

Chapter 21 I Won't Let You Cry

She was not alone.

But the person who accompanied her was not him.

Albert got out of the car, leaned against the car, and looked at them with a smile.

Seeing Albert, Aaron raised his chin, "Here he comes."

Susan also saw him and said softly, "I'll go back first. Thank you for those brand operation ideas."

Aaron smiled, "Still love him?"

How could she not love him?

If people's feelings really can disappear suddenly, then they will live more freely.

This was the seed buried in her heart when she was young. For so many years, it had been deeply rooted in her heart.

She can't pull it out.

She thought she wouldn't care about him anymore when she pretended to be indifferent. She was indifferent because she thought she couldn't get Albert.

The truth was as long as he reached out his hand, she would still go with him.

Her silence had explained everything.

A flash of pain showed in Aaron's eyes, "Since you love him, go with him. Don't be influenced by gossip."

She had been pregnant for nearly three months and would soon be seen. Fortunately, the weather was getting colder and colder. She wore more clothes, and no one noticed anything unusual.

But he would find out sooner or later.

If he wanted to live with her, she was going to tell her about the existence of the child.

If.....

Then she could only make a quick decision and leave as soon as possible.

Aaron turned around and left.

Susan went toward Albert step by step.

The autumn wind was cool. It was quite comfortable.

She stood in front of him. "Why are you here?"

"What's the matter? Haven't you been with him enough?"

Susan was silent for a few seconds and said, "Are you jealous?"

"I'm jealous? Have you ever seen me jealous?"

There was a flash of unhappiness in his eyes.

Susan saw it, but she thought it was irony.

She lowered her head, "I was kidding."

Albert stopped talking. They just stood in the afterglow of the evening, as if they had been frozen.

Susan's eyes were sour. "If there's nothing else, I'll go home first."

She turned and wanted to go, but Albert suddenly grabbed her wrist and pulled her into his arms. "Why are you so indifferent?"

Susan was held in his arms and couldn't move.

She was afraid to hurt her child and didn't dare to move.

Whispered, "You take a mirror to look at your face, so fierce, who will believe you are not jealous."

"Do I have to laugh when I see you with other men? It's jealous?"

"You... Um..."

In public, he... He kissed her at the gate of the company.

Before, she thought he and Lacey were to publicity.

Now it was her and him.

Life was really dramatic. Who would know how the track of life went?

She closed her eyes, grabbed his shirt, and looked up.

Aaron, who was not far away, looked at this scene, and the pain in his eyes was thicker.

While having dinner, Susan suddenly received a call from Aaron.

Susan looked at Albert and picked it up, "Hello?"

"Are you his girlfriend?"

"I... I'm not..."

Before she finished speaking, she was interrupted,

"This man had a car accident. It's very serious. He's been calling your name. I don't know if you can come here."

Susan squeezed her cell phone, "What? Sure, I'll be there right away."

Before she hung up, she stood up and went straight out.

Albert clasped her wrist, "Where are you going?"

She didn't answer. The worrying look on her face made him frown, "Where are you going?"

It was only when Susan regained her consciousness that she remembered to explain to Albert.

She cried anxiously. "It's Aaron, he had a car accident. I have to go and see him."

"His families will come to see him for the first time. What's your hurry and what are you crying about?"

Why was he still worried about this.

Susan shook off his hand. "Why are you so cold-blooded? Do you know it's not him who just called me, but the doctor in the hospital? He can't even call me. How seriously did you know he was injured? His family is abroad. Where will any family rush there the first time!"

Albert stood up and grabbed her shoulder. "What does it have to do with you even if he dies? You are not allowed to go! You are not allowed to cry!"

Susan's heart ached. "Albert, no wonder you can handle the relationship well between Lacey and me. It turns out that you have no heart at all. Didn't you want to divorce me for Lacey? Now, why do you say you love me? Albert, you're terrible!"

"Divorce you for Lacey? Do you think so?"

"Or what, because you love me?"

Albert was silent, but his eyes were burning with anger as if she had made an unforgivable mistake.

Susan didn't want to waste time with him at the moment. She took off his hand and ran out quickly.

Looking at the woman who had run out and got into a taxi, Albert was furious. If it weren't for his innate manners, he might have overturned the table.

Then his cell phone rang.

It was his assistant, "Mr. Albert, I'm sorry. Lacey. She's too angry and sad because of your recent relationship with your wife. Now she's going to jump off the roof of the restaurant where you and your wife used to eat..."

"Whatever she wants!"

"Mr. Albert, I'm afraid I can't leave her alone... She tied up your mother and planned to die with her together..."

"What are you talking about?! How could my mother..."

He got up and walked out quickly.

"I'm not clear about how your mother..."

Albert did not dare to delay. He drove quickly and almost flew to the door of the hotel.

Before the car stopped steadily and the doors were not closed, Albert got off the car and went all the way to the roof.

As soon as the door of the roof opened, the assistant came over, "President!"

As soon as Lacey saw Albert, she cried and laughed, "You finally came... Can you divorce Susan when your mother is in my hand?"

Albert's mother seemed to be in a coma. She bowed her head and said nothing.
