in a coma?" Brian seemed to be unable to accept the doctor's statement and kept asking. "Mr. Bennet, don't worry. The patient was hit in a car accident. The traffic police said that the glass on the side was damaged. Such a big impact would definitely cause her into a coma. I promised that she can wake up by tomorrow morning at the latest." The doctor's determined attitude finally relieved Brian's nervousness. Then Brian did not continue to press questions. At this time, the dean of the hospital hurried over with his team. "Mr. Bennet, you are here." The dean hurriedly greeted Brian. "Mr. Bennet, the patient has to be observed for two hours. We will arrange the best ward for her immediately. How about you go to the ward to wait?" The dean said respectfully. He was a little surprised by Brian's sudden appearance. "I want to go in. Also, arrange these two people." Brian said coldly. His words couldn't hide his worry. "Okay, Mr. Bennet, we will handle it immediately." The dean hurried to act after speaking. After a while, Brian walked in wearing protective clothing. Seeing the wounds on Winnie's whole body and her head covered with medical equipment, he felt heartbreak. Winnie's face was so pale without a trace of blood. Her lips were white and chapped, which were not as sexy as before. Brian couldn't help reaching out to touch it. However, Winnie still did not react at all, which made his trembling heart more restless. Brian stayed in the intensive care unit for two hours. Finally, he returned to the ward after the doctor confirmed that Winnie's physical signs were normal. Brian sent everyone away. He himself personally took care of Winnie in the hospital. Winnie hadn't woken up at nine o'clock in the evening. Brian couldn't help calling the doctor again for a detailed examination. After confirming that there was no problem, he began to wait anxiously. At this time, Albert rushed over to report to Brian the details of the incident. "The driver who caused the accident did not flee the scene and promised to pay full responsibility." "Preliminary investigation by the police revealed that the brakes of the responsible party's vehicle failed and rear-ended to Miss Winnie's car. He hit several cars until Miss Winnie's car hits a tree on the side of the road before stopping." Albert described the general course of the matter. "Brake failure? How quickly did he drive in the city and still couldn't stop after hitting?" Brian asked questions in a cold voice. The time when Winnie was hit was the rush hour. There were so many cars on the road. It was not easy to drive fast. He couldn't figure out how the car crashed continuously. "I also asked the police this question. The police watched the surveillance system. The car was suspected of speeding and nearly hit several cars before it hit Miss Winnie. Miss Winnie didn't avoid the vehicle coming from the side timely, because she was talking on the phone." "Who was she talking to?" Brian asked. "The police confirmed that Miss Winnie was on the phone with Daenerys at the time." Albert answered the questions one by one, with a serious expression on his face. "... Brian remained silent, but he still frowned, as if he still had doubts about the police's investigation. Brian always had a hunch that Winnie was a victim of other people's revenge against him. Maybe someone else knew that they went to the mountain villa that day. Grandfather? Penny? Or Uncle Zak? Brian frowned and thought for a moment. "Go to investigate the driver." Brian issued the order decisively. If this matter was not investigated clearly, he couldn't rest assured. Albert took the order and then left. Brian began to wait anxiously again. Finally at eleven o'clock in the evening, Winnie woke up. The headache was terrible, as if the head was about to burst. This was the first feeling that Winnie felt when she opened her eyes. When she unconsciously raised her hand to rub the severely painful head, her hand was held by the unexpected warm hand. This hand seemed to have magical powers, which relieved her pain a lot. Then the sound came, which made her instantly lose all illusions about this hand. "Don't move. You're having an infusion." That was right. The voice she clearly heard was from Brian. Why did he come to her again? Just when Winnie wanted to speak, she thought of Brian's words. Infusion? Why did she need an infusion? Winnie had a headache. She was too weak to open her eyes, but she was trying hard to recall what had happened to her. She remembered being talking on the phone with Daenerys. When Daenerys talked about Brian, she was silent, and later... Winnie remembered that she was hit by a car. However, at the last moment of the crash, she was thinking of Brian. Winnie opened her eyes hard. Her vision changed from blurry to clear. Under the dim light, she looked at Brian. She saw his eyes full of worry. Who was he worried about? Was he worried about her? Then why was his voice so cold? 'Winnie, don't think too much. No one will worry about you.' Winnie thought to herself. Seeing Winnie raising her hand, Brian's first reaction was not to ask how she was, but to press the button. When Winnie opened her eyes and looked at Brian, the doctor who stood by had already walked in quickly. Before Brian could ask, the doctor had already begun to examine Winnie.

CHAPTER 69 WARM VOICE

After a thorough examination, the doctor also breathed a sigh of relief. If Winnie did not wake up, they might be fired. "Mr. Bennet, she is fine now. Her head may hurt for two days. I will prescribe some medicine for her. It will relieve a lot. She will be fine after a good rest." "What about trauma? Will the scars on her body and head leave? Scars are easily to leave on her body." Hearing the doctor said that Winnie was okay, Brian finally relaxed, only then began to care about the trauma. "The scars may be due to improper disposal. This time we handled them very well. There will be absolutely no scars left." The doctor said affirmatively. They had already known the importance of this patient to Brian, so they did not dare to be slight over the stuff. "Can she eat some food now?" Brian continued to ask. "She can eat some liquid food." "Let the bodyguards outside prepare dinner. You all go out." After the doctors were gone, Brian leaned forward and began to ask. "Does the head still hurt?" Although this sentence was not as cold as before, there was still no temperature and no emotion. Winnie could do nothing with this indifferent man. "It hurts, but I can hold it back." Winnie replied softly, looking away from Brian's face. "Hold it on. Doctors will bring medicine over." Brian looked at the door anxiously, wishing to the doctor bring the medicine over quickly. "Who is taking care of the children?" Winnie was most worried about the children, fearing that Luke would be sent back to Penny's side because of her injury. "Don't worry. Daenerys is taking care of them." Brian's tone was still not warm, but it was already not easy for him to say like this. "Two children?" Winnie confirmed. "Yes." Brian understood Winnie's meaning and gave an affirmative answer. "That's good." Winnie breathed a sigh of relief, and the tight nerves in her head eased a lot. "Excuse me, tell Megan not to tell my aunt and sister about my injuries. Auntie is getting older. I don't want her to worry about me. My sister is preparing for the college entrance examination. I'm afraid it will affect her." What Winnie was worried about most at this time was not herself, but her families. "Now, the children have already fell asleep. I will call Megan tomorrow morning." Brian expressed helplessness for Winnie's excessive worry. Although he had never met her aunt nor her sister, he had heard the conversation between Winnie and them. He could feel that her families loved each other. At this time, the doctor delivered the medicine and told them the dose to be taken. Then, the doctor left. Winnie wanted to sit up to take medicine, but was stopped by Brian. "Don't move. The doctor said you can't shake your head too much now." When Brian was speaking, he took the prepared medicine and water to Winnie's side. He handed the medicine to Winnie's mouth and motioned her to open her mouth. At this time, Winnie looked dumbfounded, staring straightly at Brian. She didn't doubt

Brian's considerate behavior now. She only suspected that she was not in the reality. She felt what she saw was not true at all. "Open your mouth." Brian commanded in a cold voice, which caused Winnie to come to her senses. Winnie looked down and opened her mouth. She let Brian put the medicine into her mouth. But at this time, Brian had already reached out to hold Winnie's neck, and then slowly raised Winnie's head. "Drink water." This time, Winnie was more obedient. Because the medicine in her mouth was so bitter, she just wanted to vomit. Winnie drank several sips of water before swallowing the medicine. Then Brian helped Winnie lay down. "Mr. Bennet, I forgot to tell you that the hospital beds can rise by the remote control, so there is no need to do this." Winnie said. It seemed that she was teasing, but she was thanking. But Brian's face darkened. "I'm not so stupid that I don't know that it has this function. When I feed your medicine, just take it. When I feed your water, just drink it. Not every woman can enjoy my service." Brian knew everything. He simply wanted to take care of her by himself. Not only did Winnie not thank him, but she teased him. If she had not been lying on the hospital bed at the moment, Brian would have severely punished her. "Thank you." Winnie turned her face away, feeling inexplicable warmth. Just when Winnie turned her face, the door of the ward was pushed open. The bodyguard came back with dinner and put it next to the bed, and then went out quietly. Brian slowly raised the hospital bed with the remote control, and then raised the folding dining table again. Then he began to put the dishes on the table one by one. "Don't move. I'll feed you." Brian took a soup ladle to spoon up a little porridge to Winnie's mouth. "I never thought I still have this kind of treatment. Thank you!" Winnie opened her mouth and ate the spoonful of loving rice porridge. When she was eating, she felt moved. Since the death of her parents, she had become the backbone of the family overnight. She had to take care of her aunt and her sick sister. She had to raise her children. No one had ever cared for her like this. Brian was the first one who took care of her like this. "... " Brian said nothing. But he could see the helplessness on Winnie's face and the tears in her eyes. Every time he saw Winnie like this, he felt that she was not a liar at all. Because a liar would never have a sentimental side. "Open your mouth." Brian took another spoonful of porridge to Winnie's mouth again and ordered. Winnie swallowed it and tasted it. "I don't want to eat this. Give me millet porridge." Winnie took the initiative to ask. At this time, she could only eat light food. Her request made Brian stunned. It turned out that this woman could act like a spoil child. She could be so cute. "What's the matter? Have I gone too far? I can do it myself." Winnie stretched out her hand to take over the spoon in Brian's hand. But accidentally, she moved the hand that was getting infusion. "Don't move. Put it down, I'll feed you what you want to eat." Winnie's hand must be aching. Otherwise, she wouldn't frown. Her hand hurt. He also felt hurt. "All right." Winnie put her hand back. Her pain could get his more thoughtfulness. Winnie didn't know whether it was worth it. "Have you had the dinner?" Winnie asked while chewing. "Not yet. Such a big thing happened suddenly. Besides, no one took care of the children. How can I have the mood to eat?" It was not that Brian couldn't eat. He simply forgot to eat. Knowing the moment Winnie had an accident, he was in panic. He was worried about Winnie so much. How could he think of eating? "Then you eat some too. Give me the spoon. I can eat with my left hand." Winnie strenuously stretched out her left hand to take the spoon. "Forget it. Open your mouth." Brian said. The opportunity to feed her was also rare. He didn't want to miss it. Winnie opened her mouth obediently like a little girl, waiting for Brian to feed her. For her, such a thing was like a dream. She could enjoy it as much as she could. Maybe the next moment Brian would become cold as before. In the next second, Brian actually put the porridge that Winnie didn't like to eat into his mouth, and then chewed and swallowed. Winnie seemed dumbfounded. She and he used the same spoon together. Didn't he dislike it? "Open your mouth." Winnie hadn't figure it out yet and hadn't reacted yet. But Brian passed the spoon over again. Winnie couldn't help smiling brightly. Her dimples were charming. This night was the most harmonious night Winnie and Brian had spent. It was a little sweet and a little warm. However, as Winnie said, no one knew what Brian would become in the next moment. The next morning, when Winnie opened her eyes, she saw Brian's gloomy face. She knew that she should wake up from her dream. Everything returned to reality. Last night was just an illusion. "Have you not gone back?" Winnie asked in a low voice. She didn't dare to speak loudly because of the headache, let alone making big movements. "I'll go to the company after you take the medicine." Brian said coldly and raised the bed. He was indeed in a bad mood at the moment. He was trying his best to be soft when talking to Winnie. Because the emergency meeting yesterday had new troubles again. Brian put the medicine into Winnie's mouth like last night, and then fed her water. Seeing that Brian was so anxious, Winnie quickly opened her mouth to take the medicine for fear of delaying Brian's time. Brian put down both the water and the medicine, then turned around to tell Albert. "You stay here for a while. When Daenerys arrives, you can return to the company. Tell the doctors if they dare to slight over, just wait for to be fired." After Brian finished ordering coldly, he turned around to leave. After walking two steps, he heard Winnie's weak voice. "Although you're busy, you have to have some breakfast. It won't take you a lot of time." Winnie's caring words made Brian stop. Penny had said this to him, but he just felt disgusted. Another woman often said this to him, but he occasionally felt annoyed and just answered casually. But when Winnie said these to him, why did he feel the happiness of being cared for? Brian was suddenly startled. Because he suddenly heard the iceberg in his heart that had been holding on for many years could not withstand the baptism of time and the warmth. It made a melting sound. "Got it." Brian gave an affirmative answer, and then walked away. After Brian left, Albert began to take care of Winnie. Winnie also took this opportunity to ask something about the accident. Later, Daenerys came over. Then Albert left. "You scared me to death. I thought I couldn't never see you anymore." Daenerys said with tears in her eyes. Although there were so many wounds on Winnie's body, Daenerys was very happy that Winnie was not seriously injured. Looking at the tragic scene of the car accident at the time, she thought Winnie must not be able to survive. "It's okay. I'm fine. My suffering in the world is not over yet. How could the devil be willing to take me away?" After taking the medicine, Winnie's headache relieved a lot. She had the strength to say a little more. "You're still joking." Daenerys still had lingering fears until now. She didn't have the mood to make jokes. "It's not a big deal. Except for death, everything is not a big deal. I'm really fine. Don't worry."

CHAPTER 70 BOTH OF THEM HAVE FEELINGS TO YOU

Winnie, a patient, still had to comfort Daenerys who was full of worries. Because Winnie could feel Daenerys' concern to herself. After getting hit, Winnie fainted directly and didn't know anything later, let alone being afraid. But those who cared about her must be scared to death. Daenerys was one of them, and maybe the only one. "Not only am I worried about you, but Leo has been worried about you from the accident scene to the hospital. If Brian hadn't come over, Leo would be with you until now. Daenerys was worried and anxious at the time, so she didn't notice how worried Leo was. But she noticed how worried Brian was. Daenerys continued to speak. "Brian was like crazy. I never thought that he, who has always been cold and fierce, would have such an uneasy side. Because of your injuries, he lost his temper to the doctor. Besides, he stayed with you in the intensive care unit for more than two hours. After you were out of danger, he drove us away and took care of you personally. He cares about you so much, but you still didn't wake up until midnight." Daenerys gave a rough overview of what happened yesterday. It seemed that she was blaming but more worried. "Care about me? There is someone who cares about me. It seems that my getting injured is worth it." Winnie smiled bitterly. Leo worried about her entirely because he felt guilt towards what he did to her four years ago. Besides, they were also friends now. So Winnie could accept this kind of care without burden. But she didn't dare to hope that Brian would care about her. Because he might ruin her in the next moment. "What are you guys talking about? It looks like you're really all right." Leo's relaxed voice came. Winnie and Daenerys both looked over. Seeing Winnie talking in the ward, Leo asked her attending doctor some details. Only when he knew that Winnie was all right now did he finally feel relieved, so that his tone was so relaxed. "Leo, you are here!" Daenerys greeted him. At this time, Leo had already come to the bedside. "Yeah. I come here to see Winwin." "How do you feel right now? Is there any discomfort?" Leo asked with concern. Seeing Winnie's injuries, he felt so sorry. "The doctor said I'm okay, and I could be discharged in a few days. Leo, thank you." Winnie said. She was already very happy that Leo came to see her. "We're friends. Luckily, you are safe." Leo could not express his feelings too much, nor could he let Winnie know how painful he was, as that would only make Winnie feel annoyed. "Well, I'm fine." Since the misunderstanding between Winnie and Leo was resolved, Winnie's attitude towards Leo had become a little better. Everything before was the past. But every time when she saw Leo, she would inevitably think of her saddest days four years ago. "Winwin, if you need my help, just tell me." Leo said sincerely. Before coming to the hospital, he wanted to help deal with car accident, and did not want Winnie to have any worries. However, after he went to the police station, he learned that Brian had already sent someone to deal with it. In fact, Leo had already guessed it. But he did not expect Brian to be so thoughtful and did not leave him a chance to perform. From last night to now, Brian had already handled everything. Moreover, Brian personally took care of Winnie, which made Leo feel very bitter. If this continued, he really wouldn't have any chance. "It should be nothing serious. Albert is dealing with it. But if there is something that can't be handled well, I might have to trouble you." Winnie said with a smile. But she really didn't know what things Brian could not handle well. "...". Leo smiled. If there was something that Brian couldn't handle well in B City, no one could handle it well. It seemed that even though he wanted to help, he wouldn't have the chance. "Winwin, have the results of the police investigation come out?" Seeing the conversation between them got more and more embarrassed and it might be stiff if it continued, Daenerys changed the subject. "Yes, that driver voluntarily takes full responsibility." This result was told by Albert in the morning. Winnie was very grateful to the perpetrator, at least he wasn't a hit-and-run. "It is very sincere to be able to take the initiative to take all the responsibilities. This perpetrator is not bad. At that time, he actively participated in the rescue at the scene of the car accident. When the police came, he took the initiative to admit his responsibility. This is also quite good for us." Daenerys recalled what the perpetrators did at the scene of the car accident. But he didn't hurt at all. She could only say the perpetrator was so lucky. "Well, I'm still alive and not seriously injured. I'm so lucky to have encountered such a responsible perpetrator." Winnie said gently. This was just an accident. She had no resentment towards the perpetrator. "Winwin, I still have a meeting to preside. I have to go back first. I will come to see you when I'm available." Leo suddenly proposed to leave. Although he also wanted to be with Winnie here, what Winnie needed more now was rest. Because of the emergency yesterday, he also postponed an important cooperation. "Well, go ahead of your business." Leo was no less busy than Brian. Winnie understood very well. After Leo left, Daenerys looked at Winnie with weird eyes. "Why do you look at me like that?" Winnie asked inexplicably. "You don't know? Now that two men treat you so well. Don't you show your attitude clearly?" Daenerys said jokingly. Seeing Leo's lonely back, Daenerys knew that he still loved Winnie very deeply. But the current situation was a bit bad, which was not good for Leo. Winnie didn't expect that Daenerys would talk about this. She was taken aback for a moment. Both men treat her well? Really? She could feel Leo's warmth, but Leo was warm to everyone. Winnie didn't think there was anything special. But Brian... Impossible. He was impossible to treat her well. "What you're thinking will not happen." Winnie knew what Daenerys wanted to say and what her so-called clear attitude was. Winnie continued. "Daenerys, there is no feeling between me and Leo. It is impossible for us to get back. He may still feel guilty to me. I will talk to him when the time is right." "It's even more unlikely that what you're thinking will happen between Brian and me. He is so excellent. He's too good to me. How could a woman who makes money through the surrogacy be worthy of such a good prince?" "Don't worry. I will pay more attention in the future. I will keep the distance with all men. It's just like when I was in college." Winnie showed a bitter smile. When she was in college, because she deliberately kept a distance from boys, everyone said that she was cold and arrogant and not easy to get along with. Now she no longer had the capital to be arrogant, but she could stay away from all men as before. She just wanted to live a quiet life which only belonged to herself and her children. "Winwin, I didn't mean that you can't contact men. You are still young and have the right to pursue love. You can find a good man to marry. I think you and Brian have the feelings to each other. After all, you two have children." Daenerys said thoughtfully, and then she continued without waiting for Winnie to speak. "I think you and Leo also have feelings. If he still loves you, you two can be together." Daenerys began to imply. She just said her thoughts out. But it was Winnie who had the final decision. "You started talking nonsense again. They two have the feelings to me? So do I have to marry both?" Winnie said jokingly. Because she felt that these two men were impractical to her. She didn't want to get hurt because of love. "It's not to let you marry both. It's to let you choose one." "Well, well. Don't talk about it. You just need to care about yourself." Winnie didn't want to continue this embarrassing topic. She was so ordinary that she didn't deserve to choose one of them casually. "Winwin..." "I'll have a headache if you still talk about that." Daenerys was interrupted by Winnie. Now, Winnie felt that she had no time to talk about love, and she had no rights to choose a man. Now she just wanted to accompany her children to grow up. She just wanted to take good care of her aunt and let her younger sister have a good future. All these were the focus of her life now. In the afternoon, the two children insisted on coming to the hospital after school. Daenerys had no choice but to bring the children to the hospital. The two children cried bitterly when they saw Winnie's injuries. "Mommy, why did you get hurt? Does it hurt?" Megan asked while crying. She felt so sorry about her Mommy's injuries. "Auntie... Auntie is injured. Luke can bear the pain for you." Luke sobbed and said. "Hey, don't cry. I will be fine in a few days." Winnie endured the headache. She had to calm the two little guys. "Auntie, you have to be strong. As long as you are strong, you will get better." Megan was already crying so hard. Only Luke could continue to comfort Winnie. "Auntie knows it. Auntie will be strong." Winnie was so distressed and didn't know which one she could comfort first. "Well, well. Don't cry. How can your Mommy get better after seeing you cry like this?" Daenerys knelt down to wipe off Megan's tears, while comforting Megan. Then she stretched out her hand to wipe away tears for Luke. "Don't cry. Luke, you are the elder brother. You take the lead. If you are crying, Auntie's head will hurt." Daenerys saw Megan still crying, so she could only say to Luke. But her trick really worked. Luke was like a little adult. Luke quickly wiped off his tears, then patted Megan's little head. He wiped away the tears for Megan. "Megan, don't cry. Auntie will get better soon." Luke's soothing also had a certain effect. Megan gradually stopped crying. "Good boy, good girl. Mommy will get better." Winnie breathed a sigh of relief, but she still frowned. Because she started to have a headache again. It was just because the two children were there, she couldn't let the children see her painful looks. Otherwise, they would worry about her again.
