

Chapter 27 Hilda. You Can't Leave Me

Raymond would never forget his feelings when Hilda stabbed the fruit knife into her heart without hesitation.

He was totally shocked by her movement as if he was nailed onto the ground. Hilda was about to stab herself the second time, he finally came back to his senses and grabbed her hand.

"No!" Raymond shook his head, "You can't do this to me!"

Hilda was still supporting herself and looking at him without emotions, "I will give it back to you. After that, we will have no connections..."

"No! No! Hilda, I will not let you go! Even if you take your heart out, you have to stay with me! You can't leave me, Hilda! You can't!"

Raymond's hands and feet were cold and his whole body was soft. He watched Hilda close her eyes slowly and turn up the corners of her mouth. His heart turned freezing cold.

When the doctors and nurses arrived, they were shocked too. They immediately pushed Raymond away and put Hilda on the stretcher, wheeling her into the operating room.

Edgar should not be on duty tonight but he was worried about Hilda so he stayed in the hospital.

After he finished his work, he heard that Hilda committed suicide by stabbing her chest twice.

This was the first time for Edgar to lose his mind.

When he saw Hilda covered in blood on the operation bed, his hand trembled lightly.

"Doctor Robinson?" his assistant called Edgar.

Raymond took a deep breath and calmed himself down, "Let's start."

It took a long time for Edgar to finish this surgery from midnight to the dawn on next morning.

Since Hilda was wheeled into the operating room, Raymond had been standing in front of them. At a glance, his eyes would make people scary.

The sound of high heels knocking on the ground came and it could be told that person was in a hurry. That person finally stopped when she arrived in front of Raymond.

Without saying anything, she lifted her hand and slapped Raymond, "Do you have a heart? How could you do this to Karen?"

"Tracy May!" Lauren who had been following this woman pushed her away and then asked Raymond, "Are you alright? We..."

Before Lauren could finish her words, she was pushed away by Raymond. He raised his hand and looked at the woman who slapped him hard.

The woman was Tracy May, Hilda's best friend.

Tracy wanted to tear Raymond into pieces right now! How could he still be calm right now?

Tracy just couldn't figure out why the couple who were so in love were separated just because of a car accident. Tracy could not figure out why Raymond would love Karen so quickly.

In this matter, Hilda was the only stupid woman who was waiting for her man to come back to her.

Tracy had persuaded her not to wait anymore but Hilda shook her head.

Then Tracy had to stop mentioning Raymond's name in front of Hilda.

Two years ago, Tracy went abroad to live because of the change in her career.

But during the past two years, she knew nothing about Hilda. Every time she called Hilda, Hilda would always say she was great. During the last call between them a few days ago, Hilda told Tracy not to worry about her.

When Tracy came back, she heard about the bankruptcy of the Parker's Corporation!

She heard Hilda's parents committed suicide!

Then now Hilda was committed suicide!