CHAPTER 621 CONCEALING THE TRUTH

Winnie was surprised that they two of them knew the fact. And she was sad that Brian did not check it, but Albert and Calvin had been worrying about it. Since they already knew, Winnie could only answer truthfully. "Yes, there were three of us in the room all the time." "Caro and Stefan are friends, and Caro got the room ready before you went there. Then she and Stefan stayed with you until dawn. They took care of you all night, so after you and Stefan left, Caro continued to sleep in that room because she didn't have slept all night." Albert described the truth. It was not from his investigation, but from the video. They didn't finish watching the video yesterday because they were too busy at work and they failed to find Caro, so Calvin got up early this morning and continued to watch the video. Then he saw Caro talking with her colleague in the hall about what happened the night before. Calvin called Albert immediately after that, so two people came to Winnie for verification. "You investigated so clearly. Yeah, I got drunk out of a bad mood, and I vomited all night. Caro and Stefan took care of me all night." Winnie was moved. Calvin and Albert believed in her, and found out the truth for her innocence. She was grateful that she had such two good friends. "That means nothing happened between you and Stefan that night. Mr. Bennet misunderstood you." Calvin confirmed again and then they would tell the truth to Mr. Bennet. "What could happen? I have nothing to do with Stefan, and Stefan is a gentleman. How could he do anything to me when I was drunk?" Hearing that, Calvin and Albert knew it was true. They did not ask any more questions, but looked at each other and got up. "Where are you going?" Winnie asked. "Director Chambers, you have been wronged by Mr. Bennet. We can't sit idle. We're going to tell him the truth." Calvin said with justice and was to go, but Winnie hurriedly stopped in front of them. "You can't tell him." Winnie's firm attitude frightened Calvin and Albert. "Why? You've been wronged. Mr. Bennet is not right. Why don't you tell him?" Calvin and Albert did not understand why Winnie wanted to conceal the truth. "Sit down. Sit down and I'll tell you." Winnie took Calvin and Albert to sit down on the sofa. It was hard to explain, so she could only take it slow. After they sat down, Winnie said about her experience. What she learned from these experiences were outlook on life, values and the love of inequality. "I don't want to have any relationship with him. We have broken up and I am good being single." "Director Chambers, you can't just give up. Besides, you are carrying the blame. You may never get over it. Aren't you wronged?" Albert still did not understand why Winnie wanted to hide the fact. Even if she did not want to go back to Brian, at least she should prove her innocence. Winnie first sighed, and then gave a faint smile. "It is not gonna happen between Brian and me at any time. Chairman has repeatedly approached me alone and asked me not to interfere with his marriage." "Even if I marry him, I will not have a good live because they despised me." "Felix wanted Brian to marry a rich woman and nobody can change that." Winnie stopped speaking and looked at Albert and Calvin, this was the first thing she told them the reason why she could not be with Brian. Felix was an insurmountable obstacle for the relationship between her and Brian and she believed that Calvin and Albert knew this point better than anyone. Calvin and Albert looked at each other, but neither of them spoke, because Felix repeatedly found Winnie alone. And the second reason was that Felix did not allow Winnie to become his daughter-in-law. Because of that, Brian had been working hard until they broke up. Winnie continued as Albert and Calvin were speechless. "Felix is only one of the reasons, but most of all, Brian is the key." "He doesn't trust me at all. He has never trusted me unconditionally except for my work. There is no point in us being together if we don't even have basic trust." "I can explain this time, and he can reluctantly believe it. But what about the next time? Shall I keep explaining, if he still doesn't believe me?" At this, she got tears in eyes. Only she knew how sad she was, others could not feel it. "You know better than anyone what I have suffered and taken the blame when I was with him. I don't want it anymore. I don't want to have anything to do with him. I'd rather take the blame than be with him." Winnie felt it was a sufficient reason. Others felt she was good, but Calvin and Albert knew the truth that she was not. "The way he treated the women around him and me, and the fact that he didn't trust me scared me." "If you regard me as your friend, pretend that you do not know the truth." Winnie felt sooner or later they would break up. Breakup earlier would make her get better earlier, or her life would be destroyed in the hands of Brian. Calvin and Albert had been silent, while Winnie had finished her words. They could not refute Winnie's every word. What she said was indeed real. Even though Brian did not love the women around him, he was a good, successful man, and there were many women who tried to suck up to him and wanted to get into his bed. In this case, these women put Winnie as the enemy, Winnie would be therefor got hurt. The two men mused and could not say anything against it. "It really touches me to know that you are doing all this for my own good. But the only way to do this for me is to cover it up. I believe you can do it and do it well." Winnie said. She had made up her mind that she must get rid of Brian this time. "You knew from the very beginning that Mr. Bennet misunderstood you, so you decided to break up with him, so you did not explain." Albert finally opened his mouth, helpless. "Misunderstanding is not a big deal, but his distrust chills me. He was in the hotel with Gloria. I was uncomfortable, but I chose to believe him. But he believed everything Wendy said, and then scolded me without even giving me a chance to explain." Winnie stopped and gave a bitter smile, blinking eyes hard, for fear of tears fell out. She did not tell anyone about it. She warned Brian, but he did not listen to her. "Alas..... We promise you we won't tell Mr. Bennet. I just... I just think it's a pity." Albert finally agreed to Winnie's request, because he could not change anything. If she continued to be hurt, he would rather she lives a free life. Winnie got her love with life, but Brian did not cherish it, no wonder Winnie was disheartened. The truth had been concealed. Winnie did not regret losing a chance to prove her innocence and did not break up with Brian. Although she still could not get over Brian, she was relaxed, she was free, she no longer had to have a wild thought for a look of Brian. Since she could not get over Brian, she would take it as unrequited love. The pain in her heart was better than the pain he gave her. When Leo got up, it was already nine o'clock in the morning. Due to illness, he slept until more than nine o'clock. However, to his disappointment, Emily had already left when he opened his eyes. What did that mean? Emily still refused to forgive him, or she would not leave. Leo was disappointed, but he was happy that he had sex with Emily last night, which was a kind of progress in their relationship. And Leo expected she would be pregnant. At that, Leo smiled, and then called Emily, but as he expected, Emily would not answer his phone at this time. So he sent a message to Emily. "I have been your man since last night, and you are so heartless to abandon your man. I'm still a patient. You'd better come tonight to take care of me. Thank you very much!" After that, he got up to work. Emily was sleeping soundly at home and did not wake up because of Leo's message. She was tortured last night and then did not dare to sleep for fear that Leo was in a fever. Until four o'clock in the morning she drove back after making sure Leo was ok. Emily was not affected by Leo's message, but she was awakened by Daenerys's phone. "Hello..." "Aren't you up yet? We agreed to go shopping today." Daenerys heard Emily's twittering voice and knew Emily was in bed. As soon as Emily heard the word shopping, she remembered her agreement with Daenerys, and suddenly woke up. "I forgot it. I will get up now. Wait a minute." Emily hung up the phone and got up quickly. She simply dressed up and went out without eating breakfast. Of course she did not read Leo's message.

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 622 MARKS ON NECK

The two met at the mall and start shopping. Until Emily was hungry, they got into a restaurant. It was only after she ordered food that Daenerys asked. "Didn't you eat this morning? Why are you hungry so soon?" "How can I have time to eat? I went out soon after you called me." Emily answered inadvertently, at the moment she just wanted to eat and wondered how Leo was. "You're not used to get up late. What's wrong with you today? Did you sleep late last night?" Daenerys asked with concerned, but did not find that Emily was absent-minded. "Ah... Yeah, I stayed up late last night watching the show." Thinking of the reason for sleeping late last night, Emily felt embarrassed, but she still took out her phone and was to contact Leo. Then she saw Leo's voice message. Emily did not think much but clicked it immediately. "I have been your man since last night..." Emily stopped it but Daenerys had heard it. "Leo?" Daenerys recognized his sound, but she didn't really catch the exact words. "No." Emily answered with panic, but it made Daenerys suspicious. "No? Who are you kidding? I've known Leo for many years, I can recognize his voice." Daenerys was sure she had heard it right, but she was frustrated that she had not heard the exact words. "No, it's probably too similar, so you heard it wrong." Emily was nervous and even put her phone away. This made Daenerys even more curious. "Emily, you are a good liar. You don't look well, so I'm pretty sure you're lying to me. Say it, what's the matter with you and Leo?" "I said nothing. You're too sensitive." As Emily's voice fell, the food was served, which made Emily breathe a sigh of relief. "Hurry up and eat. I'm starving." Daenerys took a look at Emily but did not continue to ask. It would be not late to ask after she ate. As she ate, Leo's voice lingered in Emily's mind. He sounded that he was good now, but what did he want to say next? She was still thinking about second half of Leo's sentence when she almost finished her food. She put down her chopsticks and got up taking her phone. "What are you going for?" Daenerys asked. She had been watching Emily. She said she was starving, but she didn't focus on food, she must have something to hide. "Go to the toilet." "Why take your phone to the toilet? It may fall into the water. Put it down. I will watch it." Daenerys said it deliberately, to see how long she could insist. "I..." Emily suddenly did not know what to say, if she insisted on leaving with her phone, Daenerys must doubt her. But without her phone, there was no point in her going to the toilet. "Well, I won't go till we go shopping." Emily reluctantly sat down again. "Have you had enough?" Daenerys asked Emily. "Yes. Why, shall we continue shopping?" Emily was stunned and did not know why Daenerys asked so. "Have a chat then. You have been absent-minded." Daenerys gave an evil smile, straightened her back and leaned back in her chair. Just when she leisurely interrogated Emily, she suddenly saw red marks on Daenerys' neck. Then she couldn't help laughing, it made Emily puzzled. "Why are you laughing? You have a problem today." Emily was flustered. She felt that Daenerys should have found out something, so she laughed like that. "What is wrong with me? I haven't done anything I can't talk about. Alas..... Are you and I best friends?" Daenerys still asked Emily with a bad smile. "Of course we are. What do you want to say? Just go to the point." Emily could not bear Daenerys acting like that. "Well, I'll leave out the unimportant. What's that mark on your neck?" Daenerys said, stared at the mark on Emily's neck, without blinking. "My neck? Mark?" Emily didn't know what was going on, and Daenerys' strange tone made her confused. "Alas..... Think before you say. A kid will know what is going on. Don't try to deceive me." Daenerys switched her phone to selfie mode and handed it to Emily. Emily took the phone to see what was wrong with her neck. Instantly, she became blushed, like a big apple. "This....." She didn't even notice the mark, and in the morning she washed her face in such a hurry that she didn't even look in the mirror. Crazy, she could not remember when she got it. "What is this? I did not make it." "Don't try to hide it. What happened to you and Leo last night?" Daenerys spoke of Leo, because Emily was only sensitive to Leo. Seeing things were basically exposed, Emily quieted down. She glared at Daenerys, wondering where to begin. "Why are you looking at me? Is there an answer on my face?" "If you refuse to say it, I will ask Leo." Daenerys said as she pulled out her phone. "Wait, don't call him. You gossip girl, why are you so curious?" Emily stopped Daenerys, if Daenerys called Leo, it would be embarrassing. "Say it then." Daenerys knew it was going to be a good show and couldn't wait. If Emily did not tell her, she really would call Leo. "... He came to my house for a drink yesterday and..." Emily could not escape so she told what happened yesterday to Daenerys, including that she had sex with Leo. "That's all, are you satisfied?" Emily stared at Daenerys, and Daenerys smiled from ear to ear. "So you are good now?" Daenerys was interested in the result. "No, he wanted to talk about it last night but I interrupted him. I don't have the courage to accept him." When it came her relationship with Leo, Emily was sad. Daenerys's smile stiffened. Why couldn't they be good since they had sex? "What are you thinking? Leo is not good enough? Why does it take you so long to think about it?" "I am wondering if I will have the courage or ability to bear it if he cheats on me again if I accept him. Then we will become enemies." Emily gave her thought, but she did not care about what happened before, but there was a shadow in her heart. She was really afraid that Leo would cheat on her again and hurt her like this time. She was not Winnie, she could not withstand the hurt again and again. If Leo were like Brian, she would be tortured to death. "You're worrying too much. Everything in the future is unknown. Aren't you tired of trying to figure things in the future out?" Daenerys persuaded Emily seriously. She understood that Emily could not walk out of her shadow. But if she lived in the shadows all the time, she would not be happy. "But love needs to think about the result, and should I be immersed in the fear of when to break up every day?" Emily thought that love was perfect, once she fell in love, it would not change, so there must be a prophetic consciousness. "That is your thought about love? You are a young person at a new age, how can you have stereotype? Be natural and unrestrained in love. When you don't love Leo, you can love others." Daenerys did not understand why Emily's concept was so out of date. Emily was silent. She could understand, but she could not accept the man she loved separated from her, especially deceived her. However, this kind of thing could be found everywhere. Too many irresponsible men turn a deaf ear to women's love. She was afraid that Leo was also such a person. She was afraid that her love would be trampled by Leo. "Emily, to tell you the truth, anyone who got married can't guarantee that the other person will be absolutely faithful to him or her. It's not just your problem, it's everyone's problem. It's not something you can solve by worrying about it alone." "Like me, I never thought that Kevin and I would grow old together, but I can't stop getting married and having kids just because I'm worried about that. And it is possible that we can be together till we are old." "And the most important thing is to live in the moment. At least now he loves me and spoils me. At least now I am happy. You can't deny anything because of your worry. It's not fair to Leo, and it's not fair to yourself." Daenerys had already said all she needed to say, and she felt that she had no words to say if Emily was still not unconvinced. Emily was still silent, she thought of Daenerys's words and asked herself when she got and what she lost being so careful. Even if she had planned well for the future, could it go as she expected? Albert and Calvin said nothing because of their promise to Winnie. Because they kept it a secret, Winnie worked in peace and was not afraid Brian came to disturb her. At noon Daenerys invited her to lunch, but she refused. She had been delayed a lot of work these two days and had not gone to shooting practice. She felt that she had wasted her time and was not in the mood to eat.

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 623 FINAL RESULT

Winnie was practicing shooting and then Office Lee came over. "Do you need practice, too?" Winnie greeted her but Office Lee gave a serious face. "I came to see you." "Is there a mission?" Winnie put down the gun and walked out of the training ground with Office Lee. "It's not a mission. It's about Penny." Office Lee said seriously, which stunned Winnie. From his attitude, she knew it was a bad news. "Are you sure it was a terminal cancer?" "Yes, the result is out and the doctor gives the final diagnosis – it is terminal cancer. It is worse than expected. Cancer cells have been detected in her liver and bone marrow as well as stomach and bowel cancer. Office Lee said pitifully, afraid that Winnie could not bear it. Winnie really could not bear it. She did not expect to be so serious. The result was tantamount to a death sentence for Penny. "How long can she still live?" Winnie asked with desperation. "The doctor said it depends on her mentality. If she is positive, she can live for six months, but if not, she can live only for two months." Such an answer undoubtedly made Winnie more desperate. She could not help but grew red in eyes for someone who hurt her and her kids. "What if she gets treatment? Is it going to make her live for longer?" Winnie did not want to give up, wanted to try to make Penny live longer. But the answer was a blow to her. "I had asked the doctor and he said there is no therapeutic value. The treatment will prolong her life, but she may die on the operation table. Office Lee had asked the doctor about it, if there was hope, he would not be so upset. Winnie could not help but shedding tears, feeling heartache. "Don't cry. The doctor said she's doing well and the cancer is not obvious. If she has a good attitude, living for half a year should be no problem." Office Lee hurried to comfort Winnie, tried to say some optimistic words. "She won't have a good attitude. If she finds out she has cancer, she'll go crazy. I don't think she can live for two months. Winnie understood Penny well. She could bring pain to others, but she could not bear the blow to her. "Well, when she got out, a cellmate named Amy helped her. It was said that Amy knew a doctor who could exaggerate her condition indefinitely, so that she could stay out longer." "We found the doctor and we have him under control. So if you tell Penny that she has cancer, she will think that the doctor exaggerated her condition and won't really think that she has a cancer. in this way, she will be in a much better mental state." Office Lee told Winnie that, for fear that she would be worried. "So she did herself a favor by going out." Winnie stopped crying, but her voice was still trembling. She knew it a few days ago, but she still could not accept when the result came out. "You could say so, so it's kind of a good thing. Take it easy. This is her destiny and there's no one can change that. It doesn't matter how sad you are." Office Lee continued to comfort her. He thought Penny deserved it, but he could not say so, or Winnie would not sad. "Alas....." Winnie sighed. She understood it, but still felt difficult to accept it. "There is still a problem to be solved. She can't go back to prison since she has cancer, and the prison police can't watch her all the time. Generally she should be transferred to her family. But as far as we know, her family is not in contact with her and in a very bad condition. They cannot afford to pay for her treatment." Office Lee did not know what to do, after all, she was involved in another case, so he did not know ask who to take care of Penny. "She can pay her own medical bills, she has money. Having no one to take care of her is a problem. But I can." Winnie volunteered. She was busy, but she did not want Penny to be sad. "No, you can't be safe like that. She is so hostile to you that she will threaten you if you are not careful. I'll figure it out and see if I can persuade her family." Officer Lee did not expect Winnie was so kind, she even did not care about her own safety. He wouldn't have even talked about it if he had known it. "Ok them, but if they refuse, I can take care of her. She won't do anything to me since she is ill." Winnie did not have much concern as Office Lee, but she had to take his advice. After Winnie separated with Office Lee, she was not in the mood to practice shooting. She packed up her things and went back to her car, and then she made a call to Oscar. Oscar was sad to hear the news. He wanted to do something for Penny, so he offered to take care of Penny. "You told the police to let me look after her. We are closer than the others." "Oscar, I understand how you feel. I'm as upset as you are, and I can't accept the fact. But she is, after all, a prisoner, and you will be legally responsible if you look after her." Winnie was now worried about Oscar. "Well, she has no one to look after her now, and she is close to death. I can't just sit idle." There was no guarantee that Penny would continue to run afoul of the law in the meantime, given her ambition and her ferocity. But Oscar believed that Penny would not do anything to hurt him. "Don't worry. Let the police deal with it first. If there is no one to look after her, you and I can look after her." Winnie could not come up with a good idea, and she could not let Oscar take the responsibility. She felt she should not let Penny pass away sadly. "You don't need to take care of her. She has always been hostile to you. What if she hurts you? You tell the police I'll take care of her if her family decides to leave her alone." Oscar said seriously, he would not allow Winnie's intervention, to let her got into danger again. "We're working on it. I'll tell the police what you think." Winnie did not continue to dispute, no matter who would take care of Penny, she could not sit idle. Even if Penny hated her, she would go to see her. Winnie went to back to the company after calling Officer Lee. In the underground parking lot, she accidentally saw Klara and secretary Bonnie talking in a corner secretly. "Klara, I really didn't say that. Director Chambers found it out herself. I am not a fool, how can I betray myself?" Bonnie said embarrassedly. She knew that Klara had returned to the company to work, and she had been avoiding Klara, but she was caught by Klara today. "Okay, I'll believe you for now, but listen to me. Don't tell M. Bennet, or both us will lose our jobs." Klara warned sharply, with her face sullen like a shrew. "I won't tell him. Besides, Director Chambers gave me a chance, and she didn't him, why should I? Klara, I gotta go back to work." Bonnie wanted to leave, she was really afraid of Klara's evil face. "Wait, I want to ask you something else. Does Winnie have any plans to compete abroad recently?" This was the real reason why Klara came to Bonnie. Wendy had her money and she never got it back. Before Wendy gave her wages and interest per month, now it had been more than two months, she got no news. And Winnie did not go abroad for competition, which confused Klara. "No, Director Chambers has no competition." Bonnie was puzzled why Klara asked so. "No?" Klara was not calm. "No, I've been working here for a long time and Director Chambers has never participated in any competitions. And there are no plans for one in the next six months." Bonnie explained. Klara was stunned and flustered. Was Wendy lying to her to take her money? "Klara, I gotta go." Bonnie hurriedly escaped when Klara was stunned. Klara was panic, because she had given Wendy ten million. What should she do? She gotta get her money back. Winnie had heard the conversation between Klara and Bonnie, but she did not ask, pretending she heard nothing. After Bonnie got on the elevator, Winnie stood at another elevator entrance and waited for the elevator. When the elevator door opened, Klara also came over. "It's bad luck to meet someone I don't want to meet." Klara sneered as she walked into the elevator. "You can take another elevator. I don't want to see you either." Winnie did not endure it and refuted back. She would not take any bad words Klara said to her. "Why don't you get out?" Not to be outdone, Klara asked Winnie. "I got in first.

Why should I get out? You said you didn't want to meet me first. Since you can't be with the same elevator with me, why don't you get out?" Winnie said sharply. "Boring." Klara could only temporarily compromise because she did not want to wait another elevator.

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 624 THE BROTHER AND SISTER WHO HATED EACH OTHER

As the door closed, the elevator began to ascend. Looking at the floor the elevator was about to stop, Klara was angry. "I heard that Mr. Bennet is getting married with Gloria. I don't know how long you can work on the 30th floor." Klara satirized Winnie. "You're not the one is about to marry Mr. Bennet. Does it matter to you?" Winnie said sharply. She had such attitude earlier, Klara dare not do harm to her. "You..." Winnie was not the same as before, she refuted every word Klara said. Was she really determined to fight? "Winnie, I just want to do my job now, you'd better not to provoke me." Klara had nothing to say and could only take a step back. "Have I provoked you? Since you've been back, which confrontation did I start? I told you to do your job and leave me alone, but you didn't seem to hear me." "Klara, I am telling you, this is your last chance. If you are still plotting against me with Wendy, I will find you out even if Brian protects you." "Listen, I won't be bullied casually." Winnie sternly warned Klara, this time she had the upper hand. Klara dare not say a word but hurried to get out of the elevator. Winnie raised the corner of her mouth, but she had no joy of victory. She didn't like this kind of communication, didn't like antagonism with anyone. But to protect herself from harm, she had to fill herself with thorns. As Winnie returned to her office, Brian's secretary came to her. Winnie thought it was business, after all, Brian said a private matter could not disturb him. So Winnie went directly to Brian's office without hesitation. "You want to see me, Mr. Bennet?" Winnie stood upright and spoke respectfully to Brian. That was the attitude of a subordinate to a superior. "It's not business, it's about the kids. I'm free tonight. You make the arrangements." Brian's voice was cold. He did not even look up at Winnie while reading the documents and speaking. Winnie froze to hear that. "I'm going to pick up the kids tonight, and you can come to my house if you like. If it's not convenient..." "Ok, I can be there around seven o'clock." "Get out. I want to work." Brian said and told her to go away, or he would be distressed. "Okay, I got it." "Mr. Bennet, there's one thing I want to give you back." Winnie took off the necklace around her neck, and then went to the desk of Brian, put the necklace on the table. "I forgot it last time, here you are." Winnie took the last look at the necklace and then turned away. She loathed giving this necklace back, but Brian spent a lot of money to buy it. As long as it was Brian's money, she had to return it. Brian clutched the necklace in his hand and felt her body temperature on it. He had heartache. When he gave it to her, he was happy, but now he felt bitter. Their relationship was cut thoroughly. Was she really so ruthless to give up all? After hanging up the phone, Oscar went directly to the Penny's brother and sister. He took a lot of effort to persuade them to see Penny. When they arrived at the hospital, the police let them in after confirming they were Penny's brother and sister. Even the police who had been guarding the ward went out. Oscar went out because there were no outsiders in the ward and his presence seemed out of place. "Thank you for coming to see me." Penny was angry to see them, but she could not show it off. She knew they did not want to come. They wouldn't have come if Oscar hadn't begged and pleaded. "You're welcome. We didn't mean to come." Her sister spoke sharply and angrily. It angered Penny, they might have quarreled in the past. But now Penny had endured it. "How are you doing now, if..." "It's all thanks to you. Without you, the Burns family would not have been in such trouble and would not have been defeated so miserably. I was divorced, and his girlfriend canceled the engagement since our family went bankrupt. What do you think three of us in a small house doing?" "I knew you were a troublemaker when you came to my home. Well, are you happy to get the Burns family where it is now?" Her sister hated her. She heard that Penny had a cancer, she did not pity Penny but hoped she died immediately. "Don't behave like that. I have something to discuss with you. We can't talk about it if you have that attitude. You always say that I brought the Burns family to the present situation, are you sure that the Burns family would not have ended like this without me? And What have you done for the Burns family?" Penny could not help but refute, she had anger and resentment too. But she could not show it, because she did not want to make their relationship worse. So she was as rude as before. "What did you do when the Burns family was thriving and when the Burns family was failing? It seems like you couldn't be of any help at all." "When the Burns family was in crisis, why didn't you stand up and marry Brian? If I hadn't sacrificed my happiness, the Burns family would have been like this today, could it still persist for so many years?" Penny said. She felt she had given the Burns family a second life, and neither of her brother nor sisters had the right to criticize her. "You're in chicanery..." "Stop talking and listen to her." Her sister was stopped by her brother. There was no point in arguing about who was right and who was wrong. He wanted to hear what Penny would say. "Don't you have something to say?" Her brother was a man after all and more composed than her sister. "When I broke up with Brian, he gave me a villa. The villa is now unoccupied, you take your mother to move in." Penny knew that her brother and sister hated her, and she hated them, too. But they had to help each other on their father's issue. In order to find her father, she temporarily needed to bond with her brother and sister. "Are you serious?" Her sister said in surprise and did not believe that Penny could be so kind. "Yes, it's a big house. I could live in it even if I go back." "I have money, and you can let me know when you need it. But the Burns family will never rise again. You have to work on your own." Penny had to tell the truth. She came out to fulfill her wish, and when she did, she would either die or spend the rest of her life in prison. With her father's murder on her shoulders, it was impossible to restructure the company. Without her and her father, the company would never be able to recover, so her brother and sister had to see through the fact and find their own way of life. "Why do you become so kind? Is it because you are dying?" Her sister spoke sarcastically to Penny. She knew that Penny had a house, but she did not know that Penny had money. Now that she had money and a house, they didn't have to live so hard. "You know my illness?" Penny was surprised, she thought no one knew. "The doctor told us you had cancer before we came. But you don't look like having a cancer to me." Her sister did not believe that Penny had a cancer from Penny's condition, it was just a cold, she presumed. She wondered if Penny was playing tricks. "The doctor had told you, do you think it is false. Do you think is there anyone who likes cancer?" Penny was nervous, for fear that her sister's words made the police suspicious. "I have cancer, or I wouldn't let you live in my house." Penny felt relieved when she had cancer, because of it, she did not need to return to prison, proving that Amy had succeeded. "The police have visited us. If you have cancer, the prison can no longer take care of you. You must be supervised and treated by your family." Her brother spoke. He wanted to make things clear. Her brother continued. "My mother can't accept you. She hates you so much that she can't take you home. And we don't have the money to continue your treatment. So we won't go to your villa, you'd better live by yourself." "As for the medical bills, you just said you have money, so you can pay for it. But you have advanced stomach cancer, you can opt out of treatment." Her brother's words were cruel, but it was true. Now his mother hated Penny, she would rather live in a small house than go to Penny's house. And they can't help with Penny's disease even if they wanted to help. It was terminal cancer and it had no value of treatment. "Why not live in the villa?" Before Penny spoke, her sister raised objections. She had different opinion as her brother. She needed the villa and money. Penny should do it, because Penny made the Burns family turn into such an end. "Are you trying to piss mother off? Do you think mother could live with her?" Her brother asked her sister, which made her sister speechless. But she did not worry, Penny sooner or later would die, and the villa would belong to them. "Penny, I have said everything I should have said. Don't look for us again." Her brother showed his attitude and then turned around, but Penny still has an important question. "Wait, where's Dad now? How's he?" Penny asked quietly, but she had to ask. It was the only day she had a chance to talk about her father because the police were not there. "We don't know. We've been trying to find him, but we haven't heard from him." Speaking of his father, her brother eased down his attitude, because Penny still cared about his father.

CHAPTER 625 LAST SUPPER

Penny looked outside to make sure the police couldn't hear him, then said to her brother. "I'll get you the money, and you get a private investigator to look into it. He is wanted and will not leave B City. He will be found." This was Penny's most urgent thing. She would spend any amount of money. "We'll see." He didn't say yes or no. He wanted to find his father, but he had to decide if it would work. He didn't know why Penny wanted to find his father, but his attitude was clear. He wanted to ask his father if it was true that he had killed a person, and if it was, he wanted to persuade him to give himself up instead of hiding. After her brother and sister had left, Oscar came in. "Well, how is the talk?" Oscar asked. Seeing that Penny had a gloomy face, so he did not hold too much hope. "It's good not to quarrel. We hate each other. There's no kinship." Penny understated about it. She did not want to talk about her family, because she was ashamed about it. "Never mind them, you know my illness?" Her brother and sister left, and she got no news about her father, she could only care about her own business. "I heard it from the doctor. Penny, don't put pressure on yourself. The doctor said you can keep going as long as you're in a good mood. I believe you can have a good attitude to face the disease and overcome the disease." Oscar enlightened Penny, dare not show sentimental side. "You don't need to comfort me. When I was in prison, I realized I wasn't right. I thought it might be bad." "Oscar, I am not afraid of death. I can face illness, but I know I'm going to have a hard time." Penny was not sad, she was just acting to have a low mood. In the face of Oscar's concern, she was feeling guilty. She was not ill, but in Oscar's eyes she was dying. Oscar must have been so worried and sad. "What's the matter?" Oscar asked. "After I was diagnosed with cancer, the prison entrusted me to my family. But my family doesn't accept me, and..." "I accept you. I can take care of you in the hospital. You just need to cooperate with the doctor for treatment and don't worry about anything else." Oscar offered help before Penny could finish her words. He did not care that Penny was still a prisoner, nor did he want to interfere with her in anything. He just wanted her to be happy in her last stage of life. "Oscar, thank you so much. You're the only one who can help me at this point." Penny moved. The so-called "friend in need" was Oscar's selfless help. "Don't be polite with me. We have known each other for so many years, I should take care of you as a friend." Oscar said with righteousness. If he did not help Penny, no one would offer help. "But I don't want treatment. I want to go home. Will you take care of me if I get home?" Her brother enlightened her, if she stayed in the hospital, she could not do what she wanted to do. "Why give up treatment?" Although Oscar already knew that treatment was meaningless, he still held a glimmer of hope for a miracle. "There is no point, it is terminal cancer. I don't want to spend my last days in the hospital. I want to live my last days quietly." It was reasonable. If there was no miracle, she would die in grief, it was better to finish the last journey of her life at peace. Oscar pondered for a moment. "Well, I respect that. I'll go to the police to go through the formalities and then I'll take you home." It had been settled, Penny would be taken care of by Oscar. Emily read Leo's message when she got home until the evening. "I have been your man since last night, and you are so heartless to leave your man like this. I'm still a patient. You'd better come to take care of me at night. Thank you very much!" "How can you be so cruel? I'm still sick but you don't even reply to me." "I've got another fever now. Do you really leave me alone?" "Why ignored me all day? Do you mind what happened last night, or you don't care about my life?" It was the last voice message. After hearing that, Emily felt depressed and then sighed. Emily was worried about his illness. Did he really have a high fever? She got a new message from him. Emily clicked it. "Do you really ignore me? But I can't ignore you, I took the initiative last night, I will be responsible for you. Tell you what, I'll go straight to meet your parents and tell them about last night..." Emily directly called Leo when she heard that. "Are you crazy? Why sent many messages? You still want to come to meet my Mom and Dad. Is that something worth showing off?" Over the phone, Emily angrily rebuked. But it was pleasant to hear for Leo. "I'm not crazy. I'm just sick and seeking comfort. I just feel responsible for what happened last night. I have to talk to your presents about marrying you." Leo had no way and could only use this way to force Emily. "You can't tell my parents. It is our business, and I can take care of it." Emily was angry and worried, for fear that Leo would tell her parents about it. If her parents knew it, they would force her to marry Leo. Leo suddenly fell into silence. He felt that this method really frightened Emily, so he had a way to blackmail her. Although this method was very likely to annoy Emily, but if she was pregnant, it would be easy to deal with. Seeing that Leo was silent, Emily was worried and asked with concern. "Are you ok?" "Well, no. The doctor is coming to give me infusion. I haven't found anyone to take care of me yet." A moment ago, he was thinking a way to make Emily to accept him, but not he pretended to be pathetic. Leo's means changed as Emily's mood changed. He would do anything to succeed in chasing his wife. "Where are your parents? You can ask them to take care of you, or you can go back to them for infusion." Emily became more worried, but instead of volunteering, she helped think of a way. "They went to Europe on vacation, and wherever I went, I was alone." "Do me a favor. I want you to take care of me." Leo begged, sounding sick. Emily couldn't bear it and could only agree. "All right, I happened to give you back your car." Emily went to Leo's. Winnie had been busy after she picked up her kids. After cooking, she sat with her family at the table. It would be the last time the four of them ate together. When Brian came at 7:30 in the evening, Winnie had got the meal ready waiting for him. Hearing the doorbell rang, Winnie hurried to open the door. Brian came in and she whispered to remind him. "Talk about it after dinner. Let's have a nice meal with the kids." Winnie bent over to find slippers for Brian, but at this time, Brian said in a cold voice. "I've eaten." It was normal words, but Winnie felt it ruthless for the occasion today. She whispered and he should know better than anyone about her intention. However, he did not want to have dinner with her or give the kids one last fond memory. Winnie threw the slippers at Brian's feet, did not look up at him, but gave a firm voice. "For the sake of the kids, eat again. This is the last dinner we eat together, you have to put with it even if you hate me. And, don't keep a straight face in front of the kids." Winnie turned to the two kids after that. "Here comes you Dad, and we can eat." Her mood instantly changed to be joyful and happy. It must be hard to do that At the table. "Dad, we've been waiting for you for a long time. My stomach is growling." Megan complaint about her father while eating. If her father came back earlier, her stomach would not growl. "It is my fault, I will come back early next time. Eat more now and stop your stomach from growling." Brian changed his attitude after being warned. He was not angry with the kids anyway. "Yes, I'll eat more. Mom and dad, eat more too." "Here, brother, it's your favorite." Megan cared about everyone. Such a harmonious and loving picture made Winnie felt sour. But there was nothing she could do. She had been trying her effort, but Brian tried every means to abandon her, she was unable to do anything about it. Brian was also unhappy. He promised his two kids that they would stay together for a lifetime, but before long, he was about to break his words. How should he face the two kids from now on? "Mom, you haven't been back to Grandpas for a long time. Grandpa says he misses you and Aunt Vanessa." Luke spoke to his mother when he was eating the dishes from his sister. "I am so busy these days. I will go to see your grandpa when I am free." "Eat, eat more." Even if the lie would be exposed soon, Winnie still wanted to give the kids a warm dinner. "Well, Mom, Dad, eat more, too." Luke did not continue to ask though he was confused.

CHAPTER 626 THE KIDS KNEW THE TRUTH

Brian was sad hearing Luke's question. Winnie had been integrated into his family. It was not only he did not adapt to her departure, but also his father and sister were worried about it. And his two kids were sensible, he did not want to hurt them. His separation from Winnie was cruel to them and would give them a lifetime of pain. However now he had no a choice. The meal was warm and happy for the two kids, but Winnie and Brian were suffering in their hearts. When the meal was finished, the two kids and Brian went to the living room. According to her habit, Winnie would wash the dishes. But today she left the dishes on the table. Because she saw that Brian had been watching his watch, he had have something urgent to deal with, so she went to the living room. After talking about it with the kids, Brian could leave. "Turn off the TV. Mom and dad have something to say to you." Winnie came to the living room and went to the point. Megan had just turned on the TV. Although she was reluctant, she still turned it off. "Mom, hurry up, brother and I have to watch cartoons." Megan sat on the sofa, hoping her mother would not waste too much time. "Ok, I will hurry up. Luke, sit down, too." Winnie said and then sat down next to Megan. "You have grown up, and I think you should know it and can handle it, so we decided to tell you about it." Winnie stopped at this point. She first observed the reaction of Brian, and then adjusted her mood. She had to be prepared too if case the kids could not stand it. "Dad and I decided..." "Winwin." Brian stopped Winnie at the most critical moment, but he did not know what to say. Winnie looked at Brian, but he did not make any reaction, so she continued. "Mom and Dad decided to break up." Winnie felt it cruel, let alone the kids. The kids stared at Winnie with confusion. Winnie did not explain, because the two kids need time to accept it. The two kids saw nothing from Winnie, so they looked at Brian. But at this time, Brian had lowered his head and could not face the child's innocent and hurtful eyes. "Why?" Luke asked. "Because I..." "Winwin, let me tell them why." Brian again interrupted Winnie. He did not want Winnie to say the real reason, did not want the kids hate Winnie. "Mom and I don't have feelings for each other anymore, so we have to break up." Brian gave a reason that he came up with on the fly, but it didn't convince anyone. "Why so sudden? Dad, you promised to keep us together for life, why don't you keep your words?" Luke's eyes grew red, but he fought back the tears. Dad and mom were so serious, and in the association that his mother did not go home recently, Luke believed that it was a fact that they had broken up. "I....." "Forget it. It's my fault. I will take the blame. I can't let the kids hold their resentment on you." "It's my fault, I fall in love with another man..."

"Winwin..." "You Dad caught me when I was with another man." Brian stopped her, but Winnie still put it out. She should face her mistake and take the responsibility. Although she was wronged in her heart, at least the kids would not resent Brian, let alone oppose his marriage. "I don't believe it. Mom loves Dad more than she loves her own life, how could she love anyone else? Mom, you're lying. It is just an excuse for your breakup." Megan broke down. She hugged Winnie crying loudly. Her Mom's excuse was too bad for her to believe. "Megan, it is really my fault, there is video evidence, I cannot shirk my responsibility. I have been unfaithful to you Dad and I don't like him anymore, I can't..." "No, you're lying. You would never cheat on dad. You've been single all these years, and you've had a lot of men chasing you. The person you like best is dad. You wouldn't betray daddy." Megan interrupted Winnie loudly. She would not believe that it was her Mom's fault and that her mother would fall in love with other man. "Dad, there must be some misunderstanding. You told us that it may not be true even if you see it. You must have misunderstood Mom. You should know her better than anyone. She couldn't have done something like that." Luke finally opened his mouth to speak for his mother, because he did not believe that his mother would do anything unfaithful. "Luke, don't say that, please leave me some dignity. None of this is about dad. It's about me. Even the breakup was my idea." "I am ashamed to stay with your Dad, to face your aunt and grandpa, so don't intercede for me." Winnie took all the responsibility and stopped Luke from speaking again. She was afraid that Brian re-examine it because of the kids and that he would know the truth. Now that the kids knew it, she had to make it happen, she had to put all the past behind her. Luke was distressed, looking at his mother. He had a lot of questions, but he stopped for his mother's words. There was a sudden silence in the living room, only the sound of Megan sobbing could be heard. And Luke believed that his mother would not betray his father. He thought his mother had a reason not to tell the truth, so he would not shed a tear. Being silent for a while, Megan stopped sobbing. Luke spoke again. "How do you arrange me and Megan?" "You and Megan live with your Mom, and when she is busy, you go to grandpa's." Brian answered. At the moment he felt sorry for all the people here. Winnie took all responsibility, even if he and Gloria married, the kids could not hate him or stop him from marrying. "What about you? Do you still live with grandpa?" Luke asked a question. "I... I'll go to go Great Grandpa's..." "Great Grandpa will arrange a blind date for you and then you will get married, right?" Luke thought of their reasons for breaking up. It must be Great Grandpa forced his Dad to get married, so his mother came up with such an idea to cheat them. Brian was speechless and ashamed. That was true and it would hurt the kids. Seeing that Brian was embarrassed, Winnie hurriedly opened her mouth. "Luke, I know what you are thinking. You must think I made it up for Dad's marriage, right?" Winnie understood the kids well, she was a qualified mother. "But it's not what you think. It's true about what I said. It has nothing to do with your Dad. Mom and Dad split up. You can't make dad single forever. Luke, if you want to blame someone, blame me then, I am sorry." Winnie once again put the responsibility on herself for the sake of Brian. No matter for what reason Brian broke up with her, she could not let the kids have any complaints to him. Winnie didn't want to see Luke and Megan become another Brian who had a bad relationship with his father. "Ok, I understand you. Megan and I have no objection and would not force you to be together by crying." "Dad's getting married, and you get married too, Mom. You also have the right to find your own happiness, and you can get married and have a happy family. As long as you get married, Megan and I will go to Grandpa's, and we won't disturb any of you." Luke said seriously and went back to his room on the second floor, Megan followed him, crying. "It looks all right. They're old enough to handle it. I'll talk to them again, and you go home." Winnie got up and went to the second floor, leaving Brian in the living room. Alone, he felt like he got nothing as before. At that time he did not like Luke, did not know

Winnie, and did not know that he had a daughter, so he was lonely. Now he got everything, knew everything, but he felt more lonely, because he had lost all his love. Emily drove to Leo's home, and found Leo was working in his computer. He looked fine,, but when she walked in, she found his face was still pale. "You are here, have you had supper?" Leo found Emily, but the work was critical, so he could not be distracted. "No, have you?" Emily asked Leo. "Neither have I. We'll eat together later. My work will be finished soon. I will cook for you later." Leo could cook even when he was sick. However, Emily was here to take care of him, she could not let him cook for her. She had no response but went directly to the kitchen. Leo's work had been finished later than expected. After finishing work, he found that Emily had got the dinner ready. "You made it?" Leo looked at the dinner table in surprise. It was just two vegetables and two bowls of rice, but he couldn't be happier. "I'm afraid of starving if I wait for you." Emily did not expect Leo to work for such a long time. She was distressed, but she could not show it, so she could only vent dissatisfaction on other things. "I've got too much work and I didn't expect it to take this long. I'll make dinner for you tomorrow." Leo was witty to ask Emily to come tomorrow. "Eat, didn't you say you will have infusion today. Eat before the infusion." Emily disdained Leo. She would not have come if she was not forced to.

CHAPTER 627 FEAR OF LONELINESS

Looking at Emily's cooking, although there were only two vegetable dishes, Leo must taste it. "Eat, eat. I'll eat more of your cooking." Leo sincerely said and then he began to eat. It didn't taste as good as his, but it tasted delicious. Maybe there was love in it. Dinner had hardly been finished when the private doctor arrived. Emily and Leo were in a hurry to finish the food. Upstairs, the doctor inquired and determined to continue infusion. "You have no wine today, right?" The doctor asked looking at Emily. He still believed she knew more about his illness than Leo did. "No." Emily had dinner with Leo so she knew that. "Good, have some medicine." Said the doctor, and began to prepare. Emily put forward her own questions. "Yesterday he had a high fever and was given medicine to reduce it. Today he does not have a fever, can he stop having the antipyretic medicine?" Emily was afraid that many medicine would produce adverse effects on Leo. The doctor looked up at Emily, then smiled at Leo. "Mr. Johnson, your girlfriend is really careful with you. She notices it." "Of course, she is my girlfriend." Leo smiled from ear to ear. He dare not say Emily was his girlfriend for a long time, but now it sounded both pleasant. Emily said nothing, because she was embarrassed. She just ruthlessly stared at Leo. The doctor stopped smiling and then answered Emily's question. "Don't worry. There is no fever-reducing infusion today. But he should take oral antipyretics. He'll be cold or hot in a minute. You must monitor his temperature. If it exceeds 38 degrees, you must give him antipyretic medicine." "You mean he will have a fever?" Emily was nervous again, she was afraid that it would happen again. "Yes. He's already cold, but he's not saying it." "Fever... It's like good versus evil. It is a struggle in which good must be wounded in order to win, and evil does not shrink from a single struggle. It must be completely destroyed in order to win, in order to reduce the fever." The doctor metaphorically explained, to let Emily understand some medical common sense. "You mean he will have a fever tomorrow as well as today?" Emily's nerves were tight. She hoped that he could get well as soon as possible. "It is a possibility but not a certainty. Don't worry. With you taking such good care of him, I'm sure he will get well soon." The doctor comforted Emily again with a relaxed look. Maybe he saw too many patients, so it is not a big deal for him. It was also possible that he received a phone call from Leo before coming. The doctor left after the infusion, but Emily became more nervous, always observing whether Leo had a fever. "You're worried about me, aren't you? Looking at Emily's nervous appearance, Leo was happy. This disease was worth it, otherwise Emily would not be so good to him. "I... Why should I worry about you? I just want you to get better because I don't want to stay here." Emily did not admit that. She only knew it she was worried about him in her heart. "I seem to have troubled you. I can take care of myself. You go home." Leo joked, but the genial smile on the face disappeared, and his voice became serious. Emily did not think it was a joke. "You..... Ok, I'll go." Emily got up, but was pulled back by Leo and she fell on Leo's body. "I'm joking. Do you think I'd let you go?" Leo's voice was soft, he could not be angry to Emily. "You..." Emily struggled to her feet, but her hand was still in Leo's. "You joke again, I will leave you." Emily gave a serious warning, with an angry face, but Leo was pleased. "Let go of your hands." Emily commanded. "No, you will leave me if I let go." Leo did not want to let go because this feeling was very good. "I'm not leaving you. Let go." Emily had not idea to leave. If he hadn't been sick and needed care, she would have gone. But not now. She would be worried. "Ok..." Not only did he not let go, but also pulled Emily to his body. It was even closer than the last time... It should be said that there was no distance. Because when their lips touched, Emily had no chance to escape Leo's embrace. No matter how Emily resisted, it did not work. Leo controlled Emily with one hand, and threatened Emily that if she moved, she would touch his hand got infusion. So, Emily could not move... Winnie went to the second floor to comfort her kids, but one was silent, the other one was crying. Her comfort did not work, so Winnie could only leave the space to them and planed to talk to them when they have a better mood. After Winnie went out, there were only two kids left in the room. Megan went to Luke but before she spoke, Luke wiped her tears. "Don't cry, Megan. Even if mom and dad don't want us, you still have me, I will take care of you forever." A promise like a fire in the ice cave warmed the heart of Megan. "You are good to me, brother." Said Megan, cried more sadly. "Megan, control yourself. We'll talk about something to mom and Dad." He understood that her sister was sad, but crying did not fix the problem, they had to face the reality. "Talk about what? If they break up, we have no home." Megan wanted to calm down, but she held grievance at the thought that she was homeless. "You have home, because you have me. Don't cry, I will be behind you back." Luke patted Megan's head, appeasing her. From now on, they were the family who would stay with each other for the rest of their lives. "Megan, we don't interfere with the breakup between mom and dad. I think mom has her reason, and dad isn't that willing to break up. Both of them looked pretty embarrassed. So let's not make things worse for them." Luke was sensible and he understood his parents. It just happened so suddenly. After all, he was a child and needed a process of acceptance. "But brother, I want mom and dad." Megan sobered, she might never accept the fact that her parents separated. "Me too, but you see how mother has been wronged these days. Great Grandpa is so domineering that it is no use for the whole family to persuade him. He looked down on mom, no matter how good she is, she is unqualified in his eyes. Do you want to see mom to be wronged and despised all her life?" Luke was a child, of course, he wanted a happy family. But he felt he could not be selfish, could not let his mother wronged for them all her life. "Megan, the separation of mom and dad is good for mom. We don't lose mom and dad. They'll love us just as much as they did before. Let's leave it to them." Luke was sad and helpless to make such a decision. He knows that mom and dad had told them the face, even if they cried, it could not change the fact. Winnie went downstairs but saw Brian was still there, so she came to the living room. "Why are you still here? Don't you have something urgent to deal with?" "In case they cry and you can't handle it alone." Brian answered coldly. He did not want to go, for fear that the kids would cry, for fear that he would feel lonely. "Don't worry about that. I'll take care of

it. It's going to happen a lot, and you can't always be here for them." "It's getting late. Go home early." Winnie walked to the kitchen. She had not finished housework, she had no time to be sad, more no time to chat with a stranger. "Why take all the blame on yourself?" Facing Winnie's back, Brian could not help but ask. "It's my blame. I must take my responsibility, and you, an innocent man, must not be implicated." "Don't talk about it. It's all over. Now that everyone knows we have broken up, we're done. I'll leave you alone, and I'm sure you won't be in my life. Go." Winnie's attitude was clear, she was willing to do anything, and she would bear all sadness. Their relationship was clear in everyone's mind expect her aunt. She was not going to tell her aunt, or her aunt would be worried. Winnie went to the kitchen, no matter whether Brian left or not, he was transparent in her eyes. The next day was the weekend, Vanessa came back early. As soon as she got home, she saw two kids in a very low mood. The worst thing was that Megan came to hold her and cried. "Why are you crying? Who bullied you? Don't cry and tell me what happened." Vanessa asked with worry. "Mom and Dad broke up..." Megan was sad about that. Although her brother had made it clear, and she understood that, but she was still sad.

CHAPTER 628 GREAT GRANDPA'S IS NOT MY HOME

Vanessa knew the reason for crying Megan and was stunned for a moment, but she did not know how to comfort. She picked up Megan, came to the kitchen and asked her sister who was preparing breakfast. "You told them?" "Yes, last night." "Megan, don't cry, I made your favorite breakfast." Winnie comforted, but her mood was also very bad. The kids had been silent since they got up this morning. Sitting in the living room, they did not watch TV or play with toys. Winnie was not worried about Megan, because she would find ways to vent. But Luke had a disease before, she was worried about him. Hearing that, Megan cried out. Vanessa could only take Megan away. "Don't cry. You won't have fewer love even if they're apart. They will love you even more. They have their lives, you have yours. No one can change anyone, so it's wise to accept the fact." Vanessa persuaded the two kids. She knew that it was unfair to the kids and difficult to understand, but she had to say that. She couldn't let her sister be sadder because of her two kids. "But we have no home." Megan heard what the adults said and understood what was going on. But she still couldn't handle the shock. There was no dad, no family. Now she had but soon she had to lose it. Who could understand her at this moment of loss and unease? "You have a home. This is home, grandpa's is home, Great Grandpa's is home. Do you like..." "Great Grandpa's is not home, and I'll never go there." Luke spoke finally, which was shocking. "Luke, why?" Vanessa asked, puzzled. "He's not nice to mom, he discriminates against mom. If he hadn't objected to mom and Dad being together, Mom and Dad wouldn't have split up. I don't want to go to the old house. I don't want to be controlled by him all my life like my father. I can't even have the people I love the most." "I don't want his company. I don't want a penny from him. I need to earn my own money and take care of my sister with my ability." Luke was emotional. He did not cry but his dark eyes were full of resentment. Whether mom was the reason for the breakup or not, he thought grandpa was the reason. If he hadn't been against it, Mom and Dad would have been officially married and none of this would have happened. "I'm not going there, either, and I don't like Great grandpa's attitude toward Mom." "Dad told me yesterday that he's going to live with Great grandpa when he gets married. If I have a stepmother, I won't go there." Megan said, not she only listened to her brother. "Being clever at such a young age is not good, you have your thought now." Vanessa joked, and she was not so angry because of the attitude of the two kids. In fact, she also did not like the old house, not only people there were sophisticated, even the houses and plants were influenced by the master's condescending manner, giving a sense of oppression. She thought the kids could not have such idea, after all, they were the kids of the Bennet family. "You can't have that thought. Great Grandpa is bad for mom, but it has nothing to do with you. Do you think Great grandpa is good to you?" Vanessa asked, wanting to let the kids realize that what they just said was extreme. "Yes." "Yes." Brother and sister answered at the same time. "If Great grandpa is good to you, you should be good to him. You should not deny his kindness to be just because your mother." "What's more, it's impossible for Great grandpa to be bad to your mother in the future. She is free and doesn't have to face him anymore." For the kids' mental health, Vanessa enlightened them to a positive way. The kids were silent and did not continue their argument. The agreed with Vanessa, but they still thought great grandpa was involved. The dialogue was heard by Winnie. She felt heartbroken. The child was in silent protest. But she really could not maintain any relationship with Brian. She was sorry that she could not continue to endure. She wanted to bear it alone till two kids grew up. However, this process was much more difficult than she imagined, without the cooperation and support of Brian. Klara learned that Winnie had not plan to go abroad and had been suspecting that Wendy cheated her. On Weekend, she asked Wendy out. In a cold drink shop by the sea. "It's nice to be here. I didn't find such a good place before." Wendy sat on a chair and looked at the sea not far away. She hadn't been so relaxed for a long time, and she seemed to have been busy in the Winnie problem. "You are in such a good mood, there is something I don't want to talk about, or you will not be happy." Klara was calm, as before. "Well, Go ahead." Wendy's good mood had gone as the sea breeze as Klara said that. "I go back to work at the Bennet Group's headquarters." Klara said. "That's a good news. You should have told me earlier." But in her heart she did not think so, because Klara would be close to Brian. The news was not good for her, on the contrary, she began to be nervous. "After I went to work, I heard that Mr. Bennet wanted to get married with Gloria, and it is absolutely true, not for the sake of cooperation to create gossip." Klara told Wendy about the shocking news. However, she did not have the final confirmation of this matter because she did not know it was cooperation hype or fact. If it was truth, she was cheated by Wendy again. "You said Gloria and Brian are going to get married?" Wendy asked in bewilderment. "Yes, I heard that." Klara answered. Wendy froze there, not knowing what to do. She thought it might be Gloria, but she couldn't accept the news. After all the hard work, she spent out all her savings, and on top of that, contacted some people she couldn't get rid of, and got herself covered in injuries. In the end, it was Gloria who reaped the rewards. What was the meaning of all that she had done? "It can't be true, why doesn't he marry with Winnie?" Wendy did not want to believe that all this was true, but she knew that Gloria and Brian were not in a partnership. She just made it up. What should she do? Should she just throw in the towel and give up the one she loved the most? "Klara, help me think of a way. I've worked so hard for so long that I can't give it to Gloria. Even if Gloria wants to be with Brian, she should fight for it herself, not with my help. What would Brian and Winnie think of me?" Helpless, Wendy could only appeal to Klara. "I don't know what to do at the moment. Before I went back to work at the Bennet Group, Mr. Bennet repeatedly told me not to intervene with anything, but only work hard or I will lose my job." "Wendy, I want to help, but I can't." What Klara said was true. It was not that she did not want to help, but that the conditions were not allowed. Now her position was awkward. If Brian and Gloria married, she still had no chance. "Actually, Wendy, what I wish most is that Mr. Bennet will marry you. But now..." "Wait, Wendy, there is still opportunity. I heard Penny is out. Maybe she can help you." Klara suddenly thought of Penny, perhaps Penny was Wendy's last hope, but also her hope. Wendy was to be angry when she heard that Klara could not help, but Klara gave a method. She vowed not to mess with Penny again. Her existence had no difference to Jonny. But she was curious "Penny was sentenced to six years in prison. How can she be released after only one year? Are you sure it's true?" "Of course it's true. Anyone in the Bennet Group knows her. The news was heard by a former colleague of mine. She overheard Winnie and others on the phone when she mentioned this matter, so she told me." "Winnie is a party to the case, before Penny is out, the police will contact her." Klara said the matter in general, at that time she did not care about it, but now she felt Penny might be a good helper. "It seems true. Help me find out where she is." There was no plan for the time being, but Wendy might use Penny in case of necessity. "Don't worry, I'll find out for you." "Wendy, why Winnie hasn't gone abroad yet?" Klara changed the subject. She had to know where her money was. "Oh, that may be a delay. I'm too busy with work these days to ask about it." Wendy obviously was in perfunctory, the dodge in her eyes exposed her uncertainty. "But I heard from my colleagues that she will not take a trip abroad in the last six months." Hearing that, Wendy ducked but she could not lose so much money for no reason. But she calmed herself down in time. "Have I been misinformed? Have I been deceived?" This move was good, she asked Klara in turn. "I don't know, but if you were cheated, how about our money?" Klara didn't care who lied to whom, who was telling the truth and who was lying. She only cared about her own money.

CHAPTER 629 I MISSES YOU

Money again. She did not feel at ease using other people's money, but Wendy had no intention of returning it. "Alas..... The matter needs to be rearranged. I've already given some of the money to those people, and I'll never get it back if I get cheated." "But don't worry, I will pay you back." Wendy took a look at her watch deliberately, then quickly got up. "I must go home at this hour. An important client is coming to my house today, and my father asked me to learn from the client. That's all for today. I'll ask you out when I can." After that, Wendy walked away directly. She did not want to return all the money to Klara. Now she did not want to fall out with Klara, so she could only hide from her. As for the next meeting, it was up to her to figure out how to deal with it. "Wendy...Wendy..." Klara called Wendy loudly, but Wendy left faster and faster. "Why leave when speaking of money? I really don't know whether your family is rich or not, how dare not return with my money?" Klara was angry, but Wendy still had the money, so she could not show it, or she would lose everything. Vanessa and Winnie took two kids to go to the park, playground and the library to make them happy. It'd been a busy day anyway. After playing for a day, the kids' mood improved, and the whole family were tired. So they ate out instead of cooking at home. At dinner, Winnie received a call from the superior leadership. So as not to reveal who she was, she walked away to answer the phone. "There's a recognition meeting next Friday, and you need to be there. Be prepared to speak on stage." The leader was very proud that his soldier had achieved such a great achievement at her first time to participate in the case. He was the most happy and proud person. "Leader, can I not attend. I have not made any significant contributions worthy of this recognition meeting." Winnie refused politely, she was not in the mood to attend any meeting or banquet. She just wanted to use this time to completely calm down and get out of the influence of Brian. "It's very modest of you to say so. Your contribution is obvious. Without you, a cyber crime ring of that size would not have been destroyed so quickly." The leader recognized Winnie's ability, but he did not recognize Winnie's view. Modesty was a good thing, but as a leader, he should not be good to his soldiers. "My leader, even if I am not modest, I don't want to expose my identity to so many people. Once exposed, I couldn't hide it. It would have a big impact on my work and life." "Otherwise, give me a period of time, after I finish the software development, you praise me when I get leadership recognition." Winnie pushed back the time as far as possible, she did not want to expose her identity so soon. The leader was silent for a while, but the excuse of privacy convinced him. "Well, I respect that for your privacy. But I'm looking forward to your software." "Rest assured, Leader, I won't let you down." As she hung up the phone, Winnie turned to go back, but the phone rang again. It was Rufus. To be honest, this man made her feel guilty. "Rufus." Winnie picked up the phone. "Winwin, did I disturb you?" Rufus as always gentle and nice, which warmed Winnie's heart. "No, I am outside with kids and Vanessa." Winnie had walked back to her seat as he spoke. "Good. I have something to discuss with you, and I wonder if you will agree." "Ok, go ahead." Winnie would try to do it, so as to reduce some of her guilty. "Tomorrow, Brian will be on a business trip. Would you please come back with your kids and Vanessa for dinner? I miss you." Rufus was not sure whether Winnie would agree because she had just broken up with Brian. However hearing that, Winnie was moved. He invited them when Brian was not absent and he must miss them so he called. "We will be there. I'll cook for you." Winnie had no reason to refuse. After hanging up the phone, Winnie looked at Vanessa sadly. Now the biggest problem was not her but Vanessa. "Rufus wants us to go to his place tomorrow. Are you free?" Winnie asked Vanessa's opinion, but she had decided to let her push off even if Vanessa had something to do. Because Rufus wanted to see Vanessa. Now she and Brian had no relationship, and she would not be despised by Felix and Thomas. So they only took Rufus as family and would not have complaints on him. "What did Rufus say?" Vanessa asked, but in her heart, she resisted. "He said he miss us." Winnie did not mention something unimportant. Vanessa was touched. It would be inhuman or cold-blooded if she didn't go under the circumstances. "You have agreed, I have to put off even if I have things to do." Vanessa gave her opinion, Winnie was happy to hear that. Her sister really had grown up. She was no longer the sobbing little girl who followed her, no longer the patient who ran away from the death of her parents and dared not face the truth, she was a sensible and understanding adult. After breakfast the next morning, Winnie drove her two kids and Vanessa to the suburbs. Winnie and Vanessa persuaded the two kids on the way. They asked the kids not to mention the breakup, or everyone was not happy. It worked. Both kids promised never to mention it. Before the car stopped, Rufus came out to meet, followed by Stella and Joshua. "Hello Rufus, Stella, Joshua." Winnie said hello when she got off the car. Since she broke up with Brian, she had no burden, and communication was more relaxed. "I'm glad you've come. Vanessa is here too." "Hello, Rufus, Stella, Joshua." Vanessa smiled and said hello. She had not come here for a long time, unexpectedly she felt like at home. "Don't be so polite. We're all family." Stella smiled from ear to ear, but she felt bitter too. If Brian was at home, if Winnie and Brian did not break up, it would be a day of reunion and harmony. After that, everyone brought Winnie's things together into the kitchen. They sat in the living room to chat. Rufus looked at Winnie for a moment and at Vanessa for a moment, wearing a smile. "Is Vanessa tired of learning this time?" Rufus asked. He should take care of the two sisters, but he did not do a good job. It was them took care of themselves "Yeah, but I can handle it." Vanessa answered composedly, she never complain about study. "Don't get too tired. You have a lifetime to learn. There's no rush." In Rufus's opinion, study was a good thing, but not as important as health. "She spends all her time studying. Now she studied hard to skip grade." Winnie was proud speaking of Vanessa. Vanessa studied harder than she did. "Skip grade? How?" Joshua looked at Vanessa in admiration. Skipping a grade was usually done in primary school and middle school, but it was rare for anyone to skip a grade in college, at least not in his life. "Well, after freshman year, she wants to jump straight to junior year." Winnie continued to explain, and Vanessa listened to her sister's explanation with a smile. "Vanessa, I thought I was good when I was in school, but compared with you, I am nothing." Joshua was excited that such a legendary figure was by his side. There was such a talent in the Chambers family. "You exaggerate. It is not difficult to skip a grade, you just did not try." Vanessa said in a modest way. She thought as long as she tried, she could make it. "Vanessa, will you be too tired?" Rufus was proud but she was worried about Vanessa's health. "No, I'll rest when I'm tired." Vanessa answered readily, Winnie added. "When my parents had an accident, Vanessa was sick at home, and she was absent from school for more than two years. In order to catch up, she studied hard and skipped grades. I also advised her to take it easy and take care of her health. But she said that she was not tired or she would have regret." Winnie did not mention her parents deliberately, but Rufus felt guilty about it. He stopped smiling and did not continue, because it was because of him. While others died because of his mistake, he lived. This situation would be filled with guilt. "I support you to skip grades and study hard. But everything is on the premise of health, you must pay attention to your health and don't get too tired." "It's a pity to lose two years like this, but we can get them back bit by bit in the rest of our lives, not just in this moment." Stella persuaded. She thought Vanessa studied desperately was to find back the lost time. She must want to finish school as soon as possible, so that she could work earlier and then help Winnie to share the burden.

CHAPTER 630 DON'T WANT TO TALK ABOUT IT

Vanessa understood the importance of health than anyone else. She had been ill for two years. She was telling herself to do what she could, and she did what she could. "Don't worry, Sister, I know what to do." Vanessa believed that she could have comprehensive development. It was time for cook. Winnie wanted to cook personally, but Rufus opposed. Eventually the family moved to the courtyard to chat. When they reached the yard, they dispersed. Rufus and Vanessa played soccer with two kids. Stella and Joshua and Winnie sat in the pavilion to chat. In fact, Winnie was resistant to such chat, afraid Stella mentioned the things of Brian. But she has to face it. "Winwin, I want to ask you about your relationship with Brian." She seemed to be asking Winnie's opinion, but she did not give Winnie the opportunity to answer before she continued, for fear that Winnie would refuse the topic. "Brian told me yesterday that you and he had told the kids of your separation. I didn't know about it in advance, or I would have stopped you." "I don't want you to be apart. I want you to stay together." Winnie opened her mouth at this point. "Stella, don't worry about our affairs. We thought about it when we decided to talk to our kids, we tried, but we just couldn't get there. I did something wrong and I feel sorry for him. It was a relief for both of us." Winnie put it out with no sense of guilt, which made Stella puzzled. In Stella's view, Winnie was not that kind of people. And she behaved as if there were no fault, no guilt. "But I think it's too sudden. It's not real. I think you'll be together forever." "The world has to come to an end, what's more, he and I are too different. I don't fit to his standard to choose a wife, how can we be together for a lifetime?" "Come on, it's not a bad thing to be apart. We both felt sorry for the kids, but there was nothing we could do." Winnie didn't want to be with Brian, no matter who persuaded her, she would not change her idea. She'd had a bad time this time and she might lose faith in life. She might complain about the injustice of the fate and complain about the world, might feel she did not have the confidence to move forward. "Is there some misunderstanding between you? I still don't believe you would cheat on him. You never allow yourself to be careless, let alone your relationship." "If you have troubles, you can tell me and Joshua. We will do justice for you." Joshua could always see the crux of the problem and always find the most incisive side of things, worthy of the talent, worthy of the man Stella loved.

"Joshua, All you see of me is my surface, and I'm not as good as you say I am. Especially in love, you never know when you will meet someone. "I'm the epitome of someone who fell in love at the wrong time and didn't get it right. It must be my fault. I have nothing to hide. Joshua, Stella, thank you for your trust in me, I am sorry to let you down." Winnie was still calm and had no guilt at all. She wasn't doing it on purpose, it was just instinct, and she couldn't pretend to be guilty. Winnie was most afraid that someone would find out the truth, so she did not want to continue this topic. "Stella, I go to see kitchen to see if the food is ready. You talk with Joshua first." Winnie casually found an excuse to leave. Although it was Brian's family, but she did not want to mention him. "I don't feel right. How could someone who did something wrong have such an open attitude?" Stella put forward her doubt. "I also think there must be other reasons. But Winwin was right in one thing. Sooner or later, she and Brian will be separated. Grandfather is the biggest obstacle and cannot be overcome." In this case, Joshua thought early separation was good for Winnie. "How long can Grandpa live? When he dies, no one will interfere in their affairs. In a few years everything would be peaceful." Stella felt pity. If Brian lost Winnie, he would become the previous walking dead. Only Winnie could change Brian, only Winnie could make Brian smile, only Winnie not could be with Brian for no fame and wealth. "Grandpa is so healthy that he could live for ten or eight years. Don't you want Winwin to wait like this forever? Who knows what will happen during these ten years, if Brian falls in love with another woman and finally abandons Winwin, what should Winwin do?" "And above all, will grandpa allow Brian not to marry for ten years? No way." It made reason, he felt that Stella was now inclined to Brian, and did not fully stand in the angle of Winnie to consider. The Bennet family was not a family which could be controlled by anyone and not family for people to live in peace. Anyone who wanted to marry Brian must be prepared to withstand the difficulties. It must be exhausting to live such a life. Stella did not speak again. No one was sure how long her grandpa could live. However, as long as he was alive, he would force Brian to get married even at the last minute. Brian did not come back from a business trip, Winnie was relaxed. At noon Winnie and Daenerys came to the hospital to see Penny. "Here we go again. You are happy to know I have cancer, so you came to see the fun." Penny said. She was angry to see Daenerys and Winnie, because recently she always thought of things before. "Don't think too much, we are just here to see you. If it had not been for our former relationship, do you think we would come to see you?" It was true that Penny was a patient, and it was true that she looked pitiful. But patients could not be so nasty. Daenerys came to see her kindly and she couldn't stand that attitude. "I am dying, I have long forgotten the past and can only remember the present." Penny was the most reluctant to mention the past, or she would be softhearted and she would not be able to complete her plan. "Ok, how are you feeling these two days? Have you cooperated with the doctor for the cure?" Winnie gently asked, although Penny was not friendly, she accepted it. "Terminal cancer has no cure value. I told the doctor I refuse treatment, I would rather die." Penny said calmly, which did not like a person who had terminal cancer. "Refuse treatment?" Winnie was ready for this situation, but she still felt pity that Penny refused to get treatment. "Why not try?" Winnie tried to persuade, but Penny rebuked her angrily. "You don't have a good heart, I am in the terminal stage, and I may die on the operating table. Do you want me to die soon?" Penny refused to cooperate with any doctor's treatment. How did she cooperate when she was good? If she did, she was gonna die. "What you think is not absolute, there is still a chance." Winnie was not offended by Penny's words, but still spoke softly. "Chance? Can you tell me what the chances are?"

I'll do it if you're sure there's a 100% chance." Penny made every effort to oppose the treatment, all this was fake. She must be careful not to make mistakes and not accept treatment. "Also, whether it's surgery or later treatment, it costs a lot of money. I don't have the ability to work now. How can I get that money?" Penny added this sentence was entirely to show her determination to give up treatment, but she did not expect Winnie volunteered. "I'll pay that. I'll pay whatever the treatment costs." Winnie now had money, there was no problem for Penny's treatment. Even if she had no money, she would not sit idly by. For nothing else, she knew there was little hope of surgery, but she still wanted Penny to live as long as possible. Penny did not expect Winnie would say that. She was stunned, thinking if Winnie was really that kind or she had another plot. "Are you crazy? Where do you get the money? From Brian? Breakup fee? You must have been given a lot of money since you are generous." Penny sneered and despised Winnie. "Penny, don't say such harsh words. Winwin is good to you. I know what you think. You must think Win is up to something." "I just want to ask you, what else could she be up to since you are sick? All she has to do is sit back and enjoy the rewards. Why risk it for you?" Daenerys really could not listen to Penny's unreasonable words, but she tried her best to control her emotions as she spoke. If she was a healthy person, Daenerys would have quarreled with her at this time, but now Penny was sick, Daenerys was pity for that and could not speak sharply. "Stop that, if a person became bad, even if I only have one day to live, she will try to do harm to me." "Don't say anything that doesn't make sense. I won't get treatment no matter who pays the bills. Winnie, Brian gave you the money, you'd keep it for yourself when you are sick. You didn't get that money easily."
