

Chapter 7 You Did This!

Lauren's words were like a sharp knife stabbing into Raymond's heart.

It hasn't been a long time since Karen passed away how could he...

How could he want to...

Raymond took a complicated look at Hilda was lying on a bed with an indifferent face and then he turned around to leave.

After Raymond left, there were just Hilda and Lauren alone in this big room.

The bitterness and pain on Lauren's face immediately disappeared. She turned around and raised her eyebrows at Hilda, "You are so lucky to stay alive."

Lauren sat down next to Hilda's bed and her face showed pity, "I haven't thought that you could survive from that group of men just after the heart surgery."

Hilda turned to look at Lauren with doubt in her eyes.

"I had thought that you would die at the hands of those men just like Karen Miller. If you had died, you wouldn't have gone through the suffering afterward. Right?" Lauren Miller, whose facial features were similar to Karen's, smiled brightly and continued, facing Hilda's surprise, "Actually, I couldn't figure out why Karen added drug in your glass to frame you. She ended up being the one who died."

Hilda suddenly widened her eyes and understood everything in an instant.

"It is you! You did this!"

Lauren frowned and looked at Hilda with discontent, "What are you talking about? You can't just say I am guilty. At least you should give your evidence."

Lauren stood up and picked up an orange from the table, starting to peel, "I think you should thank me, otherwise, how could you have the chance to argue with me right now?"

Hilda kept breathing in air and her heart beat extremely fast.

Hilda had been wondering why Raymond believed that she was guilty and that she forced Karen to agree to the donation...

Now everything was clear.

But why did Lauren do this? Karen was her twin sister and how could she hurt her?

Hilda thought of something and said firmly, "Because you like Raymond!"

Lauren smiled, very brightly, "Yes, I love him. I love him so much but he didn't even take a look at me! But now, you see, how nice he was to me? What he liked was just Karen's face so now he liked me! I look exactly the same as Karen. After a period of time, I will marry him and no one can stop me from doing that!"

Hilda felt her body turned cold and she squeezed her fists, asking, "Aren't you afraid that I will tell him about what you just said?"

Lauren sneered, "Are you confident that Raymond will believe you? Are you going to tell him that I did that to my twin sister Karen? Take a step back, it was originally Karen's plan and I just made a little movement. Even if Raymond started investigating, he wouldn't find me at fault."

Hilda paused.

Lauren kept smiling and put the orange aside. She took out some tissues to wipe her fingers.

"I am here to tell you that your family is over. You will no longer be the lady in the Parker family while your family might go to jail. Hilda, how pitiful you are!"
