

Chapter 11 Only She Can't See the Light

Before he finished his words, Philip suddenly interrupted with a serious face, "Shut up, no one takes you for a mute if you don't speak."

The air was suddenly quiet, and Jeremy turned his head to look at Amaya with seeming concern, who got up self-consciously, "I'm going to the bathroom."

Amaya knew that she would only be embarrassed if she stayed at a time like this, but what she didn't expect was that Jeremy knew about Julia's existence and seemed to be familiar with her.

In other words, among the women around Philip, only she can't see the light and doesn't deserve to be known.....

She also wanted to know the answer to the question Jeremy asked, why did Philip bring Julia to her hospital? Was he deliberate to let her know? To let her know that better not have some illusion about him?

She smiled to herself at the thought, she had already made up her mind to leave him firmly so there is really no need for him to do this.

Bored, she stood at the sink browsing her phone, intending to linger longer, when suddenly a lively figure leaped into view, "Miss. Timothy!"

The little one's voice was so loud that it nearly scared her into dropping her phone. When she saw clearly that it was Maya Field, she reached out and touched the little one's head, "Hey, Maya, what are you doing here? Who did you come with?"

Maya avoided her hand and pouted a little, "Don't touch my hair, my brother tied the pigtails for me, don't mess it up. I came with my brother, you want to see him, right? He said you have known each other for a long time. Were you lovers?"

Amaya was full of questions and was stunned, "Do you know what the lovers mean when you're just a little kid?"

Maya looked like a small adult, "Of course I know, lovers hold hands, eat together, and kiss each other a lot."

The corners of Amaya's mouth twitched, kids these days are really precocious: "Didn't you come here to pee? Hurry up and go."

The little one only then walked into the toilet cubicle.

Soon, the little one came out, tiptoeing to wash her hands as she surveyed Amaya, "You didn't show up here because you knew my brother would be here, did you?"

She carefully speculated on the little one's words, could it be that Matthew had had a not-so-ideal relationship that had left a shadow in the little one's heart, and that was why the little one was so defensive of her?

Amaya had a bit of a headache,"No really,you don't need to be so defensive,if I wanted to be your sister-in-law,I would have been a long time ago.I'm here to eat,I'll go out first if there's nothing else."

She was telling the truth,if she had accepted Matthew and gone out with him,they might have gotten married by now.

Maya still wanted to ask something,but she had already lifted her foot and walked out first,Matthew is really a duteous brother,waiting outside to guard the door.

Seeing Amaya,he was stunned for a moment,"What a surprise."

Amaya smiled at him,"Yeah,I am just off work,I came over for dinner,and I didn't expect you to be here too,I'll go to my table first."

Matthew nodded,Maya was already unhappily tugging on his sleeve,so she could only quickly go back to her seat.

Glancing at the unfaded smile at the corner of her lips,Philip's eyes dimmed imperceptibly.

Jeremy once again asked untimely,"Amaya,I didn't know you had known someone from the Field family."

Amaya explained honestly,"We were in the same class,just know each other,and we are not close."

Jeremy's tone suddenly became grotesque,"Really?Then why did I hear that he had chased you?"
