

Chapter 9 | Hate You

Hilda's mother died.

After Hilda received a call from the police, she went to the hospital to confirm her mother's identity. She seemed to have lost her soul and her heart turned empty. Having a weak body, Hilda was going to prepare for her mother's funeral.

The Parker family, once one of the most powerful families, collapsed overnight.

Hilda's mother committed suicide by jumping while her father was sent to prison.

None of the acquaintances attended this funeral and even none of the relatives came. No one wanted to get involved.

Hilda was kneeling in front of her mother's phone and her eyes were empty. No one knows what she was thinking.

Raymond had been standing behind her for a long time but she didn't notice him, kneeling straight and letting her thoughts flying in the air.

Raymond frowned and didn't why he felt uneasy. He took steps forward to pull her up but Hilda dodged him.

She raised her head and after a while, Hilda realized it was Raymond who was in front of her.

It was him... the man she loved deeply. Even if he forgot about her and fell in love with another woman, she still loved him quietly.

Hilda believed that she would not bother her while still loving him.

However, because of her love for him, her family was broken, and because of her love for him, she ended up homeless...

Was this called retribution?

"Maybe this is my retribution," Hilda thought.

"Why?" Hilda stared at Raymond and asked him with a hoarse voice, "Tell me why you did this."

"You are asking me why? Don't you know why?" Suppressing the anger and upset in his heart, he sneered.

"I have told you that I didn't hurt Karen! I was begging you to believe me!" Hilda's heart suffered numb pain and she kept taking deep breaths, "Even if you thought I am guilty and that you believed I did everything, you should come at me! You can just kill me and why...why did you hurt my family?" Hilda used all her strength to question him, "Raymond, you have no right to do so!"

"From the moment you hurt Karen, you should have thought of your family's result!"

"Raymond!" Hilda suddenly screamed with her eyes filled with hatred. She also gritted her teeth and sneered, "Raymond, when you find out the truth, I hope you will not regret what you did."

"Regret?" Raymond said in a low voice, "What I regretted was that I let your family go!"

After saying that, he gripped Hilda regardless of her struggle, and walked outside.

"Raymond, what are you going to do? You must let me go! I want to stay with my mom! Let me go back to be with my mom! I owe nothing to you! Raymond, I owe you nothing! You let me go!"

"If you want your father to have a peaceful life in prison, you should stop yelling," Raymond said.

Raymond's words made Hilda froze and she looked at him coldly with pale lips and sharp pain in her heart. He just ignored her and threw her into the car, locking it.

"Raymond..." Hilda collapsed in the seat and said trembly, "I regret it...I don't love you anymore."

This single sentence was like a sharp sword stabbed into his chest!

Chapter 10 Everything Was A Mistake

Hilda was woken up by the pain.

She thought she had died but when she saw Raymond's angry face when she woke up, she knew that she would have to suffer a lot in the future.

Raymond wouldn't let her die because she had Karen's heart.

For the sake of Karen, Raymond wouldn't let her die so easily.

"Hilda, you think I will never hurt you, right?" Raymond grabbed Hilda with a pair of angry eyes as if he were a beast going to swallow her down his belly, "How dare you send someone to hurt Lauren?"

Hilda wasn't eager to defend herself and she had nothing to say to him. Hilda looked at Raymond calmly and her dry voice could only let out a hoarse voice, "...Then I will thank you."

She was disappointed in him, completely.

She didn't want to wait for him.

What if he knew all the truths?

Her mother was gone and her family was broken and she herself...was ruined by him.

They could not go back together so it would make no difference if he found out the truth.

Raymond let her go and suppressed his emotions at the bottom of his heart.

He said coldly and firmly, "It seemed that you had forgotten what I had warned you."

Then he turned his head to his bodyguard and said, "Bring them in."

Hilda collapsed on the floor and looked at Raymond quietly.

She thought she was already disappointed in the man in front of her but until now, she realized what a dead heart felt like and that what was a true hell.

Every midnight, she would dream about those miserable days.

Raymond showed no mercy and said, "I have told you that I make your life a hell."

Seeing the man approaching her, Hilda didn't take a step back but stared at Raymond with sad eyes and smiled. Her voice was as hoarse as before as if it was sunk in blood.

"Raymond, I hate you," her voice was like a bomb exploding in his ears.

When she was controlled by someone else, she didn't struggle. Her eyes were like a wasted land and she looked into his eyes, repeating, "I don't love you anymore. I don't love you. I hate you!"

No matter what Hilda said, Raymond sat on the sofa and looked at her expressionlessly. Seeing Hilda give up struggling, he had some emotions in his eyes.

He gritted his fists and told himself not to move. He couldn't save her this time. This woman hurt Lauren and Karen and he had no reason to save her!

Raymond thought, "It is all Hilda's fault! She deserves it!"

The closed door was kicked open!

Raymond raised his head and when he saw the anxious look on his assistant Will's face, he felt something was wrong.

"Why are you in a hurry?"

"Boss, everything was a mistake!"

Will tried to make himself calm. God knows how shocked he was when he got the information about Hilda. After thinking about what his boss had done to her, he felt there was no hope.

"What mistake?" Raymond asked.

Chapter 11 Afraid You Will Regret It

"Ms. Parker...she is Kiki you've been looking for the past decade!"

These words echoed in Raymond's head as if a huge bomb exploded in his ears!

Raymond froze in situ and his sharp gaze fell on Will, "What...are you talking about?"

Will, who was about to report the information on Hilda he had got, gasped when he saw what was going on in the room.

"Get out!" Will scolded that group of crazy men!

But those men couldn't hear what Will said and they were all thinking about the weak but pretty woman in front of them. They were thinking about when they could do it with this woman.

"Get out!" Will took big steps forward, kicked the man above Hilda away and said with angry eyes, "You all get out of here!"

Will's movement made all the other men frightened and those men showed fury on their faces, asking, "Who are you to ask us to do so?"

They hadn't got Hilda so they were unwilling to leave. They'd like to have a taste of this beautiful woman!

The man was asking Will tentatively but he was actually looking at Raymond who stood still.

Raymond had no reaction but looked at them coldly so those men became bolder and were ready to reach out to push Will.

Will's face firmed and he easily overpowered those two men, warning them, "If you don't want to die, you'd better stop now!"

Then Will took a deep breath and said to Raymond, "Boss, you... will regret it. You will regret it if you don't ask them to stop."

Raymond seemed not to hear what Will said and wanted to ask him what Will had just said about Hilda. However, his throat was like being stuck by something and he couldn't utter a word.

The moment Raymond looked into Will's eyes, he didn't want to ask anything but run away from this suffocating place.

"Mr. Morris, should we keep..." a leader among those men asked Raymond directly and his eyes were still filled with desire.

"Get out!" Finally, Raymond opened his mouth.

Those men were not satisfied by touching Hilda. They were not satisfied that they hadn't got Hilda. If Will hadn't appeared out of a sudden, they would have done it with Hilda!

No matter how unsatisfied in their heart, those men dare not to revolt against Raymond who could take control of their lives.

Those men left one by one and when there were only three of them left, Will called the emergency car and told the medical staff about their relocation.

And then Will made a phone call again. He called his subordinates and asked them to keep an eye on those men who just left. Will asked them to take control of that group of men if they wanted to run away.

"Why are you doing this?" Raymond asked Will.

Will pursed his lips and put his phone into his pocket. Hilda was now lying on the bed with her eyes tightly closed and her brows frowned and looked quite miserable. Seeing this, Will went over and used the quilt to wrap Hilda's body with a few clothes on.

"Because I am afraid you will regret it," Will said in a low voice as if he didn't want to wake up the woman who was sleeping now.

"Don't touch her," Raymond said and his eyes were fixedly focused on Will's hands, "Will, if you lie to me to save her, you should know about your consequence."

"Boss, I will send my resignation to your mailbox tomorrow. I have found out everything you asked me to investigate. All the materials were placed on your desk now," Will bent down and held the woman who looked like dead in his arms, continuing, "I hope that you will not regret it if you find out the entire truth."

Chapter 12 The Entire Truth

Will's words were like a spell lingering on at the bottom of Raymond's heart.

After Will took Hilda to leave in his arms, Raymond hurriedly went back to his company and ran to his office. Seeing the papers on his desk, Raymond dared not to take a step forward and he dared not to see those materials.

Raymond didn't know why he would be so afraid like this and he didn't even know where his fear and unease in his heart came from.

He couldn't believe it! How could Hilda...be Kiki? He grew up with Kiki together and his Kiki...

His Kiki was killed by Hilda!

Karen died and he saw it! He held Karen's funeral and how could Karen not be Kiki?

He was so terrified just by Will's words.

"No, everything he said was not true and Will said that to save Hilda! That is all! Will didn't tell me the truth!" Raymond roared in his head but he couldn't help but touch the materials.

His fear was like a beast roaring inside him and there was a voice stopping him from touching that and even telling him to burn it all.

Only by this could he be redeemed.

Otherwise, he would be doomed.

However, Raymond's hands, seemingly out of his control, picked up the paper bag and took the materials out of it.

Raymond recognized Will's ability who had sorted out the complicated information in order.

Raymond took out the pile of papers sorted out by Will and started reading from the very first line. He froze on his chair and kept reading word by word slowly.

Along with the materials, there was also a thumb drive and a recorder.

Not knowing how long it had lasted, Raymond felt his body stiff and he kept the original posture on his chair. He was staring at those papers and holding tightly the recorder in his hands whose content he had heard over and over again.

The whole office fell silent.

Among the papers, there was also a paragraph written down by Will: Lauren went to the hospital to see Hilda, and their conversation was recorded in this drive. You can check it out, Mr. Morris.

He inserted the drive and when it was connected successfully, he saw a video file but his hand on the mouse did not move a bit. He had no courage to see the video.

He... was afraid.

He was afraid that after seeing this video, he would be beyond redemption.

... ..

On the other side, Lauren Miller didn't expect to receive the call that was not supposed to come.

"I have told you not to call me anymore!" Lauren's tone was not friendly.

The man, on the other end of the phone, sneered, "You are going to throw me away after using me? If you don't want me to expose what you have done, you'd better come to me right now."

Lauren's face turned grim, "I have already given you the money! What else do you want?"

The man laughed, "As long as you come to me and go to bed with me, I will say nothing after I'm comfortable."

Lauren frowned and asked, "Didn't you do it with Hilda today? Are you not satisfied?"

To use that group of men, she slept with that man for two days.

Lauren knew Hilda was taken away by Raymond and that group of men were also there so she was quite sure what Raymond was going to do to Hilda.

Hearing Lauren's words, the man immediately sneered, "I didn't do it with her. I was turned on and then I was kicked out just like last time! What bad luck!"
