

National Forensic Doctor

Chapter: 13

After just two glances, Hou Le's family left the instant noodles, stepped out the door in two or three steps, and said, "Lao Ping, order a few people and arrest them."

He has the habit of leading by example, when he was the squadron leader, he was like this when he became the team leader.

Lao Ping, who was called out, stuffed two mouthfuls of noodles into his mouth, called the criminal police of his team to set off, grabbed his coat, and asked as he walked, "What case?"

"The robbery case on July 15 last year. According to the results of the assisted investigation from the province, he was in the Camel Mountain Forest Farm. He was a forest farm worker. He still had a check-in record this morning." Hou Le said as he walked: "The road over there is not easy to walk, so drive the pickup truck. superior."

"Okay!" Lao Ping responded, then clicked his tongue twice: "This kid is playing tricks on us, is this forest farm the fingerprint of this year's network or something?"

Many industrial and mining enterprises are now required to install and network biometric identification systems, such as coal mines, even to the extent of installing iris systems.

But Hou Le shook his head: "The fingerprints were on the Internet a long time ago, and they were only matched today. First arrest people and then talk about it."

Several people ran down the stairs in small steps. Lao Ping, who had been running for a day, started the pickup truck, let out a sigh of relief, and asked, "Do you want to take Heizi with you? Maybe it will be useful to the forest farm?"

Hou Le looked in the direction of the kennel. Heizi was chewing the chicken leg, eating deliciously. He couldn't help hesitating: "Forget it, Heizi is quite tired, let him rest, let's go and see the situation first."

Lao Ping rubbed his sore waist, laughed, and turned the key to drive.

The pickup truck runs the hills.

People run mountains.

morning.

It was broad daylight before the suspect signed the interrogation transcript.

Forestry workers in their twenties, with only a little sense of anti-reconnaissance, learned it from movies and TV shows. The initial fluke mentality dissipated, and the rest of the time could only be led by the nose by the criminal police.

Hou Lejia, who had been watching all night, heaved a sigh of relief. A little optimism finally emerged from his exhausted mood.

Robbery is one of the eight major crimes stipulated in the criminal law, and the name of the so-called serious crime team is also derived from this. For such cases, the police department has always attached great importance to them. In order to solve the case last year, Hou Le's family ran away sleeplessly for several days, but found no useful clues...

This time, being able to solve the case and successfully arrest the person is also a great sense of accomplishment for Hou Lejia, the captain of the criminal police.

After thinking about it, Hou Lejia took out his mobile phone and called Huang Qiangmin from the Criminal Police Brigade of Ningtai County next door.

The bell rang three times.

"Thank you, Captain Huang." Hou Lejia's voice was sincere.

Huang Qiangmin was a little taken aback: "Did I offend you again?"

"No, to be honest, thank you sincerely." Hou Lejia's voice became a little more sincere. It's a thank you call, so don't enter into the common mutual confrontation.

Huang Qiangmin chuckled: "Thank you for what?"

"You don't know?" Hou Lejia was stunned for a moment, then laughed inexplicably. After laughing, he told Huang Qiangmin about the results of the fingerprint association and the arrest of the person, and said: "Speaking of this case, The victim only called the police the next day, but it rained that night, and a lot of evidence was lost. Of course, the suspect also relaxed his vigilance, thinking we had forgotten about the case, huh..."

This time, it was Huang Qiangmin's turn to be silent.

A few seconds later, Huang Qiangmin said slowly: "So, you have solved a robbery case?"

"Yes. I caught it with my own hands. Thank you for your inspection. I will treat you to dinner when you are free." Hou Lejia ended the call with a smile.

Huang Qiangmin squeezed the phone, put it back into his pocket, turned around and went up to the fourth floor where the Criminal Science Squadron was located.

He wanted to see how the scouts, who were always complaining about the pain, managed to eat wild food.

Trace inspection room.

Yan Ge was holding a steaming teacup, while sipping hot tea, he commented on the fingerprints in front of him: "It's too blurry, the leather is covered with paint, what do you think, fingerprints are being taken now! ..."

"Strict! Wang Zhong! You have grown up!" Huang Qiangmin looked around, with sharp eyes like a stray cat.

"Yellow team." The two trace inspectors were startled and stood up.

"You guys are too busy every day, what's wrong?" Huang Qiangmin's tone was stern.

A batch of two tracers. What did we do inappropriately? We usually do this often, and we haven't been scolded...

The policemen of the Criminal Division, who have been doing trace inspection all the year round, have received Huang Qiangmin's "military training" for less time, but because of this, they are even more unaccustomed to Huang Qiangmin's strictness.

"It's a good thing to get a fingerprint, but I don't know if you should report to your superiors first? What about your organizational discipline?" Huang Qiangmin frowned, as if he was about to kill a rat.

Both Yan Ge and Wang Zhong were blank-eyed and shook their heads together.

Yan Ge asked in a low voice, "What fingerprint did we match?"

Huang Qiangmin was really puzzled this time. After thinking for a moment, he said: "Longli County has cracked a robbery case, a backlog, and the suspect was found through fingerprint comparison. Lao Hou called to thank you, didn't you two do it?"

"No." Lao Yan and Xiao Wang shook their heads again, with a little difficulty.

"Ask someone." Huang Qiangmin simply sat down.

He has a feeling of solving the case now, and is eager for the result, or to find a suitable path.

Yan Ge and Wang Zhong had no choice but to call each other.

Those who do trace inspection often have assisted investigation tasks, and it is normal to ask questions.

After a while, the two hung up the phone respectively and returned to Huang Qiangmin.

Huang Qiangmin looked at the eyes of the two, and his expression became serious. The expressions of the two were so serious that Huang Qiangmin had to have a lot of associations.

"I received the news here." Old Yan coughed twice, came to Huang Qiangmin, his eyes drifted unconsciously to the position of the forensic office, and said: "The one who did the fingerprint comparison should be Xiao Jiang from our team. Jiang Yuan."

"Jiang Yuan... Which team is it?" Huang Qiangmin didn't meet anyone for a while. He is the captain of the criminal police brigade, and his subordinates include multiple criminal police squadrons, as well as police dog squadrons, criminal police squadrons, and anti-drug squadrons. There are hundreds of people and dogs in the team, and he is not sensitive to newcomers.

Xiao Wang said: "It's the new forensic doctor who came to report, the one who is very tall."

"I'll know if you say that." Huang Qiangmin then matched the person with the name. It is true that there are more than a hundred criminal policemen under him, but forensic doctors are always equipped with one or two. On the other hand, Jiang Yuan's height is always impressive.

After finishing speaking, the three fell into silence again.

Yan Ge and Wang Zhong, who have done the trace inspection for a long time, are full of muddleheadedness-it is one thing to help other units to assist in the fingerprint inspection, but it is another thing to make fingerprints that other units cannot do.

In short, assisting in the fingerprint search does not necessarily mean that the fingerprints are difficult, and it may also be that the fingerprint database coverage of other units is not enough. Nowadays, there is no such thing as a national fingerprint database, and all provinces, including all provinces, do fingerprint databases that only cover a part of fingerprints.

Therefore, most of the policemen who do fingerprint inspection first check the criminal fingerprint database of their own city, and if they can't find it, they then check the vehicle management office, or the database of identity information, etc., and then go to the provincial government. Office, the Department of Investigation, ask other units for help.

This kind of fingerprints that cannot be matched due to database and other reasons is the fingerprint traces that Lao Yan and Xiao Zhao are familiar with. And those who won the fingerprints based on "brute strength" are rare.

"See you." Huang Qiangmin got up and walked out, Lao Yan and Xiao Wang followed without hesitation.

Not only Huang Qiangmin, but also Yan Ge and Wang Zhong, who could hear something, also followed into the forensic office.

Jiang Yuan's desk was facing the door, and a few people turned in one direction, and they could see the fingerprint image on Jiang Yuan's screen. Two groups of fine black and white lines, one on the left and one on the right, like two balls of messed up yarn, dazzled the viewers.