Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 791 NO LOVE ANY MORE

Albert went on. "She said that the Bennet Group will have no soul and no future without you. And you can't let go of the expectations of your family. So she doesn't want you in dilemma and she doesn't want you to give up your family for her." "Mr. Bennet, I am talkative today. But Director Chambers is the only one of these women who's nice to you. It's not about your money, your position or your family. She likes you for who you are." "M. Bennet, don't lose her." Albert had said enough, and he knew enough was enough. This was the first time that Brian had heard him finish his speech. Brian sighed before answering Albert's question. "I'll get her back." Although Winnie was still not willing to forgive him, Brian had the confidence to get her back and have a happy life with her. It was a lesson for him. He would always remember his mistake and never hurt Winnie again. When Winnie got off the plane and got out of the exit, she saw Brian standing outside the exit. She withdrew her eyes and tried to hide from Brian by pretending not to see him. Although the sight of him reminded her of his embrace when they parted here, she still remembered the difference between them and his distrust of her. Compared to these, embrace was insignificant. "Winwin." When Winnie bypassed Brian, she was stopped. He stood in front of her, Winnie had to say hello. "Are you here to meet someone? But I gotta go." After that, Winnie once again was to bypass Brian. "Winwin, I'm here to pick you up." Brian blocked in front of Winnie. "No need, I..." Brian knew she would refuse him, so he felt unnecessary to listen to her. "I know you have a car, but I parked it. It's probably late before you find your car in such a big parking lot." "I'll take you to the car." Brian took Winnie's hand and walked outside the airport. He was domineering, only in this way Winnie would not resist. Winnie was pulled to the car, and gave her car key to Brian. "I agreed to have lunch with the kids, and after lunch they want you to go with them to get school supplies." Brian broke the silence since Winnie was silent. "I won't have lunch. Oscar and I have an appointment to go to Penny's. And then I can go with them to get their school supplies." "I will go home first, Vanessa is waiting for me." Winnie didn't know the agreement of Brian and the kids and she had an appointment with Oscar first, so probably the kids would be disappointed. "Can you have dinner with them in the evening? Or the kids will be disappointed. They've been looking forward to it all week. Take Vanessa with you. The kids miss her." Brian wanted to get along with Winnie for more time, but he could not affect her normal arrangements, so he got this plan. "... All right, I will have dinner with the kids tonight. Vanessa... I'll ask her if she's ok with it." Winnie said reluctantly, if there were only two kids and Vanessa, she would not hesitate. But Brian was also in, she had to think about it, after all, it would be awkward. "By the way, you'd better get your affairs in order before the dinner. Don't leave in the mid or you will let the kids down." Winnie reminded him, afraid that Brian left again during the meal. It didn't matter if she was disappointed or not, but she did not want her kids to be down. "No, I won't. Winwin, actually..." "Good." Winnie realized that Brian was to explain what happened before, so she interrupted his words. Winnie felt it unnecessary. It had nothing to do with her, since she could not interfere. Winnie sat in the back and moved her eyes out of the window. The man she loved was driving her home, but she felt they could never get close. Well...She was really afraid of such a relationship and she would never touch it again. "Winwin, can we talk about it sometime?" Brian saw Winnie's mood change in the rearview mirror. He knew that Winnie would not listen to him. "If it's about the kids, we can talk about it at any time. If not, I don't think it necessary. We are done, and we can't just live in the past." Winnie refused. She knew what Brian wanted to say, nothing more than to explain. But the misunderstanding wasn't the only reason they weren't together. She could come up with one hundred reasons not to be together. It was not that she retreated but that she dare not accept Brian again. She loved him, but she got nothing, and Brian was in a dilemma. "Next time, Mr. Bennet, don't pick me up, just live your own life. Work hard and do what you have to do." That was all Winnie could say. Winnie looked out of the window sadly. She felt heartache even she took a look at the back of Brian. "You just give up? Do you give up because I made a hard choice between you and Grandpa, between you and the Bennet Group?" Brian had to ask. He was most afraid Winnie gave up. Love was the most important for him now. A man should think for his woman, but it was Winnie considered for him and made sacrifices. He was so ashamed and felt distressed. "I get bored now. No matter there is love between us, I feel meaningless. Actually, I don't love you anymore and there is no reason." Winnie denied that she did it for Brian. Admitting it proved that she still cared about him and loved him. Once he knew that she still loved him, he would laugh at her and would torture her even more. "Winwin, even if you give up, I will not give up. As I said, I won't leave you in this life." Brian's heart ached when he heard such cruel words. But he knew that he should experience such heartache. "You are talkative. I don't know what you do to other people, but you failed your words to me. In such case, stop saying that." Winnie sneered, and then mentioned a matter. "Oh, there will be at most one year to go for me to go abroad with the kids and Vanessa. You should be ready to leave the kids. And I want you to keep your word that you promised me I have the custody of the kids." Winnie did not plan to say these, but she felt if she said it earlier, Brian would not waste time on her. When she took the kids away, Brian resumed his freedom, without any obstacles, lived as he liked. "Why do you want to leave again? Didn't we agree the kids receive education in our country?" Brian felt uneasy. He did not expect Winnie would have the idea of leaving. Was he pushing her too hard? Did she really give up? Did grandpa threaten her again? "Vanessa is in her last year of school and she wanted to study abroad. I have only one sister, so I will go with her. As for the kids' education, I can hire tutors for them abroad." None of these was a problem. If she wanted to leave, a reason was enough. But it took a lot of courage and preparation to stay. She had no perseverance in stick to it, no courage to choose the difficult road, so she'd better leave. "I trust you to take care of the kids and you should take care of Vanessa, but if you leave me, how should I live?" Brian asked Winnie, although he was not calm, he still got time. After all, it was a year away, and he could figure out a way to turn things around. "That's your business, not mine." Winnie forced the conversation to stop. She wanted to leave with Brian too, but he did not belong to her, so all her ideas became unreal. Winnie communicated with Vanessa when she got home, but Vanessa refused to eat out with him, because she did not want to see Brian. After asking Vanessa, Winnie remembered her appointment with Joshua. It was two hours from noon, so they met in a cafe. "You came alone? Where's Stella?" Winnie hurried over, only to see Joshua was already there. She was surprised to see Joshua alone. "She is at home." Joshua answered softly. He was a composed person. "Is she all right?" Winnie asked with worry. "Yes, she got pregnancy sickness today. My parents are at home with her, don't worry."

CHAPTER 792 CAN'T STAND BY AND WATCH

Joshua just found an excuse. Actually, he was afraid Stella did not understand their views as outsiders on that matter. "Have a seat, thank you for meeting me as you got off the plane." "I am glad that Stella is all right." "I respect you, so I came to see you." Winnie said jokingly hearing that Stella was fine. "I love to hear that." "Haha....." Joshua said with a smile, he had always felt that Winnie was a kind person. She was a good woman, a good mother, and a good partner. He could find as many advantages about her easily, but he felt hard to find her shortcomings. "Go to the point, Joshua, I only have half an hour." Winnie reminded with a smile. She knew that Joshua would not call her if there was nothing important. "Well, to save time, we'll go straight to the point. I called you out for Brian... actually for Dad." Joshua got into the conversation. "Dad is in a bad mood during this period of time. He even argued with Stella some time ago. The reason is that he wants to find that woman, but Stella is against it." "Winwin, I don't know how much you know about Dad. I don't know much. This family is complicated, so I never asked." Joshua respected Stella and his father-in-law's privacy, so he never asked. "I just know Rufus had an affair out of his marriage." Brian did not tell Winnie in details. She understood the complex of this family and knew Brian did not want to talk about it. She never asked. She would listen if Brian was willing to tell her. "After all these years he still wanted to find that woman, I think he really loves that woman. And when they argued, I could hear that he felt guilty about the woman." "It's understandable that he wants to settle things as he is old now. If that woman is also single, I think it is good that they are together. So they can take care of each other and would not be so lonely. The most important thing is to accomplish what they wanted when they were young." "Joshua, that's just my opinion. I don't know what other people think, after all, it's not my family's business." Winnie expressed her view. If Stella knew it, she would think Winnie meddled. "I have the same thought as you." Joshua was satisfied. He knew Winnie would have such thought. "Winwin, you and I are outsiders. Only outsiders like us understand it clearly." "The reason why I want to talk to you alone is that Brian and Stella would not accept such an idea." "They thought it was that woman's fault that my mother-in-law died. That's why they can't accept that Dad is looking for that woman." Joshua's analysis was right, but he could only talk with Winnie, because Stella and Brian would not accept it. "Yes, Brian hates that woman. He even hates her whole family." "But I think it he should let go. It is the cause of their ever-gloomy atmosphere. It's not bad that Rufus wants to find that woman. Even if they could not be together, it should give it an end." Winnie knew Brian really hated that woman and her family, which made him hard to let go. But only when all these things were solved could Brian be sunny. Winnie wanted Brian to let it go, so that he could have a peaceful life, but she might fail. "Yes, that's what I thought." Jiang agreed with Winnie's idea. "I have been advising Stella not to insist on any hatred. It is not necessarily that woman's fault. She said her father was always hesitant to mention it, as if he wanted them to know nothing. And he has said many times that that woman was also a victim, and it was not her fault." "Stella does not believe what he said, but I do. I've known Dad over the years, and he's not the kind of guy who lies, who takes sides for someone makes a mistake. I don't think that woman is at fault, but Stella and Brian don't know the truth." Joshua trusted his father-in-law's character and sincerity. "We seem to have a lot in common on this matter. But how did your persuasion go?" Winnie had the same idea as Joshua. She knew she was an outsider and she couldn't fit into the family. Or how could she see things so clearly and so thoroughly? "Stella was swayed, but she kept saying that Brian could not accept it. That's why I called you here. I want you to persuade Brian. I think Brian is the key. It was even harder for him to get over the fact that his mother jumped off the building in front of him." "It was so cruel to him that it was impossible for him to forget it, but advise him to let it go." Joshua understood Brian. At that time, he was young and experienced a sudden change in his family, so he could not accept it. Winnie gave a faint smile, knowing the reason Joshua came to her. "Joshua, you think too highly of me. I can't persuade Brian, nor will he listen to me." Winnie felt she could do it. How could she be shameless to annoy Brian? He hated this topic, why should she go to annoy him? She was an outsider and she could not be persuasive. "No, you matters to Brian." Joshua knew Winnie would refuse him, since she and Brian had broken up. However, she would not sit idle and watch. "Winwin, I know better than anyone how bad the relationship between Brian and Dad before you showed up was. But you changed Brian's mind, changed his relationship with his father." "I believe you can make it. Winwin, I think you don't want Dad moping around all day. He is old and has no more time to wait for the forgiveness of Brian and Stella. If you and I do not help, it will be a lifelong regret for him." Winnie did not realize that she mattered to Brian. Or she did not admit because she was afraid to be hurt again. Winnie's heart was hurt again and again by Brian, Joshua knew she wronged. Under the circumstances, it was natural that she did not help. But she was softhearted, she would not leave Rufus alone. "Joshua, you know the relationship between Brian and me. We....." "I know, Winwin, you don't have to say anything. I know your grievances. But you are not helping Brian, but Dad. He has been suffering for a lifetime, let him be happy once." Joshua knew Winnie's dilemma, more knew that she did not want to keep in touch with Brian, but he thought Winnie could handle it well. Winnie was silent, she could not leave Rufus alone, but would Brian listen to her advice? Did she have the ability to help? After being silent for a while, Winnie opened her mouth. "I can try, and I don't know if I can succeed." "Ok, all you have to do is help. If Brian still can't let it go, we will come up with other solutions." Joshua was right that Winnie would not be a bystander. "Winwin, I'll take care of it. One is for dad's happiness, the other is that I don't want Stella to continue to hate. I want her to be happy. I want her to go home with an exciting and happy mood." Joshua must do something for Stella, and Winnie would do something to make Brian happy. Winnie had confidence. She could even imagine that Brian would be angry with her if she mentioned that. But it was good that if it made their relationship more strained. In this way, Brian would get bored with her and never showed up in front of her again. Winnie went to Penny's after she parted with Joshua, but when she arrived, Oscar had not come back. "Again, do you want to die?" Penny said, gnashing teeth. "I drop by to see you. How are you these days?" Winnie asked and went to Penny, unguarded. When she just arrived at the side of Penny, Penny pushed her hard and Winnie fell to the ground. "Ouch..." As Winnie's fingers touched the ground, she cried out in pain. Just then Oscar came back, and the nanny heard the sound and ran out. "What is going on? Winwin, are you all right?"

CHAPTER 793 BRIAN APPEARS IN TIME

Oscar did not see the process, so he was not sure what happened, and could only asked Winnie with worry. "I'm okay, I'm okay." Winnie sat up straight and answered Oscar while rubbing her fingers. But it hurt so much that she frowned. "Let me look at your hands." Oscar noticed Winnie's hand and hurried to check. At this time Penny was more angry and directly kicked at Winnie. "Penny, what are you doing?" Oscar squatted on the ground and questioned loudly. He did not expect Penny to kick Winnie. "I pushed her. I hate her." Penny hated Winnie, so it was not much for her to push Winnie down or even kill her. "Penny, how could you? She comes and sees you. You went too far." Hearing that, Oscar was anger and wondered if Penny would go further if he had not come back. "I don't want her to see me. She will not be good to me, she just come and laugh at me. I don't feel I did wrong. She stole my man and not she is just pretending to be nice to me." Penny was angry and swore Winnie. She was dying anyway, what was she afraid of? She would not show mercy to the woman who stole her man. "Penny..." "Stop it. Let her say what she wants to say." When Oscar was to break out, Winnie endured the pain of her fingers and stopped Oscar. "Don't pretend to be nice. Don't you know how disgusting you are?" Penny continued to rage, while watching Oscar helped Winnie up. "Leave her alone. I'll take you home." Oscar tried hard to hold back his anger. It was dangerous for Winnie to come. Winnie did not refuse and walked toward outside with the help of Oscar. She had not expected such a result. She knew Penny hated her, but she did not expect Penny would push her. She did get desperate when she found out she had cancer. After a while, Winnie felt less painful in her fingers. "Oscar, I'll drive home by myself. You'd better go inside and comfort Penny. Ask her to be calm down, or it is bad for her health." Winnie did not leave Penny alone in this situation, as a patient, Penny needed comfort. "You still think of her after what she has done to you." Oscar was helpless about Winnie's kindness. "She is a patient, and she does not have much time left. Go home and comfort her." "I'm fine. I can drive myself." Winnie got into her car. She hoped Penny could still make a scene, so she could live longer. Oscar took a sigh as he watch Winnie drove away. Winnie was right, but Penny was aggressive relying on her terminal cancer. Oscar was worried that Winnie's fingers hurt, so he made a call to Brian. "Brian, Winwin was wounded at Penny's, and you..." Before he could finish, Brian said in an angry voice. "Is it serious? Did Penny attack her? Damn it, I..." "Calm down, Brian, hear me out." Oscar stopped him, it was not as serious as Brian thought. Brian stopped, but his anger did not dissipate. He was now very worried about Winnie's situation and regretted allowing Winnie to see Penny. "Ok." "Winwin was pushed by Penny and fell to the ground. Her finger seemed hurt. I wanted to send her away, but she insisted that I stay and take care of Penny. You'd better contact her and take her to the hospital." Oscar said in one breath, lest Brian got angry again. "I'll call her." Brian immediately hung up the phone. As he was to call Winnie, he knew Winnie would not say anything, so he called the bodyguard. "Send me Director Chambers's location." He hung up, grabbed the car key and ran out. Winnie was ok, but her fingers still hurt and she had to stop the car when she drove out of the villa. She decided to wait and drive away, but 15 minutes later her finger still didn't feel better. She had to call proxy driver. She waited in the car and tried to rub her hand, but her fingers were swollen. She was so careless. She could get herself killed. As Winnie was thinking about how to get along with Penny, her window was knocked. Winnie thought it was the proxy driver, but when she turned around, she found it was Brian. Before she had any reaction, Brian had opened the door. "Give me your hand and let me see it." Brian frowned, and felt heartache. "Oscar called you?" Winnie asked, but did not hand over her hand to Brian. "Yes, Oscar called me. Can you tell me first so that I don't need to know it from others?" Brian was visibly agitated. At the moment he wanted to check Winnie's injury, but Winnie avoided answering. He had to say that. And he couldn't help but complain. If Oscar did not call him, he would not know it, and Winnie certainly would not tell him. He really could accept that he knew about her woman from others. "Why do I..." "Why? Why? Because I am worried, because I blamed myself for not protecting you the first time." "Winwin, you don't forgive me, you don't accept me, but at least we are friends, and I should help you for the sake of our two kids." Brian knew what Winnie wanted to say, knew that she would refuse him. Brian did not give her the opportunity to speak, domineering. Winnie was stunned. She could not believe what she heard. Winnie did not speak, but put out her right hand to Brian. At this time, the swelling of her finger was even more serious than just now. "Get out of the car and I'll take you to the hospital." Brian ordered, but seeing that Winnie was motionless, he carried her out of the car. "I've called the proxy driver. I can go to the hospital myself." Winnie still refused. "Cancel it and I'll get someone to take your car back." Brian said in a domineering way. He would not let Winnie go to the hospital alone, because he was worried. "I... put me down, my phone is in the car..." "Never mind, I'll take care of it." Brian didn't want Winnie to get rid of him with various excuses. Brian got into the car and drove to the hospital. To reassure Winnie, he connected the phone with Bluetooth while driving. "Drive Director Chambers' car to her house, the key is in the car. The proxy driver will be there later, so pay the bill. And send Director Chambers' bag to the suburbs." Brian called the bodyguard and addressed Winnie as "Director Chambers", so Winnie would not doubt who he called. "Don't worry, the car will be driven to your house." Brian said that to Winnie after hanging up the phone, for fear that she would be worried. "You were hurt by Penny, and I will make her pay." Brian had warned Penny, if you dare to hurt Winnie, he would be angry. "You can't hurt her, she's almost dead..." "She can't do that either! She hurt your hand. What if she kills you? Don't you feel sorry for the kids for letting her kill you? You still speak for her. When you are in danger, why don't you think about how the kids will live without their mother? Do you want them to be timid and miserable as I am?" Brian accused her angrily, for fear that she was hurt by Penny. Penny was indeed a dying person, but Winnie could not die with her. "You..." "Do not beg for her, or I will send a bodyguard to follow you 24 hours." Before Winnie finished her words, Brian interrupted her angrily. She wanted to say that she would not leave the kids, that she would allow the kids to be painful as he was, that everything was over. However, all this was drowned in Brian's angry voice. "I don't need a bodyguard." Winnie protested, if she had bodyguards around her, it was not convenient for her to do things. "It's not up to you. I will send someone to protect you if you are not careful." Brian was more stubborn than Winnie. He had reminded Winnie many times, but she was not careful. If she still went to see Penny, she would be in trouble. "Brian, I am fine, I don't need your protection. Stop the car. I don't need you to take me to the hospital." Winnie hated to be monitored and she sure would go and see Penny. She knew Penny was dying and she wanted to see Penny as much as possible before she died.

CHAPTER 794 QUID PRO QUO

Brian knew that he had to threaten her, or he could not control Winnie. "If you don't go to the hospital, I will go directly to Penny's. I can make her disappear immediately." "Again, you'll only threaten me, do you have new tricks?" Winnie was angry but dare not be arrogant, afraid that Brian would do so. "You made me, if you have taken care of yourself, I will not do so. I am not threatening, I will keep my words." Hearing that, Brian knew Winnie would not be persistent. "Brian, you are a president of a famous company, but you use such dirty means, don't you feel shameless?" Winnie resisted, but she knew he would indeed keep his words. "I stand by my own woman and I don't feel shameless." For this woman, he could even go to hell, let alone this. "I am not your woman, go somewhere else." Winnie said weakly. She felt familiar with Brian's behavior today, as they met at the very beginning. He was aggressive, and she could feel he was kind. When they knew at first, he, being contemptuous and domineering touched her heart. Like time went back, she was touched again. "It's not up to you. I know where my woman is." Brian took a look at Winnie and then shut his mouth. He was satisfied that she could go obediently with him to the hospital, so he should stop at the right time. She just had contusion. In the hospital, she applied with medicine before she left with Brian. Brian took her to a noodle shop. "Get off, we will have some food and then go to pick up the kids." Brian said coldly. He knew only in this way Winnie would be obedient. "I'm not hungry." Winnie did not want to eat with Brian, but she was really hungry. "I'm hungry, and when I was about to eat, you had an accident, so I came out immediately. Do you want me to starve to death? Get off, or I will hold you down." Brian knew by this way, Winnie would do as he required. Winnie said nothing, she got off the car when she heard that Brian hadn't had food yet. They had been in this noodle shop. Because Winnie said it was delicious, Brian took her here. He was not hungry and could endure a whole day without food. But Winnie was frightened and she needed food to calm herself down. Two people sat down at a table. Not waiting for Winnie to say a word, Brian had ordered the food. "Does it still hurt?" Brian's tone finally eased down. "Better." Winnie whispered, though it was still in pain. "Go home for a rest and buy school supplies with kids tomorrow." Brian was worried, for fear that she accidentally hurt it again. And "home" he said referred to the suburbs. "It's okay. I can go with them today." Winnie did not want to let the kids down. She could endure the pain of the fingers. "I... What did you think about what I told you last time?" Winnie changed the topic, but Brian was confused. "What?" Brian did not know what she meant. "To ease your relationship with your father and change your address to him." Winnie wanted to see if she could succeed in persuading Brian as Joshua said. Brian's face changed, but he was neither angry nor anxious. "Eat, I don't want to talk about it now." Brian did not want to talk about it and got the tableware ready while he said that. "How long are you going to escape it, until you father dies? Do you think you and your father can be father and son in the next life?" Winnie continued. Just as Joshua said, this issue must be put on the table, so that it could be solved. However, as Brian has been avoiding this matter, let alone for a lifetime, even in the next life, father and son may not be able to solve the knot in his heart. "Winwin, I'm not escaping..." "Did I meddle with it? I do not understand, and you have never regarded me as a close person. You have always kept things from me." "I can understand, after all, there is no need for you to tell me in detail. But think of your father, He's spent his whole life atoning for it, and you want him to take it till he dies." "It's none of your business... I..... I'm not saying you should leave it alone, but there's a lot I can't explain." Hearing Winnie's words, Brian was nervous. If his father died, what was the meaning of his oppression? "How you can explain it, who you want to talk to?" Winnie knew he did not want to talk to her, and she would like to help to find this person for him to talk to. "You." "I can only say to you." Brian's answer was sincere, but it was not comprehensive. He wanted to tell Winnie everything about him, but he had not decided what to do. "It's my pleasure, since you want to tell me, tell me then." Winnie did not believe what Brian said, but she had to say so. She did not care what the content was, she just wanted him to feel better. She wanted to know what the problem was, so that she could offer help. "No." Brian went back on his word again. "You're confusing me, or you're just perfunctory to me. What do you want?" Winnie could not calm down as he said that. "Come home with me and I'll tell you. If you forgive me, I'll call him Dad. I'll let go of everything that happened before if you marry me." Brian used this condition in exchange. Winnie glared at Brian, speechless. She did not expect Brian to come up with this condition. "What? You don't believe me? I will do what I say. We can have it notarized, witnessed." Brian was absolutely sincere, not quid pro quo, but stating the facts. If Winnie forgave him and married him, he would rather give up everything he had before. "These are two different things. Don't mix them. You have to let go so that everyone can live together without barriers. This quid pro quo only means you can't let it go." "Don't deceive yourself. I advise you to sit down with your father and talk things over. Maybe there's something you don't know." "Talk it all out and it will be settled." Winnie did not agree with everything that Brian said, even if she agreed to the conditions of Brian, it would not solve the problem. Both Brian and his father still did not let the past go. "Who will be responsible for my mother's death?" Brian became serious. The crux and center of the matter lay in the question he raised. If his mother hadn't been death because he father had an affair, he would not hate his father, that woman, and even her family. His mother died for their love, so who was responsible for her death? "See, you still can't let go. That's why I said the deal you just made with me is a lie. You never forgot your hatred for that family." "Eat, or you let go, or torture that family when they show up."

Winnie stopped the topic, though she was disappointed. He had his resentment for years, and it was impossible to let it all go at once. He needed to find a way to let go of it. Winnie was upset at this moment. He could understand the reaction of Brian, but once again it proved that he was not as important as Joshua said. When Winnie started eating noodles, she realized her fingers couldn't hold chopsticks. "You are trying to embarrass me, right? I can't use chopsticks with my left hand." Winnie spoke out her dissatisfaction and vented her anger out. "I'll feed you." Brian ignored that, but he felt that this was his chance. Brian stretched his chopsticks into the bowl of Winnie, and then sent the noodles to Winnie's mouth. "Forget it, I'll eat it with a fork." She wanted to vent out her anger, but, never mind, why should she do that? Why had he had to bear her bad temper? Winnie stretched out to take a fork, refused to eat the noodles that Brian gave her. "Are you angry? I promise..." "Don't promise me, don't promise me anything. I'm afraid you'll say it. And I'm not angry. I don't have to be angry because it's not about me." Winnie decisively interrupted another assurance of Brian.

Hey, My Twins Babies

CHAPTER 795 STILL DON'T UNDERSTAND

Winnie was really afraid of the assurance of Brian, because she got disappointment again and again. She was tortured to death by such fruitless promises. She couldn't believe it any more. "Go ahead, it won't taste good if it gets cold. I can eat it with a fork." "Eat, the kids wait anxiously." Winnie urged, and pushed back Brian's hand with noodles. She said she was not angry, but she did not feel comfortable. She hated herself to be like this. However, she could not control this kind of emotion when she was only with Brian, and she would not have such sad feeling with others. She was really angry when Leo did that to her, but after a long time, she felt nothing. But when she thought of what happened between Brian and her, she felt sad. Leo took Emily to the hospital for examination. Emily had severe morning sickness she could only eat light food, so Leo took her to eat some vegetables and porridge. "Emily, eat more, your stomach is empty. Only by eating more can you gain strength." Leo said while helping Emily with food. Although Emily still did not forgive him, her attitude towards her was better than before. She did not hide from him and did not drive him away. Leo felt that everything was going well. "I'll do it myself." Leo helped Emily with a lot of food. She was embarrassed by his meticulous care, but she enjoyed it. "Leo, the child... I'm still thinking about it. Don't blame me if I decide to abort it. I have my own ideas." Emily was afraid that Leo had too much hope for the child, so she had to remind him and let him be ready. After all, she hadn't made a final decision about the child. "... I don't blame you. But I want you to keep it. Even if you don't love me, even if you hate me, it is innocent. If you think it will affect your life when it is born, you can give it to me, and I will certainly bring him up." "The bottom line is that having abortion will have a huge impact on your health. Emily, think about it, think about the child, and think about me." Leo could not object, after all, Emily had the right to decide. But he really wanted to have this child, if Emily had abortion, it proved that Emily had given up on him and no longer loved him. If the child was gone, their love would be away. "I don't so. I want to bring up this child myself, even if I give birth to it. And..." "You want to be a single parent? Emily, am I so annoying to you?" Leo did not know when he should say or do to change Emily's mind. Everything looked good, but it wasn't perfect. "You're not annoying, you're the perfect man for a lot of women. Leo, the problem is me." Emily felt that she was going crazy. She told herself not to tangle with things before, but she just could not do it. She felt Leo's feelings were not true and that he was deceiving her. "There is nothing wrong with you, it is with me. It is all my fault. I shouldn't have lied to you. I am not fit to love you, much less to be the father of a child." "Emily, you can do what you want about the child. I respect that." Leo suddenly became depressed, but he still felt that no matter who had the child, there would be hope if it could be given birth. Emily was nervous to see that. She felt distressed, and she dare not say anything to hurt him. How should she do to let everything calm down and not to hurt this man? Winnie was taken back to the suburbs by Brian after buying school supplies with the kids. When she got the suburbs, she found that Stella and Joshua were there too. It looked like a family reunion. Winnie felt she was an outsider to that. Winnie, Brian and Joshua and Stella sat in the courtyard, chatting together. Winnie felt embarrassed as an outsider. "Stella, you look much better, do you still have morning sickness?" Winnie asked with concern, so that she would be less embarrassed. "Yes, but much better. I can't eat oily and spicy food." Stella answered in a good mood, for there would be a new life coming into her life. "You can eat food in a few days." Winnie had been there. Although people had different reaction, there was no big difference. Every woman would experience that. "Yes." "By the way, Winwin, how long is your business trip going to take?" Stella asked, so as to judge what grandpa was worried about. "Well, it should be one month, but now one month is not enough, there will be another month." Winnie felt wrong to lie, but she could not expose her work. "Not going well at work? Why there is another month?" Stella continued. If she stayed longer, her grandpa's worry would come true. "There are some things that are not handled well and they have to be extended." "Now that I have Rufus to take care of my kids, I am quite relieved even if I'm out. I will fly back on weekends to see the kids. I used to see them once a week when I am home." "The kids have got used to it and they have a good life even if I am not around." Winnie said deliberately to Brian. She wanted him to know that she was free now, she would not tie by the kids and she would not change anything because of him. "It's better for the kids to be with their mother. They don't say it, but they still want to be with you. It is safer for them to stay here, but after this period, you should take them back for education, or they will be spoiled by their grandfather." Stella was afraid Brian really had no chance once Winnie left the kids here. "I will give it consideration." As Winnie's voice just fell, Raya came to Stella. "Stella, your father asks you where you put his thing." "What is it? I'll go and have a look." Stella went into the house with Raya. At the same time, Brian was called away by two kids who were playing. Only Winnie and Joshua were left in the pavilion. Taking this opportunity, Joshua asked. "Winwin, did you talk to Brian?" Winnie took a look at Brian's direction before answering Joshua's question. "Yes, but nothing worked out." Winnie felt that Brian did not change. "I think he will listen to you. Did he lose his temper when you talked about it?" Joshua was not in a hurry. It was at the beginning, so it was normal for Brian to have any reaction. "No, he said no one could understand his mother. He's very stubborn about this. I don't seem up to the task." Winnie wanted to retreat, since she did not have the ability. "Don't give up, Brian was not angry. When he listens to you and asks questions, it's already a change." "Winwin, in the past, no matter who mentioned it in his presence, he will act like a maniac. But now his attitude is better. That's the change. Don't give up. Keep talking to him. I'm sure he'll figure it out." Joshua and Winnie understood things differently. Joshua, who had seen the worst of Brian, now saw his change. And Winnie accompanied Brian during the process he changed, so she might not feel anything. "Well, I can't take credit for them. Maybe with age and maturity, he understands some things. Joshua, I really have no confidence in this task, and I don't want to keep in touch with him." "We broke up, and I don't want people judging our relationship." Winnie lost confidence, for she could not control her emotions as Brian was in front of her. She didn't know what she was doing or saying, she was like an idiot. "Winwin, I told you from the beginning, we're doing this for Dad. Don't care what people say, but stick to your original intention." "I know that you have awkward relationship with Brian, but it is getting over. If you have no feelings for each other, you will get used to it." Joshua had been insisting that Winnie was the only one who could change Brian. "You saw Dad's mood. Do you think he's the same as he was before? Do you want him to be depressed? When old people are unhappy, all kinds of diseases will come to them. Winwin, please, keep trying for that sake of Dad takes care of the kids." In order to make Winnie say yes, he tried so hard, but he knew Winnie would not refuse. "Joshua, you really put me in an awkward position... Well, I'll talk to him sometime." Winnie did not refuse, because she did not want Rufus to be depressed. However, she must continue to face Brian.

CHAPTER 796 PAIN IS THE BEGINNING OF LOVE

They had a good time during the dinner. Brian answered several phone calls, but did not leave because of work. After dinner, Brian sent Winnie home. On the way Winnie thought of Brian to arrange bodyguard to her. "Don't arrange bodyguard for me, I will be careful." "I don't believe you. I've been telling you to be careful, you never did." Brian did not accept Winnie's protest, he must insist or Winnie would be injured. "Penny will feel uncomfortable if a bodyguard follows me. I will be careful and it won't happen again." Winnie did not want the bodyguard to follow her. And Penny would be mad to see that and she might not allow her to go into the house. "I don't care. She hurt you." "I can dismiss the bodyguard, but I have to go with you." Brian proposed. "No." Winnie could not accept that. "Choose either of these two options, A or B?" Brian must insist for Winnie's safety. "I'm going to go for C." Winnie protested, but it did not work. "There is no C. Winwin, I will do it. If you don't believe me, I will contact my bodyguards right now. Even if you go to C City, I will have my bodyguards follow you." "I'll go for B." Winnie did not want to talk to him anymore, or she would be angry. She would rather Brian followed her to see Penny than the bodyguards followed her. "Good, that's smart." Brian gave an evil smile. "I have one more decision to tell you. I've been thinking all afternoon about you leaving with the kids in a year. Finally I decided to, in this year, will arrange everything of the Bennet Group. I will train Jack into a president and I will go with you." Winnie was startled at the decision of Brian. "If you go with me, what's the point of me going?" Winnie was to hide Brian, she would rather stay here if he left with her. "You left for Vanessa's future, and I followed you for a complete home for my two kids, and to be with the woman I love." Brian made it clear. "Brian, stop that. The two of us... Forget it. I don't want to say that." Winnie really wanted to talk to Brian, but she was not sure whether Brian was joking. So if she got serious, Brian might laugh at her in his heart. She'd better shut up, otherwise she would be hurt. "Winwin, I am serious, I am not joking. Wherever you go, I'll take the kids with you. I can give up everything I have now, except you and the kids." Brian once again showed his attitude. He could give up on everything except Winnie and the kids. Even if he was asked to stay home and do housework, he would accept it. Winnie was hurt before, so she dare not easily believe the words of Brian. Even though he said so, he had not given up anything for her. Brian couldn't even give up on Wendy. She did not mind Wendy and could not erase their love before. But if she was with Brian, Wendy would be in the middle of their life. Brian did not know who he loved. She was hurt by him, she loved him, but she could not be with him, so she dare not look forward to what he said. The next day was weekend, Winnie had full schedule. In the morning, she asked Emily to Daenerys' house and intended to persuade Emily. "Well, you haven't decided yet?" Winnie raised her voice and smiled. She felt happy to see Emily. "Don't ask, ok? I really don't know what to do. Leo pressed me all day, and you asked me too. Do you want me to run away from home?" Emily did not know how to answer. Maybe by running away from home, she would figure it out. "You're running away from your problems, you're afraid to face them. You don't have the courage to think about the future." Daenerys mentioned the point. She wanted to Emily to face the problem rather than blindly escape. "Daenerys has a point. You should have your attitude. Emily, it's already a fact. You can't refuse to accept it." Winnie said, so that Emily could make a decision as soon as possible. Emily sighed. "Now I don't want to have abortion, but I don't know if I should accept Leo. What should I do?" Emily asked for help because she did not know what to do. "Emily, I know you still mind what happened to Leo, if you..." "Wait, let me be clear. I have no problem with you. It is just I can't get over Leo's behavior. Whoever he liked, he should at least have told me instead of cheating me." Emily was wise and sober. She must speak clearly, lest Winnie think more. "I know you don't hate me. But I am involved in that." "Emily, none of this really matters. What matters is that it has happened and we can't change it. What we can do is look to the future rather than dwell on the past." "Leo made a mistake, but he had realized it and apologized to you many times. His love for you is real. It hasn't changed since the beginning. Now you are pregnant. If you don't want to have abortion, you should consider being with Leo." Winnie advised, she felt it was the most perfect ending. "I agree. If you want to give birth to it, you can't let it have a single parent." "It has father and you can't stop them knowing each other. Even if you have the ability to raise a child, even if you love the child, you are not its father." Daenerys added. As a mother, she deeply understood how important parental love was to kids. She had the same thought as Winnie. She hoped Emily and Leo to be together. "I'm thinking about that right now. I'm wondering if I should forgive Leo because of the kids." Emily had been entangled in this problem, but she had no conclusion. "Don't you think so, though it is a necessary reason, you can't build a family on kids, and you can't deny Leo's love for you." "Emily, you love Leo and you will be happy with him." Winnie knew Emily could not accept Leo and she was escaping her love for Leo. Unless Emily realized how much she loved Leo, the problem would be solved. "....." Emily quietly looked at Winnie, and then at Daenerys. Was she in love with Leo? How deep she loved him? Was she really taking the child to cover up her love for Leo? Since when did she turn into a chicken? "Emily, tell me why you can't accept Leo." Winnie wanted Emily to say what she really feared, so that she could find a solution. "I... I am afraid he is lying to me and that I will get hurt again." Emily had been afraid of this. She was sad because she got cheated and afraid that she it would happen again and that Leo did not love her. "Emily, you are not as hurtful as Winwin. Leo lied to you, but in the process he fell in love with you." "If Leo did not cheat you, did not use you, you may not have the chance to fall in love, let alone have this child." "Think carefully, your pain is the beginning of love. Winwin's pain is the real pain. She made it through, so you have nothing to fear." Daenerys gave her own opinion. She thought Emily did not think the problem right, so she got trapped. In fact, the problem was multifaceted, she should at it from another angle. Daenerys' words made sense. Emily knew that Winnie was more painful than she was. Winnie experienced so much, but she was still tenacious and never flinched. Even if Leo cheated her and hurt her, she had not been knocked down. Could she be tough as Winnie? Emily was still silent, so Winnie had to carry out her plan. "Emily, you are afraid that Leo will hurt you and that he will lie to you. I think I am part of the reasons, it makes me very guilty." "Emily, don't let me influence you. What about this, I cut off all relations with Leo, and remove our cooperation at work. Then I can guarantee never to see Leo again, and I can..." "Winwin, how can you say that? It has nothing to do with you." Emily interrupted Winnie, she could not let Winnie take the blame. She refused when Leo proposed that to her, but she did not expect Winnie to say so.

CHAPTER 798 STEFAN REASSURES

Hearing Emily's commitment, Stefan was much relieved, but there are new problems he must also put forward. "Another problem is that H province is the only place where provincial and municipal agents can develop well. Of course, this is my personal opinion, I have this conclusion through investigation of the local economy and consumption level. Besides, H province is a little far away from us. It is very cold in winter and hot in summer, so there is a strong seasonality." "You need to consider all these questions before you make a decision. I'll give you a plan..." Stefan was still hesitant, then Winnie interrupted him. "It's okay for you to give us a plan and we'll look at it, but you can also listen to us. I think H province is good. It is because of the cold weather that people like to eat hotpot. It's not as hot there as it is here.

Our summer is the off-season, which is the same all over the country." "Stefan, I know what you're worried about. You can rest assured that there will be no personal risk between the three of us." "Also, none of us had the energy to be involved in management. We all agree that your company should manage it, so that it won't affect the personal feelings of the three of us." Winnie understood Stefan well and knew what he was really worried about, and gave a unified opinion of the three of them. Winnie knew that if three people worked together, there would be differences. So all three of them stayed out of management, which would have saved a lot of unpleasantness. "I'm relieved that there won't be any trouble if you all stay out of management. In fact, I am just afraid that you will affect the relationship." Winnie's words made Stefan's mood better and it dispelled all of his concerns. With three people not afraid to lose money and not involved in management, all problems would be solved. "The three of us are not worried. Why are you worried about? Boss Stefan, now all things are nothing more than the establishment of money. We are not afraid of losing money and we are prepared to lose money. Do you think there will be a problem?" Emily rest assured Stefan. She had made up her mind that she would bear the lose. When they were prepared for the worst, what contradiction could affect their feelings? "No problem, the three of you pay for it, and I'll put together a team to help you run it." Stefan finally agreed with no worries. Emily was right, everything came from money. There was no such thing as hurt feelings if they didn't care. Later, Stefan was called out by the assistant. They were the only three girls left in the room. "Winwin, has Stefan settled his relationship with you?" Daenerys asked, from the moment she saw Stefan, she wanted to ask this question, but she had been enduring it. "I told him at first we couldn't work out. He just needs time to move on. He did it and we are friends as before." Winnie did not feel that there was any relationship between them. It was true that Stefan pursuit her, but she never gave him hope. Winnie only loved Brian and her heart even her cell was filled with Brian. If she wanted to accept the love of another man, she had to throw out Brian from her. But it was going to take time. "Brian will detain you forever. I think Stefan is good. His appearance, his conduct, and his attitude toward you are all good, except that he is not as rich as Brian." Daenerys quite appreciated Stefan, at least he would not give Winnie pain. Unfortunately, Winnie only had Brian in her eyes. "I'm not saying he's bad. I agree he's a good man. We left aside Brian and talked about my conditions with Stefan. I have two kids, born out of wedlock, which in reality I carried for money. But Stefan is nice and successful. Do you think our conditions are suitable to be together?" Winnie only talked about mutual conditions. She felt her conditions were not suitable for any man, she felt ashamed to any man. "Winwin, you can't think like that. You're good, too. Stefan knows about you, and he likes you. That means he can accept everything about you." Hearing Winnie's words, Daenerys was sorry for her. Winnie's past was a scar in her mind which had not been cured. It hurt everything it was mentioned. Today she mentioned it, forcing Winnie to see her scars. "He's ok with that, but..." "Never mind, these are not the main reasons. Now there is no obstacle to love, but Winnie has no space for Stefan." Winnie was interrupted by Emily, she did not want to let the topic continue, afraid Winnie thought of the past. "Feelings can't be forced. No one should embarrass themselves. Winwin, I would like you to face your feelings bravely, since Brian has been repentant, you should..." "You haven't been dealt with your relationship with Leo yet, don't worry about me." Winnie smiled and blocked Emily's words with a smile. No matter Brian had been repentant or not, she dare not accept it. To be honest, she loved him, but she was afraid that he brought her pain and that he would leave her again, and she was more afraid that he gave up his bright future for her. He was a king, destined to reign. He was the hope of the family, destined for glory and invincibility. And her presence would only tarnish everything about him. She could not change his life, she could not affect his future. Penny was in a bad mood. Winnie was hurt by her fingers yesterday, but it did not make her mood better. She felt Winnie's hurt was not enough. If Winnie became disabled or died, she might be happy. "Oscar, please accompany me to the hospital." Penny said. "What's wrong with you?" Oscar thought Penny got seriously ill, so she wanted to go to the hospital. "I just want to go to the hospital for examination. If possible, I want to have surgery." Penny spoke out her true purpose. She could not die like this, she wanted to live longer, because she had many things to do and she needed more time. "Surgery?" Oscar was surprised. He pondered for a moment and gave his opinion. "Tomorrow, tomorrow is Monday, the best doctor can be found. Tomorrow I'll take you to the hospital and have you checked again." Oscar did not discourage Penny and supported her no matter what she wanted. Penny sighed. She was very happy Oscar would take her to the hospital. But at the same time she was worried that she would have no chance. In Sunday afternoon, Winnie could finally go home. Leisurely lying on the sofa in the living room, she chatted with her aunt and Vanessa. They could only talk by voice because of poor signal from her aunt. "Aunt, when will you come back? We miss you." Vanessa said. She did miss her aunt. She always felt uneasy when her aunt was away. "I'm homesick too, but I can't go back. I must complete this task, if I give up halfway, I will be sorry for people's trust in me." Isobel said. She went out to avoid Rufus. Engaging herself in work made her mood better. "But when will you be back? A lot of doctors are coming back. It's time for you to come back too." Vanessa knew her aunt loved her work, but she should go home. After all, she was old and not as energetic as young people. "Soon, this disease will soon pass away. The young people have parents and kids to take care of. I'm here..." "You still have us. We're young, too." Isobel found an excuse, but Vanessa interrupted her. For Vanessa, she needed more attention than the families of the doctors. With no parents and her aunt still went out for medical support, they were like miserable homeless kids. "In fact, the most important thing I gained from this trip is to see you are independent and can take care of yourself. I am happy to see that you take care of each other so well." Isobel was guilty, but what she said was true. The two kids lived as well without her, and she could be relieved. "Aunt, we can take care of ourselves, so you don't have to worry about us. Just work hard and take care of your health." Winnie knew her aunt did not want to come back. All they could do was not worry her. "Oh, Aunt, Rufus concerned about you. He's always asking if you're all right." Winnie conveyed the kindness of Rufus to her aunt. "Why did he ask about me?" Isobel just thought of she had not contacted Rufus for a long time. Since learning that Winnie was wronged by Brian, they only spoke on the phone three times, and then never contacted again. She was fine, but she wondered if he was doing well. "It's just a polite concern about your health and whether you can adapt to the environment. He told you to take care of yourself." As Winnie's voice just fell, Vanessa added. "Sister, isn't Rufus sick? Has he got well?" "He is sick?" Before Winnie answered, Isobel asked with worry.

CHAPTER 799 SOLVE WITH LOVE

Isobel was worried since she heard that Rufus was ill. She did not expect that the healthy Rufus would get sick. For so many days she was either working or angry about Brian. Just because of anger, she had not been in touch with Rufus, so she did not know he was sick. If they had been in contact with each other, she, as a doctor, would have told him how to take care of himself and how to get well. "Rufus almost gets well, but he has something in mind and mopes all day." Winnie explained. Although her aunt's reaction was unexpected, she regarded it as a doctor's occupational reaction. "His family is well off, and there is nothing to worry about. Why does he mope? I think he is too idle." Isobel said deliberately to cover up her emotion just now. Although she knew some of the reasons for Rufus' gloom, she wanted to know more about it. "It's Rufus' old thing. He's trying to get the woman back. He said he felt indebted to that woman and wanted to make up for her." Winnie put things simply. Although it was Rufus' privacy, she felt she could tell her aunt. "He..." "Then go and make up for it, why stay moping at home and make himself sick?" Before Isobel spoke, Vanessa chimed in. She felt it was simple and there was no need to tangle. "It's a bit complicated. Rufus wants to, but Stella and Brian don't agree. Now Joshua is trying to persuade Stella, and Stella is likely to agree. The key lies in Brian. He can't let it go." Winnie didn't say anything specific because the story was too long and she didn't know much about it. "Stella and Brian are really selfish, they are well living, why interfere with Rufus? And even if Rufus is at fault, it's the elders' business." Vanessa did not understand, she felt that the elders' things had nothing to do with younger generation. Stella and Brian should not have interfered. "Brian and Stella thought that their mother's death had something to do with that woman, so they never got on well with each other for many years. But neither Joshua nor I feel it has anything to do with that woman..." "Winwin, Vanessa, leave this matter alone, it isn't related to us. Don't make trouble for yourself." Isobel interrupted their conversation. It was as simple as they thought, it involved too much. She couldn't even figure it out and explain it, the young generation sure had no idea about it. Isobel felt her heart trembling every time she remembered the past. Her heart felt like being cut out with a knife when Winnie and Vanessa talked about it. She couldn't face her past and had been hiding it. But now Winnie and Vanessa know something about it, they just did not know she was that woman. "Aunt, I know it's not my business. But Rufus was like a father to Vanessa and me, and I couldn't watch him suffer from this. Joshua and I agreed that he would talk Stella through and I would talk Brian through." Winnie did not hide it from her aunt. She would not be deeply involved in this matter. She would only try to do what Joshua required, just to make Rufus happy. "Winwin, we can return his favor in the future. You and Brian have broken up, you'd better not contact him again. You always contact him, how will he think of you?" Isobel did not agree that Winnie got involved, but she knew she could not control Winnie. Since the death of her brother and sister-in-law, Winnie had made all the decisions and she could only give advice. So in this matter, if Winnie stood firm, she could do nothing about it. "Don't worry, Aunt, it has nothing to do with my relationship. No matter how many contacts I have with Brian, I will never get my feelings involved. "Aunt, you needn't worry about me. I know what to do." Winnie had guessed that her aunt would not agree and knew what her aunt was worried about. But she could control her own emotions and she would not be confused by Brian's false feelings. She offered help because Rufus and Joshua's request, it had nothing to do with Brian's personal feelings. After the call, Isobel was still worried about Rufus and made a call to him. Rufus was sitting in the sitting room in a daze. When he saw that it was Isobel's call, he cheered up. He didn't answer the phone right away, but quickly went back to his bedroom. He answered the phone as soon as he closed the door. "You finally called me, are you still in medical support? How are you? Are you tired? Can you get enough sleep?" Rufus asked several questions, which he had been worried about. He would like to ask long ago, but he could not find Isobel. "I am fine." Isobel said in a soft voice. "Isobel, you promised to keep in touch with me, but it's been a long time. If you still do not contact me, I will go abroad to find you." Rufus complained, but hearing Isobel's voice, he relaxed. "I am all right and you know I am all right from Winwin, so I think there is no need to contact. The living conditions here are bad, and there are too many diseases. You'd better stay at home." Isobel was sad, she could feel Rufus' worry about her. "I don't feel reliably as I hear it myself. Isobel, I know that you are still angry about Brian, but this should not be confused with our affairs. Please don't torture me by losing contact with me. I hope you can call me on time like before, even if it is just a message to let me know you are safe." Rufus knew everything, including the reason why Isobel did not contact him. But if this mistake was linked to Brian, there was really no hope for them. "I'll call you on time." "Rufus, Winwin said you are moping all day and getting sick? Is it the fact that things can't be solved that makes you depressed?" Isobel believed Rufus knew what referred to, so she did not say it directly. "It had not progressed at all till now, and the relations between Winwin and Brian have always been icy. If they don't get back together, I don't know what to do." "I talked to Stella that I wanted to find you, but Stella didn't agree. If Stella did not agree, Brian..." Rufus told Isobel things happened recently, but Isobel cut him short. "Rufus, don't be so hard on the kids and on yourself. Winwin and Brian will not work out, and you should not expect it." "You's better persuade Brian to forget Winwin, or find another girlfriend, it will be easier." Isobel still didn't want Winnie and Brian to be together. She always felt she got enough hurt and she did not want Winnie to get hurt from the Bennet family. "Isobel, don't think things simple. Do you think that if Brian and Winwin are completely separated, these things need not be faced or solved? Do you think these things could be kept secret for life?" Rufus had different thought as Isobel. Only Brian and Winnie loved each other, it could be resolved with love. Once they were completely separated, once there was no affection between them, the hatred was free. It was gonna be a lot worse than they expect when it got exposed. "Hide it when you can, and face it when you can't hide it anymore. Vanessa still has one year to go before she graduate, and we will go abroad in a year, so that we don't need to see each other and the matter won't come up." Isobel did not want to face it, for fear that it hurt everyone once the secret was exposed, Stella and Brian, in particular. "Isobel, things still have to be faced. Can you hide from me forever? It will still exist even if we're both gone, and do you want them to settle it after we're dead?" "None of that matters. What matters is that I want to be with you while we're still alive, while we still have energy." Rufus was helpless about the fact that Isobel dare not face the reality. He had said these words many times, but Isobel was still clinging to her own idea. "We... we are old... Let's forget it. It did not matter no matter for what reason you cheated me, the past is the past, I do not blame you, or hate you." Isobel still had heartache and her feeling to Rufus did not disappear as time. However, she still said forgiveness, so that Rufus had no longer fantasy. "No, I've been waiting for you my whole life. I can't give up. I was wrong to lie to you, but the only reason I lied to you was because I love you. I was afraid you would leave me if you knew I had kids." "I can't figure out what you're thinking, but I don't want to spend the rest of my life alone. Isobel, do you have any idea how lonely I am every day? I sit on the sofa like a fool, do you have any idea how terrible loneliness is for people at my age?" "I don't care whether you can face it or not, whether you run away or not, I'm going to deal with this. After a year, if this matter still cannot solve, I will go abroad with you." Rufus insisted.

CHAPTER 800 COME WHENEVER YOU WANT

Rufus had no other way out. For him, even if he was to die, he would explain things clearly. He could not let Isobel be scapegoat for a lifetime, could not let Brian and Winnie broke up and could not let the fact that Vanessa was his daughter to be hidden. Isobel could feel Rufus' loneness, because she was lonely for more than 20 years. She knew it might be harder for Rufus than it was for her, because his kids were not by his side. "Rufus, you can't do that. I....." "Yes, my kids do not understand, but your kids are reasonable and will accept me. Isobel, be ready, I must be with you." Rufus knew Isobel was to refuse again, so he stopped her words. He was determined, so her opposition would be useless. He knew Isobel was still in love with him, otherwise she would not have been single for so many years and would not have given birth to Vanessa. "Why, Rufus? If you marry another woman, your kids won't object, and there won't be so much trouble. The two of us..." "No other woman, Isobel, do not say such words again, and do not question my feelings for you. If I could put our past behind me, do you think I could still be single at this age? Do you think kids are the reason I don't get married? No, no, it's because I like you that I waited for you." "My hair is turning grey and my body is getting worse every year. I don't want to wait any longer." Rufus was serious, if he still concerned the feelings of others, he felt indebted to Isobel. "Go ahead, do as you please." Isobel hung up the phone, because she had been unable to control her heart and Rufus' emotions. Rufus' words moved her and gratified her. With his words, she felt that it had been worth it, that all these years of waiting had not been in vain. However, she still could not be with Rufus and could not cooperate with Rufus to do something. She knew that Brian and Stella could not accept her because she made their mother die. Whether she was alone or in love, fate had punished her. She just needed to accept it, she could not destroy Rufus' life. Winnie lied on the sofa leisurely. "Vanessa, what do you want to eat? I will cook for you." It was almost time for dinner, Winnie shouted at Vanessa on the second floor and asked her what she wanted to eat. "Forget it, your hand has not got well. I will cook for you." Vanessa said, while walking downstairs. "It's ok. It doesn't hurt anymore." As soon as Winnie's voice fell, the doorbell rang. Vanessa hurried to open the door, but as she reached the door, it opened from the outside. Before Vanessa had reaction, Luke and Megan has jumped on her. "Aunt, I'm back." Megan excitedly looked up at Vanessa. And Luke hugged his aunt before he ran to find Winnie. "Mom, I'm home." "Who brought you back?" Winnie asked in surprise, only to see Brian stepped in carrying a lot of things. "Brian, you are here." Vanessa greeted him, but obviously it was alienated. "Yes, the kids want to have dinner with you, and your sister's hand is hurt, so we came." Brian put his things on the ground and then closed the door behind him. "Brian, you can't cook, what can you help?" Vanessa deliberately said, to expose Brian's selfishness. "I know, so I bought hotpot ingredients, which I can still do." Brian bent down again to lift the things on the floor, and Vanessa reached out to take it. "Give it to me." Vanessa took things to the kitchen. Brian and Megan came to Winnie's side. "How's your hand?" Brian was concerned. "It's all right. Why didn't you tell me before you came?" For Brian's sudden appearance, Winnie showed dissatisfaction. "If I told you in advance, you won't let me come over." Brian said. If he told her in advance knowing that Winnie did not agree with him to come over, he must have a problem with his brain. "You play with them, and I'll go to the kitchen." Brian turned and went to the kitchen. "You must tell me before you come back, or I will worry about you." Winnie told the two kids, because Brian did not listen to her. "Dad said it would be a surprise for you, so brother and I did as Dad required." She betrayed Brian in one sentence, but she liked the feeling of suddenly appearing in front of her mother. "What a surprise! You two surprised me, but your Dad frightened me." Winnie looked at the two kids, but Brian's practice would not change her mind. "Mom, is your hand all right?" Luke was worried about his mother, whether surprised or happy, he wanted to come and see his mother. "Yes, it doesn't hurt anymore." Winnie did not dare to show her finger to the kids because it was still swollen. Then Vanessa came over. "Sister, where is out pot?" "Above the cupboard... You play with them, I'll get it." Winnie got up and went to the kitchen. In the kitchen, Brian was clumsily preparing the ingredients. Winnie did not know how to describe her mood. If Brian really loved her, it was the sweetest moment. But... The cupboard was high, Winnie had to stand on tiptoe to reach the pot. As she touched the edge of the pot, a powerful force suddenly appeared behind, as well as a spacious chest and familiar masculine smell. "I'll get it." Brian had already taken the pot down as he spoke. Winnie was still drenched in the familiar breath. "Winwin." Brian pulled Winnie's thought back. "Don't come here again." Winnie gave such a sentence. "I'll come when I want. It's not up to you." Brian did not care her words. If he did not come, he would be more and more far away from Winnie. "Boring."

Winnie burst out. "As long as I can see you." Brian was content with the current situation. Even if he said nothing and did nothing, he felt steadfast as long as he could see Winnie. "Let's talk..." "Ok, but not now. We can talk about it after dinner, so as not to spoil our mood to eat." Brian knew what she wanted to talk about, and he had been ready for it before he came. But speaking of vexed thing at this time, it would affect everybody's mood certainly. The most important thing was that he could get along with Winnie more often. Since so, Winnie did not continue. It was also a topic she did not want the kids to hear and worry about. At the same time, Leo and Emily were having dinner together. It was Emily asked Leo out. "You have no reaction today, eat more." Leo helped Emily with food. "I'll do it myself." Emily did not know what to say and she had not decided if she should forgive Leo, so she was absent-minded. "Leo, when I was with Winwin and Daenerys this morning, we talked about us. I suddenly realized that what we're doing with each other is affecting other people, so... So today I want to make a decision about our relationship." Emily went to the point at the end of the dinner. Leo immediately tensed up. "Emily, let me say a few words before you make a decision." "My attitude is still the same. I like you and I want to be with you. It's not because of the child. It's because I love you, when I fall in love with you, I want to be with you forever." Leo feared that Emily ended their relationship today. "We are where we are today because of my fault. I know I made a mistake, and I admit it. I was wrong, but I do love you." "I hope you'll give me another chance. I hope you'll give me time to judge whether my love for you is real or not." Leo said what should be said, and did efforts with all his heart. If Emily still could not accept him, he could only respect Emily's decision. Leo said these words more than once, and Emily had heard it more than once. But this time she listened to him the most attentively and attentively. Seeing that Leo was sad and panic, Emily seemed to really feel his heart. "Actually, I called you out for a talk today because Winwin wants to break off all ties with you. Winwin thinks I mind that you still like her..." "Wait, Emily, listen to me." Leo interrupted her words, for he felt it necessary to explain to Emily. No matter what Emily thought of him, it was his fault and he should bear it. "Emily, I told you about severing relations with Winwin, and you denied it at that time. But that night, after drinking too much, I called Winwin and told her about it." "Winwin was..." Leo explained the matter. "You're crazy, aren't you? Winwin must be sad to hear you talk like that. Is it all right for you to let an innocent man take the fall for what happened between us?" "Leo, when do you become so brainless, how could you hurt Winwin's heart?" Emily suddenly couldn't control her anger. She repeatedly told Leo not to tell Winnie about that, how could an innocent person bear it? She did not expect Leo would do that. It seemed that it was not Winnie's whim, it was her making them together according to Leo's requirement. "I know I shouldn't have said that, I..."
